Man Arrested For Burglary

Javon Edwards

Madison County Sheriff Ben Stewart reports that on Saturday morning, Dec. 7, at approximately 6:30 a.m., deputies were dispatched to a residence located on State Road 14 in Madison County in reference to a residential alarm activation. Upon arrival deputies observed a male later identified as Javon Cartavious Edwards, 34, of Madison, run out the back door of the residence, jump a fence and flee into a wooded area.

Deputies immediately requested assistance from officers of the Madison Police Department and established a tight perimeter. Deputies entered the residence to search for other possible suspects that may have still been inside, however none were found. Deputies discovered that Edwards had gained entry into the residence by busting a glass window-pane out of the rear door and unlocking the door. A short time later, deputies maintaining the perimeter could hear Edwards running in the woods and gave pursuit. Deputies caught up to Edwards and ordered him to get on the ground. Edwards complied and was arrested without further incident. Edwards spontaneously and voluntarily admitted to deputies that he did, in fact, "burglarize" the residence and that he was currently "out on parole from prison." Edwards was transported to the Madison County Jail. It was further confirmed that Edwards had conducted his required criminal registration at the Madison County jail when released from prison back on Aug. 8.

Edwards was charged with burglary while armed, criminal mischief and theft.

A checking account has been set up at Madison County Community Bank to raise money for Robert Sealey.

Sealey, husband of the former Amanda Dempsey and father of Kyle and Kayla, has renal cell carcinoma, which he has fought for years. He has seven brain tumors and two spots on his lung, as well as his toe and on his liver. He is scheduled to begin chemotherapy soon.

To make a donation, one may go to the drive thru window or to a teller inside at MCCB and tell them what the donation is for. The teller knows the account number and will make the deposit.

Sealey's sister-in-law, Ashley Hutchinson, is selling decals, which fit on automobile windows, to raise money for him and to raise awareness of renal cell carcinoma. Contact Hutchinson at (850) 673-1471 to purchase the decals.

Hutchinson also asks that when someone sees one of the decals on a vehicle to please pray for Robert and his family because they know that God is in control and they wholeheartedly trust Him.

Last week, I was treated to a tour of the PCA (Packaging Corporation of America) factory in Clyattville. I mentioned to Matt Webb of Greenville Timber that I wanted to see where the wood we grow is processed, so he and Jerry Gray set up our visit.

First let me say that PCA is a huge publicly traded company headquartered in Chicago. They have many mills and sites spread across the country, one of which is in neighboring Lowndes County, Ga., employing 350 workers some of whom live in Madison and commute north each day for work. Here the company produces kraft paper or linerboard which is used in the manufacture of corrugated boxes and packing material. That sounds pretty simple but they do this on an industrial scale. A roll of paper measuring 18+ feet across and weighing 35 tons comes out of their manufacturing process about twice each hour. Their product is shipped to hundreds of industrial customers throughout the world.

The raw material going into the plant through their impressive wood yard totals between 40 and 50 thousand tons of pine logs each week. Three massive cranes offload the trucks quickly and efficiently.

The Clyattville plant has been in operation for nearly sixty years, but it is much different today from when it was founded in 1954. Equipment upgrades; improved wood handling; power generation; environmental upgrades; and new safety measures are just a few of drivers which have resulted in changes at the plant over the years. They are a model for efficiency which explains why they have adapted and continue to lead their industry today.

PCA Clyattville uses a lot of water and electricity in their process, but interestingly, they manufacture 90 percent of the energy they use by burning wood chips and other byproducts. I have it on good authority that the purity and cleanliness of the Withlacoochee is directly attributable to the environmental record of PCA. They also reclaim and recycle a huge amount (95 percent) of the chemicals used in their processes. That's obviously good for the environmental quality of the water and soil, but it also makes good economic sense – those chemicals are expensive.

I'm not sure how many Madison County residents are employed at PCA Clyattville, but I'm sure it is a major economic factor in our community. And these are really good paying jobs with impressive benefits and retirement plans, much higher than the average for our rural community. Another interesting fact – PCA is the largest taxpayer in Lowndes County.

