ESCAMBIA COUNTY LEGISLATORS.

The people of Escambia county should elect men to the legislature who will best represent the sentiment of a majority of the Democrats of the county.

Those two men, The Journal believes, will be found in the persons of John P. Stokes and C. L. Wiggins. One a lawyer, the other a business man, and both in sympathy with the needs and desires of the people, they should make an admirable team in the lower house to look after the interests of Escambia county.

The Journal commends them to the consideration of the voters generally, and it trusts they will be elected.

Eastern Conspiracy to Defeat Bryan.

Evidence as to the eastern conspiracy to prevent the nomination of Mr. Bryan at Denver is now coming in. It shows a carefully planned purpose to create a false impression of the Nebraska strength in the eastern states, so that the south and west may, if possible, be discouraged, and lose some measure of their faith in him as the most available man to be nominated for president.

It is hoped to accomplish this end by suppressing or obscuring the facts as to recent democratic primaries in Pennsylvania and other states in the east. It has been given out that in the Pennsylvania democratic primaries held lately the Bryan forces were completely routed, and that that state would give him hardly any support at Denver, but the facts are just the reverse.

The primary returns show that the Bryan element elected fifty-one of the sixty-four district delegates who go direct to the Denver convention, and seventy-five per cent. of the delegates to the state convention which meets at Harrisburg on May 20.

Judge Jere S. Black, one of the most distinguished men and democrats of Pennsylvania, in writing to a friend on this subject, says:

"The falsehoods sent out by the foes of the Bryan men in Pennsylvania were intended to affect adjacent states, and possibly to deceive the democrats of the Keystone state. It can be said with absolute confidence that Pennsylvania is for Bryan, that more than two-thirds of the national delegates are Bryan men, that a strong majority of the state delegates are trustworthy supporters of Bryan who can neither be cajoled nor bought, that Bryan's friends will name the delegates-at-large and will help to nominate and elect him."

Further testimony of Bryan strength in the east has been gathered by the New Orleans States, which says in its issue of Monday:

"The Bryan sentiment is just as strong in New Jersey and Connecticut as it is in Pennsylvania, but it has been powerless to express itself because the party organizations in the first two states are controlled by the reactionaries. This fact was established by the speech made in the house on Saturday last by Congressman Hughes of New Jersey, who declared that there were in his state some democrats who would vote against Mr. Bryan if he were nominated, but they would not number more than 1,000. Mr. Hughes then expressed the opinion that when the democratic national convention assembled at Denver the New Jersey delegation would cast its vote for Bryan. The Democratic town caucuses held last week in Massachusetts resulted in almost every instance in the election of Bryan delegates to the democratic state convention, which means, of course, that the Massachusetts delegation to the Denver convention will be instructed for Bryan. But mention of the action of the democracy in the Bay state has been conspicuously absent from the columns of the New York newspapers that prefer to serve their readers with misrepresentation rather than facts.

The Mobile Herald seems to have joined the belated movement to boom Governor Johnson of Minnesota, through the south as a presidential candidate at Denver. The Herald is conservative in what it says, but evidently it has been won over to the Johnson movement, and will do what it can to promote that gentleman's presidential aspirations. It insists that the delegates should go to Denver unpledged, and cast their votes there as may seem most advisable. But where do the democratic masses who are chiefly relied upon to elect a democratic president, come in under this arrangement? The man nominated at Denver should be the man they want, and the only way in which their preferences can be made to prevail there is through pledged delegates. To send delegates to the national convention unpledged and in the full exercise of their individual discretion might or might not result in the nomination of the man wanted by the party, and there is no necessity to take any chances on that supreme issue. The Denver convention will reveal nothing new about the superior availability of Mr. Bryan or Governor Johnson, for the records, opinions and characters of both gentlemen are thoroughly well known to the rank and file of the party, and at the primaries to select delegates the people should be permitted to exercise their will in the matter. The Johnson movement comes too late, at least here in the south, for Bryan is unmistakably the choice of this section.

Henry Watterson puts it with his usual effective combination of rhetoric and logic when he says in the presidential nomination to be made at Denver:

"What chance would Johnson have over the dead body of Bryan? What chance would Johnson have carrying a Wall street tag? What chance would Johnson have using the undemocratic two-thirds rule to defeat the will of the majority, and that at the behest of the east, defying the west, and worshipping the south. The thought is preposterous."

The DeFuniak Breeze notes that The Journal insists on the Jeffersonian standard for the officers to be elected by the people of Escambia county, and says:

"The Pensacola Journal takes an active interest in the local campaign in Escambia county to the extent of insisting on temperance men as candidates for the legislature and men who will enforce the law as candidates for executive officers."

