

Blood And Skin Purification

Is Best and Most Quickly Accomplished By Using Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

Ever since the world began, mankind has suffered from various forms of skin and blood diseases. We find mention of certain diseases of the skin in writings which have come to us from periods of greatest antiquity, especially those of the Greeks, Egyptians and Hebrews, many of the diseases being described with great minuteness.

The glands of the skin are known as the sebaceous, or oil glands, and the sudoriferous or sweat glands. The sebaceous glands secrete the oil, and their main duty is to keep the skin soft and flexible. When these glands fail to act sufficiently, there is a dry, harsh condition of the skin, which becomes wax-like in appearance; but if they are over-stimulated, as in certain nervous and blood diseases, too much oil is secreted and poured out on the skin's surface, giving the appearance of "oily skin" or "greasy complexion," as it is termed. When this condition is present, dust particles settle upon the skin and adhering to the oily surface, block up the outlets to both the oil and sweat glands.

The muscles of the skin, which are in a way connected with the sebaceous and sweat glands, play an important part in keeping the pores and glands open, as each time the muscles contract, pressure is made upon the glands, and their contents more or less forced out. The skin of the face does not have the advantage of this muscular aid in the expulsion of the glandular secretions, and therefore very readily becomes clogged with impurities, thus furnishing one of the principal reasons for the prevalence of pimples and blackheads upon the cheeks.

In nearly every form of skin disease and clogging of the glands the blood is primarily at fault, being filled with impurities which, through weakness or perverted function, it is unable to eliminate properly.

Of all the remedies on the market for the cure of skin and blood diseases, STUART'S CALCIUM WAFERS have, after many tests, been pronounced the most efficient and powerful. They have been remarkably successful in curing pimples, blackheads, clogging of the oil- and sweat glands, carbuncles, eczema, scrofula, ulcers, and many other skin humors arising from an impure condition of the blood. They tone up the skin glands so that a normal amount of oil is secreted, and through their use one need not suffer from either an oily skin or an abnormally dry skin. The perspiration glands are also made to functionate normally, and as the blood is at the same time purified, all forms of skin troubles are terminated and cured.

Every Medicine Advertised in This Paper For Sale at CRYSTAL PHARMACY

undoubtedly be of most interest to Americans, especially as Miss Nethersole promises to set forth therein many facts and side-lights which have never been made public. A certain "deal" between a prominent official and the editor of a New York daily newspaper which resulted in Miss Nethersole's arrest and subsequent trial, is said to provide a sensational climax.

Many letters from the English and German nobility, men of letters in France, America and Australia are to be made public by permission of their respective writers. In direct contrast the actress also tells of her struggles and misfortunes before reaching a position of eminence on the stage.

Miss Nethersole, who will be one of our early attractions, recalls a pleasant message from the King of England, who had heard of the trial following her New York production "Sapho." When the actress returned to London and announced "Sapho" as the bill, King Edward arranged to be present on the second night for the express purpose of endorsing the performance as against the action of the New York officials. "Sapho" will be the attraction at the opera house Tuesday night, Nov. 9.

Big Circus Comes Soon.
The Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth will exhibit in Pensacola Monday, November 15, giving two performances at the usual hours, and once more presenting a grand street spectacle at 10 o'clock in the morning, a feature which for four years this circus has omitted.

There is no question as to the superiority of this big show. For five generations it has set the pace; there is no other show on earth which is not as well known as in its native country and there is hardly a land on the earth's face where it has not pitched its mammoth tents. Nobility has applauded it, European kings and Oriental potentates have admired it, and all America has long recognized its position at the head of all amusement enterprises.

With the advantage of its years of foreign travel, and with an agent in every large city in the world it readily may be seen why it controls the talent of the world. It is the only circus of any consequence that has ever visited the old world.

With an entirely new equipment, an enlarged and more elaborate managerie and a complete new program of European acts, the big circus is attracting more attention than ever before in its fifty years brilliant history. The new thrillers, the balloon horse and Desperado, who dives from the dome of the tent to the earth, landing on his chest, are the two most sensational numbers ever presented.