Some people complain about the sulfur smell that we occasionally detect, but I don't smell it very often and the people who have lived here much longer than I tell me that the noxious odors are not nearly as frequent or as bad as in earlier years.

As a wood producer,

I'm grateful for factories like PCA. Without them, there would be no customer for the wood we grow. And I'm certain that our local economy is greatly improved by businesses like PCA.

Shop Locally For Christmas

Emerald Greene
Publisher

Christmas is exactly two weeks away, and everyone is busy buying and wrapping presents in preparation of the holidays.

I would like to take this time/space to encourage everyone to shop locally, as much as you can. I know, and understand, that by living in a small town there are some things that we have to go out of town for, in order to purchase. Things such as certain designer jeans, electronic games, iPhones and iPads, and certain children's toys can only be found in some of the big, out-of-town businesses.

However, there are so many gift ideas that are available in our town: hunting and fishing supplies, jewelry, purses, dinner plate sets, antique furniture and clothing, artwork, theme-related items, knick-knacks, tools, auto parts, lawn and garden items, and other memorabilia.

Some "non-traditional" ideas for the "hard to buy for" person on your list (or someone who already "has it all") could be a facial, massage or hair cut from a local salon; a plant or tree from a local florist; a gift card to a local restaurant, pharmacy, gas station; a home-made cake, or a local "home-based" independent salesperson (such as Avon, Mary Kay, Tupperware, etc.)

Use your imagination; there are tons of ideas that can be thought up, all while staying within our small community. Go walk around and walk in our home-owned businesses; you might surprise yourself with the amount of gift ideas you will find.

Top reasons to shop locally:

1) Save Time, Gas and Energy – without having to drive long distances or spend countless hours on the road you will save money on gas and save your time and energy for fun this holiday season.

2) Boost Employment – More sales in our community means more people are needed. That's good for the economy and providing jobs for your family, friends, neighbors, and possibly you.

3) To Promote Economic Development – More local sales mean more money in circulation. That means more businesses can grow and new businesses can start. That improves the area for everyone.

4) To Get Personal Service – You know you can trust the person behind the counter to give you the best advice and value when you know them personally.

5) To Give To Your Community – When you shop locally, a portion of the money from your purchases pays the wages of your friends, family and neighbors who work at local businesses.

6) To Help Others – Owners and employees of local businesses support a wide range of community services and charitable projects with their time, talents and money.

So, get busy and get ready for Christmas. Santa Claus will be coming down our chimneys in a matter of weeks. Just make sure you check local shops before you bust off out of town.

And, no matter what you buy – be sure to throw in a one-year subscription to your local newspaper! Your family/friends will thank you for it!

But, most importantly – remember the true meaning of Christmas is NOT Santa Claus – it's Jesus Christ.

Until then...see you around the town.

think of the weight we all gained that Christmas.

This year, a fellow co-worker asked if I had a recipe for buckeyes and I am more than happy to share our traditional Christmas candy with her, and you. If you prefer smooth and creamy, you will like my mom's recipe (which she dips the traditional way). If you are a fan of the crisped rice chocolate candy bars, you will love my mother-in-law's recipe as it contains crisped rice cereal. No matter what recipe you choose to make, if you love the combination of peanut butter and chocolate, you can't go wrong.

Moms' BUCKEYES (Smooth)

$\frac{1}{2}$ c. butter
2 tbs. vanilla
2 tbs. milk
3 c. creamy peanut butter
4 c. confectioner's sugar

Jenny's BUCKEYES (Crispy)

4 c. creamy peanut butter
1 c. butter
one (2 lb.) package confectioner's sugar
3 c. crispy rice cereal

Choose a peanut butter mixture and mix all ingredients together to make a "dough." Roll mixture into one-inch balls and place on a baking sheet lined with waxed paper. Freeze the balls for about 20 minutes before dipping.

Dipping Chocolate

There are several choices when choosing dipping chocolate: Seasoned cooks may use a product called almond bark, found on the baking aisle in grocery stores; there are several kinds of dipping wafers, some on the baking aisle, some in cake decorating sections; or you can use chocolate chips melted with a little shortening to make the chocolate a bit more fluid which will also aid in hardening the chocolate after the balls are dipped.

