ASTRONOMY FOR LANDSMEN

How a Watch or Clock May Be Regulated by Observing a Star.

When some investigator makes the "discovery" that the points of the compass can be approximately determined by looking at the sun and using a watch to show the divisions of the plane it is apt to go the rounds of the press as something very peculiar. If this discoverer were sufficiently conversant with the principles of navigation to note for the public benefit that the running of a watch or clock may be regulated by observing a star he might confer some practical benefit. This is a very simple thing to do and might be of great use in a country place where accurate time is not always obtainable, but all that is necessary is a fixed location on the earth's surface and any old thing in the way of a timepiece.

Choose a south window from which any other fixed point comparatively near and high, such as a chimney, side of a building, etc., may be seen. To the side of a window fasten a piece of card having a small hole in it, so that by looking through the hole with one eye toward the edge of the elevated object some fixed star may be seen. Watch the progress of the star, and the instant it vanishes behind the fixed point the observer must note the exact time it disappears. Watch the same star the following night, and it will vanish behind the same object just three minutes and fifty seconds sooner. If the timepiece marks 9 o'clock when the star disappears one night it should indicate three minutes and fifty-six seconds less than the following night. If several cloudy nights occur together, follow the first observation and deduct the product from clock time to find the time the star will pass.

Of course the same star can only be observed during a few weeks, for, as it gains nearly an hour in a fortnight, it will in a short time come to the meridian in broad daylight and become invisible. To make sure the observer is watching a star instead of a planet, he should notice that stars twinkle, whereas planets give a steady light because reflected, and, if he wishes further assurance, he may observe that all fixed stars appear to maintain the same relative positions with regard to each other, most noticeable with the different stars in the constellations, whereas a planet changes its place with regard to the other stars. The method of verifying time is easiest and most reliable than the shadow on a sundial. In the famous observatory at Greenwich, England, from which longitude is counted, the clock by which chronometers are set is regulated in just about this manner, but over 200 of the fixed stars are observed. The observations are taken with a telescope, across the center of which is the line of a spider's web to mark the meridian.—Marine Journal.

IN PRAISE OF CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY

There is no other medicine manufactured that has received so much praise and so many expressions of gratitude as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is effective and prompt relief for its use. Grateful patients everywhere do not hesitate to testify to its merits for the benefit of others. It is a certain cure for croup and will prevent the attack if given at the first appearance of the disease. It is especially adapted to children as it is pleasant to take and contains nothing injurious. Mr. E. A. Humphreys, a well known resident and clerk in the store of Mr. E. Locke, of Alice, Cape Colony, South Africa, says: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to ward off croup and colds in my family. I found it to be very satisfactory and it gives me pleasure to recommend it." For sale by all druggists.

Peculiar Light Giving Animals.

A peculiar light giving animal found in southern Californian waters is the heteropod. The heteropods, dazzling white and almost shapeless, can often be seen floating on the clear water. Their bodies are almost transparent, and they have in addition to a long tail a powerful sucker, by which they cling to seaweed. When these creatures are irritated they seem to emit a light from all over the body, though one writer describes one in which the light—red in this case—seemed to radiate from the center of the animal. Of all the light giving animals the saps is said to be the most wonderful. Like the heteropod, this animal is provided with claspers that enable it to fasten to seaweed and rocks. So plentiful are they in Californian waters that the Santa Catalina channel, which is from eighteen to twenty miles wide and about forty-five miles long, is at times literally covered with them as far as the eye can reach. Covering the entire surface and gleaming like gems in the sunlight, they present a beautiful picture. These animals constitute a delicacy much sought for by whales. Some of them shed a silvery light, while others yield blue and others red light.

A CHANGE ALL AROUND

Moody Went on the Supreme Bench and a General Shuffle Took Place in the Cabinet

Washington, Dec. 19.—William H. Moody, formerly attorney general, entered upon his duties yesterday as an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, thus bringing the court up to the full membership. He was inducted into office with the usual ceremonies.

