Deadly gas in bagel shop

Six treated for carbon monoxide in Safety Harbor

BY DOUGLAS E. JESSMER
PINELLAS NEWS

SAFETY HARBOR: Six people were treated for carbon-monoxide poisoning Saturday morning in a bagel shop.

Emergency responders were called to the Einstein Bros. shop at the corner of McMullen-Booth and Enterprise roads at about 8:30 a.m., Safety Harbor Deputy Fire Chief Joe Acetta said.

Using carbon monoxide detectors aboard their fire trucks, firefighters quickly determined the victims were exposed to the odorless, colorless gas. The six were treated and transported to two nearby hospitals.

Firefighters determined the shop's ventilation system, used to vent a gas oven, wasn't working.

Acetta said the shop can't use its oven until the department and city inspectors give the go-ahead.

ST. PETERSBURG: Sheriff's deputies shot and killed a gunman who opened fire shortly before 1 p.m. Wednesday at the St. Petersburg Courthouse.

The gunman, Glen Lee Powell, 30, of Brandon, entered the courthouse at 544 1st Ave. N. through the main entrance on the west side of the building, Sheriff's Office spokesman Jim Bordner said.

Powell approached two bailiff deputies stationed at a metal detector. The two uniformed deputies asked the man to remove his backpack and put it on a conveyor before going through the magnetometer.

"The man threw the backpack on the floor and withdrew a semiautomatic handgun," Bordner said.

The gunman shot Deputy B.J. Lyons, 58, in the portable radio shoulder-microphone located on his left shoulder.

Munitions found in two incidents

STAFF REPORT

ST. PETERSBURG: In the last seven days, sheriff's deputies and a bomb squad responded twice to reports of old military ordnance found in Pinellas County residences.

In an incident last Friday, a box of old ordnance – including a World War II-era live hand grenade – was found when two women were cleaning a Belleair Beach garage.

And after discovering ordnance Tuesday morning in a Seminole residence, a Palm Harbor man delivered the weapons to the Sheriff's Office administration building in Largo.

In both incidents, the Hillsborough County Sheriff's Office Bomb Squad responded.

County launches prescription drug card program

Average of 20-percent savings touted

STAFF REPORT

CLEARWATER: Pinellas County residents can now participate in a drug-discount card program that offers an average of 20-percent savings off the retail price of many prescriptions.

The county is making free prescription drug discount cards available under a program sponsored by the National Association of Counties.

The cards may be used by all county residents, regardless of age, income or existing health coverage and are accepted at many of the county's pharmacies.

A national network of more than 59,000 participating retail pharmacies also will honor the prescription discount card.

"Residents do not have to be Medicare beneficiaries to be eligible for this program," Pinellas County Health and Human Services Director Maureen Freanney said.

There is no cost to county taxpayers.

