City Work Crews Repair Sinkhole At Lake Frances

By Jessie R. Box
 Greene Publishing, Inc.

City of Madison staff and Madison Engineering met Monday, March 31 at the sinkhole at Lake Frances to discuss courses of action.

According to Tim Bennett, City Manager, they are also contacting the City's insurance carrier, Florida Municipal Insurance Trust, to seek their guidance.

"This is a work in progress," said Bennett. "We want to make sure we're looking at all options to find the best solution."

The 12-foot deep, four-foot wide sinkhole opened up Thursday, March 27, and immediately filled with water. City crews responded by vacuuming the water out of the hole, then filling the hole with dirt as a temporary fix until a more permanent solution could be found. Friday, March 28, the sinkhole reopened, sinking to four feet. City crews returned to the site and placed more dirt into the hole and covered the hole with plywood.

The crews also fortified a nearby street pole with support beams to keep it from falling on Lake Shore Drive. The pole carries electrical power to operate the aerating fountain on Lake Frances.

Madison In-Town Shuttle Could Come To A Sudden Stop

By Rose Klein
 Greene Publishing, Inc.

Shawn Mitchell, the operations manager for Big Bend Transit, addressed the City Commission on the upcoming financial status of the Madison In-Town Shuttle. After taking the podium, Mitchell said he came to the meeting to "start a discussion, not ask for money."

The Madison shuttle is funded entirely by the Florida Department of Transportation (DOT) and has been running on a three-year cycle. A state grant started the in-town shuttle in 2006 and funded the service until 2009. During the shuttle's second three-year cycle, DOT has funded the shuttle service since 2011, but funding will come to a halt June 30 of this year. Mitchell, on behalf of Big Bend Transportation, has given data to the City Commission, asking them to partner with the shuttle in an effort to keep the service running.

Mitchell told the Commission, closing the shuttle would have a large impact on Madison's citizens as the shuttle is in effect, Madison's city bus system, with some residents being dependent on the service. Currently, the in-town shuttle runs Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 7:30 a.m. - 6 p.m. On those days, about 30 people use the shuttle, costing individuals only 50 cents per ride. Mitchell said among the people who depend upon the shuttle are public housing residents, students and the elderly. Some of the stops the shuttle makes for riders in the city are apartment complexes, the Health Department, grocery stores, pharmacies, Madison County Courthouse, North Florida Community College, the Library, a daycare and the hospital. Mitchell stressed the importance of these stops and the fact that the shuttle was more than just a convenience for some Madison residents; it was their only source of transportation. Wrapping up his discussion, Mitchell said, "The shuttle system belongs to the citizens of Madison."

At the meeting, Mitchell talked to the Commission on possible ways to make the shuttle more economical. Ideas of businesses advertising with the service and shortening shuttle hours were discussed. Mitchell said 78 percent of the shuttle's services were used before 2:30 p.m. and closing at that time, instead of the 6 p.m. time they currently close, could save money and increase the possibility for services to continue.

A word was left out of a sentence in "Health Officials Weigh In Over Sewage Spills," in the March 28, 2014 edition of the Madison Enterprise-Recorder. The sentence, on Page 3, should have read, "The Georgia Environmental Agency probably would not make any dollars flow south to Madison to cover testing anyway."

Monuments Men

Joe Boyles
Guest Columnist

I didn't see the recent movie "Monuments Men" but I did read the book (Back Bay Books, 2009) by Robert Edsel with Bret Witter. I heard that the movie had trouble developing the characters. Since any book can address that issue and others in much greater detail than a two hour movie, I thought it was a much better source for understanding the true story.

Looting during time of war is nothing new, but the Nazis took it to new levels. They specifically targeted the art treasures of Europe, both those that were privately owned and those that belonged to the state museums of occupied countries. The Nazi theory was that many of these treasures had formerly been Germanic and this was merely an action to return them to the rightful place of origin. They were pretty loose in their interpretation.

Don't forget that Adolph Hitler was a failed art student. He had a chip on his shoulder over his rejection and intended to correct this oversight with a magnificent museum to house these treasures in his hometown of Linz, Austria. He commissioned Reichsleiter Alfred Rosenberg to develop a strategy and organization (the ERR) to exploit Europe's great works of art for use by the Nazis. Along the way, many high ranking Nazis like Herman Goering saw this as an opportunity to line their own pockets which they did with abandon.

Art works owned by Jewish families were simply stolen. All of their property (and eventually their lives) was confiscated under the Nuremberg Laws. The wealth generated by this thievery helped to fund the war. Jewish families, particularly those in France, had accumulated significant works of arts over centuries. This represented the first prey for the Nazi gangsters. Nothing was sacred to the Nazis. They vandalized the churches across Europe stealing statuary, icons and altars.

As the war progressed and eventually worsened for the Nazis, they stepped up their looting on an industrial scale. This artwork, including the German's own which was spirited away to prevent destruction by allied bombs, was housed in dozens of underground mines, particularly salt mines in Bavaria and neighboring Austria.

The Allies were concerned about the safety of this artwork and its return to the rightful owners. SACEUR commander Dwight Eisenhower set up a Monuments, Fine Arts, and Archives section to find, recover and catalog the stolen art works of European civilization. A handful of art experts were assigned to each army with this task as their mission.

In a sense, the Monuments Men as they were called engaged in the world's greatest treasure hunt. It was a race against time because of the poor storage conditions the artwork was exposed to and because some fanatical Nazis intended to destroy their treasure by blowing up the mines - a final act of vindication. The massive trove in the salt mine at Altaussee, Austria was destined for destruction. This treasure of incalculable value was saved by dedicated mine workers and art lovers who removed the explosives and sealed the mine to prevent destruction.