The New York Tribune doesn't like to make the admission, realizing that Mr. Bryan is the most formidable man the democracy could nominate at Denver, but being honest, it comes out and says plainly that the eastern effort to defeat the nomination of the Nebraskan has conspicuously failed.

Park Trammell, candidate for attorney general, seems to be making a distinctly favorable impression in his canvass in south and middle Florida, where he is now engaged, if we may judge by press comments in those sections.

Ohio also joins the Bryan column and will send a solid delegation for the Nebraskan to the Denver convention.

♦♦♦♦♦ A NOTABLE FLORIDA WOMAN DEAD. ♦♦♦♦♦ St. Andrews Buoy.

Through the mysterious dispensation of Providence, a melancholy duty calls for the record of the death of Mrs. West, wife of the editor and manager of the Panama City Pilot, at their home in Old Town, last Thursday night.

A brief sketch of the estimable lady's life, kindly furnished the Buoy by a member of the family, will be read with interest by her friends, so many of whom had learned to love and esteem her during the short time she resided here among us. Luella Vermette (Simmons) West was born in Elfenburgh, Clinton county, N. Y., July 1, 1865; moved with her parents to Iowa in 1865—lived seventeen years in Benton county and four years in Calhoun county. She was a graduate and post-graduate of the State Normal School at Cedar Falls, Iowa, also graduate of Penn College, Oskaloosa, Iowa; she spent one year in Berlin, studying German; also traveled in Italy, in an educational way. She was principal of the high school at Pomeroy, Iowa, also at Chicago Heights, Ill. She spent nearly two years in the Montana mining country, near Butte, as evangelist of the Methodist Episcopal church, she having become a member of that denomination at 19 years of age, and has ever since been a worker in all features of church work. Shortly after taking up her residence here, in 1907, she founded the St. Andrew's Church, at Panama City, and engaged in pulp work, and has been active here in educational matters. She was president of the Art Club at Chicago Heights; also of the Foreign Missionary Society, and was a fluent writer upon miscellaneous topics.

On June 24, 1905, while residing at Panama Heights, she and Mr. G. M. West were united in marriage.

During the two weeks' absence of Mr. West in March, she took charge of and did all the management and editorial work of the Pilot. Her health it appears was always poor, and perhaps a service overtaxed her strength and may have contributed to hasten her demise.

The funeral services, conducted by Rev. Hastings, were held at the West residence in Old Town, and her remains were laid to rest in the new Panama city cemetery, the interment being superintended by Undertaker A. H. Brake, of St. Andrews.

Mr. West, his family and the many friends of the deceased lady have the sincere sympathy of everyone in their sad bereavement.

WESTVILLE

Special to The Journal. Westville, Fla., May 8.—The unprecedented heavy rains for the season that have lately fallen are causing our farmers some anxiety on account of the ground being too wet to plow, thus permitting Gen. Green to steal a march on them.

Candidates are stirring around pretty lively in these closing days of the primary campaign. Each one expresses himself as confident of being in the second primary.

Hon. John Neel is off again on an inspecting tour, investigating the condition of the state convicts in the various convict camps.

Mr. J. F. Flournoy left on the early morning train this morning for the Deep Water City on business matters.

U. S. COURT AT GAINESVILLE

Resolutions Passed Thanking People of the Little City.

Special to The Journal. Gainesville, May 7.—The first session of the United States court for the northern district of Florida, in the city of Gainesville, having completed its labors, adjourned Wednesday morning until the first Monday in December. Notwithstanding that the session was a brief one, lasting only three days, it proved most satisfactory, and the court officers, as well as others who attended, are well pleased with the result.

The court was called to order at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, his honor, Judge W. B. Sheppard, presiding. The first and only case called was that of the United States vs. W. H. Anderson, A. P. Hardee and W. J. Epperson, Levy county, charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States government of public lands, to which a demurrer was denied by the court Tuesday. Upon motion of Hon. Horatio Davis, attorney for the defendants, the case was continued for the term, after which the jurors and witnesses were discharged.

A resolution was passed by the officers of the court thanking the officers of the circuit court for courtesies in extending the use of the county courthouse for their deliberations, as well as for personal courtesies extended. The resolutions also embodied the sincere thanks and appreciation of the officers of the federal court to the members of the bar and citizens generally for numerous courtesies and attentions.

The officers were Hon. W. B. Sheppard, judge; Hons. Emmett Wilson, attorney; F. W. Marsh, clerk; T. F. McGourin, marshal; Herman Wolfe, office deputy marshal; R. R. Richard, deputy marshal; and Fred Cubberty, executive homes during the afternoon.