IN FOCUS

The unseen killer: Carbon monoxide

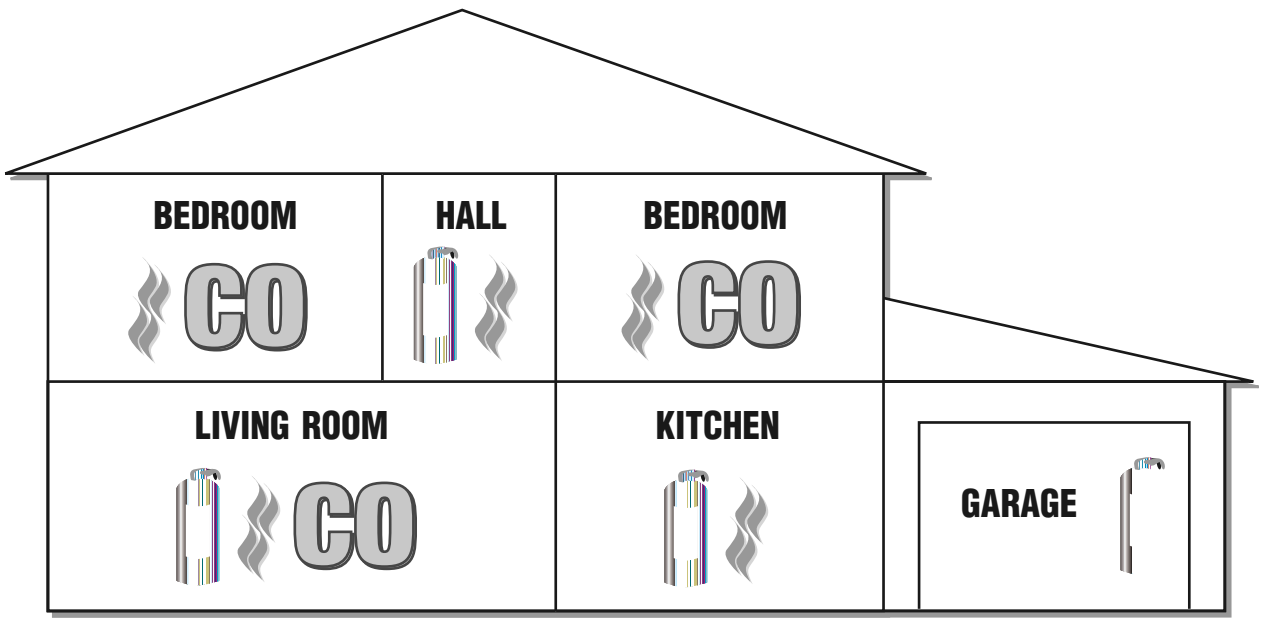
In the wake of the Safety Harbor bagel shop emergency, a look at what you need to know

WHERE SAFETY DEVICES SHOULD BE PLACED

SMOKE ALARMS: One in every bedroom, and at least one on every level of the home.

CARBON MONOXIDE ALARMS: One on every level of the home and one in each sleeping area.

FIRE EXTINGUISHERS: One on every level of the home, and one each in the kitchen and garage.



WHAT IF YOUR DETECTOR ALARMS

What do you do and who to you call when your carbon monoxide detector goes into alarm? If the alarm goes off, turn off appliances, or other sources of combustion at once.

- Immediately get fresh air into the premises by opening doors and windows.
- Call a qualified technician and have the problem fixed before restarting appliances.
- If anyone is experiencing symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning: headaches, dizziness, vomiting, call the fire department and immediately move to a location that has fresh air.
- Do a head count to be sure all persons are accounted for.
- Do not re-enter the premises until it has been aired out and the problem corrected.

IDENTIFY THE SOURCE OF THE GAS

To identify the source/s of carbon monoxide, have a professional check the following :

- Gas or oil furnaces are frequently the source of carbon monoxide leaks. Check the combustion chamber, flue pipes and venting systems for cracks, gaps, rust, corrosion, metal fatigue or debris. Check the filters and filtering systems for dirt and blockages.
- Check furnace flame, burners and ignition systems. A predominately yellow, flat, lazy-looking flame in a natural gas furnace indicates fuel is not burning efficiently and is thus releasing higher than usual levels of carbon monoxide. Oil furnaces with a similar problem produce an 'oil' odor, but remember you can't smell, see or taste carbon monoxide.
- Chimneys and venting systems must be carefully checked for blockages caused by debris, animal nests, cracks, holes or cave-ins. A blocked chimney or venting system can force dangerous gases back into your home.
- Venting and fan systems on all fuel burning appliances must be inspected for proper installation to assure carbon monoxide is vented out rather than in. Don't forget gas water heaters, clothes dryers, space heaters or wood burning stoves.
- Inspect fireplaces for blocked or bent chimneys or flues, soot and debris or holes in the chimney that could release carbon monoxide exhaust back into the home.
- Stove pilot lights in a closed-up home can be a source of carbon monoxide build-up if not operating properly because they are not vented to the outside. Check to be sure they are operating properly.
- Fireplace pilot lights can also produce carbon monoxide and should be checked regularly.
- Never burn charcoal inside no matter how much you want to recapture summer and never use your gas stove as a heater. Keep the oven door closed and use it for cooking only.
- Never leave a car running in an attached garage even if the garage door is open.