If you have ever visited Mad King Ludwig's fairyland castle of Neuschwanstein, then you're acquainted with this magical place. The Nazis filled this castle with the art looted from France. A custodian at Paris' Jeu de Paume by the name of Rose Valland kept careful inventory of each art work and its shipping destination. Her clandestine research that she provided to monument man James Rorimer proved invaluable in locating so much of the looted treasure.

I'm particularly grateful to the bravery and tireless dedication of the Monument Men. I developed an interest in art history at an early age by visiting the Ringling Gallery in Sarasota. In college, I took an elective course in the subject and have enjoyed visiting some of the world's great galleries including: the National Gallery (Washington); The Prado (Madrid); The Louvre (Paris); the Uffizi (Florence); and the Rijksmuseum (Amsterdam). These places are particularly inspirational to me. My favorite artist is Johannes Vermeer and my favorite period is Impressionism.

The damage that the Nazis accomplished in just five years is incalculable. Much of the art has been returned to their previous owners or their families but the search is still on and each year, new finds and litigation will dominate the news of the art world. Last year, thousands of modern art paintings were discovered by German authorities in a Munich apartment belonging to the son of a war-era art dealer. The search for the provenance of this lost art goes on. The mission of the Monument Men continues.

Letter To The Editor

There are Major Problems Happening At The MCCS

I am writing you because I am unsure where else to go.

My girlfriend and I have been having incidents involving the central school. We have tried to work with the school for resolutions to several different issues. They have denied any issues. We have contacted both our school board representative, as well as the superintendent. Both have acknowledged that there were numerous issues regarding the central school. However when we proceeded to find solutions, they changed their tone and refuse to acknowledge any issues; to the point where the superintendent said that if we weren't happy, we could pull the kids out of school. We do not have money to put the kids through private school, and as you know, the central school is the only school for middle school grades.

We have had issues such as a kid having a keychain light (used to see to get to the bus stop at 6:30 in the morning) taken away for reading on the bus. Administration calling to say that a kid is going to ISS for misbehavior, but they don't know what happened. Upon asking for details so the appropriate discipline can be taken at home, the administration stated they would find out and call us back. We never heard from administration, and the child was never sent to ISS. When calling administration, they answer the phone very unprofessionally. Like it is their personal phone. Speaking as one would who lives on the street. They do not hesitate to hang up on parents if they disagree with them. It's been little nit picky things, but they've been adding up all year.

The kids have always had decent grades and have been good students. They come from a more advanced Georgia school, but are struggling here, with the teachers and administration. Where they used to like school, they now despise it.

The worst thing is the cover ups. They WILL NOT admit to having any issues in the school.

On 3-11-14, The oldest (14), and only girl, was at a boys and girls club after tutoring. Upon picking her up, we received information about a situation that had happened. She had been approached by a 14 year old student asking her for sex. She does not even really know what it is. She felt very uncomfortable, declined and left. A few minutes later, she went into the restroom, and shortly after, she was confronted by this boy again, inside the female restroom. The boy was begging for sex and being extremely graphic. Luckily, there was another girl using the restroom and when the boy heard her, he took off, assuming it was a teacher. The girl backs up the story 100%, but did not visually see the boy. The Boys and Girls Club said they would investigate.

After realizing the severity, we contacted MCSO (3-12-14). The SRO knew the boy immediately. He is a trouble maker. The victim requested an interview with a female officer, because she is shy and extremely embarrassed. During the interview, at the central school, they were not allowed privacy. Teachers and administration kept entering, despite knowing there was a law enforcement interview being conducted. Evidently, since there was no video evidence, and the other girl in the restroom didn't see the boy, the SRO said that there really wasn't a case. I disagree, I think it can easily be harassment stalking, and even aggravated stalking. The officer seemed to indicate that they'd get him next time. Next time what? After he rapes someone? From his graphic speech, who can be sure it hasn't happened already?

Anyway, less than 2 hours after this traumatic interview, the victim was given after school suspension. The reason, not bringing a book to LUNCH. The girl has never been in trouble, not once. I believe it was in retaliation. The administrator that handed out the punishment had walked by numerous times during the interview and knew what was going on.

On 3-21-14 I went to the school to talk with administration about their numerous issues and lack of action regarding the suspect. The whole time, the administrator never stopped smiling at me. He flat out denied having hung up on parents. I was there, and no better. He denied ever cursing in front of kids (Including the n word), yet I have heard it from numerous kids. When I asked about punishment for the suspect, he stated that the investigation was over. I asked about what happens to the next little girl, or what would have happened if the victim hadn't been as lucky to have another person using the restroom. He refused to admit the kid was even in the female's restroom with any ill intent.

That has been the schools philosophy. Deny it until it goes away.

Earlier in the year, a teacher was arrested for inappropriate text with a former 16-year-old student. The students were told that if they talked about it, they would be written up. Usually if something such as this happens there is a grief counselor or something. Upon bringing it up to administration, they refuse to talk about it. Period. School board members seem to take the disgraced teacher's side. Even offering up excuses that this 16-year-old had done this with more people. While that may, or may not be true, the fact is, this teacher engaged in inappropriate conversation with someone underage. The denying of this fact is truly astounding to me.

Unsurprisingly, the school is a failing school. 3 D's and the most recent F. It is failing the students, the county, the parents, and the community. The kids do not have books to bring home, because the school can't afford it. However, they have no problem buying a golf cart.

I feel as tho everything possible to cover up the "attempted rape" is being done. The suspect is still at school with no penalties, and still at the Boys and Girls Club with no penalties. I am very upset at the indifferent attitude regarding this, from administration.

