HORSEMAN'S EXPLOIT

Galloped a Hundred Miles In Less Than Ten Hours.

ONLY THREE STOPS WERE MADE

Harry K. Vingut Won $1,000 Wager at Belmont Park In Half the Time He Said He Could—Rode Six Ponies and Barely Escaped Lightning, Bolt Shattering Pole as He Passed.

To decide a wager of $1,000 made with Edward L. Norton, a broker, Harry K. Vingut of the New York Racket and Tennis club, a horse owner, rode 100 miles on horseback in 9 hours and 9 minutes at Belmont park the other afternoon, says the New York Herald. Under the terms of the bet he had twenty-four hours in which to complete the journey. Vingut used six ponies, mostly quarter and half breeds, and galloped his mounts all of the way. The performance of the young man is considered by horsemen as a demonstration of much endurance.

Members of several New York clubs, themselves with money wagered on the feat, were not only treated to the spectacle of a man giving his best efforts to win a bet, but were witnesses of a storm which came near turning the contest into a tragedy.

Vingut was riding past the three-quarter pole, galloping freely on a fresh horse, when a bolt of lightning struck the pole and shattered it. He was only ten feet away. He clapped his knees to the sides of the plunging horse, caught him before the animal could start into a run, wiped his hand across his face as though dazed and then continued to the point where his anxious friends were waiting for him. He swept by them with a wave of his hand to indicate that he was unharmed and then passed around the curve.

Mr. Norton, who watched after Vingut at the conclusion of the feat, declared:

"I lost $1,000, but I am mighty glad Vingut beat me. It was a game struggle. I am as tickled over the result as though he had paid me the money."

Vingut entered the saddle at 4:42 o'clock in the morning. His timers were Edward L. Norton, E. A. Thompson and L. E. Larocque. Others who witnessed the feat were August Belmont, Philip Brown, W. G. Street, E. Livingston, Jr.; E. La Montagne and Mr. Gorman, the superintendent of the track.

One of the ponies covered thirty miles at intervals. Mr. Vingut rode continuously for forty-three and one-half miles on one relay. It took the rider 13 hours 39 minutes from the time he took his first mount to complete the hundred miles. He was on the ground three times. While at breakfast he took time to shave himself. When he dropped to the ground upon completing the sixty-ninth circuit of the mile and a half course he said:

"I'm glad that last mile is over. Let's see, it's a hundred miles and a half over. I have done no riding in six years. Figure to yourself the mood I am going to be in when I come out of bed tomorrow morning."

Vingut was dined by Mr. Morton and his friends at the Racket and Tennis club at night. He had had a rub down, plenty of arnica and witch hazel and appeared as fresh as any of the four men who returned with him from the park in an automobile.

There was plenty of light in the sky when Vingut and the timers stepped from the clubhouse and went out on the track. Vingut wore riding breeches and a flannel shirt. His head was bared. A half dozen ponies, some of them saddled, were waiting at the start. Vingut selected one, vaulted into the saddle and waited for the word. The pony felt a touch of steel and bounded away like the wind. He was full of run, and Vingut had to restrain him for a circuit or two.

There was more or less monotony in the first quarter of the century. Vingut changed his mounts frequently. If he was tired when he had ridden twenty-five and a half miles he did not look it. He said that he was going to eat a cow, he felt so hungry, and the manner in which he made a steak, chops and eggs disappear indicated his hearty appetite. He had stopped at 6:50 o'clock and when he concluded breakfast decided that he needed a shave. This operation he performed quickly and then stood around to talk to his friends.

It was 8:10 o'clock when Vingut was again in the saddle. He covered forty-three and one-half miles before he took another rest, at 12:35 o'clock, when he had luncheon, and he was hungry again.

Vingut figured on three hours to cover the thirty-one miles remaining, and he did it in less than that. He started on his last ride at 2:45 o'clock, in a heavy storm and over a sloppy track. His clothing was wet through when he finished, at 5:21 o'clock, completing 13 hours and 39 minutes from the time the start was made, including the rests. Vingut lost fourteen pounds.

PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD.

A BOON TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

The most improved method to free a house of large or small roaches is to use the contents of a box of "Peterman's Roach Food" at one time. Shake it on joints so some of it will penetrate and remain to keep the premises continuously free. Roaches eat it as food; it is the most destructive remedy on this earth to them, and it will not scatter them to other places to live and multiply.