DETECTOR PLACEMENT IS IMPORTANT

Proper placement of a carbon monoxide detector is important. If you are installing only one carbon monoxide detector, the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) recommends it be located near the sleeping area, where it can wake you if you are asleep. Additional detectors on every level and in every bedroom of a home provides extra protection.

WHAT NOT TO DO

- Don't install carbon monoxide detectors directly above or beside fuel-burning appliances, as appliances may emit a small amount of carbon monoxide upon start-up.
- A detector should not be placed within fifteen feet of heating or cooking appliances or in or near very humid areas such as bathrooms.
- When considering where to place a carbon monoxide detector, keep in mind that although carbon monoxide is roughly the same weight as air (carbon monoxide's specific gravity is 0.9657, as stated by the EPA; the National Resource Council lists the specific gravity of air as one), it may be contained in warm air coming from combustion appliances such as home heating equipment. If this is the case, carbon monoxide will rise with the warmer air.

PUT IT ON THE CEILING

For this reason, the makers of First Alert detectors suggest mounting the device on the ceiling. This also puts the detector out of the way of potential interference, such as pets or curious children.

BUT IT'S NOT ALL BAD

- Carbon monoxide is a major industrial gas that has many applications in bulk chemicals manufacturing.
- Carbon monoxide, through hydroformylation, is coupled to the Shell Higher Olefin Process to make precursors to detergents.
- Methanol is produced by the hydrogenation of carbon monoxide. In a related reaction, the hydrogenation of carbon monoxide contributes to the Fischer-Tropsch process where carbon monoxide is hydrogenated to liquid hydrocarbon fuels. This technology allows coal to be converted to fuel.
- In the Monsanto process, carbon monoxide and methanol react in the presence of a catalyst to make acetic acid, or vinegar. This process is responsible for most of the industrial production of acetic acid.
- Carbon monoxide is a principal component of syngas, which is often used for industrial power.
- Carbon monoxide is also used in industrial-scale operations to purify nickel.

Honey-do list turns into honey, please don't

DOUGLAS E. JESSMER
Commentary

I came home Monday night to a "honey-do" list, which is something I've heard about, but I don't think I've actually seen.

It's fairly tame, at least so far, with things like screwing in light bulbs and rescreening windows. Oh, and the ceiling fan I installed a few weeks ago, when I zapped myself because I didn't turn the electric off? It needs to be balanced. That's on the list, too.

I'm not a handyman. I barely know which end of a hammer to swing. It's really not much different from my skills with children. When my nephew was born, I warned my brother and sister-in-law: Don't be surprised if I put the baby bottle in the wrong end.

The answer from my sister-in-law: "Just pull it back out and put it in the right hole."

My brother appeared a little uncomfortable with that, and I'm sure I would have, too. The good thing is, I DID manage to get it in the right place every time. I even figured out how to burp a baby, and how to clean puke off my shoulder.

Speaking of laundry, the belt on our dryer broke a few weeks ago, and I decided to take matters into my own hands. The letters DIY mean "Destroy It Yourself." I installed a new belt, which didn't last 20 minutes on the dryer.

So I went back to the parts warehouse in Pinellas Park with the belt. "Looks like you put it on wrong," the answer came.

Rocket scientist that I am, I asked the guy, "OK, so how do you put this thing on?" He took me to a display of belts and found the right one, this time, with instructions on the package.

Now feeling foolproof, I took the new belt home and slapped it on the dryer. It's been working ever since. Whaddya know.

I rescreened a bunch of windows in the house last summer. Once I figured out that it could be done, it was a matter of stripping the ratty screens out and rolling in new ones. It would have been fun, had it not been so repetitive.