Additional interest is felt in the coming of the show to this city because of the reinstatement of the street parade. It will be nothing like those of the past. All the wonders of the world have been assembled in this pageant, and the money it cost passes the million mark. In the parade alone 1,500 people and 700 horses are utilized.

The spectacle which introduces the performance is this season even more elaborate and interesting than those of the past. The seating arrangements have been improved and various new devices have been introduced to increase the comfort of patrons. The performance is given in three rings, on two stages, a vast hippodrome track and in the canvas dome. Fourteen acres of ground are required to give room to the many tents. To transport all this equipment requires five long trains of double-length cars.

"The Gingerbread Man."
It should be a matter of pleasure and anticipation to theatergoers that "The Gingerbread Man" is announced. It will appear here at the opera house on Saturday, Nov. 13, in all the glory of its original scenic development and magnificence, with a cast as talented as it is possible to imagine, and a chorus selected from the charm and femininity of the national choruses. The piece has a national reputation, principally for its delightful music which, however, is ably seconded by a book that is delightfully comic and unusually bright in lines. The late Frederick G. Rankin was responsible for it and many claim it is one of his best efforts. A. Baldwin Sloane, who wrote the score, considered "The Gingerbread Man" his masterpiece, and he has written many delightful scores, all of which have been successful. The cast this season includes William Cameron, who was leading comedian at the Casino in New York for years; Ross Snow, another top-liner who has been in the cast continuously since the piece was originally presented; Wally Halsted, who is an acrobatic dancer of ability and a comedian of rare repute; Garrick Major, the best singing baritone and actor on the operatic stage, bar none; Inez Girard and Helen Keers, prima donnas; and Rose Murray, the daintiest soubrette who ever stood in two shoes. The cast is a large one in addition to these, and the chorus notable for beauty and numbers. The production has been entirely rebuilt, and the costumes are revelations of the dressmaker's art.

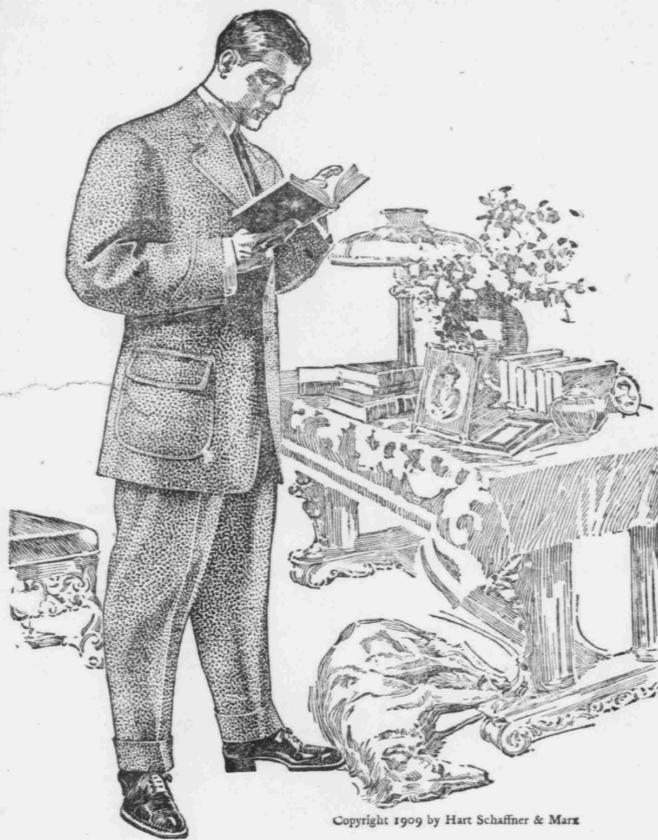

Frohman Notes.
The amazing uniform with the chestful of medals that Will West wears in "The Dollar Princess" as the lion tamer, is an exact copy of the attire which Sir George Stanley, the great English circus man, used to wear in the ring. Stanley has been called the English Barnum, but the late P. T. in his wildest dreams never conceived of anything like Stanley's uniform.