Personally I use a mixture of wafers and chocolate chips because the wafers help to set the chocolate and the chips give the candy a true chocolate taste and mouth-feel. One of the recipes above will take 12 ounces of chocolate candy wafers combined with 12 ounces of semi-sweet chocolate chips. Or use four cups chips combined with 2 teaspoons shortening.

Melt chocolate of choice in a double boiler and dip balls in chocolate and put back onto baking sheet for chocolate to harden. My mom dips her candy using toothpicks...pokes toothpicks into candy, dip into chocolate, remove excess at bottom of ball with a knife and place dipped balls back onto baking sheet. I use a fork...place candy on (not in) fork, gently dip candy into chocolate, tap fork on pan and scrape across to remove excess chocolate before placing back onto pan. Repeat, repeat, repeat; the above recipes makes about 100 buckeyes each.

identified as Deander Lidel Williams, 39, of Jacksonville, walking in the westbound traffic lane. Williams was observed making obscene gestures toward vehicles as they passed him.

Deputies stopped and made contact with Williams who was clearly agitated for unknown reasons. Williams used profanity towards the deputies and refused to identify himself. As deputies were trying to calm Williams and identify him, Williams stepped out in front of oncoming traffic nearly causing a traffic crash.

Deputies told Williams he was under arrest and Williams began to approach deputies in an aggressive manner with both of his fists clenched. Deputies drew a Taser and ordered Williams to get on the ground and warned Williams that failure to comply would result in Williams being tased.

At that point Williams attempted to flee on foot forcing deputies to successfully deploy the Taser to subdue him. Williams was then arrested and placed in wrist restraints without further incident.

Williams was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

second occurrence Deputies were called to the area regarding physical altercations.

Upon arrival, deputies located one of the subjects involved in the altercation and attempted to take him into custody. As deputies were clearing the subject for transport, he became more belligerent and resisted officers as they attempted to take him into custody. The subject's mother, Betty Jean Blackshear, jumped on the back of the deputy as he was attempting to gain control of the subject. Other officers present on scene immediately removed the mother from the officer's back and the subject was hand cuffed and secured in the patrol unit.

The mother suddenly complained of medical issues and was transported via ambulance to the Madison County Memorial Hospital for alleged chest pains. Betty Jean Blackshear was not arrested at the time of incident and probable cause affidavits have been submitted for future warrants.

O'Brien Calvin Richardson, 27, was arrested and charged with disorderly intoxication and resisting with violence.

Torching Goat Is Christmas Tradition

In Galve, Sweden, a giant goat, standing about 40 feet tall and made of straw has been erected every Christmas season since 1966. The goat usually doesn't make it to Christmas and is torched as a prank. This year, Galve's tourism board spokesman said the straw goat was soaked in an anti-flammable chemical in an effort to keep it from being burned down. One year, a U.S. tourist was charged with arson after trying to light the goat on fire, thinking it was an annual tradition. Fire hasn't been the only threat however; one year an attempt was made to steal the goat by helicopter. A different year, a group of local teens got suspicious goat tattoos the day after the goat burned down. Last year, the goat made it to Dec. 12 before being burned down. The tourism office said, "We're aware the goat is only famous because it gets burned. It would be great if it didn't actually burn down this year, because that would be the most unexpected result, then we might really get a lot of attention."

Cannibalism Website Breeds Murder

In Germany, a second case of murder involving cannibalism has occurred. The first case was the "Cannibal of Rotenburg" case that occurred in 2006 and resulted in a life sentence for Armin Meiwes. This year, a German policeman has been arrested for murder after reportedly chopping up the body of a man he met on a cannibalism website. The victim, a 59-year-old man from Hanover, "had been fantasizing about being killed and eaten by someone else since his youth," Dresden police chief Dieter Kroll stated in a news conference. The body parts were found buried in the garden of the 55-year-old policeman, who worked as a technical expert in the criminal investigation department. It is not clear whether any act of cannibalism had taken place.