The big hole we had in the family room ceiling? Gone, but little thanks to me. I just painted over the new drywall. Angie's brother came over to help get that job done. He knows how to use a drill and understands the difference between screws for sheetrock, wood and metal.

One thing I can do well is screw things up. In a literal sense, that skill might have come in handy, as it was a ceiling job. So I propped up the sheet of plywood as he drilled screws into the studs, and afterward helped smooth out the seams.

A few months ago, we were out on her dad's pontoon boat, off Crystal River. The motor conked out. I was sitting at the back of the boat, which I think is called either the stem or stern, whichever is aft, and that put me in the wrong place at the wrong time.

"See that bulb down there?" her dad said to me. "Just pump it a few times." So I primed the motor again, only to hear it turn over a few times, then burp.

And we were out in the middle of a wide part of the Crystal River. Stranded. No thanks to the guy who can't pump a bulb.

We didn't have paddles, at least that I could see.

Finally, after a few attempts, the motor fired up. Apparently, the thing flooded out – once again, no thanks to me.

Angie added a few things to the honey-do list Tuesday morning. I haven't looked, though I probably need to. I'm hoping she turned it into a shopping list.

County approves pier plan

Commissioners OK Oldsmar land-use plan, radio system

STAFF REPORT

CLEARWATER: Pinellas County Commissioners approved plans for a pedestrian pier, a land use change and upgrades to the county's radio system Tuesday.

The City of Clearwater plans a pedestrian pier at the end of Cleveland Street, using pilings from the old causeway bridge across to Clearwater Beach.

The 200-foot-long structure would be called The Promenade, and it would be at the northeast end of the Memorial Causeway Bridge.

The City of Oldsmar requested two land-use changes affecting 14 acres of vacant property at the corner of State Route 580 and St. Clair Avenue.

One change increases the density of 11.7 acres from residential urban to residential medium, allowing 15 residential units per acre. The other change affects an adjoining 2.3 acres, located along Route 580, changing the land use from "residential urban" to "residential office general," allowing a mixed use of office and/or residential units.

There is also a third parcel, comprised of 10 acres along the water. For the overall project to be compatible with the West Oldsmar area, this third property would remain "residential urban," which has a low density of 7.5 units per acre.

County officials say three primary approvals are a part of an ongoing process to upgrade the county radio system.

■ Replacement of the system with a new one that has different frequencies will cost $6.5 million, paid by T-Mobile. The Federal Communications Commission auctioned the existing frequencies to T-Mobile, who is obligated to relocate the equipment to a new frequency band and pay for it.

■ A $3.5 million microwave loop for Pinellas County Utilities to receive video and data from remote sites, such as sewer lift stations, pumps and other devices that require 24-hour monitoring, feeding into the Utilities control center. The utilities department will pay for the loop.

■ Replacement of the pager system used at the county emergency communications center. The system is 16 years old and parts are no longer made or supported by the manufacturer.

The pager system is one of the critical methods of notifying first responders of emergencies. This upgrade costs $420,000.

The work is part of a contract with Motorola that was competitively awarded in 1988 and renewed in 1995.

It is funded through revenues from the moving violation surcharge, grant funds and Penny for Pinellas.

Pinellas County Sheriff's Office

Almost 300 marijuana plants were confiscated after the search of a Palm Harbor grow-house operation.

Grow house shut down

Man allows police to search, seize almost 300 plants

STAFF REPORT

O'Hanlon

LARGO: A Palm Harbor man was arrested for manufacturing marijuana in his house, as part of a statewide police initiative.

Pinellas County Sheriff's Office narcotics detectives arrested Paul Michael O'Hanlon, 63, 704 Robin Ave., as part of "Operation D-Day," spearheaded by the South Florida High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area.

Sheriff's HIDTA detectives and U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents conducted a consensual search at about 10:30 a.m. April 30 at O'Hanlon's home.

