AMUSEMENTS. At the Orpheum This Week. The Orpheum is putting on a great show this week. The bill opens with Miss Giddie Beach, who is doing a clever singing and toe dancing act.

IMGA. A bloodhound has the sense of smell developed to a high degree, and is enabled to perform wonders, while "Imga" at the Orpheum, has a highly developed and exceedingly active mentality and a sense which enables her to discern the names of persons in the audience who have asked questions the question and the answer. She has of recent years bent her energies toward the mental phase of her psychological studies and has accomplished wonders. She was in Nashville seven years ago, giving demonstrations in experimental psychology, sometimes called hypnotism, and has letters from all the prominent physicians in Nashville attesting her wonderful powers.

As her success in this line was marked, so her success in the higher branch of her studies has been even more so, and many are the requests made to Miss Giddie Beach, of the Orpheum, for private audiences with the woman of the hour.

Imga will appear at the Orpheum all this week and will be pleased to answer the lightest question pertaining to your love affair, business, health or domestic. She will also locate stolen articles. Don't fail to let her help you.

Last Night's Show. A man of mystery, clothed in flowing Oriental robes, who reads the thoughts of those about him and tells of wonderful things he has done in India is the central character of the now celebrated play, "The Servant in the House," seen at the opera house last night by a large audience.

This man enters the home of his own brother, a clergyman in the church of England, disguised as a servant. He comes armed with letters of introduction that secure for him the position of butler. Before the end of the play the clergyman and his wife appoint him master of the household and obey his slightest word. They bow to his authority even before he tells them he is the famous bishop of Benares, builder of a mighty church in that Holy City of the far East.

VISITOR HURT BY CAR HE DID NOT SEE COMING

M. W. WILLIAMS, FROM PONCE D'LEON, FLA., ATTENDING FEDERAL COURT, HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

Passengers crowding an East Hill car at 8:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon closed their eyes to keep from witnessing what they thought would be a bloody sight. They thought, from the looks of things, that a white stranger would be ground to pieces under car wheels. As it was, the stranger, who is W. M. Williams, of Ponce DeLeon, Fla., was badly shocked and the running board of a car grazed his thigh, scalding the skin and producing a painful but by no means a serious injury. His wound was dressed at a nearby drug store, and at last accounts he was getting along well.

Mr. Williams is here in attendance upon the session of the United States court. At the hour named yesterday he started to leave an East Hill car at the intersection of Wright and Tarragona streets. At the west side of Tarragona street there is a turnout where the double Palafox street tracks starts. It is at this point that the cars usually pass one another. Williams stepped from the northbound car directly in front of the approaching southbound car, and did not see the approaching car, and was not aware of its presence until someone grabbed hold of his arm and pulled him out of the way of almost certain death. As it was, the car grazed his thigh. Passengers on both cars who saw him and thought sure he would be killed or badly hurt began calling to him, rather confusing the countryman.

VANDALISM ON PART OF BOYS IS WORKED UP

NAMES OF EIGHTEEN ALLEGED MISCHIEF-MAKERS IN POSSESSION OF MARSHAL SANDERS AND POLICE CHIEF WILL LOCK THEM UP.

One night last week a crowd of boys on mischief bent besmeared the walls and steps of the Classical School building on North Palafox street, with black ink and mud, and made such a mess of it that a complaint was made to the police department. The marshal and his associates arrived at once to work up the case and at a late hour last night Marshal Sanders said that he had the names of 18 boys who are alleged to have been in the plot to besmear the school building and that he intended today to start to corral them all, and to have them tried in the recorder's court. It is a case where police interference is necessary, the marshal said, because an example should be made of youngsters who would be guilty of such acts. The marshal added that the names of boys of very prominent families in the city were on the list which he carried, and he was really surprised to find the names of some young men on the list. He said that he would gather them all in during the day if he could find them, and if possible would have them all appear in the recorder's court for trial Wednesday afternoon. They will all be tried jointly.

This is the second time that vandalism of this sort has occurred. Some months ago, in addition to besmearing walls with ink and red paint, the windows in one of the school buildings were broken and much damage was the outcome. At that time the report reached the police too late for effective work, but in this latest case the marshal got report of the alleged acts of the crowd the following morning, the school professor being the complainant.

There are strict state statutes bearing upon the matter of defacing school and public property, but as yet it has not been determined whether the crowd will be turned over to the state authorities or simply tried and made amenable if convicted in the city court to fine and imprisonment or either one of the two. The marshal is trying to have the boys convicted and then have sentences suspended on condition that they scrub off the ink stains, even if they have to place a coat of white paint on the whole building.

LOCAL INTEREST IN ALABAMA ELECTION Local interest in the voting in Alabama yesterday was at fever heat, and telephones in The Journal office kept up a constant jingle, beginning before dark and lasting for four hours or more, all desiring "the latest from Alabama." The Journal gave it to them, and when the decisive bulletins arrived, which was shortly after 9 o'clock, the interest began to die out. Everywhere a Journal man was seen in the streets inquiring were made as to what "had been heard late from Alabama."

A very significant feature of the local interest was that maintained by scores of commercial men in the hotels. They were of the opinion that the amendment would be defeated, but the majority was a surprise to the most of them. Various organizations, clubs, business houses, hotels, depots, lodge rooms, and even the theatres were supplied with The Journal's bulletins. Even long distance telephone tolls were paid from some of the outlying towns for the purpose of hearing from the results. People of all classes in the city were really highly interested in the result.

U. S. COURT IS IN SESSION FEDERAL TRIBUNAL CONVENED YESTERDAY AND CRIMINAL AND CIVIL DOCKETS WERE SOUNDED

With Judge W. B. Sheppard presiding, the November term of the United States court for the northern district of Florida was convened in Pensacola at 10 a. m. yesterday. The civil and criminal dockets were sounded, and the grand and petit juries were organized. Benj. H. Thomas was elected foreman of the grand jury, and that body started in with its important work at the afternoon session, but no bills were returned. It is possible some return will be made this morning when the court is convened.

There were a number of vacancies in the petit jury venire and a special venire was ordered, returnable in the afternoon. The marshal made his return at 3 o'clock and the court is now fully organized and ready for work. Cases for the jury, continued from previous terms, will be started today. Several cases of alleged misuse of mails, of alleged pilfering from mails, etc., are docketed and will be examined into by the jury.

Don't Slight a Good Friend. "If ever I need a cough medicine again I know what to get," declares Mrs. A. L. Alley, of Deale, Me.