Underwear Fights Flatulence

In the UK, "Shreddies," a new brand of underwear, is purported to keep the release, and smells, of lower-intestinal gas and allow it to escape unnoticed. The Shreddies website says the "patented filter underwear removes odors through the use of a thin and flexible carbon cloth." A reporter for the UK paper "Star" tested the flatulence-filtering underwear by wearing it around town for three days, with no plans or worry of controlling gas pains. Rajn Mudhar said he was able to test the underwear out in a crowded elevator and at home in bed with his wife and had no negative responses. Mudhar said, "Success! The Shreddies seem to do what they say."

Letter To The Editor

No More Daycare!

I have been in the Child Care field for over 20 years. Wait...did I say Child Care and not Day Care or babysitter? Why, yes I did! I have been battling with this for all of these 20 years. Those of you, who know me, know I believe the word 'babysitter' should be taken out of the dictionary! Even though I can't seem to get the words Day Care to go away, I am ready to go to battle to make the words Child Care obsolete.

When child care began, it was a necessity for moms who wanted to return to work. Now it seems that it is more a necessity to adequately prepare them to begin Kindergarten. Just in case you haven't noticed, what your child is learning in Kindergarten now, is what you learned when you were in first grade!

From the time a child is enrolled into a child care center, even as young as six weeks, their day is intricately planned, scaffold and prepared to provide each child with many different learning experiences to prepare them for school.

Before any daily planning begins, the pre-school teacher strategically plans the classroom environment so the children feel safe and encouraged to learn. Most classrooms are set up into learning centers that allow the children to play. These centers usually are art, science, blocks, reading, writing, math and manipulatives, music, dramatic play, water and sensory play, circle time and small group time. Then the daily lesson planning can begin for each center and small group while remembering that enough activities need to be planned to last the entire day and meet each child's individual needs and interests.

Lesson plans begin with the physical needs of each individual child in the classroom, still not forgetting feeding, diaper changes/potty training/bathroom time, love and attention, and maintaining the health and safety issues in the classroom. Then the planning begins for each center and small group that covers each developmental domain; cognitive development, social and emotional development, language and communication, physical development and their approach to learning. Keeping in mind that each child learns and develops at their own pace and in their own way, activities are planned to challenge and encourage each child's curiosity to learn. Also keeping in mind they are children and play is not only what they do, but it plays an important role in the way they learn.

Flipping flip-flops: After the summer is over, a lot of people probably have a few pairs of broken flip-flops around the house. Jean Fiori saved three colorful pairs of broken flip-flops from the trash and used Plumber's Goop to glue them all together and make an interesting wall hanging for a porch, sunroom, play area, or anywhere that lends itself to a light-hearted, summery motif.

When Saint Leo University Came To Madison

Christy Roebuck, Assistant Director of Enrollment at Saint Leo University's Madison Center, speaks to the Rotary Club about the center and how it benefits not only its students, but the community as a whole.

By Lynette Norris
Greene Publishing, Inc.

In 1899, Saint Leo University was founded in Saint Leo, about 35 miles north of Tampa, by an order of Benedictine monks and named in honor of Pope Leo the Great. Today, it is the oldest Catholic university in the state of Florida, and the sixth-largest in the country.

It also reaches well beyond the geographical location of its original campus, through partnerships, with stand-alone sites, on military bases and through online courses of study. It has established its presence through 17 education centers operating in seven states, including California, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia, as well as Florida.

Saint Leo University enrolls about 15,000 students per year, the majority of whom are military, but only about 2,500 attend class on the original campus in Saint Leo.

Saint Leo University today is one of the largest providers of higher education to military-related personnel in the United States, opening its first military-site program on MacDill Air Force base. It also began a program of online courses in 1993 for military personnel stationed overseas, long before online classes were a mainstream part of higher education. Today, it serves military personnel with on-base education centers all over the country. In the near future, it plans to open yet another center at Moody Air Force Base.

By 2013, U.S. News and World Report had named St. Leo University as one of the top ranked universities in the country.

Since 2004, Saint Leo University has partnered with North Florida Community College to operate an education center in Madison. It opened with an offering of three bachelor's degree programs, and today, nine years later, it offers seven.

