A LOST CHORD.

Seated one day at the organ,
I was weary and ill at ease,
And my fingers wandered idly
Over the noisy keys.

I do not know what I was playing,
Or what I was dreaming then;
But I struck one chord of music,
Like the sound of a great amen.

It flooded the crimson twilight,
Like the close of an angel's psalm,
And it lay on my fevered spirit
With a touch of infinite calm.

It quieted pain and sorrow,
Like love overcoming strife;
It seemed the harmonious echo
From our discordant life.

It linked all perplexed meanings
Into one perfect peace,
And trembled away into silence
As if it were loath to cease.

I have sought, but I seek it vainly,
That one lost chord divine,
Which came from the soul of the organ,
And entered into mine.

It may be that death's bright angel
Will speak in that chord again,
It may be that only in heaven
I shall hear that grand amen.

The music sung by the choir on Sunday at the First M. AN ITCHING PALM

No Cure for It. Other Forms of Itching Preferable.
There is no cure for an itching palm—the money hand. Even psoriasis, the new skin discovery, cannot help it. But when it comes to eczema, the most annoying of itching skin troubles, psoriasis will stop the itching at once and cure the worst cases in a few days. So with hives, rash, scabies, split toes, piles, and scaly scalp, all of which are different forms of eczema, accompanied by severe itching and caused by imperfect digestion and careless diet.

Psoriasis comes in two-dollar jars, but fifty cents' worth will answer in curing any of the diseases mentioned. It can be had of any druggist. The Crystal Pharmacy makes a specialty of it.
That results are immediate will be amply demonstrated overnight by the use of the experimental sample which the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York City, will send free by mail, in plain wrapper, to any one who will write for it.

For Catarrh

Medicine Free in Every Case Where it Fails to Relieve.
Neglect or pessimism, we believe, is the greatest enemy the public has to contend with when applied to the loss or recovery of health. Practically every case of consumption might have been cured if hope had been maintained and at the first symptom of the disease. Until the advanced stage is reached consumption is curable. Catarrh is responsible, we believe, for many cases of consumption. It is about catarrh we want to talk to you. We want every one to try this medicine at our risk. There are no conditions attached to our offer. We put the user under no obligation to us whatever.

The medicine we want you to try is Rexall Mucu-Tone. It is a catarrh remedy that goes direct to the seat of trouble. It is carried by the blood to every part of the system. It purifies and enriches the blood, tones up the mucous cells and brings about a condition of health and strength that tends to prevent the germs of consumption from getting a start. Besides this, Rexall Mucu-Tone is a wonderful appetizer, digestive aid and flesh builder. Its good effects are often felt from the very first dose. It is one of the largest and most satisfactory selling medicines that we have ever had anything to do with.

We know so much of the great good that it has done we personally back it up with our reputation and money which fact should be ample guarantee to satisfy anybody. Rexall Mucu-Tone comes in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. We urge you to try it. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Pensacola only at our store—The Rexall Store, The Crystal Pharmacy, Brent Building.

der a little over the few simple rules of etiquette for card parties.

The success or failure of a card party depends, more than that of any other sort of entertainment, upon the guests themselves. And although the laws they should observe are, in a nutshell, all obtained in a generous reading of the good old golden rule, yet they are often forgotten or ignored. Let us hope that they are just forgotten and that a little gentle jogging of the memory will recall them.

In the first place, remember you are not playing a game of solitaire. Of course, you want to enjoy yourself, but forget card party the only safe and sure way to do this is to try to help the players about you to have a good time.

A story is told of a well known society hostess who was one night giving such a dinner party. Because of the brilliancy of the company gathered she was using some almost priceless wine glasses. While talking to her the guest at her right inadvertently touched one, it toppled to the floor and of course it was shattered in a thousand pieces. The hostess smiled. "Don't apologize," she said, lightly, "these glasses are so fragile. The merest touch—there, I've broken one, too. So gracefully had she purposely toppled her own bit of priceless crystal to the floor that her action had seemed quite as careless as that of her guest—and, indeed, he never knew that just to save his feelings his hostess had smashed a second of her treasures."

The spirit of this hostess is the spirit that every one should have at a card party. We might not add to our popularity as guests, to be sure, if we went about smashing china and glass in other people's houses just to make our careless or awkward lunch or dinner partners feel at ease. But a game of cards won or lost costs our hostess nothing, and many an awkward situation can be saved if the good player, whose partner needs or forgets to return a trump, makes light of the mistake.

