DESIGN FOR PLAID OR CHECK SILK.

A brown and white check silk was used for the model pictured, the bodice of the gown showing little revers and small inset pieces of plain brown silk. Buttons covered with brown silk were also used as ornamentation. An original feature of the gown was the way in which the check was used on the skirt, the narrow front panel being cut bias and the rest of the skirt straight. Two bias bands were used to finish about the bottom.

golden wedding. Surrounded by their children and grandchildren they received their friends who came by the score to wish this popular couple much happiness, and many future anniversaries.

Fifty years ago, they stood together on a starlit night, in the early spring time, and received their friends at their wedding reception, who gathered to wish the bride, so fair and sweet, and the stalwart young groom, happiness and long life.

That wedding reception was given at the home of Col. James G. Gilford, in Hayneville, Ala., where Mr. and Mrs. Cook were united in marriage by Rev. Wm. Rice.

The bridal pair were assisted in entertaining their friends by their attendants: Mr. Will Robinson, and Miss Fannie Rudolph, and Mr. Gerard Cook.

FEW KNOW THIS.

A well-known specialist has stated that Kidney and Bladder Troubles of all kinds are in nearly every instance readily relieved by taking a few doses of the following simple home-made mixture:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. The above is a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. These ingredients can be obtained at any good pharmacy, and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle. Victims of Kidney, Bladder and Urinary diseases of any kind should not hesitate to make this prescription up and try it. It comes highly recommended and doesn't cost much to prepare. If not troubled now, save this for future use.

and Miss Fannie Hobert. The bride, who was little more than sixteen years of age, wore a wedding gown of white more silk, a long full tulle veil almost encircled her form and her flowers were orange blossoms. The groom was dressed in the prevailing fashion of the day, which was most picturesque.

Last night they stood together in the beautifully decorated home, the bride of fifty years ago, gowned in a costume of black net over grey silk, silver threads sparkling in her hair, where the wreath of orange blossoms had rested, the face none the less sweet, for neither bride nor groom are anything yet but "young" people, and the "groom" is already planning for the time when the diamond wedding celebration will be the order of things.

This time the receiving party included Mr. and Mrs. Cook's children and grandchildren. The children were: Mr. and Mrs. Nat Cook, of Montgomery; Mr. and Mrs. Cole, and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Sheppard, Miss Lizzie Cook, and Miss Jennie Cook.

The Confederate Veterans, of which Mr. Cook is a member, marched in a body to the home of their comrade where they were cordially received.

The home, on the corner of Gadsden and Alcaniz streets, was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Quantities of flowers of every description, trailing vines of southern smilax, potted plants, ferns and palms were artistically arrayed about the place.

The presents received were among the handsomest ever seen in Pensacola, and many of them were of solid gold. Many handsome articles of solid silver lined with gold were received, and all bore ample assurance of the good wishes and hearty congratulations of Mr. and Mrs. Cook's friends.

More than five hundred invitations were issued to the reception, and it seemed as if every guest hidden came for from eight o'clock to a late hour, hundreds of guests were going and coming. A number of the schools presented the "young couple" with handsome tokens of their esteem and good wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook had their children, five in number with them on this happy occasion, and their nine grandchildren. Mr. Cook said that his "seventeen children" died with him yesterday, which number included his "adopted" children.

Refreshments were served throughout the evening and on leaving everyone expressed a desire to attend the "diamond jubilee," of this popular and charming couple.

The following cards were issued to the guests last night: Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Cook.

ARMY UNIFORMS.

Officers Must Spend $1,000 to Start and Then Keep It Up.

How would you like to be forced to invest $1,000 for clothing whether you had the money or wanted to not?

This is what an army officer holding a commission in Uncle Sam's service has to do much oftener than he likes. If he does not happen to have the ready cash (and many of them do not have it) he is forced by army regulations to buy enough clothes on credit to tog out fifteen men.

It is an army secret, but some of the lieutenants, fresh from West Point two years ago, have only recently finished paying for their first $1,000 worth of clothes. Their salvation is that their credit is good with the tailors who cater to the army officers' trade. All the uniforms are tailor made. It is nothing out of the ordinary for an army officer to be paying for his clothes on the installment plan. That is one part of the army officer's life that will probably not appear romantic—especially to the women.

