BRYAN AND HILL STOOD SIDE BY SIDE

The Commoner and the Sage of Wolfert's Roost Spoke Side by Side

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20.—The feature of W. J. Bryan's tour up state yesterday was the appearance on the platform here last night of former United States Senator David B. Hill. When he stepped forward as chairman to introduce Democracy's leader the great crowd which packed the hall rose as a man and wildly cheered.

"Although not connected with politics," Mr. Hill said, "I reiterate that I am heartily in favor of the election of the Democratic national ticket. I am not so partisan, however, that I would support the party whether right or wrong, but permit me to say that I support the national ticket in this campaign because, in my judgment, our presidential candidate who honors with his presence here tonight is absolutely right on every contested question in this campaign. I am for him because I sincerely believe that the best interests of the country will be subserved by his election.

"It is time for a change in the administration of the government, a change of measures and of men. Our candidate owes the nomination not to any one man or any set of men, but only to the people themselves. If elected, he will be the President himself and not a dummy for any man. He will not be led around with a string like a great big caged bear."

Panic of Office Holders

Mr. Hill, referring to the Republican charge that a panic would follow Mr. Bryan's election, declared that it would be a business panic, "but it would be a panic of the present hundred of thousands of federal office holders and public officials who will have to surrender their places to the victorious party." He concluded his encomium of Mr. Bryan by saying that "the candidate is your friend; he is my friend; he is the friend of the people. He has been a courageous, sincere and constant friend of labor ever since he has been in public life. He is as incorruptible as he is brave and he can neither be purchased nor intimidated."

Mr. Bryan received an ovation as he rose to speak. He expressed his appreciation of the cordial welcome he had received "in the capital of our nation's greatest state," and replied to Mr. Hill by saying:

Then Bryan Spoke

"I appreciate the more than generous words employed by Senator Hill in presenting me to you. One of the pleasures of this campaign is the unity that manifests itself in the Democratic party. As the candidate for President I have behind me a united Democracy and in front of me a scared republican party. I have declared that the Democratic party was full of fight, while the Republican party was full of fright.

"I believe," he continued, "that we are going to win a great victory, and, my friends, I am glad that Senator Hill, the hero of so many battlefields, is fighting by my side prepared to share with me the joys of a Democratic triumph. This victory would be incomplete if it were a sectional victory. But I believe that this victory is going to be won by the cooperation of the East and West, the North and the South, and that it will cement the Democratic party as a fighting force."

Urgent Support of Tickets
Mr. Bryan said he would present "some evidence" that would encourage "you and some arguments in behalf of our position." First, however, he urged support of the Democratic state and congressional tickets, because he said they were fighting on the same platform and bearing the brunt of the battle and, therefore, deserved the people's suffrage. He laid stress on the plank in the Democratic platform providing publicity of campaign contributions before election.

"Mr. Taft's National Committee has promised to publish the contributions after the election when he knows it will be too late to be advantageous to the voters, but the Republican Congressional Committee has not promised to publish the contributions even after the election. I now ask Mr. Taft if he will request the Congressional Committee to announce at once that publication will be made after the election. If not, we have a right to conclude that the Congressional Committee has to receive the funds that are too tainted to go into the treasury of the National Committee."

The conscience of the American people, he asserted, deserved the inauguration of an era of honesty in politics. "Can Mr. Taft afford to ignore this demand?" he inquired.

Taft Objectionable to Labor
Mr. Bryan repeatedly referred to Mr. Taft's labor record. He declared Mr. Taft was the most objectionable public man to laboring men the country has ever known. He discussed a decision of the then Judge Taft in 1894, bearing on the case where the receiver of a railroad cut the wages of the men ten per cent. "The employees," said Mr. Bryan, "presented a petition and asked for a restoration of their wages, but by his decision he said they had no legal right to ask it and he had no legal right to listen to them; but that if they were talking to an employer, the employer might, as a matter of charity, restore their wages; that he could not listen to such a petition because as Judge his duty was to protect the railroad."

There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under guarantee at all drug stores, 50c.

Georgia's State Chemist Praises Cottolene

J. H. McCandless, State Chemist of Georgia, before a recent gathering of Cotton Seed men, gave emphatic praise to the high quality of Cottolene. He said:

"The sale of this product and the proclamation that it is made of cotton seed oil have done more to bring cotton seed oil truthfully and favorably before the public than anything else in recent history."

Mr. McCandless then pointed out how a pure, refined, vegetable-oil basis, such as is in Cottolene, is the only assurance a woman has of a clean, digestible, cooking product. It seems a positive wonder in the light of all that has lately been said and written, and of what is known of lard, where it comes from, of what it may be made, and how little chance there is to get pure lard, that anyone will continue its use, when pure, sweet and healthful Cottolene can be so easily obtained.

COTTOLENE is Guaranteed Your grocer is hereby authorized to refund your money in case you are not pleased, after having given Cottolene a fair test.
