FAKLER'S TALE OF WOE

The Star is in receipt of a book entitled "The Ups and Downs of a Country Editor: Mostly Downs," by S. A. Fackler. The book was published by John Collins' print shop, Tallahassee. In this volume of 103 pages Sam A. Fackler, without question a born newspaper man and in his sane, sober moments a genuine hustler, which was the name under which he published a number of papers in Georgia, Alabama and Florida, but his last venture at Wildwood was the News.

Sam Fackler was a genius is his way and nature certainly endowed him with genius to work and to write, to hustle and to succeed, while he remained sober, which was generally long enough to get on his feet, when the tempter he could not resist, whiskey, beset him and undone him. He speaks of this as his worst enemy and that of the human race.

The book is entertainingly and amusingly written. It is the plain and unvarnished story of a country printer's life, with a penchant for roaming. The book has several illustrations, vitalizing the most conspicuous events in the author's editorial career. The cover has an illustration of Sam Fackler when he was flush and again when he was downed by the demon drink. The book had a picture of Hon. John High, of Baker's Hills, Fla., who gave Fackler the money to have his book printed. Another of the Georgia candidate who invaded his office and did up the fighting man of the shop, but Fackler got there in time to do up the candidate, who begged for mercy, paid for the wreckage of the print shop and was Fackler's best friend ever afterwards.

Another cut is of his landlady, Mrs. Murphy, who never permitted a hobo printer to beat her out of a board bill. Another cut is of the haunted house at Williston, which Fackler occupied and the last illustration is one showing Fackler and his two little sons tramping it over the red hills of Georgia in quest of work. The short autobiography shows man's efficiency and man's downfall when up against a temptation he cannot overcome. Nearly everybody in this section knew the editor to be one of the most genial and entertaining men you could meet in a week's travel, but a sorry picture when in the gutter.

Fackler with his genius for work and talent for hustling should have made himself a competency to be envied could he have had the willpower to leave drink alone, but the vile monster had its fangs in his soul and periodically he no more can resist taking a drink than he can fly. He deserves our sympathy and he has it, and we only remember the genial, jovial Sam Fackler who has written a thousand things in his papers that gave pleasure and lasted a lifetime to those who read them. We hope that his book may have a big sale. Mr. Fackler is now located at Jasper.

The Star takes great pleasure in reproducing Mr. Z. C. Chambliss' letter to the Banner, giving his impressions of the experiment station connected with the University of Florida, at Gainesville, and the profitable work it is doing for the producer of the state. We know this institution of learning and experiment station costs the people of Florida a great deal of money, but if the intelligent producers will read, digest and utilize the result of experiments made, they not only personally will be the gainers, but the people of the state as a whole will reap dollars where it costs cents to secure this information. This work the world over is recognized as the greatest help that can be given the producers of fruits, grains and stock and he who is wise will heed the results of experiments made at Gainesville. If the people most interested do not improve these opportunities it is their fault if they suffer thereby and there is no excuse but ignorance if they heed the demagogue who goes out on the stump and tells the people they are being robbed by the wasteful and useless efforts made along the lines suggested for the betterment of the conditions of those whose material interests lie along the lines named in Mr. Chambliss' letter. You should not fail to read it.

Mr. M. M. Little, the popular shoe salesman at Rheinauer & Company's store, returned home Sunday from his vacation, which he spent at Rabun Gap, Ga., with his family. Mr. Little had a splendid outing and says when it comes to a delightful mountain resort where you can get ice cold spring water without the use of ice, the Gap can't be beat.

Mr. W. J. James, of Marion, Ind., passed through Ocala Monday afternoon en route to St. Petersburg, where he spent several winters and became enamored of the place and purchased property there. He intends to make it his permanent home.

Haywood S. Willis, a young white man, was sentenced by the Hillsboro county criminal court to the penitentiary for five years, Monday, for passing worthless checks. Willis was wanted in this county for the same offense.

Mr. Leonard Dozier, who paid a visit to his son, Dr. J. H. Pittman, in Jacksonville, returned home Monday afternoon bringing with him one of his grandchildren.

Mrs. J. H. Pittman, who has been visiting her son, Dr. J. H. Pittman, in Jacksonville and friends at Gainesville, returned home Monday.

