AT THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Rev. Campbell Gray filled the pulpit of Grace Episcopal church for the first time Sunday morning, preaching to a good sized audience. Miss Wartmann presided at the organ and the surplined choir sang unusually well. Rev. Gray introduced an innovation in his sermon, the litany and kneeling in the aisle just outside the choir loft, also chanting instead of reading parts of the service, which had a very pleasing and impressive effect, as Rev. Gray has a well cultivated voice and uses it effectively. Mr. Gray took for his text the 12th verse of the 2nd chapter of Thessalonians, "That ye would walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto his kingdom and glory." He spoke without notes, distinctly, earnestly and impressively and made a decided impression and a most favorable one. The burden of his excellent sermon was service; that every one had a call and it was his or her bounden duty to obey; call; to be steadfast in doing their Christian duty. All have a vocation in every sphere of life. To work worthy of the vocation, to accomplish things in the spirit of God. Not only in the church, but everywhere do your duty; at home, in business, socially, neighborly, and all for the Lord. Rational enjoyment and amusement were right and proper, the more so if enjoying this recreation we do it in the eyes of God. The cross is on us and must be borne. Let us be a crown of Christian humility. How we should all strive to put self behind us, to sacrifice self to God; to think little of our wishes and desires, but to be thankful that we have the heart and disposition to do God's commands. To practice long suffering, patience; to cease continually finding fault with others and unkindly criticizing their actions and passing judgment on their motives. It is our duty to ask ourselves what profit, what good can our doubts, distrusts and uncharitable comments on those around us do us. Our lives should typify our religion; soul service, not lip service, our ambition, so lived that they should be a death to sin and our death a glory to resurrection. We should not be vain glorious and seek the chief seat in the people, but modest, diffident, take a retired position that being worthy of exaltation we may be hidden by the host to come up higher. Let the outside world dexal and speak well of you, not self. It is bitter and hard to crush self, but when accomplished in the name of the master comes sweetness and glory. How we should strive to learn one another to do acts of kindness to others, to overlook and forget imaginary slights among and neighbors and in the church. The Christian religion is a practical thing; it must be lived as well as preached. If the church is to go forward then must we live close to the church, to sacrifice ourselves for each other, just as Christ did for you and me. He said he spoke this plainly because it was impersonal. He did not know the congregation and therefore could not be accused of imputation. As he was a stranger in the parish, he desired to be informed of any sick persons or any in distress that he might visit them.

At the close of the sermon, the rector appeared at the entrance door and shook hands with all in the audience. Rector Gray is a young man about thirty, tall, commanding and of fine address. He is a son of Bishop Gray, of Orlando. His wife is a devoted church worker, a fine singer and will be in the church choir.

The Star speaks for Rector Gray a useful service to Grace church membership and the community and extends to him a hearty greeting and welcome.

Mr. A. C. Boon of Anthony, was in town today and contributed to the Star for another year. He said the past season had been a good one with him. His truck paid him well and his farm crops were bountiful. He detailed his experience in fertilizing his lands for cantaloupes. He is a great believer in the velvet bean as a stock food and ground fertilizer. He said for three years he had so fertilized a piece of land that the crop of cantaloupes was as fine as any raised in that section, without an additional ounce of fertilizer except that given the soil by the beans. Mr. Boon spoke of his old neighbor and friend, the late Dr. D. A. Smith, and what a good man the community lost in his death.

Governor Albert W. Gilchrist writes the secretary of the Ocala board of trade that he has been requested to appoint a delegate from the Ocala board to attend the American Good Roads and the Ohio Road Makers Association convention which meets in Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 25-29th, and authorizes the secretary of the Ocala board to name said delegate. We do it in the person of Mr. Jake Brown. Jake has born the heat and burden of the summer, never taking a day's respite and needs a week's outing on good roads. It will do Jake a world of good and we give him our blessing on his journey.

The Eastern Stars affiliating with the Masonic body are thinking very seriously of instituting a "tag day" at the coming county fair for the purchase of the new drop curtain for the Temple Theater. Worthy Master J. A. Boulton has named Mrs. N. I. Gottlieb, Mrs. Jake Brown and Mrs. R. E. Yonge, Sr., to perfect arrangements. The committee will select a number of our lovely girls who will on Nov. 25th tag every man, woman or "grown-up" they find on the fair ground and the tagged person must reciprocate with any coin from a copper cent to five dollar bill and in default of which they dungeon awaits them. Get ready to surrender, gracefully.

Mr. D. C. Head and family of Silver Springs Junction, returned home Sunday night from a visit to friends in Georgia. Mr. Head said the farmers of Georgia are feeling fine because cotton is bringing 13 cents, but the cotton factories say the price of cotton is too high for the price received for manufactured goods and unless there is a change for the better they will have to close down.

AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH

A late census gives church membership as three-fifths women and perhaps it is quite as well that such should be the case, for a congregation consisting largely of men with their monotonous dark dress relieved only occasionally by a white vest or a man with a red head certainly is a dull affair, but a congregation the majority of whom are women, with their beautiful colors and artistic display in make and design of dress and millinery, is bound to be a congregation of grace and beauty, and such was the case yesterday at the Baptist church, in this city, and if the census man had been around with his note book he would have counted the audience as at least four-fifths women, and consequently the pastor had to look on a scene both beautiful and imposing. And the effect was seen in the eloquent discourse he preached from 2nd Chronicles, 26th verse. On the "valley of blessing" he said God's blessings to man were certain and unconditional, for the rain descended on the just and unjust, and yet they were not purely unconditional, for it was required of us that we accept and use the same. He spoke of God's blessings being as numberless as the sands of the sea or the mighty firmament of the stars in the heavens. Mentioned the blessing of everlasting life, making all other blessings sink into insignificance. He spoke of the blessings of health, of home and native land, "a land more favored than was the land of Israel, which flowed with milk and honey."

He spoke of the blessing of preservation from danger. Said that at a Baptist convention to which special trains were run from all directions, no less than three of them met with serious accidents from which as if by a miracle every passenger escaped unhurt. He spoke of God's blessings coming to us sometimes through the direct calamities; mentioned the case of a man whose home and everything he owned in the world being washed away by a freshet and as the man almost broken at the loss of his worldly possessions, stood watching the terrible flow of water which had caused that loss, he noticed something bright and shining in the side of a bank that had been cut away by the flood, and found it was gold. It turned out to be a mine of gold that made him immensely rich, so that out of his calamity came a blessing.

At times people get discouraged, and think their hardships and trials are the greatest that any man was ever called on to bear, but if we look around us we can always find some one who is suffering more than we. An old philosopher said he was never discouraged but once, and that was when he was so poor he had no shoes for his feet, but walking along a country road he found a man who had no feet and he immediately felt that his own afflictions were as nothing as compared with the man without feet. Howard, the great English prison reformer, advised people who thought their trials and afflictions were high unbearable, to visit the prisons and note the misery and horrors they contained.

The preacher laid down the rule that as we use our blessings to bless others so would our own blessings be increased.

Before the sermon Miss Pansy Souter played a solo on the violin, which for beauty, pathos and execution could not be excelled, while the beautiful soft notes of the organ manipulated by Mrs. L. Izlar, gave the finishing tones to Miss Souter's playing and filled the church with music and harmony indelible.

THREE hundred years ago, Hendrick Hudson, an adventurous Dutch sailor, in a little ship called the "Half Moon," sailed up what is now the harbor of New York, and up the great river which now bears his name.

Two hundred years later, a hundred years ago, Robert Fulton, amid the jeers and ridicule of his fellow townsmen, who said he was a crank, and couldn't possibly do it, made a voyage up the same historic river, from New York to Albany, in the "Clermont," the first vessel ever propelled by steam.

And now the country is celebrating these two historic events in a great pageant; the two clumsy little vessels, reproduced in exact size and appearance, are to be saluted by a great fleet of warships assembled from all the big navies of the world; and civic and military parades and commemorative exercises are to be held in honor of these two historic events in the progress of civilization.

You'll read about it in the newspapers. Meanwhile we've discovered something, too. We've found that

You can join in this sort of celebration; you can wear these clothes now; you don't have to engage in any voyages of discovery, nor endure the ridicule of your friends; you can be as well dressed as any man in America, at small expense of time and money, by coming to this store and getting into Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes.

THE EDUCATIONAL MEETING

A meeting in the interest of the public schools of the county will be held in the courthouse Tuesday a week from tomorrow. This will be a meeting instituted by the educational campaign now being carried on over the state. The fact is evident that the schools are growing, but the support in the way of revenue does not keep pace with the demand for more and better schools. It is to excite and promote this spirit that this campaign is in progress. Prof. Lynch, connected with the state university, is at the head of the of the movement and he is supported by a very able corps of assistants. Interesting addresses will be made on that occasion by parties who know what they are talking about. Ocala, which has one of the best schools in the state, has an interest in this matter and we trust the courthouse will be crowded with men and women of this town who desire to see our school work progress. Remember the date, Oct. 12th at 9:30 a. m.

AN APPEAL FOR THE CHILDREN

To the Honorable School Board of Marion County:
Gentlemen—I am appealing to you in the interest of our school teachers, school children and the Marion County Fair. Do this: Allow the teachers to adjourn school on the afternoon of Nov. 24th and not convene school until the following Monday, thereby giving the teachers and pupils two days at the fair, and order that the teachers be permitted later to teach one Saturday in lieu of Friday spent at the fair. Many school children and teachers live too far to visit the fair and return prepared to engage in school work the following day. Think of the incalculable benefit to our school boys and girls, the great aid to our fair and the high appreciation of our hard worked teachers.
Respectfully,
S. H. Blitch.
