THE CAPTAIN OF THE KANSAS

which fate had held back from her twice already. They were only glowing epistles from the hundreds of passengers on the Florida, but six of them were proposals from enthusiastic ladies, all well dowered and eager to give their charms and their cash to the safe keeping of the man who had saved their lives. It was with reference to some joking comment by Courtney on these missives that his sister wrote to congratulate him on having escaped matrimony under such conditions.

Long before noon the Kansas cleared White Horse island. Thenceforth the run was due south until eight bells, when for the second time within a fortnight the captain set the course south-east.

Elsie noted that Count Edmond de Poincillit died with the rest, sitting beside Isobel. Courtney put in an ap-

"My engines are going full speed astern," peared later to partake of a hasty meal. He gave monsieur a black look, but of course, catching Elsie's eye instantly, he meekly sat down and said nothing—noting, that is, of an unpleasant nature.

Crawling quietly into the strait of Magellan at daybreak, the ship put forth her best efforts in the run through the narrows. Passing Cape San Isidro, she signaled her name, and it was easy to see the commotion created by her appearance. A real furor began when she approached Sandy point. A steam launch puffed off hastily from the side of a Chilean warship, and the commander brought the news that he had been sent specially from Coronel to search the western coast line thoroughly for the Kansas. He was about to return that day to report his failure to discover any trace of the missing vessel, and he listened in amazement while Christofal gave him a succinct history of the ship's doings.

At the end Courtney presented him with a photograph of Elsie's chart, to which many additions had been made by her under her lover's directions. The position of the shoal and of Pillar rock, together with the set of the tidal current, was clearly shown, and it is probable that Good Hope inlet, notwithstanding its dangerous approach, will be thoroughly surveyed one of these days. Then perhaps more may be heard of those lumps of silver and copper ore which the savages buried at the Kansas.

The cruiser hurried away under forced draft to report from Coronel, the nearest cable station. Thence she would go to Valparaiso, so she carried a sheaf of letters and one passenger, Frascuelo. Finding that he could not execute the needed repairs at Sandy point, Courtney decided to make for Montevideo, where he would be in telegraphic communication with Mr. Baring. He was fortunate in finding a shipwrecked crew on shore awaiting transport to England. He secured a full complement of officers and engineers, and the Kansas reached the chief port of Uruguay without any difficulty.

A sack load of telegrams awaited the ship. The Chilean man-of-war put into Valparaiso, after calling at Coronel, nearly three days before the Kansas dropped anchor on the east coast; hence there was time for things to happen, and she seized the opportunity. The copper market had turned inside out. The firm of Baring, Thompson, Miguel & Co. had rebounded from comparative ruin to a stronger financial state than ever, and Senor Pedro Ventana, after shooting a man named Jose Anacleto, had considerably shot himself. Evidently Frascuelo lost no time when he went ashore. Mr. Baring, too, reported that the dynamite wrapper had been traced to Ventana's possession.

When Isobel Baring heard this final item she fainted so badly that Dr. Christofal thought it advisable she should be taken to a hotel while the ship remained in port, but she vetoed this proposal determinedly when she recovered her senses and straightway confessed to Elsie that Ventana was her husband. She had foolishly agreed to marry him privately, and Anacleto had witnessed the ceremony. Within a month she regretted her choice. There were quarrels and threats. Ultimately an agreement was made that they should separate. Her father knew and approved of the arrangement. He could not afford to break openly with Ventana, and it must have been a dreadful shock to him when he learned that the scoundrel had plotted not only to destroy the ship, but to murder his wife at the same time.

"So, you see," she added, with a wan smile. "I did not give serious thought to your troubles, Elsie. Ventana could never have married you while I was alive."

Elsie's cheeks reddened. "I never told you he asked me to marry him," she said. "It would have been just the same had he done so. As it was, I feared the man. Now you know why I ran away from Chile. If I permitted another impression to prevail, I acted for the best. But the unhappy man is dead. Let us endeavor to forget him."

"His memory haunts me with an enduring curse," cried Isobel bitterly. "Among my papers I had some letters of his, the marriage certificate and his written promise not to molest me. On that awful night when the ship was disabled I went to my cabin and secured them, or thought I did. At any rate, I could not find them when we landed on White Horse island, and from hints dropped by that wretched little adventurer De Poincillit I feel sure they have fallen into his hands. Believe me, Elsie, I was half mad when I helped him to steal the boat."