D. W. Tompkins, the liveryman, is making hay in the Kendrick section.

A MATTER OF REGRET

While Mr. and Mrs. Ben Raysor were returning to their home yesterday at Lowell, Mrs. Raysor had occasion to remove her eye glasses and put them in her purse, and in a little while discovered that her pocketbook had slipped off her lap and was lost. They immediately retraced their steps towards Ocala in search of the missing purse, but could find no trace of it. They were told, however, that two negro women were seen to pass down the road soon after they had gone along in their buggy, but no one knew the names of the women. The pocketbook contained the following articles: Three solitaire diamond rings, valued at $250 each, two pair eye glasses, gold chain and locket, with inscription "To Tillie" and several dollars in change. Mr. Raysor offers $100 reward for return of the purse.—Banner.

BRYAN DENIES HE "SOLD OUT"

Fair View, Lincoln, August 13.—The most important happening at Fair View yesterday was the emphatic denial given out by W. J. Bryan to a story printed in Pittsburg, saying that he had "sold out" to the Kerr faction of the Pennsylvania democratic party in order to accomplish the defeat of James M. Guffey for national committeeman. The price alleged to figure in the transaction was $200,000 as a campaign contribution. The charge is said to have been made that Mr. Bryan "made good," but that Mr. Kerr and his supporters had not come forward with the money. Mr. Bryan declared that he had never heard of the offer or agreement, and he suggested that the proper persons to consult were the members of the committee on credentials which decided the Pennsylvania contest. Mr. Bryan would not permit himself to be drawn into a further discussion with James Van Cleave, president of the Manufacturers' Association, who came out in the press today with additional reasons why the business men of the country should not support the democratic national ticket. The decision was based on the fact that Mr. Van Cleave had failed to defend his former contentions, but instead had shifted the discussion to other questions, Mr. Bryan said.

TROUBLE IN TENNESSEE

Knoxville, Tenn., August 13.—At midnight advices received here from the territory adjacent to Jellico, Tenn., are to the effect that a race riot is imminent, and that serious trouble is expected before morning. Seventy negroes, heavily armed, are barricaded in a commissary surrounded by four hundred white men, and an attack is expected at any moment. Sheriff Huddleston, of Campbell county, has just reached the scene, and has deputized every available person to assist in the protection of the negroes, but he is hopelessly outnumbered and predictions are that if one shot is fired many lives will be sacrificed.

MAY HAVE BEEN MISTAKEN

Reasons to Believe that Captain Haines Was Misled by his Brother Into Killing Annis

Winthrop, Mass., Aug. 13.—The discarded wife of Capt. Peter C. Haines, whose alleged confession, he says, drove him to kill William E. Annis Saturday afternoon, will be one of the most important witnesses for the prosecution when her husband and brother-in-law come to trial. The only statement thus far obtained from her was a bitter interview Saturday night when she declared her belief that both the Haines had made a terrible mistake and hoped they would swing for it.

The Brother is Responsible

Washington, August 13.—If Captain Peter C. Haines, Jr., should pay the extreme penalty for killing William E. Annis, it will be the first time an officer of the United States army in time of peace has met a felon's death. Men here who were acquainted with the two brothers say they are opposites in disposition. Peter always has been regarded as a mild-tempered, easy-going fellow, while his brother has been noted for his domineering, headstrong qualities. The opinion is freely expressed in army circles that Peter would never have committed the crime had he not been urged to it by his brother, whose vindictiveness against Peter's wife and her supposed betrayer are well known. Andrew A. Lipscomb, a noted criminal lawyer of this city, who assisted in the prosecution of Thornton J. Haines seventeen years ago at Fort Monroe, for killing Ned Hannegan, described Thornton as the most dangerous man he ever knew and his acquittal a gross miscarriage of justice.

Unwritten Law Will be Invoked

New York, Aug. 13.—Pale to the lips, but without the slightest outward evidence of excitement, Captain Peter G. Haines and his brother, T. Jenkins Haines, faced Magistrate Gilroy yesterday charged with the murder of William E. Annis. After a secret conference between the attorneys the magistrate adjourned the case for one week. Although none of the parties in the case consented to an interview, it was learned that the unwritten law will be invoked.

The One-Piece Gown Here to Stay—Wide Shady Hats the Thing for Midsummer—Even Dancing-Gowns Long and Clinging—The Newest Stocks Surmounted by Frills.

BY MONS GENE DE PONTAC.

There is no doubt that the one-piece gown has come to stay, and it certainly has many features to recommend it—its grace, its appropriateness for many occasions, its comfort and simplicity and the desirable way in which it can be combined with all sorts of wraps. The jumper frock in which the blouse was a mere skeleton sleeveless affair has been succeeded by the blouse with sleeves or at least half sleeves of the gown material. The gumpie is still separate and adjustable and sometimes the undersleeves match the gumpie, but the tendency is for the blouse with sleeves rather than the sleeveless overbody.