Detectives made contact with O'Hanlon, who they said was "immediately cooperative" and consented to the search.

During the search, detectives located a four-room marijuana grow operation in the detached garage.

Detectives say the search resulted in the seizure of 276 marijuana plants in various stages of growth and miscellaneous grow equipment. A walk-in closet in the house contained female plants and small seedlings.

The investigation continues.

We've made some tweaks to your News

ST. PETERSBURG

The squeeze is on, but we're making the most of it.

In last week's issue, the outside page margins were a half-inch wider, a step toward reducing the width of our paper by as much.

This week's paper takes advantage of that width reduction by making some small changes in the way we look and feel, a reward to our readers. Think of us as being on a diet. We've gotten thinner, and we need to get some new accessories to make our clothes fit.

When it's all done, we will have narrowed the entire newspaper a half inch.

American newspapers have slowly narrowed, from a width of about 14 inches 20 years ago, to a width that's much smaller today. The move reflects the skyrocketing cost of newsprint as much as it represents a desire to be less unwieldy for readers.

Instead of shrinking the width of our stories, we widened by taking a column off each page. We made better use of space with the photos we run with columnists, and will run briefs differently to allow for wider photos. We tweaked body type to read better, too.

What didn't change? Page two will remain as useful as it's been. We tried not to change our page-one look too much, after having redesigned last fall.

And above all, the names and faces of our people, and the commitment we have to serve you, haven't changed.

AT A GLANCE

Arson to blame for Mariner's Point wildlife area fire

Members of the Pinellas County Wildland Fire Team are monitoring the Mariner's Point Management Area to ensure that an area burned in a fire Monday night was extinguished during a routine "mop up" operation.

Arson is suspected in the two-acre fire that started approximately 6 p.m. in the south portion of Mariner's Point Management Area.

Several fire departments, including Oldsmar and Tarpon Springs, quickly responded. Staff members from the county's Environmental Lands Division were also on location. The fire was extinguished by 9 p.m.

Mariner's Point is a 65-acre, county-owned parcel in south Tarpon Springs along the Gulf of Mexico. It is managed by the county's environmental management department.

The county says citizens should exercise caution when discarding cigarette butts and engaging in other activities with fire potential.

Prescribed Burn: The county also scheduled a prescribed burn Tuesday covering four acres of Brooker Creek Preserve. Because of the burn's location, the preserve gates were closed.

Clearwater leg of Fred Marquis Pinellas Trail closes for repair

A leg of the Fred Marquis Pinellas Trail south of Sunset Point Road, between Harbor Drive to Stevenson Avenue in Clearwater, will be closed for repairs starting Monday and continuing for about 30 days.

Approximately one-quarter mile of this portion of the trail requires embankment repair work on the south side of the Stevenson Creek Bridge.

The need for repair work is a result of erosion due to pedestrian traffic on the embankment, which is discouraged.

Bicycle, pedestrian and all other recreational traffic will be detoured to Fairmont Street, Douglas Avenue and Overbrook Avenue, looping back to the trail via Stevenson Avenue.

The detour will be marked clearly for all recreational traffic to follow and will be in effect through the completion of the repair work, approximately 30 days, weather permitting.

This portion of the Fred Marquis Pinellas Trail is located in northwest region of Clearwater and is used by an estimated 1,420 users per month.

Teen brings gun to school

Pinellas County Sheriff's deputies arrested a middle school student Wednesday morning for bringing a gun to school.

POLICE NOTES

Alexander B. Glass, 15, of Clearwater, was arrested around 9:30 a.m. for two counts possession of a firearm on school grounds.

Deputies said Glass admitted showing the handgun to several students on the bus and later to other boys in a bathroom at Osceola Middle School, 9301 98th St. N.

According to deputies, several students approached the school resource officer and reported they saw a student on the school bus with a firearm.

The students pointed out Glass to the officer. The deputy took Glass to a secure location of the school and found that he had a handgun and a magazine with two rounds.

