BOUND TO RISE.

"What a curious speck!" the astronomers said,
"Floating so close to the moon."
But 'twas only a crazy old aeronaut,
Lost in his auto-balloon.

He was taught through the mail in a "do-it-now" school,
"How to go up!" (books all free);
But "How to come down!" was just fifty plunks more.
Thought he'd not need it, you see.

Clarksville, Ark., Herald: Mr. J. C. Pebley, and wife of Pensacola, Fla., who have been visiting Clarksville for a few weeks, have taken their departure for the west to the regret of all his old friends and school mates of forty-odd years ago. He has met them by the score, all getting old like himself. They have tried to induce him to become a citizen of Clarksville, where he was so popular in his youthful days, but Mr. Pebley's health is poor and requires him to seek a higher, dryer climate, which we all very much regret. We hope Mr. Pebley will speedily regain his health and we assure him that he will always be a welcome visitor to Clarksville.

RURAL ROUTES FOR CITY SUBURBS NOW DESIRE

Petitions Will Be Circulated and Forwarded to the Department.

THOSE RESIDING OUTSIDE THE FREE DELIVERY ARE TO REQUEST THAT RURAL DELIVERY ROUTES BE ESTABLISHED BY THE POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT

To obtain free mail delivery, which is now being denied them by reason of bad and defective sidewalks and in many instances no walks at all, is behind a movement started during the past few days by parties residing in the suburbs of the city, and if they are successful in obtaining the necessary number of names there is hardly any doubt but that they will secure the free delivery of their mail each day the same as those residing within the carrier limits are now doing.

The wish of many of those connected with the movement is to have established in the suburbs of the city rural free delivery routes and with this end in view petitions are to be circulated to obtain the necessary number of sigers. On East Hill Geo. W. Johnston is working up the route, and when the necessary number of signatures are secured the petition will be forwarded to the postoffice department. It is believed that a rural route will then be established.

At Fisherville there is a similar movement. At present those residing there are deprived of the free delivery of mail, and they believe that they can secure it by petitioning the department for the establishment of a rural route. This would not only give the Fisherville residents their mail each day, but would also provide delivery for many others in the western suburbs, who are now getting their mail by coming to the postoffice.

ARE UNEASY ABOUT HUGHES

Republican Campaign In New York Is Now at a Standstill.

There is apprehension at Republican state headquarters over the indifferent attitude manifested by republicans throughout the state to ward the candidacy of Gov. Hughes, says the New York World. Republican leaders in various sections have been sending reports to headquarters in the last few days saying that they have failed to stir up any real enthusiasm for the governor, and that, unless something is done, there is a chance that Hughes will be defeated.

The leaders do not make any secret of the fact that Chanler has been making a telling fight in his tour through the state. He has been well received, and the republican leaders have viewed this sentiment toward his candidacy with concern.

Not only is this true up-state, according to advices received at the republican state headquarters, but right here, where the campaign is being directed, the same condition has become apparent.

The situation was discussed at a conference yesterday at state headquarters between Timothy Woodruff, State Chairman Herbert Parsons, of the county committee, and several other leaders. It was agreed that Gov. Hughes's personal and immediate attention to the campaign in this state is necessary to stem the tide toward his democratic opponent.

Parsons Wants Hughes Here.

Chairman Parsons told of the situation in New York county, which, he pointed out, was bad. He suggested that Gov. Hughes, who arrives here next Monday from his western trip, ought to make a speech in this city before starting on the up-state tour that has been mapped out for him as a wind-up to the campaign.

The leaders looked over the schedule and found that Gov. Hughes is down for speeches at New Rochelle, Yonkers and Mount Vernon on Tuesday; after that, he is booked to go through the state, by gradual stages, until he has covered all but seven of the counties. While nothing definite was decided, it is likely that the schedule will be reconstructed so that the governor may skip one of the towns down on the itinerary, toward the middle of the week, and come to New York.

During Gov. Hughes's absence in the west the state campaign of the republicans has been practically at a stadnstill, and this is why Chanler has been able to make such headway. When Gov. Hughes gets back the state leaders have every confidence that he will recover whatver strength he has lost. They believe he will be elected, but they do not hesitate to admit that he must make a vigorous energetic campaign from now on. They point to the favorable impression he has made in the west as evidence of what he can do when he returns to his own campaign.

Mr. Woodruff had a telephone talk in the morning with Secretary Loeb at Washington, and to him communicated the conditions confronting the state ticket. He assured Mr. Loeb he might tell the president that Hughes would be elected, but he added that there was a lot of work ahead to bring this about.

Busy Week for Hughes.

Gov. Hughes on Monday will take time enough to register, and then, the same day, will go to Oswego and Waverly, speaking at both places in the afternoon. That night he will speak at Elmira. After dropping down to New Rochelle and Mount Vernon, he will on Wednesday visit Roma, Oneida, Canatoga and Syracuse. The next day he probably will come to New York and then go up state again.

Gov. Hughes and Judge Taft will speak at Madison Square Garden on Oct. 28. The governor is reported to be in excellent condition for his trip through the state. To help him in his campaign it was announced at state headquarters yesterday that Vice-President Fairbanks will make several speeches next week. He will be in Dunkirk on Wednesday and Ithaca on Tuesday. His other speaking dates have not been arranged, but he will remain in the state the entire week. Secretary Straus will also make several speeches in the state.

THE FISHERIES CONGRESS.

The International Fisheries Congress, held recently in Washington, devoted itself to the problem of how to insure a cheap wholesome and regular food supply for the entire world. While it is true that there are more fish in the sea than have been pulled out of it, many of these fish are where it is impossible to get them. Only when they come into the shallow waters of our bays and estuaries, or the river mouth to spawn are they to be caught in any abundant quantities. The principal food of at least one-fourth of the world's population comes from the sea. Fish is the chief ingredient of the food of such people as the Japanese, the Chinese and the South Sea Islanders. The Epicurean smacks his lips over his lobster Newburge at Delmonico's, while the Chinese coolie makes a meal of devil fish The sea in case of necessity, could feed the entire world. The extermination of the American bison is an example of what wholesale slaughter of any game can amount to. Of the noble herds that once ranged the prairies only a few moth-eaten creatures are left. Unless the waters of our most profitable fishing grounds are constantly restocked, the supply, which, for years has been seemingly exhaustless, will soon be depleted. Of all the governments that are interested in keeping the supply in excess of the demand the United States has taken a conspicuous part. It is a very intersting family of small fry that Uncle Sam is bringing up yearly in the breeding troughs when the Fish Commission has established. It is now possible to export the young fish to the inland lakes and rivers which are at present practically destitute of the finny species. Provisions of this sort will be of benefit to a great many people in all parts of the world. From the Grank Banks, the Great Lakes or the Columbia river to the Inland Sea of Japan, or the shallows og the China coast, the fisherman will find his catches better. The canning and the packing industries from the Pacific Coast to Norway will be stimulated and thousands of people will be kept steadily in employment. Such conferences mean more caviare; more canned salmon; more sardines; more diamond-back terrapin; more broiled lobster; more shad roes on toast; more kippered herring; more codfish balls; more clam chowder, and more oyster soup.—Cincinnati Times-Star.