Enrollment in the Madison Center is currently over 300 students, Assistant Director of Enrollment Christy Roebuck told the Rotary Club, an outstanding number for this area. The students take courses either through the center or online, as well as 'blended courses' that make use of traditional classroom instruction combined with technological advances such as webinars and webcams, bringing in a wide range of quality instruction from all over the country. When Roebuck herself was a student at Saint Leo University's Madison Center, studying business law, one of her instructors was an attorney who worked at the Pentagon.

Saint Leo University's presence in Madison had made four-year degrees accessible to those who might not otherwise be able to obtain one; those who, because of family, job or other responsibilities, could not travel to Valdosta Ga., or Tallahassee to attend classes. At the graduation ceremony for the class of 2013 in May of this year, commencement speakers noted that many of those who were about to walk across the stage to receive their diplomas had juggled job demands and family responsibilities to bring themselves to that moment of achievement.

"We bring education to those who can't come to us to get it," said Roebuck, whether they are veterans, single parents or displaced workers. Cost for Saint Leo University averages about the same as being at a state college, and there are grants and scholarships that can help. An A.A. degree is required for enrollment at the Madison Center, "because we are not competing with NFCC for students," said Roebuck. "If (high school graduates) come in, I always tell them there's a wonderful community college just down the street where they can get their A.A."

The Madison Center has now produced 223 graduates, 85 of them from Madison, many now teaching in Madison's school system, giving back to their community, and making a better life for future generations of Madison County residents. Statistics show that if the parents are college graduates, the children are more likely to also attend college – and those who are educated locally, where they have put down roots, are more likely to remain with their community and serve.

The Madison Center is a community-focused center and Saint Leo University as a whole places heavy emphasis on community service. Next year, it will celebrate its 125th anniversary as an institution of higher learning, and its goal for that year is a total of 125,000 hours of community service.

"Our goal is to educate, but also to have them (the graduates) serve in our community," she said. "We're getting out there and helping the community."

Nestle Waters' Madison County Bottling Plant Hosts Field Trip For Homeschooled Children

Photo Submitted

Story Submitted

Despite an overcast and rainy day, an enthusiastic group of children enjoyed the opportunity to leave their home-based classrooms and tour the Nestle Waters' Madison County Bottling Plant and Madison Blue Spring on Nov. 15. After seeing everything from how water is filtered to how bottles get labeled, the kids had a deeper appreciation for the natural resources at the heart of it all.

The homeschooled children are part of a program called R.E.A.C.H Madison -Restoring Education Achieved by Community Homeschooling. The organization enables parents of homeschooled children to share ideas, take their children on group field trips and support one another in the homeschooling process.

The group included children from ages five to 17, along with a number of parents. At the start of the plant tour, the guests donned hair nets, hard hats, earplugs and safety glasses before exploring the world of water bottling and packaging. The kids marveled at every piece of machinery, but the "oohs" and "ahhs" and pointed fingers were most prominent when the visitors saw the labeling machine for the first time.

When the industrial part of the tour was completed, the children had an opportunity to learn about the environment from Nestle Waters' Florida Natural Resource Manager Kent Koptiuch, who described how land resources must be properly managed in order to protect the precious water resource.

Koptiuch described how Nestle Waters manages its land resources as State Certified Tree Farms using Best Management Practices for sustainable timber harvesting and replanting, while ensuring they harvest water from the spring in a sustainable manner. The kids learned that to be categorized as a spring, a body of water must have a consistent year-round temperature, and that Madison Blue Spring always remains a pleasing 71 degrees. The kids were clearly interested, as shouts of "this is so cool" and "this is awesome" filled the air around the spring.

One of the most enjoyable parts of the field trip for the children was a hands-on portion where they got to work with "homemade" filters. First, the children took a tub of clean water and put in different types of items that could foul it - things like dirt, sand, packing peanuts and paper. They then worked to turn their "dirty" water into "clean" water, using portions of plastic bottles holding different sediments and rocks to filter the debris from the "dirty" water. The children's determination was obvious as they made repeated, untiring efforts to get the water as clear as possible, showing they understood the importance of filtration for drinking water.

