AMUSEMENTS.

Last Night's Play.

Only a good audience saw George Broadhurst's play, "The Man of the Hour," at the opera house last night. The play was not quite as acceptable as when presented in Pensacola last season.

However, a work drawn on the lines of "The Man of the Hour" cannot be bad. It stands for the good in life—honesty as opposed to crookedness, broadness as opposed to hypocrisy and fanaticism.

It is really the story of rival riders in some large American city where graft flourishes.

There are several chapters of love making which appeal to portions of every audience.

And at the end, the honest alderman has the laugh on the dishonest, the hero marries the heroine and all is well.

Theodore Marston and Harry Mills, playing the roles of the rival aldermen, were very good.

The remaining members of the cast did their parts well, but none appeared out of the ordinary.

"Brewster's Millions" Tonight.

To be a poor young man and suddenly have a million dollars thrust upon one, is an experience that we would all gladly undergo, and we would rest content with it. But to find, on the day we inherit, that the first million must be spent in one year, as an absolute necessity to obtain seven millions more, is a nappy fate that has befallen only the hero of George Barr McCutcheon's quaint story, "Brewster's Millions."

From the book Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley have constructed a dainty comedy which will be presented here tonight by Cohan and Harris's comedians.

Yes, is it a happy fate? Ask "Monty" Brewster. As he enters millionairedom the problem presents itself on the threshold. The million came from his grandfather, who permitted his mother to die in want. His uncle, who hated the grandfather, leaves the much greater fortune to Monty, but with the stipulation that the grandfather's money shall be disposed of first Monty, remembering his mother, accepts the contract. He must keep the matter a secret.

Thereupon he enters upon a career of extravagance. There are restrictions that make it hard for him. He loves, but such entanglements are forbidden him. His friends come to his aid, not to help him squander it, but to try to save it for him. A bank fails and brings him joy. He finances an opera company that "has no possible chance of success," and it makes a hit. One of his friends robs him in order to retrieve Monty's falling fortunes, and loses. Brewster, frantically trying to get rid of the money, buys heavily on a falling market, and stocks bound upward at once. He bets on a long shot and wins. He tries Monte Carlo, and breaks the bank. But eventually the contract is fulfilled, and he is a pauper. He has won the seven millions, the efforts of Brewster to relieve himself of the fortune keeps the audience in a constant state of laughter. It is one of the most delicious bits that will be offered this season. Yet it is not without its pathos, and there is an undercurrent of human interest that occasionally rises to the surface, and is given with excellent dramatic effects.

Dog and Pony Show.

The amusement lovers of Pensacola know the Gentry show is enough to create immediate interest to announce that this great exhibition, with its wonderfully educated animals, great feature acts and beautiful street parade, will exhibit in Pensacola for two performances, afternoon and night, next Monday.

While Gentry Bros. have been visiting this city for twenty years, always presenting a "tip-top" clean and wholesome exhibition, it will be news to their patrons to learn that the exhibition which they will offer on Monday is somewhat different from the Gentry show which has been seen here in the past. Animal actors no longer monopolize the program to the exclusion of all other kinds of acts. Five hundred four-footed fun producers, as advance agent calls them, still form the foundation upon which the show is built, but in addition there will be seen a number of high class circus acts which not only enable the management to present a more diversified program but which frees the show from sameness and similarity, and at the same time adds greatly to the ring performances as an entertainment. The time has also come, in the opinion of the Gentry Bros., for all high class tent shows to improve their street parade, which is, after all, a pretty fair index as to the character and quality of the performance, and their street parade this season, while still a miniature affair, is said to be one of the handsomest spectacles on wheels.

Circus Has New Parade.

The Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth has again established a parade as a part of each morning's program. It will present on the day of its visit to Pensacola on Monday, Nov. 15, a street spectacle different and far superior to those of the past. It is three times the length of its predecessors and represents ten times the capital invested.

The culmination of the parade was deemed advisable some years ago in view of the policy of the management never to repeat itself, and were designed at that time a scarcity of new attractions throughout the world worthy

FIRST GAME OF SERIES TAKEN BY THE LOCALS

PLAYED BETTER BALL THAN THE POST TEAM AND WIN BY THE SCORE OF 6 TO 3—DOUBLE HEADER WILL BE PLAYED TO-DAY.

The Pensacolas took the first game of the series of five games with the Post team yesterday afternoon, thus getting a good start on the soldier boys in the clash for the championship honors. The locals played better ball, and won by the score of 6 to 3.

There was no scoring up to the third inning, when Bergin got on first through an error. He stole second and while Anderson was attempting to beat Gordon to first base with the ball Bergin crossed the plate. Gordon went to second, and Lorton was given a base on balls. Van Metre hit to left and Gordon scored. When the left fielder missed the ball Lorton also crossed the plate.

The Post team made the game interesting in the fourth when they tied the score. The first man up was out, but Miller hit safe, and when Krauer was given a life by Roach's error Miller went to second. Haus pitched and Miller scored. Krauer advanced on the throw to the plate. Belmeister was out on a foul to Lorton, but when Ripple hit safe both Krauer and Haus scored.

The locals won the game in their half of the fifth when Bergin, the first man up, hit, stole second and scored on Lorton's hit to short, which was badly handled. Lorton stole second and stole on Van Metre's hit, the latter going to second on the throw in, and scoring when Gordon hit safe.

The features of the game was the batting of Griffin, and the double play, which was near a triple in the fifth inning. Roach picked up a fast one at short, touched a runner going to third, doubled a man at second, and the throw to first to catch the batter was a second too late to make a triple play.

The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth, loses something if the hair is crowded with scant hair. The white scab, the germ throws up in burrowing are called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop falling hair, that germ must be killed. Cottolene Is a Vegetable Product

Many people believe with Moses, the great law-giver, that the source of lard is unclean. The source of Cottolene is absolutely clean and wholesome, and the product is as healthful as olive oil.

Cottolene comes from the cotton fields of the Sunny South; it is a product of Nature, refined by our exclusive process. The ancestry of lard is not so clean or inviting. Lard never has been, never can be, anything more or less than unwholesome hog fat.

Cottolene makes food that any stomach can digest, while lard is the cause of nine-tenths of all indigestion.

Cottolene is the best frying and shortening medium made to-day. Wherever exhibited in competition with any and all other cooking fats, it has always been granted Highest Awards.