I am hoping that there can be some publicity brought to this issue. Perhaps something can be done to prevent this from happening and maybe even start addressing ANY of the schools problems.

Grilled Cheese Gets All Grown Up

Rose Klein
Columnist

Grilled cheese sandwiches are a food loved by both kids and adults. The sandwiches are uncomplicated to make and requires very little in the way of preparation. A few slices of buttered bread, some cheese and a skillet are all you need to make a quick lunch or dinner. Besides being simple to make, it is also simple to eat. Kids love it for the honest flavor of the straightforward ingredients and the gooiness of the melted cheese that flows from the cut edges of the bread.

The sandwich most adults remember from their past was American cheese slices between white bread that had been covered in butter and toasted to a golden brown. Soup, especially tomato, was a common side to the sandwich. Since around 2011, the classic grilled cheese started to transform and began growing in popularity, establishing itself as a prevalent food trend. Versions of grilled cheese can now be found on food blogs and recipe sites on the Internet, in food trucks that sell them curbside and restaurant menus, all the way from pubs to very fine eateries.

Eating at my friend Holly's house this past weekend, I was excited to find out we were having grilled cheese and tomato soup. Holly is a great cook so I knew it wouldn't be the average sandwich and soup combo. The sandwich ingredients were prepared and laid out for us so we could personalize our sandwich by choosing the ingredients we like. The soup wasn't just plain tomato soup from a can; it was homemade tomato bisque, smooth with cream and just a few chunks of tomato for bite and flavor. The base of the sandwich was Muenster cheese and sourdough bread. The add-ins was caramelized onions, sautéed mushrooms, mustard and kale pesto. Everyone had a good time selecting their ingredients and then experiencing their customized sandwich before lumbering to the patio to digest the huge amount of cheese we had all just consumed.

Today's grilled cheese has many variations of the three major components. Breads could include white, whole grain, rye, brioche, sourdough and even cinnamon-raisin. Cheeses could be a combination of cheddar, hot pepper, fresh mozzarella or goat cheese, Brie or pimento cheese. Add-ins could be proteins such as bacon or ham; fruits such as apples or fresh figs; vegetables such as spinach or avocado and spreads such as jam, mustard or barbecue sauce. As many foods there are that you like, are the many endless combinations you could create when making your own gourmet grilled cheese at home. But, if you've had a hard day and need some comforting or just need something quick and easy, a little bit of cheese and butter with two slices of bread (crust optional) might just help you feel like a kid again.

Visit St. Augustine

By Jessie Box
Greene Publishing, Inc.

St. Augustine is known as the Ancient City for all of the history that has happened there. It offers a variety of exciting places to explore and have fun. There is Ripley's Believe It or Not! Museum, Castillo de San Marcos National Monument, Alligator Farm Zip line and Potter's Wax Museum.

Ripley's Believe It or Not! Museum

According to Ripley's Believe It or Not! Museum website, the building was built by Standard Oil partner William G. Warden, which later became the hotel, Castle Warden, after being purchased by Pulitzer Prize winning author Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings and her husband Norton Baskin.

Robert Ripley did not create the museum. He frequently stayed in the hotel. After his death in 1949, Castle Warden was purchased to house his collections, which included rosaries made of human bone and a drum kit featuring two human skulls fused together and covered with human skin. The collection of weird and fascinating artifacts has grown and has over 800 exhibits, artifacts and artwork.

Other attractions that Ripley's offers is the Red Train Tour and the Ghost Train Tours. According to Ripley's website, the Red Train Tours takes you around St. Augustine and one loop is seven miles. This includes 24 stops and, from start to finish, takes approximately 90 minutes. A new tour begins every 15-20 minutes at all stops.

Ripley's Ghost Train Adventures is a 90 minute paranormal investigation that takes you down the streets of St. Augustine, stopping at many of the local haunts, including the old Castillo de San Marcos National Monument, the Public Burying Grounds of 1821 and the 1800s haunted Castle Warden.

Alligator Farm Zip Line

The Alligator Farm in St. Augustine started offering a new adventure a couple of years ago. According to the Alligator Farm website, the Crocodile Crossing is a zip line and aerial obstacle course. You can experience the feeling of standing over crocodiles as they bathe in the sun. It includes two different courses. The Sepik River Course is the shorter course of the two. It takes approximately 45 minutes for completion. The course is 20-feet high and includes three zip lines.

Then, if you haven't had enough fun, upgrade to the Nile River Course, which is longer and more difficult. According to Alligator Farms, you should allow two hours to complete this course. You are 60-feet above the ground and there are nine zip lines.

They now offer, Dark Side of the Zoo, where you can zip line at night. This adventure is a modified version of the Nile River Course and includes six zip lines and 23 obstacles. If you want to know what the alligators and crocodiles do at night this is perfect for you. This adventure also includes a nocturnal reptile tour, which include the great Maximo.

Potter's Wax Museum

Potter's Wax Museum in St. Augustine offers over 160 wax figures. According to Potter's Wax Museum's website, the newest addition is Tiger Woods. They are also going to be adding Halle Barry and Robert De Niro to the collection soon. Potter's Wax Museum is open seven days a week. Adult tickets are $10 and children's tickets are $7.

Madison Golf And Country Club Reopens Grandly With Champions Dinner

It is "standing room only" in the full dining room, as guests visit before dinner.

"Celebrity" of the evening, Bess Maxwell, speaks of the man the champion tournaments are named for, her father Pot Williams.

By Rose Klein
Greene Publishing, Inc.