The player who criticizes others' plays, who looks annoyed when her partner makes a poor lead, who disgustedly says she never could play such a hand, or who ought to amend her ways or else, somehow, by hook or by crook, find a plausible excuse for staying at home. Of course, to a scientific bridge player, the partner who doesn't know "how to play an echo" from the echo in a seashell, who plays through dummy's weakness when she ought to play up to it, or who doubts just to see what will happen—such a partner is a sore and grievous trial. But all you can do is to say—to yourself—with Cervantes, "Patience, and shuffle the cards." To act annoyed at a partner's ignorance of the rules of the game would be out of place; to criticize her playing would be unparliamentary.

As for the light-hearted, happy-go-lucky, she who invariably forgets trumps, who suddenly giggles and asks whether "we're playing bridge or euchre," who looks bored when her partner makes a good play—in brief, the player who doesn't try, she is no better in her conduct than the one who errs in the other extremes.

Next of the pitfalls always ready to catch the unwary card player come the prizes. The player who doesn't play a good game, and the player who plays too good a game; the player who insists on taking it lightly, or even the player who takes it seriously, may be forgiven. But the player who works for a prize is bound to contend with the prize. Some persons consider the loss of a possible prize as they would the loss of some precious possession, and they literally make life a burden for the partners who are unfortunate enough to oppose them. It is just for this reason that some hostesses give a favor instead of prizes to each guest. Then there are no glowering and disappointed aspirants for honors, no hurt and offended partners who have helped to "lose."

The whole, it is the card player who always has a good time, whether she wins or loses; who takes defeat, like success, with a smile; who plays carefully and wins occasionally; who is willing to help the player unfamiliar with the game, and who never, never criticizes, who is a favorite at card parties.

Although much depends on the guests at a card party, something does depend on the hostess herself. She ought to invite persons that she knows will be congenial and she ought to cut from her list of guests any one who, either by reason of her flippancy or seriousness, makes her own self a bore.

Now should the hostess entertain a more elaborate card party than she can manage. In a small house or apartment three or four tables comfortably placed in the two or three available rooms, plenty of air and light and refreshments, daintily served bring much better results than more pretentious plans only half accomplished.

As for the tally cards, they can be as elaborate as your pocket book will let you buy. But the plain little cards with gilt edges answer the purpose just as well as those that are hand painted and, of course, they are less expensive. But however you economize, even if you serve just lemonade and keep the tallies on slips of paper, do have clean playing cards. In the days when these were hand-made painted bits of ivory there was some reason for using them for a life time and then passing them on to one's children and grandchildren. But in these days of two packs for a quarter there is no excuse for the tattered assortment of frayed and frizzled cards one sometimes meets with.

You can afford an Edison Phonograph

The price places it within reach of all. No family is too poor to have an Edison Phonograph. No family is too rich to enjoy it. Nothing that money can buy will furnish a greater range of amusement for every dollar invested.

Mr. Edison intended that his Phonograph should be within reach of everyone. He wishes to see it in every home. Prices range from $12.50 to $125.00. No one can buy a Phonograph cheaper than you can. No one should pay more for it.

The Edison Phonograph in your home would give it something that it now lacks—entertainment of the best sort at a small cost, always available and suited to everyone.

Do not forget these things. Remember that they are found only in the Edison Phonograph, because no other sound-reproducing machine is so perfect and so faultless. None other is made by the inventor of the Phonograph idea as the Edison Phonograph is.

AN EXCEPTIONALLY FINE RESIDENCE PROPERTY THAT IS NOW BEING PUT ON THE MARKET—ALL CITY IMPROVEMENTS TO BE MADE.

The sub-division of the Dallas tract, adjoining North Hill, into what is now known as North Hill Highlands has created a great deal of interest. The Owen-Clark Company, which is handling this North Hill Highlands property, advise that inside of the next 15 months that tract will be supplied with city water, electric lights, six-foot concrete sidewalks, graded streets, and street car facilities. It is the intention to run a line from the end of the Kupfrian's park line to connect with the North Hill line, thereby making a loop which will include all of the North Hill Highlands tract.

The location of these fine building lots, the improvements which are contemplated and the fact that white people only will live there, makes them particularly desirable property.

President John E. Stillman of the Tri-County Fair Association yesterday appointed the following as a reception committee in connection with the fair: Frank L. Maves, W. B. Crawford, Mayor Frank Reilly, J. S. Reese, Dr. W. F. Fordham and W. A. Blount, Jr.

A number of prominent men are expected to be in Pensacola during the fair, making it necessary for the association to have a special reception committee.
