VOX POPULI.

CUT VULGARITY OUT OF THE VAUDEVILLES.

Editor Pensacola Journal.

I am opposed to a series of vaudeville shows and the occasions when the city and state have nothing but vulgarity and coarse humor for the amusement of the masses. They are not only a menace to the moral welfare of the community, but an absolute loss to the state and city. The city should not have anything to do with such shows. It is a disgrace to the city.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.

Mr. Bowers, the vaudeville manager, was a nonsensical man - a good business man.

The words of this man should be the watchword of the public. If they do not, it will be the end of the city. We must have better shows. We should have better shows. We should not tolerate such shows.