BRYAN'S LITTLE BROTHER

Says that Preparations are Already Being Made to Suspend the Commoner When the Peerless One Moves to White House

New York, July 10.—A Denver dispatch to the World says: One of the very serious men of the convention is Charles W. Bryan, of Lincoln, Neb. He is publisher of the Commoner and a brother of the candidate. He is a small, bustling, but silent man, who does not look one bit like his brother.

How does he look? Just like a man from Nebraska. He does not claim to be a "mouthpiece."

Most of the men who come from Nebraska and who have known Bryan more than two years show up here as mouthpieces. In fact, in recent conventions, mouthpieces are to the conventions what keynote speeches used to be. Now, a keynote blast is given out in proof slips several days before it is sounded, and so far as the convention crowd goes, it is as lifeless and tasteless as cannot corn compared with corn on the cob. But Mr. Bryan is not even a mouthpiece. He even looks embarrassed when introduced as the brother of the candidate. He says he is the publisher of the Commoner and his visit to the convention has almost nothing to do with public affairs.

"If your brother is elected president you can be secretary of circulation," suggested one wag. And this makes Mr. Bryan very sad. "For," says he, in explanation, "if my brother is elected president of these United States the Commoner will be stopped when he goes to the White House. We are already making provision for that."

A certain amount of money is being set aside to create a fund which will reimburse patrons for unexpired subscriptions.

"Jim" Dahllman, Mr. Bryan's spokesman, expressed his view of the vice presidential situation yesterday when he said to Charles W. Bryan, the candidate's brother, who he was installing as manager of the Nebraska headquarters:

"Now, Charlie, there is only one thing which you must do every day. You must trot out one vice presidential candidate in the morning for the afternoon papers and one in the evening for the morning papers. Other things will take care of themselves, but this vice presidential business will require thought and ingenuity."

Charles W. Bryan is no joker. He looked pained at these instructions and stammered that he did not feel like taking the responsibility.

"Never mind the responsibility," said "Cowboy Jim" emphatically. "The only thing is to be sure to spell the candidate's name right. Did you hear why they are punning John W. Kern, of Indiana, for vice president? It's because he has been beaten twice for governor. It's what they call an adaptation of the hunter's name."

"I have heard Mr. Littleton, of New York, spoken of very favorably in Lincoln," said Mr. Bryan.

"That would be all right but for one thing," said Dahllman. "He was listed yesterday. He's all right. W. J. is very fond of him. Always tack that on to any suggestion. No idea goes unless you put that on."

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

1860—Born, Salem, Ill., March 19.

1881—Graduated, Illinois College, at Jacksonville, as valedictorian.

1882—Graduated, Union College of Law, Chicago, and began practice of law at Jacksonville, Ill.

1884—Married Mary E. Baird, at Perry, Ill., October 1.

1887—Opened law office in Lincoln, Neb.

1891—Elected to Congress from first Nebraska district.

1893—Received the democratic vote for United States senator in the Nebraska legislature.

1894—Nominated in convention for democratic candidate for the United States senate, but defeated.

1895—Became editor of the Omaha World-Herald.

1896—Delegate to Democratic National Convention, wrote silver plank, made notable speech and was nominated for president; in election received 176 electoral votes against 271 for McKinley.

1897—Began career as public lecturer which he has since continued, and through which he has amassed a small fortune.

1900—Again became the democratic nominee for president on platform of anti-imperialism; received 155 electoral votes against 292 for McKinley.

1901—Established a weekly political periodical and identified himself with the chauntiqua platform work.

1902—Gave his support to the democratic national ticket, headed by A. B. Parker for president.

1906—Made extensive tour of the world and on his return to New York, August 30, was given a great popular ovation.

1908—Nominated by Democratic National Convention in Denver July 9th, as candidate for president.

THE PLATFORM

Denver, July 10.—The platform recommended by the sub-committee to the full committee is, in part, contained in the following planks:

Economy of administration—We denounce the heedless waste of the people's money as no less than a crime.

Tariff—We welcome the belated promise of tariff reform by the republican party as a recognition of the righteousness of the democratic position and ask for a general reduction of schedules.

Misuse of patronage—We condemn the chief executive for the use of patronage to secure the nomination of one of his cabinet.

Income tax—We favor the income tax as a part of our revenue system and urge the submission of a constitutional amendment specifically authorizing Congress to levy such a tax.

Popular election of senators—We favor their election by direct vote.

Statehood—The democratic party has labored for the admission of Arizona and New Mexico as separate states and recognizes that each possesses qualifications to maintain successful state governments.

Merchant marine—We believe in upholding the merchant marine without additional burdens on the people or bounty on the treasury.