The Madison Country Club, under the new ownership of Frank "Bump" Faircloth, had their first major event at the end of February and it could only be called a "success" as every seat in the newly enlarged dining room was taken. The Champion's Dinner was created by Faircloth to honor all past golf champions from the Pot Williams' tournaments, previously held at the club.

The evening started with a social hour that included stories from two notable champions and Pot Williams' daughter. Walt Lamb Sr., the 1964 champion, was the first champion to speak to the crowded room, and drew plenty of emotion from attendees as well as Lamb himself. Next up was, Rock Fraleigh, who also had plenty of stories to tell and kept guests entertained with bits of humor throughout his reminiscence. The last speaker before dinner was Pot Williams' daughter, Bess Maxwell, who spoke fondly of her memories at the club, watching the games and lounging underneath a shade tree, no longer there. Maxwell's touching words was a fitting stopping point before the meal.

Dinner was prime rib, prepared by Danny Terrell, who "Bump" was able to lure into the kitchen, saying Terrell's famous prime rib fit the occasion perfectly because it was not only delicious but nostalgic, as it was frequently served at past club events. Shelby's Catering rounded out the meal with sides and desserts.

After dinner the talks and tributes to past champions continued and included Colin Howerton, Chad Smith, Billy Sullivan, Dale Brown, Jarrod Sullivan, David Jackson and Frank Eldridge. All past champions received bright red jackets with the Madison Golf and Country Club logo, designed especially for the occasion, which will enable them to attend all future events at the club for free.

Faircloth said the evening was an "awesome event" and the club plans to do it again next year. He said everyone told him they had a good time, loved the story telling, hearing the history of the club and was looking forward to the following year. All in all, "Bump" said, "I was very pleased and satisfied."

The Madison Golf and Country Club Pot Williams' tournament for 2014 is coming in May, and if you think you might like a shot at earning one of those Madison County E.M.S. has officially moved into the new building located on U.S. 90. E.M.S. has been in the building for two years but the building is finally done with all renovations needed.

According to Will Rutherford, of Clemons, Rutherford and Associates, the building can withstand 180 M.P.H. winds and is essentially bomb proof.

"I'm sure we will still have some things that go wrong but coming from a house trailer, not a new house trailer but an old house trailer and part of the old jail to where we are now, this community has something to be proud of," said Madison County Sheriff Ben Stewart. "I'm proud of it and I'm going to stay with it as long as I can to make it be successful."

was sure to thank everyone who had a part in the process of completing the building.

"We've got a lot of good people here and I appreciate what they do," said Sheriff Stewart. "I appreciate the support we get from the commissioner and I appreciate the extra effort that went into this project. I know this was a long time coming."

The contractors that work on the building include AOK Electric, Bryan Electric, Ice Age Refrigeration, Madison Plumbing, First Communications and AK Associates. The departments that helped include Emergency Management, Road Department, Solid Waste and Recycle Department and the Madison Correction Institution Work Camp.

The 911 responders have yet to move in. They plan to be in by the first part of April.

Palm Sunday is almost here, and this year, the Palm Sunday weekend (Friday and Saturday, April 4 and 5) includes a chance to hear the Madison Boys Choir perform in the RATT Pact Theater Building on Range Street.

For the last few weeks, the Madison Boy's Choir has been rehearsing a selection of music for the Palm Sunday weekend performance, and they will be selling tickets for each performance. The RATT Pact Theater holds an audience of 50 adults, with space to sit on the floor for children under ten.

The choir has three performances scheduled so far: two evening performances on Friday, April 4 and Saturday, April 5, beginning at 7 p.m., and a Saturday matinee performance beginning at 3 p.m. If tickets for all three shows sell out and there is enough interest in a fourth show, there could be a Sunday afternoon matinee as well, also at 3 p.m.

As an added treat, the Treasures of Madison County Museum plans to be open during each show's intermission, and members of the audience can catch a glimpse into Madison's history.

For tickets to the Madison Boys Choir Palm Sunday performances, see any choir member.

Concealed Weapons Class To Be Held Saturday

The Madison County Sheriff's Office will be facilitating its next Concealed Carry Weapons class on Saturday, April 5.

The National Rifle Association (N.R.A.) First Steps Pistol course is the foundation for the sheriff's office eight hour concealed carry class. In addition, information is provided to ensure that each student is aware of what they can expect to take place before, during and after violent confrontations and how they, as individuals, can best prepare for these dynamics.

We emphasize to our students how important it is to value life and to employ less lethal options when the circumstances permit, but we want our students to be confidently prepared. The Florida standards for legally carrying a concealed firearm may not be sufficient to prepare for violent confrontations. Our goal is to fully prepare law abiding citizens for the complex dynamics of violent confrontations while helping to preserve each of our 2nd Amendment rights.

This class far exceeds the requirements to apply for the State of Florida Concealed Carry Weapons Permit for residents and non-residents. The Florida Concealed Carry Weapons permit is honored in 36 states. These classes are taught by N.R.A. multi-discipline law enforcement firearms instructors who have military, S.W.A.T. and violent confrontation experience.

The cost for this course is $65. The cost goes down for additional people in a group. A large portion of these course fees will support youth adventure camps sponsored by the sheriff's office as well as other free courses for the community.

If you would like to register for this class, or if you have any questions, please contact Captain Mark W. Joost at (850) 519-0947.

Hospice Honors Jake Phillips With "Valor For Veterans"

By Lynette Norris
Greene Publishing, Inc.

As the veterans of World War II become fewer and fewer, there is a growing recognition among those who know and love them, and other Americans as well, that we are losing something precious, as one by one, they slip away. This once large brotherhood of soldiers, survivors of an epic battle that reshaped the world, fought all over the world, in the islands of the Pacific and in the trenches of Europe.

