saw that she was smiling at him encouragingly through her tears, but refused to be comforted. "I made out the payroll today," he said. "Three other men in the office who also asked for a raise last month got it; so did Smith."

all fixed up was enough to make you feel sore and gloom. Never mind; cheer up. You know what Jimsy says, 'Hard luck can give you an awful battle, but if you're on the square you can hand it a knockout punch some time.'

CHAPTER IV.

THERE was a knock, the unlatched door opened, and James Smith walked in. "Anybody at home?" he demanded briskly. "Not a solitary living soul," Emma assured him. "Come in."

"But Williams—he don't lose her. He couldn't." "I should think you'd be glad," remarked Emma. "She's a brand new ship, isn't she?" "No, I'm not glad," he declared furiously, rising and walking about the room.

getting along myself that I haven't paid much attention to any one else." He paused and gazed up at the ceiling, engrossed in thought. "You know, Emma," he went on suddenly, turning toward her, "this getting along business is a funny game. Such a lot depends on what a man means when he gets along. Some get along when they have got a lot of money, some when they have a wife and a home and a bunch of kids, some when they are able to pick pockets and fool the coppers. Getting along and why you do or why you don't depends a good deal on where you want to get."

cause everything's covered up and in disorder. They're papering the room. I shouldn't wonder if Captain Williams were with them. He takes mamma and Beth out in his new auto and has brought them around here quite frequently of late. "Does he ever take you for a ride?" "He asks me to go, but I won't." "Why not?" "That's just what I can't tell. There is something about the man that is repulsive—he looks at me so strangely. And then I know just how he has treated Joe, and—" "And what?" "I don't like him—that's all." "That's enough, it seems to me. After all, I guess he figures all to the bad with women—decent women." "Mamma and Beth like him." "Well, your mother never did shine up to me more'n the law allowed, and as for Beth, she's a nice enough girl, but her education hurts her, I think." "Hush! Here they are." And the little woman hurried into the hall to open the door for them.