Asiatic immigration—We favor the full protection of the national and state governments of foreign residents in the United States but are opposed to the admission of Asiatic immigrants who cannot be amalgamated with our population.

Other planks include: Approval of anti-pass and anti-rebate laws; prohibition of corporation campaign contributions; enlargement of powers of Interstate Commerce Commission; postal savings banks; adjustment of disputes between capital and labor; employees' liability bill; place wood pulp on free list; anti-injunction; reduction of tariff on trust-made goods; denunciation of Vreeland bill; adoption of system to protect public from watered stocks; extermination of trusts.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by all druggists. See The Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

BRYAN CUT A MELON

He Was Greatly Pleased by the News of the Immense Enthusiasm His Name Evoked

Fair View, Lincoln, Neb., July 10.—"The democrats have been very good to me, and I can find no words to express my deep appreciation of confidence and good will which the demonstration indicates."

It was with these words that W. J. Bryan yesterday afternoon, speaking to a number of newspaper men, acknowledged the remarkable demonstration given him by the delegates to the Democratic National Committee. That Mr. Bryan was deeply affected by the outburst was apparent in the gravity with which he uttered the sentiment quoted. The delicious homage of one hour and twenty-six minutes was pictured in crisp telegrams received at Fair View and the thrill of it showed in flashes in the eyes of the man to whom it was paid.

When the demonstration began Mr. Bryan, a dozen newspaper men, Robert E. Rose, Bryan's secretary, and the telegraph operator on the bulletin wire occupied the sun room, as the glass-enclosed porch is called. Five minutes, ten minutes passed, with the wire clicking off details of the scene. The candidate in his alpaca coat and vest, smiled at the news, but left comments to his visitors. To a question, Mr. Bryan said: "You credit me with too much influence with the convention."

"You wouldn't think so if you were there," exclaimed Mr. Arthur English, a West Virginian, friend of the Nebraskan, who had just returned from Denver.

In his office, in another part of the house, a second wire, removed from public gaze, transacted such business as Mr. Bryan had with the delegates. This wire occupied much of his attention and during most of the period of the demonstration he spent his time there with Mrs. Bryan and his daughter Grace, both of whom followed the rapidly arriving bulletins with keen interest.

It was Secretary Rose's busy day, for he was constantly occupied in carrying the telegrams to his chief.

An hour passed and Mr. Bryan reappeared in the sun room. In his most solemn tones he started as if to make an important announcement, but concluded with an invitation for the entire party to adjourn to the shady side of the house and indulge in the destruction of the mighty watermelon which reached him yesterday, a gift from San Antonio, Texas.

"I cannot speak in all this noise," he said, sweeping his arm in the general direction of the turbulence at Denver. "Let us now participate in a watermelon." Mr. Bryan officiated in dissecting the Texas prodigy and for a time politics was forgotten in favor of the refreshments.

It was as the reporters were about to leave that Mr. Bryan formally and voluntarily commented on the remarkable tribute that had been presented him. The last slice of watermelon had just been consumed by Judge Charles Guy of New York, a late arrival, when a telegraphic bulletin announcing that the demonstration had subsided was received. That its tremendous force and remarkable duration had stirred the veteran candidate in every fibre was apparent as he spoke. He thought deeply for a moment after finishing the statement already quoted, apparently on the verge of saying more, but turned and entered the house without further words.

The merits of the Texas Wonder, you would never suffer from kidney, bladder or rheumatic trouble. $1 bottle two months' treatment. Sold by druggists or by mail. Send for testimonials. Dr. E. W. Hall, 2226 Olive street, St. Louis, Missouri.

Odesa, July 9.—Rioting, bloodshed, merciless slaughter of the people by Cossacks and soldiers, broke out at Tabriz yesterday. A frightful total in the death list is expected as a result. The food famine was the cause of the outbreak. Mob of starving people, crying for food, gathered in the streets. The soldiers, apparently unable to understand that it was not a revolutionary outbreak, charged them, women and children being killed with the men.

NINETY OR NOTHING

Peary and His Party Pledge Themselves to Reach the North Pole or Perish

Oyster Bay, July 10.—"Oh, my! what a fine ship," remarked President Roosevelt as he approached the Arctic steamer lying at anchor near the president's yacht Sylph in Oyster Bay harbor yesterday afternoon. Commander Robert E. Peary, U. S. N. who was at his side, thanked him for the compliment.

It was shortly after 2 o'clock when the Sylph's launch Glenn steamed around the stern and along the port side of the Roosevelt. On board the little craft were the president and Mrs. Roosevelt, Commander and Mrs. Peary, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Roosevelt, Quentin Roosevelt, the president's youngest son, several guests, and Lieut. Commander Roger Williams of the Sylph. President Roosevelt, dressed in a white duck suit, was the first to scramble up the Roosevelt's ladder. Then came Commander Peary. They assisted the ladies on board at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and Capt. Bartlett dressed ship in honor of the visit of the president.