Then they came back to us and quietly resumed their lives in the community. We know them as grandpa, uncle, husband, brother or dad. They may be the neighbor down the street, the former Sunday School teacher, the retired minister, worker, clerk, or professional – the aging gentleman in the Veteran's Day parade, or in the park, or sitting quietly on a porch, or in a favorite chair in the living room.

But they are just a handful now, becoming fewer every day. Those who love them become ever more aware of the need to let these last few remaining ones know, once more and in no uncertain terms, that even though the war was over decades ago, their service and their sacrifice is not forgotten.

Jacob Silvanus "Brother Jake" Phillips is one such World War II U.S. Army veteran, a man who will be 95 in a few weeks (May 4). Big Bend Hospice is helping him, his wife Judy, and his daughter Jean McWilliams navigate the final part of his life journey, with a team that includes nurses Linda O'Brien and Karen Hebert, Rev. John Peterson (social worker), Rev. Andy Creel (chaplain), and Valor for Veterans

Program Coordinator Lucile Palmer.

On a brisk, windy March day, Carlton McCall and Jack Pittman, veterans themselves, who volunteer for BBH's "Valor For a Veteran" Program, gathered with Jake Phillips, his immediate family and his extended church family from the First Baptist Church. McCall, a veteran of Vietnam and Korea, and Pittman, also a Korean veteran, were there to help honor the World War II veteran in an official ceremony, publicly thanking him on behalf of all Americans.

Members of the FBC Men's Bible Class, which Phillips taught for about ten years were there. He was in his 90s when his health declined to the point where he could no longer teach, and the class is now led by Geoff Hill.

Minister of Music Jim Carey and his wife Beth, Dennis and Thelma DeHart, Howell and Carolyn Edwards, Sam and Evie Lamb, Jack and Betty McLeod, Bobby and Margarete Tolar, Rev. Ronnie and Gwen Combass, Tommy Combass, Delores Swift, Billy and Kara Washington and their children Gage and Lillian gathered in the living room, where Pittman and McCall led the Pledge of Allegiance and read aloud from an official letter of gratitude signed by the Executive Director of BBH.

Undoubtedly echoing the sentiments of all those gathered in the room, the letter spoke of gratitude for the opportunity to be present and honor a World War II veteran. "We thank you today for defending our freedoms and those of others...we thank you for putting your life on hold to defend our country...it will not be forgotten."

There were gifts of an American flag and a red, white and blue afghan knitted by the volunteer women of Hospice.

"Thank you for this program," said Phillips, among the smiles and few tears from those gathered around him. "Thank you for having a program of this nature...after World War II, there were a lot of veterans out there...I'm afraid a lot of them were overlooked," he added, bringing to mind many others who also served, and deserved gratitude as well, even though their names might not be known. In a final gesture, all veterans present in the room, from World War II to Iraqi Freedom, gathered around Phillips' chair, stood at attention and saluted him, a band of brothers from different wars, but who were at that moment, of one heart.

As one of them noted, "Regardless of how we vote or what we say, we still live in a pretty good country."

SCHOOL

Aucilla Christian Endowment Tops $1 Million

Submitted by ACA's Office of Development

Jesus told his disciples if they had faith as small as a mustard seed, nothing would be impossible, not even moving mountains. At Aucilla Christian Academy, that statement of faith is moving, not mountains, but something greater... students. Thanks to benefactors who believe in the school's mission, ACA is reaching a greater number of students for Christ every year in the five surrounding Florida and Georgia counties it serves – Jefferson, Taylor, Madison, Leon and Brooks.

ACA was founded in 1970. In 2002, the board of directors felt led to secure the school's future both eternally and financially by establishing an endowment fund, and now, in 2014, the endowment is just over $1 million.

"When the endowment fund began, our vision was to reach $1 million," said ACA principal Richard Finlayson. "From a worldly standpoint, it was a farfetched goal, but we had great faith that God would bless our efforts, and He has."

Over the years, as the endowment fund has grown, ACA has been able to construct a new building and remodel existing facilities on its 57-acre campus, including a new classroom building, walkway improvements, renovations in the historic Demott/Gerry main building, as well as advancements in technology. ACA also has been able to provide need-based scholarships to families who would otherwise not be able to afford a private education.

"It's an exciting thing to see God moving in the lives of our students, faculty, staff and supporters," said Finlayson. "They are the reason we are here and have surpassed our goal with the $1 million investment we now have. This is not just an investment into education, but also into furthering God's work. God made it all possible and to Him we give all the glory."

With the continued growth of the endowment, ACA plans to continue being good stewards by putting the investment right back into the school in all areas, including supporting its faculty and staff with improved compensation to enable ACA to retain and attract Christian educators who are dedicated to the Christian principles the school was founded on.

"Our teachers and staff are unique," said Finlayson. "Every faculty member and administrator is expected to mentor our students by example in the way they conduct their own lives. It's one of the greatest strengths we have developed at our school, and they continue to increase the value of our education. Supporters who contribute to the ACA endowment give more than money, they give our school a gift with eternal benefits that will affect people who spread the Good News, not just here in our surrounding areas, but around the world for generations to come."

For more information on ACA, visit www.aucilla.org or www.facebook.com/au-cillachristianacademy. To arrange a school tour or make a contribution to the endowment, contact Finlayson at (850) 997-3597.

Purple Pinkies Fight Polio At Pinetta Elementary

By Lynette Norris
Greene Publishing, Inc.

