HOW TAFT HEARD THE NEWS

Washington, July 19.—"Words do not find themselves at a time like this. I do not deny that I am very happy."
This was the response of Secretary William H. Taft to a request for an expression of his views of his nomination for the presidency. The sentence did not come easily. Throughout the afternoon preceding the announcement of the nomination the Secretary had been laboring under suppressed nervous tension. The atmosphere of his office was electric with excitement.

Throughout the afternoon his private office and the office of his private secretary, Mr. Frederick Carpenter, were thronged with members of his family, intimate, personal and official friends and newspaper men.

Shortly before 12 o'clock Mrs. Taft arrived at the War Department. She scanned carefully the bulletins which had been received from the convention and distinctly manifested her pleasure at the result of the action of the convention regarding the platform. She is a close and accurate observer of things political, and is one of the best advisers the Secretary has had throughout the preliminary campaign for the presidential nomination.

Mrs. Taft remained in the Secretary's private office throughout the afternoon. She was attired in a becoming suit of pure white and wore a big picture hat of pea green straw, adorned with seal brown and pale green ostrich plumes.

Accompanying her was the young son of the Secretary and Mrs. Taft—little Charlie—whose special function it was to carry the bulletins received from the convention to the secretary's desk. He was the busiest person in the War Department. While awaiting the coming of the bulletins, he stood at the desk of the telegraph operator listening anxiously at the fateful ticking of the instrument. He wore a suit of khaki knickerbockers, with a blue and white striped waist. As each bulletin came from the operator's typewriter, he scanned it quickly, and rushed with it into his father's office. It was to Mrs. Taft ordinarily that he presented the bulletins rather than to Secretary Taft, and he listened while his mamma read the bulletins to the secretary's assembled guests.

Shortly after 4 o'clock—before the nominating speeches of the presidential candidates had been concluded—Miss Helen Herron Taft, the secretary's daughter, joined the group in Mr. Taft's private office. The secretary laughingly explained that she probably would have been there sooner if she had not been too nervous to withstand the strain. Miss Taft was inclined to resent this comment, but it was apparent that she was infected with "nerves" as were all others in the office.

One of the bulletins received from the convention indicated that a speaker, while nominating a candidate, had been greeted with jeers. When Secretary Taft read it he frowned.

"I am compassionate," said he, looking out of the window of his office, "toward anyone who goes through a nominating experience in a convention."

The remark of the Secretary was a sidelight on the man. He knew what it meant to pass through so gruelling an experience as a campaign for a presidential nomination.

Secretary Taft had arranged to visit the War College with Secretary Root at 5 o'clock, but at the last moment he naturally concluded to await the result of the ballot which was about to be taken in Chicago. By this time the situation in the Secretary's office had become tense. The door, between the Secretary's private office and Secretary Carpenter's office was thrown wide open. In the former stood Secretary Taft, surrounded by members of his family and personal and political friends.

TAFT IS TOLERANT

Washington, June 19.—The fact that Secretary Taft is a Unitarian has been printed, but in order to make it official a statement was given out at the White House recently. The statement adds that Mr. Taft also frequently attends the Episcopal church of which his wife is a member, and that at his summer home in Murray Bay, Canada, he has taken great interest in the Presbyterian church.

Friends of the Secretary also pointed out after the statement had been issued that his action in the Philippines friars' land cases had shown his friendship for the Catholics, and one especially close to Secretary Taft said he had often heard him speak highly of the Methodists.

As a boy in Cincinnati Mr. Taft sometimes attended the German Lutheran Sunday school with his playmates, and among his most valued advisers are several Baptists of prominence.

On more than one occasion the Secretary has accompanied President Roosevelt to the Dutch Reformed church in Washington.

It might be added that Mr. Taft has attended weddings and funerals in the churches of practically all of the various religious denominations.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN DOCTOR

The average man cannot afford to employ a physician for every slight ailment or injury that may occur in his family, nor can he afford to neglect them, as so slight an injury as the scratch of a pin has been known to cause the loss of a limb. Hence every man must from necessity be his own doctor for this class of ailments. Success often depends upon prompt treatment, which can only be had, when suitable medicines are kept at hand. Chamberlain's remedies have been in the market for many years and enjoy a good reputation.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for cough.

Chamberlain's Salve for diseases of the skin.