But the rigid requirements make it necessary for the officer to spend a large sum of money for his clothes or suffer a penalty for not having them.

The pay of a second lieutenant is $1,040 a year. One of the first things he has to do on receiving his commission is to fit himself with clothes to meet the required regulations. In the first place, he has to have service uniforms of olive drab and khaki for summer and winter wear. There must be one kind of service while mounted and another kind while dismounted.

It requires not less than four khaki uniforms of wash goods for field service. There are trousers for use while dismounted and the riding breeches. With the service uniform go the boots, shoes, pigskin leggings, cap, service hat, saddle blanket to match uniform, leather equipment and a few other things. Then there are dress uniforms for dismounted service, with black boots and black shoes, cap, cape, overcoat, hat and helmet.

There must be two sets for summer and two sets for winter of all the different uniforms. Then come the official dress uniforms for mounted and dismounted service. With the official dress go gold shoulder knots and a belt of gold costing about $50, cap, hat, patent leather shoes and boots. Next are the white shoes and cap. Then comes the social full dress uniform for evening wear, with hat, patent leather boots and shoes, purely for social affairs.

These are not all. There must be a mess jacket, raincoat of a certain color and flannel shirts. The officers have to furnish their own horses, saddles and blankets. They have to pay their own board and for fuel and lights. They even have to buy the furnishings for their quarters. Uncle Sam only furnishes the shelter and the commission. Even the officers' trunks have to be of a regulation size. All these things mean an investment of about $2,000 at least to begin with. This is more than the first year's salary, and expenses never stop.—Columbus Dispatch.

The Ghost of Trichinopoly.

The ghost of Trichinopoly may be seen on most nights between the hours of 11 and 2 on the Tennur road. She is a most beautiful creature who walks out of the river with her clothes all wet, water dripping from her long silken tresses, and she carries in her right hand—a no, not a piece of soap or an antiquated toothbrush—merely a brass lotah. If any person attempts to approach her she merely points the forefinger of her left hand at him, and he dies! The ghost was originally one of the temple dancing girls famous all over the town for her striking beauty. The temple authorities raised objections to her bathing there and ordered her to creep out quietly at 11 every night and bathe in the river at Tennur, where no one would see her. This she did for some time, but another temple girl gave away the secret, with the result that the next night when bathing she heard the tramp of many feet and on rushing out to see what was the matter was accidentally knocked into the river and drowned by the crowd of men rushing to the riverside to see her.—Madras (India) Mail.

Formation of Natural Bridges.

It is commonly believed that natural bridges, of which the natural bridge of Virginia is the best known American example, are due to the falling in of cavern roofs, leaving only a part to span the stream which the destruction of the cavern has brought to the surface. By a study of the North Adams natural bridge Professor Cleland has been led to the conclusion that in this case at least the origin is quite different. In this case the bridge seems to be due to the solution of the limestone along a joint plane near the former course of Hudson brook. At first only a small amount of water seeped along the joint plane, but after awhile it made a channel large enough to divert the entire brook under the surface, giving rise to the bridge. Walcott had previously offered a similar theory for the natural bridge of Virginia, and Cleland concludes that, while the falling in of cavern roofs may occasionally give rise to natural bridges, the most common cause for such bridges is marble, limestone, sandstone and lava is that outlined above.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Sleep.
Now, blessings light on him that first invented this same sleep! It covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a cloak. It is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold and cold for the hot. It is the current coin that purchases all the pleasures of the world cheap and the balance that sets the king and the shepherd, the fool and the wise man, even.—Cervantes.

A Snow Image.
"Michael Angelo, to gratify the whim of a capricious patron, carved a figure of snow, expending on this perhaps as much pains as upon his immortal Moses or the imperishable dome of St. Peter's. The sculptor and the architect, the painter and the poet live in their works, which endure after them; the actor's work dies when he dies. He carves his image in snow." So wrote Lawrence Barrett.