"Do you know what polio is?" Rotary president Wayne Conger asked one of the older students at Pinetta as he painted her little finger with purple dye. The girl paused a second, thinking. "I believe it's got something to do with paralysis," she said. Perhaps it's not altogether a bad thing that the Pinetta students aren't exactly sure what polio entails. Two, three, or even four generations have been removed from the polio epidemics of the first half of the 20th century that crippled or killed thousands of children and left Franklin Delano Roosevelt in a wheelchair; they have no direct memories of the iron lung machines, the crutches and the heavy leg braces that encumbered thousands of children stricken by the disease, or of the giant headlines generated by Dr. Jonas Salk's breakthrough vaccine that ended the scourge in the 1950s. If they have seen any of these things, it was most likely as photographs in history books. They may not even know anyone who had polio, although a few might have an elderly relative who survived a bout with the disease.

Nevertheless, they wanted to participate in Rotary International's Polio Plus Project and help raise funds that will get the necessary vaccine to children in countries where polio is still a threat. About 80 students brought in their permission slips from their parents and turned in their donations to the Polio Plus Project as they filed into the library, where Madison Rotary Club members Jennifer Johnson, Ronald Bass, Jim Catron and Wayne Conger painted their fingers purple as a sign of their contribution.

One day, because of efforts like these, multiplied many times over, the vaccine will eventually reach every child in the world, finally eradicating the disease. One day, polio will be as far removed from children the world over, as it is from the children of Pinetta Elementary School, and likewise, children of the rest of the United States today.

SPORTS

Nicole Davis Pitches Two Perfect Games

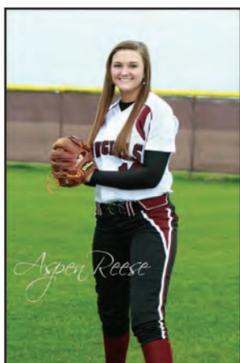

By Jessie R. Box
Greene Publishing, Inc.

Nicole Davis, 17, pitcher for Madison High School's softball team, pitched her second perfect game March 10 against the Taylor County High School team. The Madison Cowgirl's won with a score of 15-0. She pitched her first perfect game, Feb. 13, against East Gadsden High School. The score for that game was 19-0.

Davis is the daughter of Rick and Lisa Davis. Her maternal grandparents from Madison are David and Edwina Ward. Her paternal grandparents from Live Oak are Roscoe and Mary Davis.

"My family was there and my family came over from Live Oak," said Davis. "I'm glad that my family could be there for support. They were really excited."

Davis has been playing softball since she was seven-years-old. "I just started playing Babe Ruth and I just loved it," said Davis. "I started pitching the year after I started. I just love softball."

"I have a friend, who was probably the best pitcher in Madison at that time and I always wanted to be that good," said Davis about why she wanted to be a pitcher.

The Madison Cowgirl's were runner-up at the state championships last year and are hoping to become the champions this year. Davis stated that it was disappointing to not win state last year but it was a great experience.

District championship games begin April 14 at Amos P. Godby High School and the Cowgirl's do not know who they are playing first yet. The other schools in their district are Florida High School, Amos P. Godby High School, East Gadsden High School and Taylor County High School.

Davis is a senior and this will be her last year playing softball for Madison County High School. Davis is planning on becoming a dental hygienist when she finishes high school. She had once thought about playing softball in college but she has decided she wants to focus on her career. She doesn't want to leave softball completely behind though.

"I would love to do pitching lessons," said Davis. "If anyone is interested in giving them,"

HEALTH

Heart Healthy Snacks

Snacking often gets a bad rap. But snacking on the right things can actually be good for you. The American Heart Association recommends preparing food at home for nutrition and ingredient control and using low-fat or no-fat dairy products and salt-free seasonings in your recipes. Check out these five great suggestions for heart healthy snacks that not only taste good, but are a good nutrition boost, too.

Angel food berry shortcake: Top a slice of angel food cake (naturally fat-free) with a compote made of mixed berries that have been slightly fork mashed and let to sit for an hour on the counter or overnight in the refrigerator. Add a dollop of non-fat whipped topping and unsalted almond slices.

Kick it up a notch by dry pan toasting the almonds to bring out a flavor complexity and a nuttier crunch. Love the taste of coffee or mocha? Stir in instant coffee granules and a pinch of cocoa powder to the whipped topping.

Greek yogurt fruit dip: Any fruit will taste delicious and feel like a luxurious treat when dipped in a special sweet and creamy fruit dip. An easy heart healthy dip recipe is to simply combine non-fat plain Greek yogurt, a teaspoon of spreadable fruit jam and equal parts non-fat whipped topping. Combine thoroughly. Try dipping strawberries, bananas, apple slices, peach slices and pear slices. Keep the fruit peels on the fruit and pump up the fiber in this snack.

Creamy veggie dip: Love creamy snacks but need a bit of veggie crunch to go along with it? Try making a simple dip from fat-free or reduced fat cream cheese, no-salt lemon pepper seasoning (or other favorite salt-free seasoning blend) and a bit of lemon juice. Combine these ingredients well by hand or with a mixer. Slices of cucumber, bell pepper, carrots or any favorite veggie are great companions to this dip, and it is guilt-free, creamy, crunchy and delicious. For a fancy preparation, try cutting veggies into bite-sized pieces and topping them with a teaspoon or two of the dip. Place on a tray and garnish with plain toasted nuts or sunflower seeds. Alternative: Mix sweet and spicy pepper jelly with the fat-free cream cheese. This dip packs a lot of flavor and is a great taste companion for vegetable slices or whole grain crackers.

