PROTECTING THE UNIFORM

Florida Instance Commended by the Army and Navy Register.

The Army and Navy Register says: There has occurred in Florida an incident which is worthy of special comment as another evidence of the growing appreciation of the necessity of protecting the uniform. Too much publicity can not be given such an occurrence and it very properly forms the subject, in the form of official correspondence exchanged, of a circular from the adjutant general's office at Tallahassee for the information of all persons in the military service of the state." That officer was advised by 1st Lieutenant A. E. Leslie, commanding company E, 1st infantry, of the Florida state troops, that on March 20 in the county judge's court at Live Oak, Fla., a man was convicted of "wearing part of a uniform and insignia of rank prescribed by the general regulations for the use of active militia" and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 or be confined in the county jail for a period of sixty days. Lieutenant Leslie states that the accused man was passing through the town and when arrested was wearing a pair of blue trousers with the regulation stripe of a commissioned officer. Lieutenant Leslie placed him under arrest, obtained a warrant and conducted the prosecution for the state with the result described. This is the first case prosecuted in that community and has a general interest as being a useful and suggestive precedent.

In acknowledgement of Lieutenant Leslie's action, Major General J. Clifford R. Foster, adjutant general of the state, says:

"I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 20th inst. and congratulate you upon the action taken in this case and the result obtained. It is of great importance to everyone in the military service and should be to every citizen as well that the uniform of the United States soldier should be preserved for the use of those only who are in the military service of their country and not be indiscriminately worn by unauthorized persons. The fact that it is possible for anyone to buy articles of military clothing, and that the service uniform, bearing the stamp of the quartermaster's department, is commonly sold throughout the state as a substitute for overalls is the means of cheapening the uniform and discrediting the military service generally in the eyes of the people. Fortunately, the Florida law provides a remedy which may be applied by those who are authorized to wear the uniform and appreciate the honor of doing so. It is earnestly hoped that officers at all the posts in the state and members of the regular establishment as well will follow the example which you have set them in this matter by causing the arrest and punishment of persons who violate this provision of our state law. As soon as it becomes generally known that the wearing of articles of the uniform by civilians will subject them to arrest and possibly to imprisonment, even though they have purchased the articles in question, both the sale and wearing of military clothing will be effectually checked."

This action on the part of the adjutant general of the state of Florida ought to have a wholesome effect wherever the army uniform may easily be brought into contempt by the local condition. It is indeed fortunate that the Florida law provides a remedy which should have, it is easy to imagine, a beneficial effect. The uniform should be protected in the same way as that other emblem of governmental authority and integrity, the flag, must be shielded from desecration.

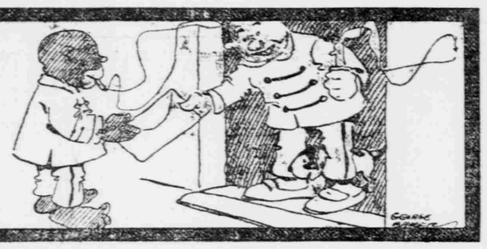
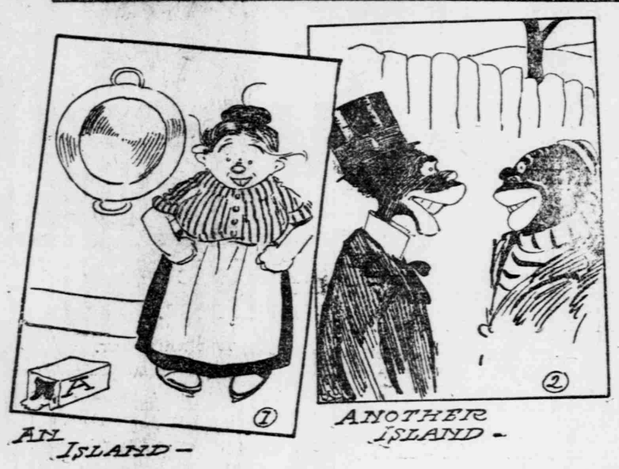
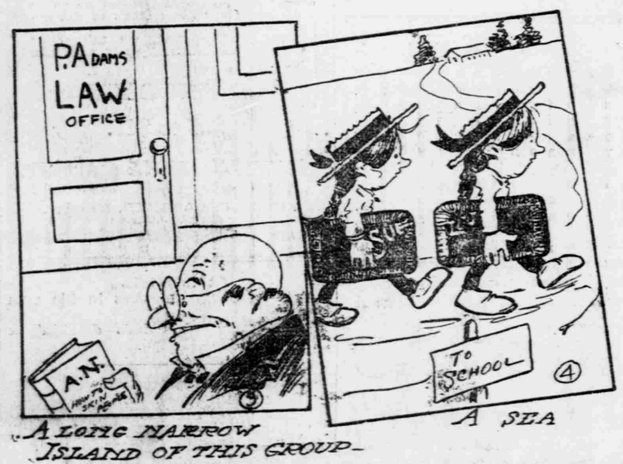
Hurry Harry, Dorothy Dean and Spots VISIT THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

THE PUZZLES BELOW ALL REFER TO DIFFERENT ISLANDS IN THIS GROUP.







