MARY IS A MULATTO

Sensational Story About Florida Was Written by a Wench Who Was Never in the State

The Evening News is informed that Mary Church Terrell, the conscienceless liar who wrote an article in the Nineteenth Century Magazine, and in which the most shameful untruths about labor conditions in Florida are told, is a negro woman. She is a very intelligent woman and has cut quite a prominent figure in New England circles. She is a bright mulatto and frequently passes for white. A reputable Tampa colored man, who is well acquainted with the Terrell woman, says that she has never been in Florida and that her remarks about conditions here were either gathered from unreliable hearsay or were fabricated by her to serve some unselfish purpose. That a magazine should be thus imposed upon and by a negro woman at that, is no compliment to the honesty or integrity of its publishers.—Tampa Evening News.

Love and Mathematics.

"Do you love me as much as I love you?"

The college girl smiled. "Do you wish me to prove it?" she said.

For answer he bent forward, expecting to receive the usual binding of the promise.

"I mean mathematically," she continued, drawing her face back. "Now, don't be cross! Listen! We belong to a certain circle. We are the radii of that circle. Two radii of a circle are equal to a third radius of the same circle."

He wasn't good at mathematics, but he conceded the point.

"Things which are equal to the same thing are equal to one another. Well, supposing that you and I are equal to X, an unknown quantity."

He was perfectly willing to suppose anything.

"X is our love for each other. We are equal to X. Things which are equal to the same thing are equal to one another; therefore I must love you in the same ratio that you love me."

He didn't wait for any more mathematics. The X became X'tasy!—Exchange.

The Ache.

"Doc, give me something for my headache?"

"Did you ever have headache before?"

"Nope—usually after."—Cleveland Leader.

GEORGIA COLONELS IN GOTHAM

Thirteen Empire State Ornaments Flee to a Land Where There is No Danger of Dying from Thirst

(New York World.)

Thirteen Georgia colonels, hailing from our sister state, after three day's happy sailing, landed in New York elate from the City of Savannah, of the old Savannah Line. By their walk and general manner you could see they felt quite fine.

"Weather here is fierce, infernal; down in our salubrious zone it is next door to supernal. But man can't live on air alone."

Thus, to a World reporter spoke a colonel who opined he had never tasted water save the carbonated kind mixed with highball preparations popular in Georgia when sumptuary regulations were not made by rural men.

"Georgia is a land of plenty, flowing honey, milk and gold. I take milk, but with frumenti, likewise honey, for a cold"—thus our oratoric colonel—all the rest were loath to speak. "We once took a ball diurnal, lasting sometimes all the week. Thash is what we're taking now, suh. Capt. Fisher, don't you see something off the star-board bow, suh? Serpents? Well, they can't scare me. I am from the state of Georgia, where they make the mountain dew; all the pizens of the Borgia couldn't put my nerves askew.

"On the City of Savannah, past the three-mile limit, we get all sorts of liquid manna good for thirsty men at sea. Ships' news men and Captain Horton of the old Savannah Line, we have had a time ripsnortin'. Come with us; we'll open wine!"

And as to the nearest barroom all the happy colonels sped, Celtic like, all arm in arrum, this is what the talker said:

"We admire your lofty towers, gaze at them with open mouth; they remind us much of our vanished highballs in the South."

Two Ways of Looking at It.

There is a young artist in Washington who classes himself as of the impressionistic school and who, being somewhat out in drawing, generally makes up for his lack of technique by spreading color recklessly and counting on distance for his effect.

At an amateur exhibition he once hung one of his most extraordinary performances.

"Well," said a friend whom the artist had taken to see the work. "I don't want to flatter you, old chap, but that is far and away the best stuff you have ever done. I congratulate you."

Much pleased, the artist was receiving the compliment with becoming modesty when he chanced again to glance at the picture and turned very red. The committee had hung it upside down.

Hurrying to the head of the committee, he was about to launch into a loud complaint when he was informed of the good news that an hour before the picture had been sold for $61. The original price mark had been $19.—Lippincott's Magazine.

Where the Horse Bit George.

"Now, please show me the spot where the horse bit George Washington," was the astonishing request made by a country visitor of his host, a downtown publisher. The latter had escorted him about and shown him the statehouse, the Liberty bell, Carpenter's hall, old Christ church, the grave of Benjamin Franklin and the site of the house in which Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence. The publisher had never heard of the spot where the horse bit the Father of His Country, but, equal to the emergency, he took his guest to Washington square and said that it was in one of the corners of that space (which one he did not know) that the horse did the biting, in commendation of which event the square was named after the general. The gentleman from Down Yonder Somewhere was fully satisfied and has gone home full of good, ready made history to tell his neighbors. It would be interesting to ascertain the identity of the wag who sprung this one on George Washington.—Philadelphia Record.
