WORDS ARE TOO FEEBLE

To Express Mrs. Stalling's Gratitude, for the Good that Cardui Did to Her.

Wills Point, Tex.—"I sure would have died," writes Mrs. Victoria Stallings, of the above place, "if I had not gotten relief by the use of Cardui, as I did."

"I did not recover from my confinement as I should, so my mother, Mrs. H. A. Lee, advised me to take Cardui, and after taking half a bottle I was soon all right."

"Before taking Cardui I had a dreadful cough and suffered awful pains, but now I am stronger and in better health than I ever was in my life."

"I cannot say half enough in regard to its merits. Words are too feeble to express our gratitude for this great medicine."

"You can tell the world what Cardui did for me. I advise all suffering ladies to try it."

PARTING COMPLIMENT TO THE UNITED DAUGHTERS OF THE CONFEDERACY.

As a parting compliment to the distinguished visitors of the week in Houston the luncheon served at the Beach auditorium Friday to the Daughters of the Confederacy by the Wiling Helpers, was made especially notable by several features in addition to the regular luncheon program. The tables in the balcony as usual were prettily decorated with the Confederate colors, and just before the close of the morning exercises Mrs. John E. Jordan, chairman of the lunch committee, sent word to the stage to Mrs. Cornelia Branch Stone, Mrs. Wharton Bates, Mrs. M. E. Bryan and Miss Kate Daffan requesting the four ladies to head the march to the balcony, which they did to the inspiring strains of "Dixie," the other officers falling in behind them. Upon the arrival in the lunch room the officers were presented with handsome bouquets tied with the Confederate colors, and the menu which followed carried out the color scheme of red and white and was especially elaborate.—Exchange.

The old, old story, told times without number, and repeated over and over again for the last 36 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health—There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

THE WEDDING BREAKFAST.

The wedding breakfast may be given at noon or at any time up to 2 o'clock. The menu consists generally of a broth of beef or chicken served in cups, a delicate entree, a dish of game or broiled chicken, and a salad of some special delicacy. Small cups of black coffee or chocolate with whipped cream top off the feast after the dessert of ices and fancy cakes has been served. The following recipes are excellent for the main dishes of a modest wedding breakfast:

Chicken consommé—For a company of ten persons, take four old fowls, skin them and remove all superfluous fat. Disjoint the birds and let them stand in cold water for twenty minutes, then put them on the fire in eight quarts of perfectly fresh cold water, with three leeks and a good-sized bunch of fine herbs. Let the broth simmer slowly for eight hours, or until it is reduced to four quarts, and during the cooking skim carefully.

When the chicken has been cooked to rags take the vessel from the fire, lift out the solids and let the liquid become thoroughly cold. Strain the superfluous grease then and gently reheat and strain twice through cheesecloth or a fine strainer. During the second heating the whites and shells of three eggs may be put in the broth for clarifying; but the soup is again strained and kept in a cold place until used. When heating it for the breakfast do it gradually and sprinkle the broth of each cup with a little finely chopped fresh parsley.

Chicken consommé to be good should have a clear golden color.

Sweetbread croquettes—For the same number of persons (ten) take five cold dressed sweetbreads, cut into dice and mix with the same bulk of mushrooms cut in the same way. Strain both over the fire in a thick white sauce made of cream and flour and pour the mixture on a shallow platter. When cold divide into equal parts and roll portions of the same size into round balls or torpedo cones. Then dip them in egg beaten up with paprika salt and a little olive oil, and roll them in finely grated bread crumbs. Fry in olive oil till they are crisp and lightly browned, drain them of grease on pieces of white grocer's paper, and serve piping hot on a warm platter garnished with sprigs of parsley.

Chestnut salad—Shell two quarts of French chestnuts, throwing away all that are defective, and put the kernels over the fire in enough boiling water barely to cover them. Cook them until the skins slip off, as with blanched almonds. Take them from the water and as soon as they are cool enough to handle remove the skins. Then arrange the peeled chestnuts on a bed of tender white lettuce fringed with strips of endive. Pour over a French dressing and serve with strips of crisp toast made from white bread.

Do You Realize?

That despondency in women is a mental condition often traceable to some distinctly female ill!

Women who are well do not have the blues, neither are they irritable and restless. Derangement of the female organism breeds all kinds of miserable feelings such as backache, headache, and bearing-down feelings. Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. There is no doubt that it has made many remarkable cures of female ills after all other means had failed. There is hardly a day that some woman does not write us that this simple old medicine, made only of roots and herbs, has cured her of a severe illness after several doctors had done their best and failed.

Here are two such letters—read them—they are genuine and reliable.

Baltimore, Md.—"For four years my life was a misery to me. I had suffered with female troubles so long that I was discouraged. I had given up all hope of ever being well when I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It restored my health and I felt as though new life had been given me, and I am recommending it to all my friends."—Mrs. W. S. Ford, 1938 Lansdowne St., Baltimore, Md.

Rockland, Me.—"I was troubled for a long time with pains in my back and side and was miserable in every way. I had doctored until I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. I read a testimonial about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thought I would try it. After taking three bottles I never was so well in my life. I am recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all my friends."—Mrs. Will Young, 6 Columbia Avenue, Rockland, Me.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

whiskey without a license, was bound over to circuit court. Deputy Sheriff Sarnett received a colored boarder for the old jail who was an escaped prisoner from Ozark, Ala., and who was arrested in Caryville Tuesday night. During the night the prisoner made an attempt to leave without bidding vigilant Sarnett good-bye. He had crept through a hole in the prison wall out on top of a shed directly under Sarnett's window. Hearing a slight noise, the latter sprang up immediately, pistol in hand and seeing the darkey squatting beside the wall he quietly invited him to crawl back through his hole, which the negro did, then going to his cell he handcuffed him and brought him down to his room and chained and locked him to the bedstead. Then he calmly went back to bed and went to sleep, finding his unwilling guest next morning where he had placed him. Later we learn that the same darkey made his escape from the Alabama authorities who had come and taken charge of him. We are grieved to learn Mrs. J. E. Flournoy's infant departed this life last night. The remains have been transported to the Valley cemetery, Walton county, for burial. We regret to announce the illness of Hugh McDonald, of our town. His illness, while serious at first, we rejoice to hear has improved. Miss Addie Mathews, who has suffered from typhoid fever, contracted while teaching the Valley school, is now assuming normal health. Cane grinding is close by and the voice of the 'possum dog is heard in the night.