"Steal the boat? What boat?"

"Has not Captain Courtney told you?"

"Not a word."

"Ah, he is a true gentleman. But you forget. You heard what he said to De Poincillit before he went to the Guanaco canyon?"

"Yes, I did not understand. Oh, my poor Isobel, how you must have suffered, while I have been so happy!"

"If only I could recover my papers—"

"May I ask Arthur to help?"

"He knows the worst of me already. One more shameful disclosure cannot add to my degradation."

"Isobel, how little you know him!"

Thus spoke Elsie after fourteen days. Truly there is much enlightenment in a husband.

M. le Comte Edmond de Poincillit, to his intense chagrin, found that a ship's captain has far-reaching powers when he chooses to exert them. Rather than enter a Montevideo jail, where people have died suddenly of nasty fevers, he not only restored the missing documents, but submitted to a close scrutiny of his own belongings, which resulted in the pleasing discovery that he was not a French count, but a denizen of Martinique—most probably a defaulting valet or clerk. No one troubled to inquire further about him. His passage money was refunded, and he was bundled ashore. Courtney's view was that he had heard by some means of Isobel's intended departure from Valparaiso and deemed it a good chance of winning her approval of his courtship, seeing that such titles are not subjected to serious investigation in South America. Seaver took his Fuegian bride up country, where Mr. Baring and Dr. Christofal established them on a small ranch.

Isobel renewed her voyage somewhat chastened in spirit, but her volatile nature soon survived the shocks it had received. By the time the Kansas put her ashore at Tilbury, to be clasped in the arms of a timid and fearful aunt, she was ready as ever for the campaign of glory she had mapped out in London and Paris.

Captain Courtney, R. N., and his wife are not such distinguished personages, but their romance had a sequel worthy of its unusual beginning. They were married quietly a week after the Kansas reached London. There was some war scare in full blast at the moment, and a lord of the admiralty who deluged it was a pity that a smart sailor should not risk his life for his country rather than in behalf of idle commerce. So he looked up Courtney's record and found that it was excellent, the young lieutenant's reason for resigning his commission being the necessity of supporting his mother when her estate was swept away by a bank failure. The sea lords made him a first rate offer of reinstatement in the service at a higher rank without any loss of seniority, and they went about the business with such dignified leisure that Dr. Christofal had time to find out, through men whom he could trust, that Elsie's small estate in Chile contained one of the richest mines in the country. He secured a bid of many thousands of pounds for it and advised Mrs. Courtney to accept half in cash and half in shares of the exploiting company.

It was not unreasonable that Gray should go back to Chile to take charge of Elsie's mine nor that Mr. Boyle should become captain and Walker chief engineer of the Kansas, while Tollemache settled down in England.

CRYING FOR HELP

Lots of It in Ocala, But Daily Growing Less

The kidneys cry for help. Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

There can be no important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

It is the kidneys' cry for help. Heed it. Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

They strengthen and invigorate the kidneys; help them to do their work; never fail to cure any case of kidney disease.

P. Y. Smith, living at 1204 Alachua Ave., Gainesville, Fla., says: "My wife was troubled for some time with severe headache. She also complained of a dull pain in her back, and was nervous and weak. I thought that her kidneys were the cause of her trouble, and procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills for her. She received such great benefit from the use of the first box of this remedy that I obtained another supply. When this was used the pains ceased, and she is now no longer troubled with headaches. It required but two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills to entirely cure her."

Plenty more proof like this from Ocala people. Call at Tynings & Co.'s drug store and ask what their customers report.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A SQUARE-DEAL

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and these are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless—even to the most delicate women and children.

Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles in them, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

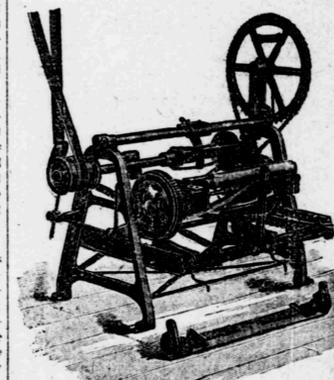

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or other organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures even the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on-coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

To find out more about the above mentioned diseases and all about the body in health and disease, get the Common Sense Medical Adviser—the People's Schoolmaster in Medicine—revised and up-to-date book of 1000 pages—which treats of diseased conditions and the practical, successful treatment thereof. Cloth-bound sent post-paid on receipt of 31 cents in one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