The lesson certainly sank in and the children left with a greater appreciation of how important it is to manage our precious land and water resources in a manner that ensures that they will be around for future generations to enjoy.

Aucilla Christian Baseball Coach, First High School Coach To Receive National Honor

-Character In Coaching Award Presented To Ray Hughes-

Coach Ray Hughes

Character in Coaching Award to be Presented to Ray Hughes in January - View photos of the surprise announcement at ACA at <http://www.flickr.com/photos/aucillachristianacademy/sets/72157638399070854/>

Aucilla Christian Academy is proud to announce that retired head baseball coach Ray Hughes is the 2014 recipient of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes' Jerry Kindall Character in Coaching Award, a national honor that includes all divisions of college and high school baseball coaching. Presented each year by FCA, Hughes was one of three finalists considered for the distinguished award.

The award is named for legendary University of Arizona head coach Jerry Kindall who was the first recipient of FCA's Character in Coaching Award. He is well-known for leading Arizona to three College World Series championships and his membership in FCA's Hall of Champions and the College Baseball Hall of Fame.

For the past ten years, the award has been presented annually to a coach who best exemplifies the Christian principles of character, integrity, excellence, teamwork and service both on and off the baseball field. The FCA national committee reviewed award candidates during their annual meeting and voted to honor Hughes with the distinction.

"This is a historic moment," said FCA's North Florida Representative Steve McHargue. "Coach Hughes is the first high school coach in the nation to win this honor."

During Hughes' 38-year ACA coaching career, he had over 500 career wins and 13 district championships as head coach. His former student athlete, Bobby Thigpen, a former relief pitcher in Major League Baseball and currently bullpen coach for the Chicago White Sox, highly recommended Hughes for the award. "Coach Hughes had a strong influence on the player and coach I am today," said Thigpen.

ACA Principal Richard Finlayson, who played for Hughes as an ACA student, said, "He is a special kind of coach who not only helped athletes become better players, he helped us become better people." As principal during Hughes' career at ACA, Finlayson said Hughes had numerous opportunities to advance his career along the path of success in the world's eyes, but he remained committed to ACA and, most importantly, to Jesus Christ.

Hughes was humbled by the news of the award. "This is a great honor," said Hughes, who was surprised with a documentary about the award and a special joint presentation by ACA and FCA during the half-time of an ACA basketball game he was attending with his wife, Juanice.

The FCA Jerry Kindall Character in Coaching Award will officially be presented to Hughes on Jan. 4, 2014, during the American Baseball Coaches Association Convention, to be held in Dallas.

Garden Club Demonstrates Low-Cost Floral Arrangements

In a more exotic vein, Adams used pine cone lilies and trimmed palm fronds spray-painted silver to set off a "featured object:" in this case, a calm, smiling Buddha face. Pinecone lilies should be squeezed out like a sponge before use in arrangements, so they won't be too top-heavy.

By Lynette Norris
Greene Publishing, Inc.

Just in time for the holidays, when shopping takes a bite out of the budget, Mina Bloodworth and Sara Adams demonstrated several low-cost but dramatic floral arrangement techniques for holiday decorating. Flowers don't have to be expensive; they can come from grocery stores or backyards, and not every arrangement requires flowers, as Bloodworth and Adams demonstrated, using found objects, wooden skewers, Gorilla Glue, Christmas tree ornaments, gathered backyard greenery, spray paint, wire, yard sale items, and bargain items from hobby stores, the Dollar Store and Lowe's.

One of the first things to remember about gathering backyard flowers or greenery, is: Forget Martha Stewart, and ditch the pretty wicker basket for a plain old bucket of water. Cut plants need to be placed directly in water, not a basket, and ideally, their stems should be cut again under the water to prevent air bubbles that can block water absorption.

Another thing to remember: gather cuttings in the early morning or late evening, when the sap is down.

Each table in the room held a centerpiece created with low-cost items, ranging from a small, traditional rose bouquet in a decorative metal vase, to large horizontal arrangements that would add drama over a mantle piece. Some of the arrangements with dried elements could last for months, and others could be changed for different seasons by just switching out some of the decorative elements.

