RETRIAL FOR NIGHT RIDERS

Men Convicted of the Murder of Captain Rankin Will Have Another Chance for Their Lives

Jackson, Tenn., July 4.—The supreme court of the state of Tennessee has reversed the verdict of the criminal court in the cases of the eight night riders who were convicted some months ago at Union City for the murder of Captain Rankin at Reelfoot Lake. The supreme court orders that the cases be retried.

PRESERVATION OF FENCE POSTS

A Most Important Item for the American Farmer.

Every farmer is familiar with the rotting of his fence posts at the surface of the ground. The labor of replacing them and how to secure new and durable posts are sources of constant annoyance and expense. Even the more durable woods such as chestnut, white oak and cedar, decay in eight or ten years. It is true that there are a few kinds of wood in the United States, such as locust and osage-orange, which give much longer service, but their supply, never very large, is rapidly becoming exhausted, and the farmer must now look to some other source for his posts. Perhaps directly on his farm there may be a patch of woods which includes such trees as black oak, beech, maple or pine, and cottonwoods and willows may grow along the banks of his streams. These are trees which heretofore have been thought of little or no use for posts, because of the rapidity with which they are attacked by decay. In their natural condition, they will rot in two or three years—too soon to pay for the labor of sorting them. The Forest Service in its study of prolonging the life of fence posts has found cheap and simple methods of preserving them in a sound condition for an indefinite time, though they are the poorest and naturally least durable woods.

Decay is not a simple process like the crumbling of stone or the rusting of iron. It is caused by low forms of plant life which thoroughly permeate the wood, discolor it and cause it to become disconnected and "rotten." To preserve the timber in a thoroughly sound condition, it is only necessary to render the wood unfit for the growth of these organisms. This is done by injecting into it substances poisonous to plant life.

One of the most widely used preservatives is creosote, one of the by-products of coal tar. When it is injected into the wood, decay will be retarded indefinitely and an old-field pine or cottonwood fence post when properly treated will easily give a life of twenty years or longer. Such a preservative treatment costs about ten cents per post. The creosote can be applied by painting the wood with a brush or dipping it into the liquid, but much better results will be obtained if it is actually injected into the wood instead of merely coating the outside. If the "brush" method, or painting, is used, the creosote should be applied at a temperature of about 180 degrees F. Two coats should be given at least twenty-four hours apart. If the posts are dipped directly into the preservative, the creosote should be heated to about the same temperature. The best results of all can be obtained by first heating the posts in bath of hot creosote and then either transferring them quickly to a bath of creosote at a lower temperature, or else shutting off the heat and allowing the posts to remain in it as it cools. By such a method, the sapwood will become thoroughly permeated with the creosote. Full details and specific directions for the treatment of different kinds of posts may be obtained by application to the Forester, Washington, D. C.

YELLOW FEVER IN CUBA

Politicians Have Copped the Money that Should Keep the Island Healthy

New York, July 4.—Yellow fever is again prevalent in Cuba, according to the Medical Record. The journal claims that the island authorities assert that the disease now prevalent is not "yellow jack," but pernicious malaria or malignant jaundice. The Medical Record says the parts along the Gulf Coast of the United States are menaced by the presence of yellow fever in Cuba, as there is no quarantine in effect. The journal further states that the politicians on the island have monopolized the appropriation which was made for the purpose of fighting the disease, and suggests that the proper thing would be for the United States marine hospital service to take charge and see that all of the Cuban ports are properly quarantined against.

UNACUSTOMED OCCURRENCE

Political Double Murder in England has Caused a Great Sensation
London, July 4.—The murder of Lieut. Col. Sir William Hutt Curzon Wyllie and Dr. Charles Laloe of Shanghai by Madar Lalof Dhinagari, an Indian student Thursday night at the Imperial Institute has stirred England in a manner unknown since the Phoenix Park murders. It has been a subject for self-congratulation by Englishmen that Great Britain was immune from political crimes of this nature and it is a great shock to feel that public men no longer are safe from the attacks of assassins.

Earheart Plugged Six Deputies and a Bystander Before He was Captured

Jone, Ore., July 4.—Eight men were shot here yesterday in a battle between a sheriff's posse and T. G. Earheart, said to be an ex-convict. W. H. Escue, an aged man of Portland, was shot by members of a posse by mistake, and Earheart was wounded in the back, after having shot six of his pursuers. None of the victims, with the exception of Escue, are seriously wounded. Earheart surrendered to the posse after his ammunition was exhausted.

TRUE TO HER TRUST

Unexcelled Devotion to Duty of the Bridge Keeper's Wife at Bayou Sara, Alabama

Mobile, Ala., July 4.—When the body of W. L. Samson, bridge keeper for the Louisville & Nashville at Bayou Sara, Ala., was buried here yesterday, there was revealed the story of the devotion of a woman to a railroad company, by taking the care of many lives in her hands, that has seldom been equalled.

Early Thursday night Samson was in his loft near the bridge when lightning killed him and threw his body into the water in front of his wife and little child. Mrs. Samson tried to save the body, but it went down just as she was about to reach for it.

She remained at the bridge all Thursday night and the greater part of Friday alone with her child seeing that trains could safely pass over the structure. As it was not a stopping point she could not get assistance until yesterday when she succeeded in flagging a train. Another watchman has been sent to the bridge.

SPOKANE UP AGAINST IT

The aggressive contest of years that Spokane and other cities and towns of the far West have been making, in an effort to secure the advantage of freight rates on the basis of water competition which Seattle, Portland and other coast cities have been enjoying is destined to prove a failure. They may secure a reduction in rates on shipments from the East, but the decision will be based wholly upon the reasonableness of the rate, and nothing more.

NO HURRY IN PORTO RICO

Stories of his observations in Porto Rico told by Congressman Olmstead, of Pennsylvania, have proved highly entertaining to his colleagues. Here are three little ones:
"I watched for an hour the yoking and hitching up of a pair of oxen by five men. One-third of the time was taken up by dressing their horns with red cloth. After they got them attached to the cart it was found that they would not pull because they were yoked on the wrong side. Then all had to be done over again. I did not await the result for fear that congress might adjourn some time this autumn and I wanted to get my pay so as to get home."
"On one occasion I was stopping at a hotel in Porto Rico and wanted a drink of water. I called a waiter, and after five or ten minutes I made him understand what I wanted. He called another servant, and after consulting him awhile, the second one went after another, and after consulting him awhile, the third one went up two flights of stairs and from the balcony called down to the street and around another servant, who was asleep, just where I was standing all the time trying to get that drink, but in all fairness I admit I was finally accommodated."