In Paris the towering crowns of the hats have suddenly collapsed, and the midsummer straws are quite flat and of an abnormal width, trimmed only with a light tulle scarf and rosette or one or two long ragged feathers. These large flat hats in all black are a fad of the moment, worn with white or pale-colored costumes. For country wear these low-crowned, wide-brimmed shapes are delightfully airy and fresh, in white or burnt straw, trimmed in the simplest manner with wreaths of large roses, draperies of pink or white mousseline de soie, orulle in graduated shades forming a sort of pale rainbow. The summer "cloches" are trimmed with pleated linen or wide frills of Valenciennes lace, with bunches of flowers tucked in among the ruches.

For summer evening gowns, lace, silk tulle and beaded and embroidered net are the most charming. Crystal and glass beadwork have now quite taken the place of the paillettes so long used, and by artificial light are exceedingly effective, especially in the golden pinks or silvery greys, greens and blues, and when used in combination with princess or point applique lace. Pearl has returned to favor, pearl bead embroidery lighted up with tiny Rhinestones making a weightless ornamentation either for black or white. Even in the sheer materials the sheath skirt shows its influence, and the floating cloudlike effects formerly characteristic of the dancing-frock are seen no more. Evening gowns are now cut very long, trailing not only in the back but on the sides, and as the under japon is usually cut short and as the outer skirt is very sneer and very scant, this train clings and twists snakily around the feet. Needless to say, it requires long hours of practice to enable one to manage this skirt with anything approaching grace.

The Liberty sash is still seen on many evening gowns, and the newest ones are caught above the waist-line in the back with a large Rhinestone buckle. The Pierrot ruche made of net and trimmed with a garland of small roses forms a charming accessory for evening wear, and a touch that gives chic to a decolette costume is a dog-collar of velvet embroidered to match the trimming of the gown.

The newest stocks are of net or oatiste, immensely high, with a frill of the same around the top, boned high on the sides, but not cut in the pronounced points seen in the early spring. The collar itself is tucked and the frill is fully pleated, standing directly out from the neck. A rather original form of neckwear has just appeared from Paris in the double pleated tulle collar, box-pleated about the neck and reaching up quite to the ears, and with another row or flounce turning down and extending almost to the top of the sleeve, like a little cape. The throat is encircled by a band of gold ribbon, fastening in front in a small bow. Flat pleatings of embroidered net, batiste, nainsook or organdie are much in vogue for summer wear—anywhere from two to six inches wide. They are put on perfectly round and fasten in the back, or open in the front over a small bow tie.

NEGRO DROPPED DEAD

Was Awaiting Departure of Excursion Train for Ocala

While awaiting the departure of an excursion train for Ocala, his home, H. McClendon, a negro, dropped dead at the union depot last night. The negro was loitering around the depot waiting for the hour to arrive for the departure of his train. He did not appear ill in the least and had been talking to several other negroes in the depot.

All of a sudden he was seen to reel and fall to the floor. A policeman rushed to his side and found his pulse very weak. Before a doctor could be summoned the negro was dead. Beyond the fact that his name was H. McClendon and that he was from Ocala, nothing else in connection with the negro could be learned.

The body was turned over to an undertaker who will prepare it for shipment to Ocala. The sudden death of the negro created considerable excitement among the excursionists who, for the most part, were negroes.—Times-Union.

RHEUMATIC FOLKS

Are You Sure Your Kidneys Are Well?

Many rheumatic attacks are due to uric acid in the blood. But the duty of the kidneys is to remove all uric acid from the blood. Its presence there shows the kidneys are inactive. Don't dally with "uric acid solvents." You might go on the doomsday with them, but until you cure the kidneys you will never get well. Doan's Kidney Pills not only remove uric acid, but cure the kidneys and then all danger from uric acid is ended.

Benj. Rush, living at 229 W. Union St., Gainesville, Ga., says: "I had suffered from kidney trouble, and sciatic rheumatism, for years. At times I was in such a miserable condition that I could not get out of bed. The kidney action was very irregular and at times the secretions were too profuse while again scanty. I spent a great deal of money for different remedies, but did not find any relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They went at once to the seat of my trouble and I steadily grew better. I am almost entirely free from rheumatism and the action of the kidney secretions is normal. I attribute this great change in my condition solely to the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."
