YANCEY-MATHEWS

The marriage this morning of Miss Annie Mathews to Dr. George Earl Yancey, of San Paulo, Brazil, in Grace Episcopal church, was one of the most beautiful and impressive ceremonies ever seen in that holy temple of worship. While the congregation, filling every seat in the church, was admiring the simplicity and beauty of the floral decorations, beautiful bouquets of roses between the candles on the altar, trailing vines, ferns and flowers flanking each side of the altar, Mrs. John Taylor sang in a sweet voice, "All for Thee," accompanied on the pipe organ by Prof. Pike and on the violin by Miss Connor. This was followed by the bridal march from Lohengrin and as the bridal attendants approached the altar to the joyous notes of Mendelssohn's wedding march, the following was the order of the procession: The groomsmen and bridesmaids alternating up the side aisles, first Mr. James Taylor and Miss Bettie McIver, Miss Helen Brown, Mr. Goodlow Yancey, brother of the groom, Mr. Frank Mathews, brother of the bride, Miss Melton, Miss Caro Liddon, Mr. John Mathews, Emily Askew, Savannah, Mr. Alfred Beck, Miss Minnie Hendon and Mr. Harry Palmer, of Inverness, who, as they approached the altar, passed respectively to the right and left of the altar, while Mrs. John H. Mathews, of Candler, matron of honor, followed up the center aisle and took position to the right of the altar. In the wake of Mrs. Mathews came Miss Annie Mixson, who as maid of honor, took position on the left of the altar, when Mr. Robert Mathews, brother of the bride and with the fair bride leaning on his arm, approached the altar, where the groom, Dr. Yancey, approaching from the rector's room, with his best man, Mr. Hervey Yancey, brother of the groom, met his affianced at the altar. Rev. G. H. Harrison, rector of Grace Episcopal church, performed the marriage ceremony, using the beautiful ring service of the Episcopal church, which words he spoke with fervid and impressive eloquence. Mr. Robert Mathews gave away his sister, the bride.

The ceremony ended to the lofty strains of hymeneal notes, the bride and groom led the way out, followed by the groomsmen and bridesmaids in the same order that they came in, taking carriages to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mathews, where the attendants to the marriage with groom and bride partook of an elegant dinner, while the large and delighted congregation tarried to comment on the beauty of the occasion and wishing the happy couple all manner of delightfully pleasant things in life.

The bridesmaids were dressed in white with gloves, shoes and parasols to match, and their heads were covered with sailor hats. The groomsmen wore black. The petite and charming bride was gowned in Copenhagen blue, with hat, gloves and shoes to match. After dinner the bridal party took the S. A. L. train for New Orleans. Their trip will include a voyage up the Mississippi river by boat to St. Louis and then across the plains to the snow-clad mountains of Colorado and after a month spent among its cool atmosphere, picturesque and grand scenery, will return to Jacksonville, where Dr. Yancey will locate and practice his profession, of dentistry.

The wedding of Dr. Yancey to Miss Mathews consummates a courtship that has extended from childhood to maturity, having always been lovers and through all these years with time and space separating them, their hearts were longing and their minds constant in the affection that first came to them in their youth. They now are one in devotion and the words spoken by the minister, man and wife. Extended comment is not needed in this notice. The fair bride has lived all her days in Ocala, where she has grown up in the esteem and love of all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance and, how could it be otherwise, with her sweet disposition, the radiance of which was expressed in her happy smiles and gracious presence and words of greeting she ever had for all who approached her. Miss Mathews as a young lady was ever a prime favorite with the people of the Brick City and there is no reason that she should be otherwise as a bride and wife than what she has been in maidenhood.

The groom is a young dentist of successful prominence whom it is a pleasure to meet. The Star extends its hearty greetings and congratulations and trusts the step taken today may never be regretted, but be one of many blessings through life's journey.

WILLIAM MARK McDOWELL

Resolutions of respect touching the late Wm. M. McDowell, ruling elder in the First Presbyterian church, Ocala, Fla., passed by the session of the church:

Whereas, God in his inscrutable and unerring providence has seen fit to remove from the sphere of his earthly existence, from the membership of our church and from a seat on the bench of its elders, our friend and brother, William Mark McDowell, we, his surviving brethren and colleagues in office, would hereby record our great sorrow for the loss we have sustained by his death; and gratefully make mention of our indebtedness to him for his exemplary life among us, his wise counsels in our conferences with him, and his generous gifts in support of the gospel among us. We also, hereby, record our high esteem of him, as a brother, beloved, whose presence, both in the congregation of God's people, in the sanctuary and in the meetings of the session and other offices of the church will be greatly missed.

We also hereby extend to the family of our deceased brother our tenderest sympathy and commend them to the gracious compassion of our heavenly Lord and Savior.

And we further direct that a page of our record be dedicated to his memory; this memorial inscribed in our book, a copy of it sent to the family of the deceased, and that it be published in our city papers, and signed by members of the session.