As soon as the opening of the session had been announced by the court crier Chief Justice Fuller proclaimed the presence of the new associate, saying that it gave him pleasure to present him to the members of the bar. He was escorted by Marshal Wright to his seat on the extreme left of the bench.

Former Secretary Bonaparte was introduced to the court as the new attorney general by the solicitor general, succeeding Mr. Moody in that capacity.

Oscar S. Strauss, of New York, yesterday was introduced to the office of secretary of the department of commerce and labor in pursuance of the re-arrangement of the cabinet, recently made by President Roosevelt.

Secretary Metcalf, whom Mr. Strauss succeeded, took the oath as secretary of the navy at 10:55 a. m., and assumed the duties of the office.

The English Longbow.

The range and power of the English longbow in its palmy days were extraordinary, notes a writer in Chambers' Journal. We have seen and handled one of these bows, said to have been used at Flodden. It measured six feet unstrung and the arrow three feet. The pull must have been quite 100 pounds. To draw the cloth yard shaft on such a bow would probably defy the powers of even an exceptionally strong man nowadays. But good Bishop Latimer in his well known eulogy of English archery has shown us how from their boyhood Englishmen were practically trained in the use of the bow till, like Justice Shallow's hero, old Double, they could "clap in the clout at twelvescore yards." Up to what distance the old longbow was really effective is a question not easy to answer, but from the data we possess it may safely be assumed that against anything but armor of proof the cloth yard shaft was deadly up to 300 yards, while for combined rapidity and efficiency in shooting no weapon could compare with the longbow till the introduction of the breechloader.

Fellow Strangers.

There were some things which the woman who had lived for twenty years in a beautiful but lonely spot within sight of the White mountains had borne just as long as she could, and she did not care who knew it.

"What a rest it must be to you at the end of the day's work to look at those great calm hills standing there in the waning light," said an enthusiastic traveler who had stopped for a glass of water.

The inhabitant of Ridge Hill farm looked at her visitor with a hint of scorn in her face, although her tone was good natured enough. "I've looked at them hills just as many times as I'm ever going to when I'm tired," she said slowly. "I save 'em now for Sundays when I'm some rested up. When I'm mad and tired and ache all over I go out back and look at my tomato vines and potatoes. They've both got things to contend with here, same as I have. That's what soothes me more'n any hills."

A Bird That Shaves.

Man is not the only living creature that shaves. The bonnet, a South American bird, takes a dry shave regularly. The bonnet has long blue tail feathers. Each quill is adorned from base to tip with soft blue down. This arrangement the bird dislikes. Therefore with its sharp beak it nips the quills bare from the base out to about an inch from the tip, where it maintains a neat oval of soft blue whisker. Such action seems silly on the bonnet's part to certain philosophers, though it seems no sillier than man's action in regularly scraping bare his cheeks and chin, while he maintains on his upper lip an oval of soft hair not unlike the bonnet's tail oval.

The Effective Remedy

WASHINGTON, IOWA, April 4, 1908.

I was troubled for over a year with so many a flow that it was virtually suppression. A heavy cold super-induced this condition and nothing I could do seemed to help me. The only effective remedy I ever found was Wine of Cardui. Within two weeks I felt the good effects of the medicine and after I had used 12 bottles in all I was as healthy and regular as any woman could wish to be. My sister used it while expecting to become a mother and found that it made childbirth comparatively easy and after the child was born she found that it helped her to regain her strength.

Wine of Cardui cures the sickness of young girls, relieves the weakness of adults, banishes leucorrhoea, headaches, backaches and nervousness and eases the crisis attendant on the change of life.

Thousands of mothers besides Miss Root's sister have found grateful relief from the pains of childbirth and have had a quick and happy recovery from its use. You cannot afford to suffer when $1.00 bottles are sold by all druggists.

J. C. Smith, Houston, Texas, writes: "I have used Ballard's Horehound Syrup in my family for the past few years, and find it far superior to any other cough medicine we have tried. Every household should be supplied with this worthy remedy."