Glass told deputies that he accidentally brought the weapon to the school and that he usually left it in a flower pot at a school bus stop.

He told deputies that he brought the weapon to the bus stop to show it and possibly sell it to an unidentified high school student, according to the sheriff's office.

Deputies later determined that a second weapon had also been taken to and displayed at the bus stop on at least five other occasions. Deputies recovered that weapon at the suspect's home.

Mayors sign 'green' accord

Pact supports sustainable practices in municipalities

BY MARY BURRELL
FOR THE PINELLAS NEWS

CLEARWATER: Pinellas County mayors joined County Commissioner Karen Willams Seel Saturday in the signing of the Mayor's Green City Action Accord.

The ceremony, held at the Harborview Center the first morning of the Pinellas Living Green Expo, symbolized the strong and unified support of green initiatives throughout the community.

Pinellas County holds a unique position in that the county was the first government in the state to receive the designation of Green Local Government, and St. Petersburg was the first city designated in the state. Dunedin has since received the honor and other cities are applying. Other municipalities support sustainable practices through their efforts in recycling, public education and other conservation practices.

The Green Government designation is administered through the Green Building Coalition, the organization promoting the signing of the Mayor's Green City Action Accord throughout the state. The accord supports green initiatives in the community, and is strongly supported by the Florida League of Cities. Pinellas is the first county to hold a public signing ceremony to bring attention to the agreement.

For more information on sustainability, call 727-582-2100, or visit www.pinellascounty.org/extension.

The president of the Florida League of Cities, Frank C. Ortis, mayor of Pembroke Pines, was one of the featured speakers at the ceremony Saturday. Other speakers were Terry Jenssen, from the Government Affairs Committee of the Florida Green Building Coalition, St. Petersburg Mayor Rick Baker and Clearwater Mayor Frank Hibbard.

> "Sustainability encourages us to make both small and large changes in our everyday lives, both personally and in business."
>
> KAREN WILLIAMS SEEL
> Pinellas County Commissioner

"Our theme today is 'Leading the Way to a Sustainable Future,'" said Seel, the emcee of the event. Through the Extension, Pinellas County is deeply involved in the promotion of sustainability, which takes a comprehensive approach to what is more commonly referred to as green initiatives.

As Seel explained, sustainability includes the decisions government makes as leaders in the community, and the conservation measures taken by corporations, small businesses, educational institutions and individual households.

"Sustainability encourages us to make both small and large changes in our everyday lives, both personally and in business," said Seel. "Recycling. Reduced energy usage. Alternative fuels. Waterwise landscaping. Job training. Healthy families. Sustainability is a holistic approach to our lives that looks at the balances between economy, environment and society."

Members of the county's 4-H clubs presented each of the mayors with a sapling to represent their appreciation for efforts being taken now to preserve the future.

Sheriff honors deputies, employees

Top cop honors given to deputy who stopped an armed robbery

SEMINOLE: Pinellas County Sheriff Jim Coats presented awards Wednesday to top deputies and employees of his office.

The annual awards presentation coincides with May as Law Month, and was held at the City of Seminole Recreation Auditorium.

The Ruth & Tim Johnson Law Enforcement Deputy of the Year Award — the highest honor for a law enforcement deputy – was given to Deputy Scott Reid. Reid was off duty when he thwarted an armed robbery in progress. The award is named for the Tim Johnson family and commemorates the family's longtime support of the Pinellas County Sheriff's Office. The winner receives a plaque and a $1,000 check.

The Capt. Louis Kubler Detention and Corrections Deputy of the Year winner is Cpl. John Hornak. He is recognized for his oversight of the inmate health care facility construction project. The award is named for a former Sheriff's Office captain, whose family continues the recognition by presenting the winner with a savings bond and a plaque.

The Capt. Louis Kubler Forensic Science Specialist of the Year winner is Bob Detwiler, who was selected by his peers as a professional role model and expert in his field. He will also receive a savings bond and a plaque.