Capt. Bartlett of the Roosevelt and Herbert L. Friedman, secretary of the Peary Arctic Club, received them on board. In another launch came the president's sons, Theodore, Jr., and Archie, accompanied by several boys. The Roosevelt had arrived in the harbor at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and Capt. Bartlett dressed ship in honor of the visit of the president.

Capt. Bartlett made apologies to the president for the appearance of the Roosevelt, saying she did not quite come up to the standard of the United States navy.

"Don't care what she looks like, captain," replied Mr. Roosevelt. "It's what she does."

The president insisted on going down the ladder into the engine room and seeing everything that was to be seen. When he came up he was wiping perspiration from his brow, but seemed to be enjoying himself, nevertheless. Climbing up on the forecastle deck, the president found the crew of the Roosevelt lined up. He was introduced to each individually. As he grasped successively the hands of the sailors, he said something different to each. "I'm glad to meet you, and I hope you'll reach the pole," he said to one. "I'm glad to meet you here today. You have a very brave commander," he exclaimed to another as he grasped his powerful hand and shook it vigorously.

Commander Peary said his last good-bye to the president and Mrs.

IN MEMORIAM

A Sonnet Upon the Death of Former President Grover Cleveland

(By Milo Deyo, Poet-Musician)

Droops low Columbia's brow this mournful day,

And stains the tribute tear her grief-pale cheek.

An honored son from earth hath passed away;

A noble soul that sealed Fame's mountain peak.

Hath spread its wings for new and loftier flight.

Hath closed its eyes upon the scenes of time,

And turned its vision towards the towers of light.

Imbued with thoughts and purposes sublime,

Teles mounted to the mighty ear of state,

And guided it, with firm and steady hand,

Athwart the rugged reckonings of Fate—

A patriotic ruler of a patriotic land,

Great deeds endure beyond the funeral pile!

Hartford, June 25, 1908.

THEY COULDN'T MARCH THRO' GEORGIA

Convention Hall, July 10.—In the midst of the riot of noise for Bryan yesterday, and the confusion of the marching delegates and the constant boom of flashlight explosions from the photographers adding to the pandemonium, the standard bearer finally invaded the galleries, Maine and Alabama leading the climb to the second tier.

The band kept up a continual flow of music, which finally started all the delegates to singing. The band worked without cessation and whenever it struck up anything which the chorus crowd was able to follow they yelled the words of the air with wild enthusiasm.

Delegates descended up and down in the aisles to the music of "A Hot Time" and shouted the chorus of "Marching Through Georgia." While the latter air was rising through the hall a determined assault was made by the frenzied Bryan supporters on the Georgia standard, which up to this time had been hoisted from a stand in its place. The delegation showed in quick fashion that it was as dangerous as "March Through Georgia" as ever it had been in the days of the war. They rallied around their little yellow flagpole bearing the name of their state on white and black ground of blue and struck staunchly to their guardianship. It was the only Southern standard that remained unrooted and where it was planted it stayed.

The Doctor Away from Home When Most Needed

People are often very much disappointed to find that the physician is away from home when they most need his services. Diseases like cramp colic and cholera morbus require prompt treatment, and if in many instances prevent fatal before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. The right way is to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. No physician can prescribe a better medicine for these diseases. By having it in the house you escape much pain and suffering and all risk. Buy it now; it may save life. For sale by all druggists.

CAPTURED BY CASTELLANE

Count Boni Carried Off His Children While His Ex-Wife Was Absent

Paris, July 10.—Count Boni de Castellane has opened what promises to be a sensational legal battle for the possession of his three children, the offspring of his marriage with Miss Anna Gould.

Several days ago the count secured possession of the children and has held them ever since. The court decree allowed him to see them at stipulated times, but he went in an automobile and carried them to the home of his mother.

Roosevelt as they were about to go over the side into the launch. The president shook hands with the explorer saying that hunting the pole was a good sport.

"Inasmuch as I can not go along with you myself," said the president, "all I can do is to wish that all good luck may go with you. I feel confident that you will get there this time if it is possible to do so; if you don't, do the best you can. Good-bye."

Capt. Bartlett, shaking hands with the president and bidding him farewell, said: "It's ninety or nothing; the North Pole or bust this time, Mr. President."

The president laughed and cried out to Capt. Bartlett and his men: "Good-bye, captain; good-bye boys; good luck to you all. I believe you'll get there this time."

The Roosevelt weighed anchor at 5:30 and steamed out of the harbor. She will stop at New Bedford, Mass., and then proceed to Sydney, C. E., where Commander Peary will rejoin the ship.