"This really fires the imagination," said one Garden Club member afterward. "Now, when I see something by the roadside, I'll think, 'oh, I can use that.'"

After the meeting, the arrangements were auctioned off as a club fundraiser, going for $25-$55 each.

Lee Elementary Students Visit Courthouse

Madison County Clerk of the Court Tim Sanders took several third grade students from Lee Elementary School on a guided tour of the Madison County Courthouse and told them about the history of the soon-to-be-100-year-old-building and the county itself.

The third graders from Ms. Gurley's class, Ms. Sauls' class and Mr. Hickman's class learned that Madison County, with a population of only 250 people formed as the 14th county in 1827, before Florida was even a state (that occurred in 1845), and that the original county seat for Madison was originally ten miles further south, in San Pedro.

Sanders explained one of the courthouse's most important functions, that of keeping and preserving records of the county's history and the functions and business of government and the citizens, a function so important that the building has a fire safety system installed from basement to clock tower. Two previous courthouse buildings, made of wood, burned down. The first was located where Madison County Community Bank now stands, and the second one was built on the present location.

After that one also burned down, construction began on the present day courthouse. The cornerstone was laid Dec. 19, 1913, and construction continued the following year, and the courthouse opened in 1914.

Dec. 19, 2013, the landmark building will officially reach the century mark.

28th Annual Greenville Country Christmas

The Greenville Country Christmas Committee invites you to join with them in celebrating the 28th Annual Greenville Country Christmas on Dec. 13 and Dec. 14. Festivities begin at 6 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 13, at the gazebo in Haffey Hayes Park. Entertainment will include Christmas carols, a live nativity and a tree-lighting ceremony. Following the festivities in the park, everyone is welcome to enjoy refreshments and a slideshow at the Greenville Madison Multi Purpose Center on SW Grand Street in Greenville.

The celebration continues on Saturday, Dec. 14, at Haffey Hayes Park. Arts and crafts vendors will be open at 9 a.m. with formal opening ceremonies commencing at 10 a.m. Commander Roy Scott and Vice Commander, Arthur Paquette, of American Legion Post 131 are our Co-Citizens of the Year. The Grand Marshal for this year's parade, which starts at 11 a.m., is State Representative Halsey Beshears.

The 2013 Entertainment Headliner is Brett Wellman and the Stone Cold Blues Band who will perform at 1 p.m. From 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m., you can enjoy fine Christian rap performed by Georgia Red Music of Cairo, Ga.

2013 heralded the opening of the new building for American Legion Post 131 in Greenville. The building will be open during Saturday's events. On display will be entries in this year's Children's Art Contest and Gingerbread House Contest.

Please help us this year in giving the Gift of Life. The American Legion Post 131 and OneBlood will be hosting a blood drive at this year's Greenville Country Christmas Festival. The blood mobile will be in front of the American Legion building from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. All donors will receive a wellness checkup, a cholesterol screening and a t-shirt.

Don't miss your chance to win one of the many door prizes donated by our local vendors from Greenville, Madison, Monticello and Perry. Vendors will provide raffle tickets when you make a purchase.

The Greenville High School Reunion will be held at 6 p.m. at the Greenville Baptist Church Fellowship Hall on South Grand Street.

A heart attack (myocardial infarction) occurs when blood flow to a part of the heart is blocked, usually by a blood clot lodged in one of the coronary arteries. As a result, part of the heart muscle is damaged or dies.

The most common symptom is chest pain that feels like a tight band around the chest. The pain can move to the arms, shoulders, neck, teeth, jaw, abdomen or back. It can be severe or mild. In some cases, the pain feels like bad indigestion, but it also may feel as if something heavy is sitting on the chest, like the chest is being squeezed, or like heavy pressure is being applied. Typically, the pain lasts longer than 20 minutes and isn't relieved by rest or by taking nitroglycerin, a medication which may have been prescribed for angina, a classic symptom of cardiovascular disease that sometimes predicts heart attacks. Heart attack pain may ease and then return. Other symptoms can include anxiety, cough, fainting, lightheadedness, dizziness, nausea, vomiting, palpitations (the heart seems to be beating too fast), shortness of breath and/or heavy sweating.