BEDBUGS—"Peterman's Discovery" (quicksilver)—Bedbugs take it up in the circulation when going over where it is brushed on lightly. It's invaluable if brushed on beds when apart, and on back of picture frames, mouldings, &c. It will not rust or harm furniture or bedding. Odorless, and not poisonous.

"Peterman's Discovery" (liquid)—In flexible handy cans for cracks, walls, mattresses, &c. Odorless non-explosive.

"Peterman's Ant Food"—A strong powder to kill and drive away ants, also water beetles or black beetles, in one night.

"Peterman's Rat-mouse Food," ready for use makes rats or mice wild; they will leave and no return.

Take no other, as time may be even more important than money.

Pennsylvania's Educational Novelty

State Zoologist Surface of Pennsylvania is preparing to send to each county in the state a collection of snakes found in Pennsylvania, with a chart showing the food of the various serpents, the ramifications of the snake family and the geographical situation of the various species, says the Philadelphia Record. The snakes will be used for educational purposes, so that the teachers and pupils may be able to recognize the varieties from their appearance and know whether they are poisonous or not.

SERVING AT DINNER.

Everything at table is passed at the left hand of the person seated and not at the right hand.

A servant should not ask a guest to have a second portion of any dish, but should bring it at once if asked.

A tablespoon and a large fork should be placed by a servant in the entree dishes previous to handling them.

Vegetables should be handed by a servant a second time at a family dinner, but only once at a dinner party unless specially requested.

When a large dinner party is given the guests should be helped in the order in which they are seated, commencing with the lady seated at the host's right hand.

In the family circle the mistress of the house is served first, then the daughters according to their ages, the master of the house and the sons according to their ages.

When a fork or spoon is asked for it should not be handed on a waiter, but placed on the right or left hand, as required. When a tumbler or other dish is asked for it is handed on a small waiter.

How to Stain Floors.

Here is a good recipe for staining floors and also for staining around the carpet in a bedroom: First get the floor perfectly clean. If there are cracks between boards fill them, then mix linseed oil and burnt umber together, a tablespoonful to a pint of linseed oil. Stir it thoroughly. If you wish it darker, put in more umber; if lighter, use more oil. Put it on the floor with a clean paint brush. Rub it evenly. After a few days, when dry, put on a second coat. Try a little of the stain on a piece of wood first to get the color you wish. When it gets soiled or dusty mop it off with a little warm borax water, which will clean it nicely and not hurt the stain. You can retouch it now and then if it needs it. This finish resembles a hardwood floor.

Children in Pain

never cry as do children who are suffering from hunger. Such is the cause of all baby's who cry and are treated for sickness, when they really are suffering from hunger. This is caused from their food not being assimilated but devoured by worms. A few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge will cause them to cease crying and begin to thrive at once. Give it a trial. REAL HILL FOR AUTOS

Experience of Glidden Tourists In Climbing It.

MULES PULLED UP SOME OF THEM

But the Automobilists Were Charged $7 a Hitch—So Farmer Schifferdecker of the Mohawk Valley, Owner of the Mules, Does Not Care Very Much How This Year's Crops Come Out.

Of the many difficulties that beset the members of the Glidden automobile tour recently ended at Bretton Woods, N. H., that which hurt the worst was the experience a high hill in the Mohawk valley gave them, says the New York Times.

The hill was so steep that all machines which did not have their gasoline tanks full to the brim could not climb it at all. The power giving stuff hugged the end of the tank which was lowest, and the igniter at the high end was without anything to ignite. Some machines got halfway up and others three-quarters of the distance. There they stopped, the chugs becoming weaker and weaker. Then there was a turning around and a return to the bottom by the plain old gravity method. This condition continued from a little after sunup until midafternoon. It was serious. The other roads that might have been taken at the eastward were too far either north or south to attempt to travel them then.

Conferences were held at the foot of the hill and every few feet up to the highest point attainable. What to do none knew. Suggestions were a drug. Everybody was angry. At last a machine was commissioned to return to the nearest village and buy up every pint of gasoline in the place. This was productive of enough fuel to send one of the most powerful cars to the top.

"I wondered when you'd git here. I smelled you ever since mornin'," drawled a native from a place on the fence near the summit.

