THE WAY OUT

It seems to the Star that the business men of Ocala will be blind to their best interests if they do not support to the limit of their ability the scheme of the Rentz Lumber Company to build and operate a railroad into this city from Silver Springs.

The merchants of Ocala can give such a line enough business to pay it well for running; in fact, they can give it enough to justify it in extending its rails to Palatka; and it would be entirely practical for them to obtain their freight by such a line direct from New York. Ocean going vessels came up to the wharves of Palatka twenty years ago, and if business was offered them, they would come again.

Also, it is possible, and would not be only practical but extremely salubrious to extend, or build another road to connect with the Buttgenbach road at Dunnellon, and thereby obtain freight through Port Inglis from New Orleans and the west. Such a line, as long as it was kept in the hands of home people, would prosper and build up this entire section of Florida.

It is useless to expect the great railway corporations to give any relief. The history of the past twenty years shows that they become more grasping every day.