Rice cakes with green apples and garlic herb cheese: You can't beat the taste combination of a tart green apple (peels on), creamy garlic herb cheese spread and a crunchy rice cake. Simply top a rice cake with a tablespoon of low-fat or fat-free herb and garlic cheese. Add a thin slice of green apple on top. If you're not a rice cake fan, substitute whole grain rye crispbread (also known as flatbread or cracker).

Savory roasted edamame snacks: Preheat the oven to 375 degrees Fahrenheit. Combine a package of fresh, ready-to-eat soybeans, a teaspoon or two of extra virgin olive oil and two teaspoons of a salt-free seasoning like lemon pepper or make your own seasoning to taste. Toss the beans with the oil and seasoning. Roast uncovered on a low-sided cookie sheet for 10 to 12 minutes or until light brown. Serve hot or room temperature. Alternative: Try a mixture of chili powder, cumin, black pepper and smoked paprika for a great flavor combination that suits roasted edamame nicely.

The Pulpit

By Benjie Dyal, Pastor, New Home Baptist Church

My wife is a theologian in her own right, although she turns the table, sort of speaking, in offering me questions to answer, which I must support, naturally, with Scriptural references. I have often found the questions to be very intriguing. She has lately posed two questions, "If God took everything away from you that took you away from Him, what would you have left?" and "If God treated you as you treated others, how would you be treated?" As I pondered upon the questions, I must admit that the questions were more difficult than I first imaged. You must understand that my wife knows me more than I know myself at times. She knows how to pose questions that challenge me and make me stop and think.

Naturally, my wife is also a member where I pastor. She wants her pastor to walk the walk, thus practice what he preaches, and accomplish more than Jesus (just joking about the last one).

Really, she wants what is best for me, as well as for the congregation I serve. So in her wisdom she has learned to pose challenging questions to make me think, face reality and answer those tough questions. The questions posed cause me to ask myself, "Am I really giving God first place in life, am I really doing it for God, am I really giving God my best," as well as "Am I truly treating others as I would want to be treated?"

These are vital questions that need to be addressed if we are serious in our walk with Jesus. As I thought more and more about the challenging questions, I began to ask God to search the depth of my soul and reveal unto me what I needed to truly know and change in life. What I discovered was the fact that there was plenty of room for improvement.

There are times when a person can get caught up in self-righteousness, thinking that we are good enough, or doing enough, as well and thinking there is no room for improvement, and people do notice it, especially God.

We need to really examine ourselves and ask tough questions and face reality. As I prayed and searched for Scriptural references to the questions, I begin to realize that we, as Christians, also drift away at times from the core ministry of Jesus. When we spend the appropriate time we need to with Jesus in the Word of God and in prayer, we are able to face reality and find an answer to those tough, challenging questions. We are then equipped and able to practice what the Scripture teaches.

So, I pose to those that read this article the same questions, "If God took everything away from you that took you away from Him, what would you have left?" and "If God treated you as you treated others, how would you be treated?" I challenge you to stop and think about the questions, "Am I really giving God first place in life? Am I really doing it for God? Am I really giving God my best?" as well as "Am I truly treating others as I would want to be treated?"

Reality is tough to face, but it is necessary if we really are serious in our walk with Jesus. Accept the challenge and search for Scriptural references bathed in prayer and openness to hear what God's Word has to say unto you.

There is always room to grow and improve in our walk with Jesus. An open Bible and an open heart will give us an obedient and willing heart, and our walk with Jesus will be even sweeter.

Notice that I did not give any Scriptural references. This was for the sole purpose that I want to encourage and challenge you to pray and let the Holy Spirit guide you to the Scripture God wants to use to speak personally to you concerning the questions. He may lead you to the same Scriptures He led me to, or some different Scriptures or some of both. It is what God has to say that matters most and the Spirit of Truth will definitely guide you. I will be writing various articles that will cover the various questions in the near future. So look out for the articles in the local paper or on my web-site at www.benjedyal.com and compare notes.

May we always put God first in our lives and allow nothing to take us away from Him, and may we always treat others how we want to be treated.

Florida United Methodist Children's Home Expands To Madison County

Contributors to this report include Jacob Bembry and the Florida UMC Children's Home.

Troubled, abused and neglected children will soon have a new place to find safety and shelter. The Florida United Methodist Children's Home near Orlando is expanding and building a north campus in Pinetta.

Called the Madison Youth Ranch, it is located on more than 300 acres of donated land, part of which was the former Barksdale Farm, and will serve children from across the state. The former owner of Barksdale Farm, Shirley Ann Bacigalupo, was a school teacher and a foster parent. In her will, she bequeathed her land for special children. Mrs. Barksdale died in Sept. 1994.

Some referrals for the ranch will come from state agencies, including the Department of Children and Families. While some of the children are placed through DCF, others are often placed by their families due to behavioral issues or other family problems.

The Ranch is scheduled to begin accepting children in the fall of 2014 with a total of three buildings nearing completion. This includes two residential facilities that will house 8-12 children each. House parents will stay with the children.

"You're not trying to take the place of family," Preston Mathews, Madison County resident and former house parent for the Florida UMC Children's Home said. "You're trying to give them the kinds of things families should be giving them. It's not about turning knobs to straighten kids out; it's about showing the kid you love them and there's not but three ways to let a kid know you love them - to tell them, to write it down and to hug them."

"The ranch is bringing many opportunities and many different ways for people to volunteer their services and give of their time, their talents and then also give of their money," said Diane Sullivan, a member of the First United Methodist Church of Madison.