The Doctor Away from Home When Most Needed

People are often very much disappointed to find their family physician is away from home when they most need his services. Diseases like cramp colic and cholera morbus require prompt treatment, and have in many instances proven fatal before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. The right way is to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. No physician can prescribe a better medicine for these diseases. By having it in the house you escape much pain and suffering and all risk. Buy it now; it may save life. For sale by all druggists.

Words of Praise

For the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed, as given by leaders in all the several schools of medicine, should have far more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has THE BADGE OF HONESTY on every bottle-wrapper, in a full list of all its ingredients printed in plain English.

If you are an invalid woman and suffer from frequent headache, backache, gnawing distress in stomach, periodical pains, disagreeable catarrhal, pelvic drain, dragging-down distress in lower abdomen or pelvis, perhaps dark spots or specks dancing before the eyes, faint spells and kindred symptoms caused by female weakness, or other derangement of the feminine organs, you can not do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The hospital, surgeon's knife and operating table may be avoided by the timely use of "Favorite Prescription" in such cases. Thereby the obnoxious examinations and legal treatments of the family physician can be avoided and a thorough course of successful treatment carried out in the privacy of the home. "Favorite Prescription" is composed of the very best native medicinal roots known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments, contains no alcohol and no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Do not expect too much from "Favorite Prescription;" it will not perform miracles; it will not dissolve or cure tumors. No medicine will. It will do as much to establish vigorous health in most weaknesses and ailments peculiarly incident to women as any medicine can. It must be given a fair chance by perseverance in its use for a reasonable length of time.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this remedy of known composition.

OUR WEEKLY NEW YORK LETTER.

Summer Footwear Picturesque and Frivolous—Undying Vogue of the Serge Suit—Cretonne Sure to be Popular till Fall—Touches That Distinguish the New Sleeves.

BY MONS. GENE DE PONTAC.

American women are known the world over for the smallness of their feet and the trimness of their footwear, and though this reputation is in the main deserved the question of appropriateness is a rock over which they frequently stumble. Colored suede shoes with high French heels are effective with costumes of the same shade, but should never be seen on the street. Black shoes with cloth of different colors are never in good taste—in fact, anything that attracts attention violently to the feet is taboo.

The heavy mannish walking-shoe has almost entirely disappeared for the time being, and women are wearing low-cut, frivolous affairs adorned with buckles, small and large, gold or silver, set with jewels or made of brass. Silver buckles, however,— the handsomer the better—are "the thing." Ties are cut very low and have a wide ribbon bow or buckle, and shoes made with a seam down the centre and fastened with three narrow straps and buckles are a novelty of the season. There is a fancy for wearing navy blue stockings with tan shoes, and tan shoes and hose are eminently suitable for street or country wear, with tailor-made gowns or morning frocks—but not with anything in the least formal. A new color in buckskin and suede shoes matches the yellow chamouis glove, and gloves and shoes of this shade worn with white linen gowns in the country are rather effective.

The white serge suits holds this season its well-kept unvarying popularity. Blouse and skirt suits of white serge are smarter than coat and skirt, but the latter are rather more practical and are fully as much worn. A new mode is to have the coat lined with white silk, the skirt unlined and worn over a colored petticoat, the tone of which is reproduced in hat, parasol, stockings and belt.

Blue serge cannot be improved upon for serviceable coat and skirt suits, for the country, for town or for travelling. It is a French idea to wear a dark blue serge coat with a white serge skirt, and this is particularly pretty for the seaside. A dark blue fold is usually placed above the hem on the white skirt. In some of the prettiest models the coat shows Directoire tendencies with facings and buttons of dark blue Liberty and a soft sash girdle of the dark blue. Blue serge also makes most useful capes for seashore and mountain use, unlined or lined with black or colored satin, and with a touch of gold, perhaps, in buttons or clasps.

Cretonne in spite of the short reign predicted for it, seems likely to sustain its popularity through the summer, at least—one reason, perhaps, being that the really desirable cretonnes are anything but cheap, and the cheap imitations look so unlike the originals that they are not in the least deceptive. The cream or white ground flowered in soft colors and relieved by little black is the usual choice for coats, and some very good Delft effects have been seen, entirely in blue and white combined either white, plain blue or plain white. In millinery the best use of cretonne is in the form of a white scarf drawn around a picturequely shaped hat of white chip or Panama. A cretonne crown is sometimes combined with a wide straw brim or vice versa.

A new touch for sleeves is to face the edge for a couple of inches with some vivid contrasting color, and then fold it back, catching it into place with a button and loop of silk cord. The ruffled sleeve is still in evidence, but it is a different ruffled sleeve; the foundation is almost tight and quite straight; the ruffles are scant and rather deep instead of full and narrow. The newer sleeve for under-jumper wear is almost straight, has only one seam, fits not at all, is cut off just below the elbow and may be trimmed about the lower edge or not.
