Does Your Hat Look Shabby

If it does it's a sure sign that you need to visit the "little cash store on the corner" for a new hat. Many of you can about use up another straw the balance of the season. Don't cost much now, and by being careful you can be the "early bird of the season" next spring. Going at a sacrifice.

Fall Hats

are beginning to arrive, and those who want the earliest styles are invited to drop in and be introduced to ours. $3.00 and $3.50 are the popular prices—no use paying $5.00 when a $3.50 Stetson can save the other $1.50 for you.

JACKSON CAN'T SUE THE INTERBOROUGH FOR A FOREITURE

By Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 13.—Attorney General Jackson's application for leave to begin action against the Interborough Metropolitan Company to vacate its charter was denied today by Justice Hendrick in the supreme court.

SHE TWICE ATTEMPTS A DAMP DEATH

Negress Who Got the Money Letten Stole in New Orleans Narrowly Saved When She Twice Tried to Drown Herself.

By Associated Press.

New Orleans, Sept. 13.—The negress who was the accomplice of Charles E. Letten, the defaulting tax clerk, and who received about ninety thousand dollars out of more than a hundred thousand he stole, today attempted to commit suicide by throwing herself into Bayou St. John. She was filshed out just in time to save her life.

Taken from the water unconscious and desusciated only after great effort, on regaining consciousness the woman broke away and threw herself prone in a shallow pool and sought death a second time by holding her head under the water until she was dragged out.

The amount of Letten's defalcation was fixed today by the experts at $118,000.

Letten went before the grand jury today, confessed his defalcation and made a statement about the Reed woman, declaring he gave her ninety thousand dollars between January, 1903, and the present month. He offered no explanation of his acts, except that the first five hundred was given her to furnish her house.

HUNTRESS TO LEAVE TO-DAY

Little Gunboat Will Start On Voyage of Two Weeks to St. Louis.

The gunboat Huntress, which was transferred yesterday to the Missouri naval reserve by the department, is scheduled to leave Pensacola today for St. Louis. The vessel was coaled and provisioned yesterday, and if the weather is favorable she will get away today on the trip, which will consume about two weeks.

From Pensacola she will proceed to New Orleans, putting into any port along the coast should the weather become bad or threatening. From New Orleans she will proceed up the Mississippi, making stops each night at landings until she finally reaches her destination.

It is expected that the collier Lebannon, which towed the Huntress here, will leave Monday for the League Island yard, having in tow the gunboat Gloucester, which has been at the local yard for a year or more undergoing repairs.

The Huntress is a trim little vessel, and the Missouri sailor boys were much pleased with what they saw of her yesterday. She is a small gunboat of the yacht type, having 82 tons displacement. She measures 97 feet in length, 16 feet beam and 7 feet draft. She was built in New York in 1893, and is furnished in a superior fashion. She has a speed of 14 knots and is built of iron and steel.

The Huntress was towed to Pensacola by the collier Lebanon, which will return to New York with the gunboat Gloucester, which has been undergoing repairs at the navy yard. The trip from New York was a rough one, heavy weather being encountered all along the Atlantic coast. The vessels were forced to remain in Charleston harbor several days during a storm, and that made the delay in her arrival in this city.

TODAY AND YESTERDAY.

There rode in the golden olden days
A horseman through the town;
And many a gentle maid would gaze
From a rose-hung casement down.

He greeted her; then, quick and glad
She seized her handkerchief
And waved until the gallant lad
Was gone; then wept for gr....

The autoists, in these iron days,
Around the corner steer;
And many a gentle maid will gaze
From a window, half in fear.

The scent borne to them on the breeze
Is not, as then, of roses;
They sniff, their handkerchiefs they seize—
And hold them to their noses!

SUCCESSOR TO CAPT. WM. HAYS

Speculation as to Who Is to Be Chosen to Fill the Vacancy.

Speculation is rife as to the successor of Alderman William Hays, who resigned his seat in the City Council last Wednesday, after a service of over ten years. Many prominent citizens have been spoken of as probable successors of Captain Hays, who represented precinct No. 15 at large.

Among those spoken of are W. J. Forbes, who is now a member of the Board of Works, A. Greenhut and R. B. Simpson. Jas. M. Muldon has also been spoken of, but an intimate friend of Mr. Muldon yesterday stated that, in his opinion, the latter would not accept should the position be offered him.

Mr. Forbes has a number of friends in the council, as have also Messrs. Greenhut and Simpson, and as the vacancy is to be filled by the aldermanic body at its meeting of Sept. 25, much interest is being shown, and it is probable that the meeting will be largely attended by citizens.

IN MEMORIAM.

Death rides on every passing breeze
And lurks in every flower,
He walks the earth, the land and seas
And perils many an hour.

So to the life of Mrs. Mamie C. Bryant came this inevitable visitor. We are thus reminded that even the brightest flower of mid-summer garland withereth and passeth away under the supreme command of kind Providence, who knoweth and doeth all things best.

Mrs. Bryant was the second daughter of Senator and Mrs. E. V. McCaskill, of Nora, at which place she was born in 1874. At the age of 12 years she joined the Methodist church and on June 26, 1907, just two months prior to her death, she was married to Mr. Robt. L. Bryant, of Jay, Fla. Only two or three weeks had elapsed after their return from their wedding trip when she was taken ill, and after four weeks of painful, but patient suffering, she gave up the body of clay and went home to her Father in heaven. A flower removed to bloom in the paradise of God. Yes, there to await the coming of husband, father, mother, two sisters and five brothers, together with a multitude of friends.

I would tell of her life, but attempting it I lost myself in the thought of those finer and better characteristics that make me wish to write but which no human pen can indite.