"If you'll go back to your childhood and imagine at a certain time when you were most scared as a child and how terrible that was for all of us," posed Billy Sullivan, husband of

Diane, and along with her one of the donors to the Madison Youth Ranch. "Most of us came out of it. It didn't last too long or it was an unfounded fear. Most of these kids that we get down there, that's their reality. They wake up to that every day."

"We were on board from the beginning," Bunny Maultsby said of she and her husband, John. "We know that there's just a big, big need in this area. I just felt like John and I have been so blessed in our lives that this is a way to give back and what a wonderful way to do it, transforming the life of a child."

The Maultsbys are members of the First United Methodist Church of Madison.

The Madison Youth Ranch will include residential and therapeutic care as well as plans to eventually implement Equine Assisted Therapy.

The Florida United Methodist Children's Home Madison Youth Ranch is being constructed at 1647 NE Captain Buie Road in Pinetta.

A ceremonial groundbreaking was held on Sept. 18, 2012.

To donate to the ranch, please visit www.allchildrenfirst.org or call (386) 668-5088.

Scammers Target Facebook Users Posing As Pastors And TV Evangelists

By Jacob Bemby
Greene Publishing, Inc.

One day last week, this writer received a friend request from a television evangelist that he was following on Facebook. The writer somehow doubted that the request was legitimate, but curious, he accepted the request to see what was going on.

Almost immediately, he began receiving messages in his inbox from the alleged evangelist. The first messages were asking for any specific prayer requests, then the real questions began. The new "friend" began asking if the writer believed in the "seed of faith." That immediately raised another red flag. Soon, the person was asking for a donation to an orphanage in Africa.

Questions swirled through the writer's mind, like "Why would a person who is the pastor of a huge church and who has a very busy schedule take the time to send a person they don't know a private message on Facebook?" and "Is this really the person they claim?"

Of course, it was not the person they were claiming to be. It was a scam.

When this writer replied that he did not have the money to donate that day, they immediately turned up the pressure on him. This writer then immediately "un-friended" them.

According to the Better Business Bureau (www.bbb.org), the scam involves copycat accounts of television evangelists and pastors who have large congregations. It is one of the many unfortunate scams that have arisen during the days of high speed technology.

A quick search done on search engines on the computer, such as Bing, Yahoo or Google will quickly reveal that the charity does not exist and that the Facebook account is a fraud.

Do not share, like or comment on the fake accounts. This will show up in the newsfeed of your friends, who may also fall into the trap of believing the accounts are real and they may "friend" the scammers.

To report the phony account to Facebook, go the timeline of the account and click on "Report/Block," then select "Submit a Report." Click on "Report (Name's) Account" and then "Confirm." Click on "This person is pretending to be me or someone I know" and when instructed, complete the on-screen directions.

Please beware of any potential scammers who are trying to misrepresent themselves. Many see Christians, because of the generosity of many, as easy prey.

Churches And Communities To Celebrate Resurrection With Sunrise Services

By Jacob Bemby
Greene Publishing, Inc.

Early on the first day of the week, while it was still dark, Mary Magdalene went to the tomb and saw that the stone had been removed from the entrance. So she came running to Simon Peter and the other disciple, the one Jesus loved, and said, "They have taken the Lord out of the tomb, and we don't know where they have put Him!"

So Peter and the other disciple started for the tomb. Both were running, but the other disciple outran Peter and reached the tomb first. He bent over and looked in at the strips of linen lying there but did not go in. Then

Simon Peter came along behind him and went straight into the tomb. He saw the strips of linen lying there, as well as the cloth that had been wrapped around Jesus' head. The cloth was still lying in its place, separate from the linen. Finally the other disciple, who had reached the tomb first, also went inside. He saw and believed. (They still did not understand from Scripture that Jesus had to rise from the dead.) Then the disciples went back to where they were staying.

Now Mary stood outside the tomb crying. As she wept, she bent over to look into the tomb and saw two angels in white, seated where Jesus' body had been, one at the head and the other at the foot.

They asked her, "Woman, why are you crying?"

"They have taken my Lord away," she said, "and I don't know where they have put Him." At this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there, but she did not realize that it was Jesus.

He asked her, "Woman, why are you crying? Who is it you are looking for?"

Thinking He was the gardener, she said, "Sir, if you have carried Him away, tell me where you have put Him, and I will get Him."

Jesus said to her, "Mary."

She turned toward Him and cried out in Aramaic, "Rabboni!" (which means "Teacher").

Jesus said, "Do not hold on to Me, for I have not yet ascended to the Father. Go instead to My brothers and tell them, 'I am ascending to My Father and your Father, to My God and your God.'"

Mary Magdalene went to the disciples with the news: "I have seen the Lord!" And she told them that He had said these things to her. (John 18:1-20, New International Version)

On Easter morning, April 20, churches and communities around the world will celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ with sunrise (or "Sunrise") services. Madison County will be no different as churches around the county will rise with the sun to celebrate the rising of the Son on the third day.

The places for the services are varied. Midway Baptist Church will hold their service at 7 a.m. at the church, located at 328 SE Midway Church Road. This will be followed by a prayer breakfast.

In the City of Madison, Faith Baptist Church will be holding their service around Lake Francis. The time, as on all mentioned in this article, will be at 7 a.m.

Hickory Grove Methodist will host a sunrise service in the cemetery, located on NE Hickory Grove Church Road.

Lee First Baptist Church and Lee United Methodist Church will hold a sunrise service at Lake Brittany, located next to the Lee Town Hall.

There may be many more sunrise celebrations in Madison County celebrating the resurrection of Jesus Christ who died for our sins. If you know of any, please email Jacob Bemby at jacobbemby@hotmail.com and we would be glad to include them in The Path of Faith.