The officers were well pleased with Gainesville and the cordial welcome they received from our people.

MEETING AT QUINTETTE

Number of Candidates Delivered Addresses There Yesterday.

The political rally at Quintette yesterday was largely attended by voters and candidates gathering there in large numbers during the day. The meeting was under the auspices of the Odd Fellows, who served refreshments during the day.

Walter Kehoe and D. H. Mays were the only candidates for congress to appear, and both delivered speeches. Governor Broward intended delivering an address, but missed the train leaving Pensacola.

In the vote for the most popular candidate present L. S. Brown was the winner, and was awarded a cake. Miss Maggie Hardee was awarded the cake for the most popular young lady, and Mrs. George Harper was declared to be the most popular married lady present, and was awarded a cake.

IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

Enthusiastic Meeting Was Held at Public School No. 1 Yesterday.

The School Improvement Association held its regular meeting yesterday afternoon at public school No. 1. The meeting was one of the most largely attended in the history of the organization and much interest was evinced in the work. It was decided to have an exhibition at an early date of the products of the various gardens.

Reports of Committees.

The reports of the various committees showed material improvement in the decoration and care of the schools. The county board of education has agreed to have a gardener for the summer to attend to the gardens of the schools. Miss E. Maclay made a verbal report on the progress of school No. 1. She said that there had been many pictures of patriots and men of American history put in the school rooms. The grounds were also receiving a great deal of attention, many flowers and muc' shrubbery being planted.

At school No. 2 there was no special work done except the buying of furniture and window shades, which were badly needed. School No. 70 reported fine progress in decorations, pictures and other things.

These have added to the appearance of the school's interior wonderfully. There was no report of the school inspection committee. The home gardening committee made a report verbally, saying that 35 of the gardens on the west side of the city had been inspected, and found to be decidedly above all expectations.

Final Report of the Judges.

The judges of the competition did not state when they would be able to make their report on the prize winners, but stated that it would be some time during the coming week. The committee said that the pupils are enthusiastic in the work and are working as much for the love of the work as they are for the prize.

A committee consisting of Misses Schulmann, Spencer and Whaley was appointed to undertake the preparations for an exhibit, which is to be given when the prizes are awarded. All of the products of the gardens of the children will be brought out and arranged in the corridor of school No. 1. The time will be decided upon by the committee. There will also be speech making by the pupils and specially invited guests on the subject of gardening. The committee will give out the date of the occasion and other details at a later date.

RECEPTION TO THE D. OF C.

Special to The Journal. Tallahassee, Fla., May 8.—All of Tallahassee gathered at the Leon hotel last evening to do honor to the Daughters of the Confederacy. Promptly at nine o'clock the receiving line was formed in the east parlor, at the head of which stood Mrs. Chiron B. Gwynn, president of the Anna Jackson Chapter. Next to Mrs. Gwynn stood Mrs. J. J. Lawrence of Orlando, president of the state division. After Mrs. Lawrence came a long line of visiting daughters, ex-presidents, vice-presidents, officers of the general federation and general state officers. Prominent among these was Mrs. Edwin Gardner Weed, who, with her two daughters, Misses Margie and Gertrude Weed, will remain guests of friends in Tallahassee during the visiting of the council which convenes here next week. Mrs. Weed has the distinction of having been the first president of the Florida division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

In the small parlors at the west end of the corridor, ice cream and cake were served, the dining-room opposite having been arranged for dancing. This delightful recreation was largely indulged in, and added much to the enjoyment of the younger portion of the company.

This afternoon the visitors will again meet their Tallahassee friends at the executive mansion, where they will be the guests of Mrs. N. B. Broward.

We must gather complete data, showing that the industrial importance of the work we want the government to do in this section would justify the outlay the government would have to make, and that the volume and value of the business that would go through the Gulf Coast Inland waterway would justify Uncle Sam in building it. As an officer of the association, it will be no less my pleasure than my duty to at once institute a vigorous campaign in Pensacola and the county, in order that this city, which would be immensely benefited by the proposed Florida Honored.

"Florida was especially honored by the convention. Governor Broward was elected vice-president at large, and in the person of Mr. P. K. Yonge, president of the Pensacola chamber of commerce, this city was given the vice-presidency for Florida. Mr. Henderson, of Apalachicola, was elected secretary, there being no one else considered, and his election was an honor well deserved by the splendid, persistent and effective work he did in calling into existence the first organization to promote a work that many have talked about for many years."