Manila, Philippine Islands.

Dear Cousin Charley:

Well, it feels good to be back in your own country once more, and this is part of the United States, you know. At least we own it, or them, rather, as there are about 1600 islands in the group.

Luzon is the largest and most important, and a good deal of business is carried on here. There is also a funny little railroad that runs from Manila to Lingayen, which is the slowest, dirtiest little one-horse affair you ever saw, but considered a great thing by the natives.

The houses that the natives live in are made of bamboo, roofed over with palm leaves, and tied together with rattan, not a nail being used. You remember the ones we saw at the St. Louis Fair.

It is very hot here, and the people wear a kind of pajamas with a big-brimmed hat, which serves either as a sun shade or an umbrella, according to the weather. The other night papa got a message from a friend of his in Lingayen, after he had gone to bed. When he came to the door of his room in his pajamas and saw that little black messenger there in another suit of pajamas, before he thought he said: "My, this must be an important message if you didn't have time to dress." Then he happened to think that the fellow had on his regular business suit.

There is a sort of wild buffalo here that the Filipinos capture when young, and break to harness. They hitch them to big wooden carts, and they are used to carry the hemp, sugar and other products to the market. Horses don't get along well here, but the Filipinos have a kind of shaggy pony that they ride, and drive with their carriages, that is hardy and stands the heat very well. Probably the chief agricultural product is hemp rope, made from a kind of palm. Much sugar is raised, and would form the chief export if it was not for the high tariff that the United States places on it, which papa says is the work of the sugar trust. A good many United States soldiers are still here, and there is still a good deal of fighting in some of the islands. Every now and then some of the Filipinos will break loose and attack a party of soldiers; then there will be a running fight and the Filipinos will scatter back in the hills and escape.

Well, I must close. All send love.

Yours,
HARRY.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Whisky and Its Origin.

The word whisky is of Irish origin. Indeed, the Irish claim that whisky itself is of Irish origin and, moreover, that the Irish taught the Scotch people how to make whisky. As for the name, it springs from the Irish word uisgue, which means water. The distilled spirit was called by the Irish in ancient times uisgue betha, or life giving water. Distillation is a process said to have been known to the Arabians in remote ages, but the first author to speak of it explicitly—and he speaks of it also as a recent discovery—was a chemist who lived in the thirteenth century, Aronaldus de Villa Nova. Nova deemed distillation to be the universal panacea which all ages had sought for in vain.

The cry of "modern degeneration" was raised even in those faroff days, and a pupil of Nova, one Raymond Lully of Majorca, acclaimed distilled water as a divine emanation, declaring that it was destined to revive the energies of "modern decrepitude." This aqua vitae, indeed, denoted the consummation of all things in the brain of Lully. It heralded even the end of the world.—Chicago Chronicle.

His Horse's Intelligence.

A farmer had a horse he was anxious to sell, and one day while driving with one of his summer boarders the horse stopped so frequently as to lead the boarder to ask:

"What ails your horse that he stops so often? Is he balky?"

"No," replied the farmer; "he's all right. It's simply he's so darned afraid somebody will say 'Whoa' and he won't hear it that he stops to listen."

ALMOST ALL WON PUZZLES LAST WEEK

One Prize Goes to City Boy and Another to Big Bayou Puzzler.

WORK WAS A LITTLE EASIER THAN USUAL—NICE LETTER FROM MILTON BOY WHO WON PRIZE THE WEEK PREVIOUS.

Two little boys won the prizes for correct puzzles of May 5. Thomas A. Johnson, 500 West Chase street, wins the dollar, while the delicious Huyler's candy goes to the Big Bayou, to Angelo Haley, who must be sure to divide with some of the pretty little girls at Big Bayou who were not so lucky as he.

The puzzles last week were not quite so hard as usual and in consequence nearly all the answers received were correct. There seemed not to exist the usual "catch" which appears in the puzzle pictures, though the puzzle army is growing so expert that it is hard to find anything which really will "stump" them.

The correct answers to the puzzles of May 5 are as follows:

Partially Correct.

Answers which were not all correct were received from Fannie M. Keating, Laney Allen, DeWitt Yarbrough, Annie Oliver Pooley and McClellan Yarbrough.

The following letter was received from the lucky winner of the dollar last week:

A Nice Letter.

Milton, Fla., May 6, 1907.

Dear Puzzle Editor: I received the check you sent me for the correct answers to the puzzles. This is the second time that old dollar has come to me, but there are four of us, and we all work them out together, and promised to divide the dollar if it came to either of us, so you see it will have to come twice more before I have the whole dollar. But that is all right. We enjoy making them out so much. We all go to school and study geography. This is the fourth year I have been to school without missing a day.

We send the answers this week in Sammie's name. Hope they will be right. I thank you very much. Your little friend,

CAREY STEWART.