The Jackie Clement Award, which goes to a support staff member with the Child Protection Investigation Division for their initiative and dedication to the work of child protection, was awarded to Laura L. Griffin.

Coats presented certificates of professionalism and Gold Star, Unit, Excellent Service and Exceptional Service awards to more than 60 members of the Sheriff's Office.

Both bailiffs return fire at courthouse

Both deputies returned fire, killing the gunman.

Lyons, a firearms instructor and 25-year veteran with the sheriff's office, was treated for a non-life threatening injury to his left shoulder at Bayfront Medical Center. He was later released.

No other injuries were reported.

The other deputy, Marvin Glover, 57, a seven-year veteran with the sheriff's office, was uninjured.

A bomb-sniffing dog found no explosives in the courthouse or in Powell's white pickup truck parked nearby.

"One other magazine was found in the backpack," Bordner said.

Both deputies were placed on non-disciplinary paid administrative leave while the sheriff's office investigates. Detectives assigned to the Sheriff's Office Robbery/Homicide Unit, and the Administrative Investigations Division will conduct the investigation, he said.

No motive was established for the unprovoked shooting.

Both deputies were armed with .45-caliber semiautomatic handguns.

McMullen-Booth PTA has full slate of activities

SAFETY HARBOR: McMullen-Booth Elementary School's Parent-Teacher Association has maintained a full slate of activities this school year.

The PTA has supported recreational reading, an arts program and a Dynamic Dads program.

PTA publicity chairman Rob Meli said that while recreational reading has been supported by the PTA for many years, the school's recreational-reading format and the quest for Book Bucks "has been an ongoing and very successful incentive for the kids to read at home."

Every semester, students can redeem their Book Bucks at marketplaces, which he said is the "highlight of the semester."

The county-sponsored Reflections program encourages children to express themselves through the arts, Meli said.

"This includes everything from drawing, to story writing, to video creations, and photography," he said. "The program is a competition and entries must be submitted and formatted to meet the criteria for consideration for county and state awards."

"Reading Under the Stars," another annual program, brings in more than 300 families for an event that ends with a story read to the children in mass by a notable local person.

"This is a great evening bringing family and school, reading and relaxation together," Meli said. "It takes many hands, talents, and additional teacher's time to provide an event that brings in over 300 families.

The Dynamic Dads committee started the school year with the Dynamic Dads Healthy Start Breakfast, an opportunity for dads to bring their children to school and "spend a little quality time in the morning before they head off to class," Meli said.

The Dynamic Dads' annual Valentine's Father/ Daughter and Mother/Son Dance, which was Feb. 10 at the Harborview Center in Clearwater, had almost 300 people for dinner and dancing.

Grenade, military explosives uncovered

People who discover bombs, grenades or other explosives are encouraged not to handle or transport them, authorities said, and should instead move a safe distance away and call police. Trained experts will then safely remove the devices.

When Edward Widlak, 73, discovered ordnance at about 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at his father-in-law's home on 87th Avenue North in Seminole, he drove the material to the Sheriff's Office, 10750 Ulmerton Road, Largo, and presented it at about 10:15 a.m. at the front desk.

The container in which the ordnance was transported was moved to an isolated field near the Largo complex until a bomb technician deemed it safe about two hours later, authorities said.

The items were removed by the bomb squad for further examination.

Deputies responded at about 10:40 a.m. Friday to a call about ordnance found in a residence on 1st Street in Belleair Beach, where Hannah Waldrop, 79, was cleaning out a back storage room in her garage, helped by her daughter, Jane Waldrop of Augusta, Ga.

The two women discovered a box containing ordnance, including a live hand grenade. The daughter then called authorities, deputies said.

Deputies called for the bomb squad, who took possession of the container.

Deputies say the ordnances are believed to be items collected by the homeowner's late husband, who was a World War II veteran.