The tourists looked and became several degrees hotter when the man added:

"I been laffin' here all day to see you fellers try ter git up my hill. I figgered you couldn't do it—leastways, not many of you. Why, neighbors, thet hill has stood here fer a thousan' years and more. I've lived right here in this house all my life, and I've seen more people lose their tempers over that hill than I cud ever count. My father seen the same thing all his life, and his father afore him, and I don't know how many o' my folks before that.

"We Schifferdeckers have seen many a good horse go winded tryin' to git up. Of course, we didn't like to see that, but we don't care much about these automobiles, becuz it don't hurt 'em. We kinder think it's fun to see you fellers rip and tear and sweat and swear 'cus you can't get up"—

Van Rensselaer Cruger, who had navigated the machine up the hill, said something intended to impress the farmer' with the seriousness of the situation.

"Why, what's the trouble?" said Squire Schifferdercker. "You seem to be gettin' excited."

"You'd be excited if you had been trying all day to get up this hill," suggested Mr. Cruger.

Mr. Schifferdecker, who had an adornment about his throat and chin such as John A. Dix once wore, dug his hands into it in surprise. He was asked if he could suggest a solution.

"Well, I might help you out," said Mr. Schifferdecker, slowly.

"How? Tell us quick. It'll soon be night, and we want to get away from this country before then."

"Well, I might put my mules to work," replied Mr. Schifferdecker.

"Are they any good?" he was asked. "Can they haul us to the top from where we get stuck?"

Mr. Schifferdecker thought they could. They had done it before, he said. He was asked to try it immediately. Mr. Schifferdecker ambled off to the barn and brought out three lusty mules hitched to a crosstree with two huge hooks in it. He also had a rope. The contrivance had beyond a doubt been fixed up for just such an emergency.

"You are sure you want me to do this work?" he inquired.

He was assured that there was no doubt of it, and then he delayed just enough more to exact $7 for every machine he was to haul up. There were remarks that it was robbery and a holdup and a piratical performance. but no one wanted to get the old man in a contrary mood, so these remarks were made when he was not near.

The Schifferdecker mules toiled up Schifferdecker hill at $7 a toll until the task was done. Now Mr. Schifferdecker doesn't care much whether the potato crop is good, bad or indifferent.

WORKS WONDERS

A WONDERFUL COMPOUND—
CURES PILES, ECZEMA, SKIN ITCHING, SKIN ERUPTIONS CUTS AND BRUISES.

Doan's Ointment is the best skin treatment, and the cheapest, because so little is required to cure. It cures piles after years of torture. It cures all skin itching. It cures skin eruptions. It heals cuts, bruises, scratches and abrasions without leaving a scar. It cures permanently. Pensacola testimony proves it.

H. E. Powell, machinist by trade residing on West Cervantes St., says: "I was a sufferer from itching piles for more than seven years, and nothing I could get seemed to help me. I suffered both day and night and it was impossible for me to get to sleep a night on account of the terrible suffering. When I read about Doan's Ointment I thought I would try it and procured a box at Sidney Kahn's drug store, corner of Romana and Palafox streets. It cured me completely. I cannot praise it highly enough, and have recommended it to more than a score of friends during the past three months, and I know of one friend who used it for eczema on his hands and he has since told me that it cured him promptly and effectively. I unhesitatingly recommend a trial of Doan's Ointment to anyone suffering from any itching skin disease. I feel confident that they will not be disappointed in the results obtained."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United States.

DYSPEPSIA

"Having taken your wonderful "Cascarets" for three months and being entirely cured of stomach catarrh and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to "Cascarets" for their wonderful composition. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies but without avail and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year."

Beware of "Motor Spine!"

"When you choose your driver make sure he isn't afflicted with 'chauffeur's spine,'" says a woman automobilist recently returned to New York from London, where that disease of mixed name is prevalent, says the New York Press. The fact is a man with motor driver's spine is worse than one with average speed madness. His nervous trouble sometimes prevents proper attention to brakes. One driver who recently wrecked a car says "motor spine" somehow made him so dizzy he couldn't see. In speed madness there is some chance to slow down, but with a "motor spine" it's all get up and goodby. Still, the "motor spine" may prove a fine excuse (or an excuse from a fine) to the fellow who has run down a wayfarer who is disagreeable enough to object.