If she had one fault on earth, surely it was that of injustice to herself in doing good to others. Like her Savior, she deemed it more blessed to give than to receive; and, like Him, she always saw opportunities to lay down her life—her comforts—for others.

In the parental home her one desire was to lighten the burden and augment the happiness of "Papa" and "Mamma." At the same time she was a charm to brothers and sisters. But withal no friend or stranger ever entered that happy home who did not share her home-making attention and feel the happier and better for having been there.

In her church life she was devout and faithful. It would require the wings of eternity to overtake the sweet Christian influence she has wielded.

Her married life was short indeed, but long enough, quite long enough, to make a thousand fold stronger the affection of her husband, and to cause visions of unmingled happiness to rise before them as they planned their future. No wonder his poor heart bled as he stood by her dying form and saw the long black veil of loneliness and mourning drape his heart, his hopes and plans.

Her soul of his soul (I'm sure) such part
That she seemed to be fiber and core of his heart.

EAST COAST ROAD NOT TO BE CURTAILED

Emhatic Denial of Rumor of Intended Susension of Original Plan of Building to Key West and of Making the Knights Key the Terminus.

The Miami Metropolis says: From a most reliable source it is learned that Mr. Flagler has no intention of abandoning his attempt to carry the F. E. C. railway extension through to Key West and stop it at Knights Key, as has been generally reported.

The suspension of operations south of Knights Key is aid to be due almost entirely to a determination of the officials to concentrate all work on the north end of the line and complete it through to Knight's Key, making it a base of operations. After that work on the south end or that part of it below Knight's Key will be resumed.

By carrying the road complete to a given point it is estimated that time and labor will be saved and much of the water transportation, which has been very difficult to contend with owing to the distance to be covered and the general condition and class of the boats in use, done away with.

Evidence of the fact that Mr. Flagler has no intention of abandoning the plan to carry the railroad to Key West is furnished in the arrival in the yard here of the draw bridge which is to connect the Bahia Honda viaduct. This bridge has been arriving in sections for the past two weeks, the last part arriving Saturday and making a total of fourteen cars to be brought here. The bridge is being unloaded at the terminal yard where it wil be held until such time as it is to be erected, which may be two years or more from now, as it is reported the company have received notice that they can not deliver the steel and iron to be used in the viaduct until that time.

This fact alone is considered one of the prime reasons why work on the south end of the extension was suspended as it would be useless to go ahead with the building until such time as it can be carried through without delay.

The Key West Citizen commenting on the suspension refers to the uselessness of continuing the work on the south end until the viaduct at Bahia Honda can be built. It says:

"The papers of the state are still making some long guesses at the cause of the suspension of the railroad work at this end. We feel confident that none of the reasons given are alone responsible though each, no doubt, has some bearing on it. The stringency of the money market and the consequent high rate of interest is probably one great factor. The fact that the plans for the long bridge at Bahia Honda have been changed and orders must be placed for thousands of tons of steel is worthy of consideration, for it is well known that the steel mills are now many months behind in their orders. Then, too, at the rate the work was going on at this end it would have been finished long before the connecting links could be made."

SAVED HOME FROM BURNING

Miss Fannie Bonifay Displayed Rare Presence of Mind.

By the courage and rare presence of mind of Miss Fannie Bonifay, the home of Arthur Johnson in the western section of the city was saved from burning, and Mrs. Johnson from a possible relapse into a dangerous illness from which she is now recovering.

Early in the night a lamp burning on a table on the back porch exploded, and threatened to burn the residence. Miss Bonifay, who was near, picked up the lamp without the least hesitation, walking to the porch, hurled it into the yard.

The accident occurred near the room where Mrs. Johnson is lying very ill, but so quickly that the sick lady did not know what had occurred.

MEETING OF EXPORTERS

They Will Gather Here To-Day From Various Cities Along Coast.

A general meeting of the Gulf Coast Lumber Exporters Association is to be held in Pensacola today, being the first to be held in this city since the organization of the association, and it is expected that exporters of lumber and timber from various ports along the gulf will be present.

The meeting is to be held in the Brent building, convening at 10 a. m., and one of the principal matters to be discussed is the selection of a chief inspector. The call for the meeting, as issued by Secretary Thurley, is as follows:

"A general meeting of the Gulf Coast Lumber Exporters' Association is called for Saturday, September 14, at 10 o'clock a. m., at Pensacola, Florida, in the Brent building, second floor.

"At this meeting it is desired to finally decide on a chief inspector and get this department immediately organized and actively at work, as this is the most vital feature of the association work. The members and the membership committee are requested to use their best efforts in securing additional applications for presentation.

"The following proposed amendments to our constitution were offered at our last meeting in New Orleans on August 15th, and will be voted on in Pensacola as per Article 10:

"To amend Article 1 in regard to the domicile of the association, same to be finally voted on at the Pensacola meeting.

"To amend Article 3 to read "legitimate shippers and manufacturers of export yellow and pitch pine lumber and timber.'"

LARGE VAULT REACHES HERE

One For the First National Bank Now Being Unloaded.

The immense new vault of the First National Bank, which was ordered immediately after the construction of the handsome new bank building was commenced, has arrived in Pensacola, and is now being unloaded and transferred to the building.

The vault is in sections and each section weighs several tons. As a consequence, the task of moving the sections from the car on Tarragona street to the bank building is no easy task. Yesterday the work of moving the massive door was commenced, and when it was satisfactorily moved from the car to a big float the latter had proceeded only a short distance when one of the wheels began giving way, and it was necessary to stop on East Zarragossa street between Jeffexrson and Tarragona streets.

This morning the work will again commence, and it is hoped to have the door inside the bank building by this afternoon.
