Keep the Kitchen Cool

Why swelter over a glowing range in a stuffy kitchen, when a new Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove will do the family cooking without raising the temperature enough to be noticeable?

By putting a "New Perfection" in and allowing the range fire to go out, you may make this summer's kitchen work not only bearable, but actually a pleasure. The

AN ARCHAEOLOGICAL FIND.

(Original.)
There is probably no civilized city in the world where in the past there has been so much plot and counter plot as in Paris.

Recently a workman engaged in razing a house in the Faubourg St. Germain on removing a square stone exposed the crown of a human head. As stone after stone was displaced a skeleton, dressed in the fashion of the time of Louis XII., was uncovered. The space in which it stood was just large enough to hold it. One side, opening into a large chamber, formed the door to the compartment, being a tall, narrow mirror, at the bottom of which were two wooden drawers flanked by candelabra, mirror, drawers and all moving together when the door swung. The architect at once sent information of the find to the Academy of History, and M. Andre Brousseau, the secretary, was dispatched to examine the skeleton. Brousseau was astonished to find that, though dressed as a man, the frame was that of a woman. The discovery filled out the missing links to a mystery of the time of Cardinal Richelieu that Brousseau had been long trying to solve.

In Richelieu's day dueling became so prevalent in France that the cardinal made it an offense punishable with death. Jules Beauchemin and Gaston Arnot, disregarding the edict, arranged to settle a dispute with rapier. Beauchemin was a noted fencer, who had often killed his man. Arnot was little more than a boy. Nevertheless Beauchemin was left dead on the field. The cardinal's spies, who had got wind of the matter, arrived on the ground only in time to see Arnot jump on a horse and leave the spot at a gallop. Running after him on foot, one of them seized a horse by the way and followed him to the door of his home. As soon as they could gain admittance they entered and searched the house. The young man was not to be found. There was no one there but servants, one of whom, being threatened, confessed that she had seen her master run hurriedly upstairs and into his room. The cardinal's spy spent an hour vainly endeavoring to corner his man. What puzzled him was that there was no egress from the rear that he considered possible. Concluding that Arnot had got away by some hidden passage, the entrance to which was only to be found by one who knew the secret, he went to the cardinal and reported the facts. The same day a notice was posted in the streets of Paris offering a reward for Gaston Arnot, but the duelist was never taken nor was he ever again seen in France, though mysterious reports occasionally got out that he was serving with the army on the frontier.

Now, all this was a matter of history with which the secretary of the academy had been familiar. If the skeleton found had been that of a man, a solution of the problem as to what had become of Gaston Arnot would have been found. As it was, the find only added to the mystery, for what was a woman doing in this secret space in the garb of a man? As to the house having been occupied by the Arnot family, that was uncertain. However, the riddle was solved by a bit of paper found in the pocket of the doublet worn by the skeleton.

The story completed was in this wise: Jules Beauchemin was a suitor for the hand of Henrietta, aged twenty-four, sister of Gaston Arnot. She detested and refused him. Beauchemin not being able to take revenge upon a woman, while at cards one evening with Gaston, a boy of nineteen, deliberately accused him of cheating. This was tantamount to killing him, for Gaston, notwithstanding the cardinal's edict, could not live in Paris without having resented such an imputation, and Beauchemin always killed his man.

Henrietta Arnot learned of this intended assassination of her brother. Inviting Gaston to drive with her, she took him to a farm belonging to her family on which lived a couple who were devoted to her. Gaston was inveigled into a room from which there was no egress, locked in and left in charge of the couple. In the early morning the sister, dressed in her brother's clothes, appeared on the dueling grounds. Just as the principals were about to take their places Henrietta paused, lifted some gauze from her face and said:

"M. Beauchemin, I am Henrietta Arnot. This quarrel is with me, not with my brother. I desire before we fight that you sign this paper, exonerating him from the charge you made against him."

Beauchemin, astonished, took the paper, signed it without reading it and handed it back to Henrietta. Then he threw down his sword.

"En garde!" cried the girl fiercely. Beauchemin refused. Henrietta made a pass at him which, had he not nimbly stepped aside, would have killed him. He took up his sword, intending simply to parry her thrusts. This he did successfully for some time, when either his foot slipped or he became unnerfed, for he received a thrust through the body.

It was Henrietta who was chased and who shut herself up in the secret closet. But whether she died from suffocation or because she could not open the door can never be known. It was supposed at the time of the duel that she had fled with her brother, Gaston.

Gaston's keepers, hearing that a price was set on his head, set him free and told him to flee from the cardinal's wrath. He never knew that his sister had saved him and died in consequence. SULLIVAN KING.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

A man is not saved by knowledge, but by the little of it he applies to life.—Rev. Frank Crane, Congregationalist, Worcester, Mass.

Divinity in Humanity.

It is because we have always considered ourselves weak creatures that we have nearly lost sight of divinity in humanity.—Rev. J. H. Taylor, Independent, Cleveland, O.

Quite as Vital.

The study of the labor question by the church is just as vital to the well being of society as the study of missions and the temperance problem.—Rev. Edwin H. Deik, Lutheran, Philadelphia.

Ideal in Cities.

The ideal city where God dwells is a city where boys and girls play in the streets in safety and where the aged shall walk in safety, for there is none to harm them.—Rev. C. F. Stevens, Christian Church, Spokane, Wash.

Divine Endowment.

All of us need constantly to be reminded that our bodies are given us by a wise Providence, who expects us to value them as a divine endowment and to use them for the highest ends.—Rev. Dr. Bowser, Unitarian, Atlanta, Ga.

Glimpse of the Soul.

It is beyond the possibility that as a further proof of the truth of God's word we may some day be admitted into a dark room and there, with the searching power of a yet undiscovered ray of light, be shown that wonderful life which dwells within us, the soul.—Rev. W. A. Bartlett, Congregationalist, Chicago.

Effect of Habit.

When the habit is a good one it helps us and tends to virtue, but when it is bad it makes it easier to do wrong again, until at length the habit hardens into vice, whose current ever after tends to sweep the soul downward to lower plains of living, from which the return to the heights of noble character will be very difficult if not impossible.—Rev. Dr. Bowser, Unitarian, Atlanta, Ga.

A Real Man.

Keep under the heart, the affections and the temper. The heart feels the engines of the soul and is the nursing fire that moves it to deeds. A real man will be master of his thoughts, feelings and desires. That the world does not see them does not concern him. He sees them, and he will not tolerate that which is not clean, just and noble.—Rev. J. B. Remensnyder, Lutheran, New York.

What Gives Life Its Value.

It isn't gold that gives a man's life its value, nor political success, nor social standing, nor culture nor learning. It is none of these, valuable as they may be in their places. It is nothing less than that which the very poorest and most ignorant and most despised may possess, be his soul in tune with the music of heaven. It is the character that sits at the feet of Deity and learns of him. There are untrodden paths ahead of you, but you need not be afraid of them. Look not lingeringly upon the gate that opens up to you, but let it last as long as you can. Rev. Dr. George Thomas Dowling, Episcopalian, Brooklyn.

Sheriff Marion County, Fla.

Sheridan's Tricks.
A horse dealer having refused to give "Sherry" further credit, the wit wrote asking that the dealer's wife should bring the carriage and get the money. Sheridan's footman induced her to sit down to a delicate lunch, and while she was eating it "Sherry" slipped into the carriage and drove off. Again he ordered two pairs of boots from two reluctant makers. When they were brought he sent each maker away to stretch one of his boots. Then he put on the remaining two and took a trip to the country.