DRESS HINTS.

A piece of soft flannel is better than a brush for removing dust from silk.

Cut steel buttons may be polished with powdered pumice stone slightly moistened and applied with a soft brush or cloth.

A new silk petticoat can be made to last twice its usual length of time if an underruffle of sateen be made and placed on the inside of the silk flounce at the edge.

Remember in cutting out a bodice that all the portions which are liable to stretch, such as sleeves, yokes and collars, should be cut on a lengthwise fold of the material.

A short sleeve or a long sleeve with a fullness above the elbow is always more satisfactory when made over a tight fitting lining, as the lining holds the fullness in its proper place.

To make a walking skirt the right length—that is, just to clear the ground without appearing too short—measure the person to be fitted from the waist line to the ground and then deduct an inch and a half.

Chafing Dish Utensils.

Useful utensils for the chafing dish are a wooden spoon and a measuring cup of glass marked into halves, quarters and thirds. A glass mug is more of an ornament than a tin one. A metal tray, too, is important—one that is large enough to hold not only the chafing dish, but the spoons, salt, pepper, etc., used for seasoning. The tray will prevent any danger of burning from the heat of the lamp or from alcohol that may be spilled. Glass and porcelain jars in numerous sizes and with tight covers are very useful for the chafing dish closet. Very good toast may be made over the chafing dish. For this purpose a little wire toaster covered with an asbestus mat is made either with or without a handle. The toaster is placed on the frame directly over the flame.

Eczema In a Child.

For a child who is afflicted with eczema you will find nothing more soothing and harmless than this cosmetic jelly, which is inexpensive and most easily made: Seven ounces of rosewater and thirty grains of gum tragacanth; let soak overnight, strain through fine muslin and add half an ounce of alcohol, half an ounce of glycerin and a pinch of boric acid. This may be applied to the entire body of the child, and when the skin is rough or the little face smarting from the wind it will be found the greatest comfort.

FIGURES IN GIRL'S EYE.

The Numerals 22,4 Plainly Marked on the Cornea.

The Petit Parisien publishes soberly the details of a remarkable story of a child one of whose eyes is distinctly marked with three numerals and a punctuation point, says a special Paris cable dispatch to the New York Sun. The strange tale comes from Pointe du Finisterre, where is the half forgotten Islet of Tudy, which is named in honor of the saint who is venerated throughout Bretagne.

On the islet live the family of a fisherman of the name of Le Guen, consisting of the rugged father and mother and a daughter, Marie, four years old. The parents have had much sorrow through the loss of two older children and have exercised much care in raising Marie. She has a transparent skin and eyes as blue as the sky where far off it seems confluent with the sea. Marie has been celebrated for some time for a distance of ten leagues around her home, visitors daily going to the fisherman's thatched hut and looking on her as a veritable phenomenon.

Graven on the corner of her left eye below the pupil in a horizontal line are the figures 22,4. They are clearly visible, as is also the well formed comma. The other eye is unmarked. Doctors and oculists have examined the child.

The Petit Parisien asked Dr. Gueval of Pont l'Abbe to examine her to determine the cause of the abnormality. He declined to give a formal opinion, but suggested three explanations—that it was hereditary through nerve diseased ancestors, which neurologists must determine; that it is the stigmata of a vegetable growth or that it is due to medical tattooing with nitrate of silver, necessitated by an affection of the eye in early infancy. The parents declare that the girl never underwent an operation.

Druggist de Bizac, who has closely studied the case, believes that the figures are formed by strictions of the eye itself. He cites in support of this that the figures are not visible when looking at the eye straight in front, but only when looking at a certain angle.

The child is coming to Paris for examination. Her sight does not suffer from her peculiarity. The Petit Parisien records as a coincidence, which it declares is worth noting, that a fishing boat at the neighboring port of Douarnenez carries the number 22,4.

Oilcloth.

When oilcloth begins to lose its shiny surface it can be improved in appearance and made to last much longer by being varnished with glue. Wash the oilcloth thoroughly and let it dry. At night when the traffic of the day is done go over it with a piece of flannel dipped in glue water. Choose a nice dry day for this, and then the glue will be quite hard by morning, and the oilcloth will look like new. The glue water must be prepared some time before it is needed by putting a small quantity of glue in a pint or so of water and letting it stand on the stove till dissolved.