Charles Frohman issues the statement that if a dramatic version of any of Leonard Merrick's novels is offered, the offer is quite without authorization. Mr. Merrick is the author of a series of stage stories now in great vogue in England, which are being adapted to the stage in collaboration by the author and Michael Morton. Mr. Frohman will control the producing rights of the plays resulting from this collaboration.

Kyrle Bellew has accomplished a hitherto unparalleled feat. He has taken his leading lady, Gladys Hanson, to speak her lines in "The Buller of Bridges" without a trace of Southern accent. Off the stage Miss Hanson has the soft Georgian drawl in its most extreme form. Her home is in Atlanta. Mr. Bellew declines to take the credit for this extraordinary triumph over linguistic habit to himself. He says it illustrates Miss Hanson's unusually deep power of dramatic portrayal and is the only case of the kind that he has ever heard of.

Maude Adams has been hailed with many names of praise but not until recently as an "Evangelist." The editor of the Detroit News has, however, now given her this title, saying: "Miss Maude Adams is a traveling evangelist of the pure and tender and true in human life, and no one could go out from her great meetings without the thrill of refreshed ideals and eyes a little clearer for the seeing of the deep beauties possible in the life of every home. Maude Adams has made thousands upon thousands of husbands look twice at their wives to see if they had not overlooked a Maggie Wylie, and she has made thousands of wives look at their husbands to see if they have been the best inspiration to their John Shands."

OBJECTS OF ASSOCIATED CHARITIES

Regarding the Associated Charities, what the society is for, and what is being done to assist Pensacola's poor, General Secretary Chas. P. Hall yesterday said:

"Because of the fact that the work of this organization is not understood by the larger part of the city's residents, it has seemed wise that some statement should be made of its principles and its methods of work. Many in the city doubtless know that we do relief work, but do not know that we do any work other than that. Others know that we have a visiting nurse but do not know what her work really is. Still others know that we keep impostors off the streets, but think of our work only in that light, and some there are who think of us as a persecuting institution because this very work is done and they know nothing of our other work.

"Now the effectiveness of the work done is largely determined by the co-operation of the citizens, and their co-operation depends on their intelligent appreciation of what we want to do, and what we are doing; therefore this statement of principles, methods and plans is made for you to whom this organization is a protection and an opportunity.

Central Office Necessary.
"We have an office at 325 Brent building because we must have a known central office to which all applicants can come. We have trained workers there from eight in the morning until six at night who are at the call of any citizen knowing of a case of distress. They make prompt investigation of all cases referred to them; they give emergency aid when necessary; they study each case and determine the best plan to make the family or individual self-sustaining, and enlist all possible agencies and influence in carrying it out.

"These trained workers also serve the public as charity consultants prepared at all times to confer with any one who is dealing with the poor whether it be the clergyman, the physician, the school teacher, the business man, or the private individual who desires to do wisely and well that which he does not wish publicity given to. To this end it is building up a very valuable system of case records which are always at the service of any one interested in poor families or individuals.

Better Corrective Measures.
"It is the aim of this organization to promote the better corrective and preventive measures in dealing with poverty and disease, the punishment of offenders against the law and to aid in the establishment of the highest sanitary standards in the care of homes, institutions, and individuals. Especially is it the aim to do all possible to stamp out tuberculosis, or consumption, as it is popularly called. The services of the trained nurse in visiting the homes of the poor and the sick who need care and instruction in how to care for themselves, and the prevention of danger from infection in cases of tuberculosis and typhoid, particularly are at the call of real need at all times, and will doubtless achieve much in the realization of our principles and the reduction of the number of deaths from these diseases.

"This and other statements of our work and aims which will frequently appear in this paper, together with the reports of the work done, such as recently appeared on the occasion of our annual meeting will show the citizens of this community how they may directly or indirectly render telling aid in cases of individual distress; remove those corrective or preventive measures calculated to remove the larger causes of misery existing in our midst; and help to do away with the dreadful scourge of tuberculosis with its consequent suffering and distress."
