

Making Good.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Making Good;" and Doctor Pierce's medicines well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made drunkards.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest; hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into favor for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue, with bitter taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's an honest, square-deal medicine with all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper—no secret, no hocus-pocus humbug, therefore don't accept a substitute that the dealer may possibly make a little bigger profit. Insist on your right to have what you call for.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for woman's special ailments. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over two decades ago. As an invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve it is unequalled. It won't satisfy those who want "booze," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead, and when once tried are ever afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy—one to three a dose. Much imitated but never equaled.

BIRDS AS THEY SLEEP.

Quail Form a Dense Circle With All Heads Facing Out.

The nightcap preparations of the chubby little quail are very interesting. Each evening the covey forms in a new place, and this selection of the spot entails serious efforts. Bobwhite never quite loses remembrance of the many dangers which make his life in a wild state one great fear. A white throated male with soft clucks calls together a dozen of his comrades, and for a few minutes they all huddle together, but soon from the farther end of the aviary a clear "Whew-bobwhite!" rings out, and off scurry the whole band, this time perhaps to settle for the night in the new place—a dense circle of little forms, heads all facing out, just as in their native stubble they rest facing in every direction, so that at the first hint of danger from any point of the compass the covey may explode and go booming off in safety. Poor little fellows, their wild life is strenuous indeed! Well for their race that every nest holds from ten to eighteen eggs instead of three or four!

The woodpeckers sleep resting upon their tails, even the flickers invariably following this custom, although during the day the flickers spend much of their time perching in passerine manner, crosswise upon a twig. Small birds, such as thrushes and warblers, sleep usually upon some small twig, with heads tucked behind wings in orthodox bird fashion, but they occasionally vary this in a remarkable way by clinging all night to the vertical wires of their cages, sleeping apparently as soundly in this as in the usual position of rest. A bluebird in a small cage slept thus about one or two nights out of each week. Any explanation of this voluntary and widespread habit among perching birds would be difficult to suggest.

The little hanging parrakeets derive their name from their custom of sleeping always in a reversed position, and when distributed over their roosting tree they resemble some strange, pendant, green fruit rather than sleeping birds.—Outing Magazine.

The Rev. Dr. C. M. Lamson, once president of the American board of foreign missions, was called as a pastor over a parish and was undergoing examination before a council when the question was asked him, "Do you believe in a hell?"

The retiring clergyman of the parish sat beside him and, giving him a nudge, said: "Tell them yes. If you don't now you will before you have been here six months."—Argonaut.

BRYAN TO THE BANKERS

Wants an Emergency Currency that Can be Used by State as Well as National Banks

Chicago, May 24.—William J. Bryan made a plea before the Bankers' Club of Chicago last night for an emergency currency that would enable states as well as national banks to relieve money stringency, and sounded a warning that the people would demand the government bank unless absolute security for deposits can be assured them.

He spoke on "The Banking Business" before several hundred members on the occasion of the 164th regular meeting of the club.

On the subject of emergency currency Mr. Bryan said that he believed that this currency should be issued by the federal government and loaned to the banks. One reason advanced for the belief was that the state bank could be given the same assistance in time of need as the government institution.

"I do not know," he said, "why a state bank should not be thus aided in the matter of relieving distress. In my opinion the state and the national bank should be placed on the same footing when it comes to the question of securing emergency currency."

He said that he believed that our present banking system, with 20,000 independent banks, more nearly meets the needs of the people of this country than a system like that of the Bank of England would do, but he declared that the system needed a general overhauling.

"The thing for us to do," he said, "is to take the system we have, examine it, correct its faults and make it respond to public sentiment, for if anyone thinks he can ignore public sentiment that person will learn his mistake when it is too late."

On the question of affording security to the depositors, Mr. Bryan declared that the temptation to gamble was the source of most of the great bank failures, and suggested the necessity for a law that would remove this temptation from persons who handle other people's money. It is not enough, he said, not only for "reasonable" people, but for "unreasonable" ones, and called it a short-sighted policy on the part of the bankers to resist a just demand from 15,000,000 people for absolute security. "If the banks of this country refuse to give this security," he continued, "it is they and they alone who will be responsible if this government is driven to establish a government bank. If the government savings bank comes, the $500 deposit limit will not last through more than one session of Congress. If our bankers refuse to give the security the people demand there can be no doubt of the future popularity of the government savings bank. I would rather have a guaranteed bank than government banks, but when the time comes I will stand with the 15,000,000 depositors for the bank of absolute security."

ANOTHER TRIAL FOR HARDEN

Leipzig, Germany, May 24.—The supreme court of the empire has ordered a reopening of the trial of Editor Harden, sent to prison for libeling Von Moltke.

Editor Harden bitterly attacked the "Knights of the Round Table" and the Kaiser's "kitchen cabinet," alleging gross immoralities. Von Moltke sued Harden and lost his case. He then appealed and secured a conviction which was considered a sort of vindication.

The decision of the supreme court is a great blow to him. It is also a crushing condemnation of the legal methods used to convict Harden. The hope is this will quiet public indignation because of the methods adopted at the former trial.

An Optimist.

"The train cut his leg off."
"That was a terrible accident."
"Yes, but he at once saw the bright side of it."
"A damage suit?"
"No. He said he wouldn't be troubled with corns."

On the Table.

"I understand you are a good judge of chickens."
"Yes; I rather pride myself on it."
"What do you think of that flock yonder?"
"Cook a couple of them and I will be pleased to render an expert opinion."

That's All.

When skies are gray
And joy's away
And sorrows by you sit,
When grim despair
And carking care
Your presence never quit,
When hot and cold
Your head you hold
Don't let your courage drip,
But buck up strong
And jog along—
You've only got the grip.

Either Will Do It.

"I have some corking laugh producers here."
"Which?"
"What do you mean?"
"Real jokes or real money?"

How He Knew.

"Do you believe in phrenology?"
"There is nothing in it."
"How do you know? The professor must have been feeling of your head."

ECONOMY IN ITALY.

The Roman Season the Only Time When Real Luxury is the Rule.

During the greater part of the year we have only the servants that are necessary—my husband's valet, one butler, the porter who stands at the entrance to the palace and a general utility country boy who in the afternoon puts on a livery and acts as footman. The women servants are a cook, a scullery maid, a laundress and two maids besides my own personal one. This list is not as extravagant as the same would be in America.

Wages are nothing by comparison. One can get a good lady's maid for $10 a month, a competent butler for $10, a cook for $10, a chambermaid for $6. Their fare would seem coarse to the spoiled servant of America, consisting, as it does, chiefly of bread, soup, macaroni and fruit, with tea and coffee of an inferior grade and fresh meat once a week. We spend nothing that we can possibly help until the Roman season. Then we have enough surplus to get an additional number of maids and a long row of footmen (these for the most part young women and men from the village of our own estate), and both in our country villa and in our Roman palace we open all the rooms that for eight months have been closed and for four months live in luxury.—An Expatriate in Everybody's Magazine.

The most ancient encyclopedia extant is Pliuy's "Natural History," in thirty-seven books and 2,493 chapters, treating of cosmography, astronomy, meteorology, geography, geology, botany, medicine, the arts and pretty nearly every other department of human thought known at the time. Pliuy, who died 79 A. D., collected his work in his leisure intervals while engaged in public affairs. The work was a very high authority in the middle ages.
