MR. LAMAR IN PARIS.

Some of the Ways and Methods of That Wonderful City. Barcelona Riches Exhibited.

Hotel Continental, Paris, France,
November 9th, 1908.

Editor True Democrat:

Dear Sir:—Our trip is at an end, and my wife and I sail for Cherbourg on Friday for New York on Hamburg Amerika line steamship, Amerika.

We are visiting the shops making some purchases. To enter these you would never think there was a panic or any poverty in the world. Automobiles standing in front of the doors, costing from five thousand to twenty-five thousand dollars each.

In the hat shops, hats from $50 to $200 each.

In the dress-making establishments, dresses, gowns they are called, costing from $200 to $1,000 each.

And in the jewel shops, strings of pearls, costing twenty and sixty thousand dollars a necklace. Throngs of women are buying at these prices, and you wonder where the money comes from.

An ermine or a sable fur coat will be priced to you at ten thousand dollars, and more, and the seller wonders why you do not hasten to buy.

Truly, one half the world does not know, and does not care, how the other half lives. The rich do not know that there is such a thing as poverty, and the poor do not dream of the luxury that the rich enjoy. Throughout our trip, my wife and I have seen the two extremes everywhere—palaces on one side, huts on the other side.

Princes, nobility and the rich, in their luxurious homes and the poor people, women as well men, working in the fields in their bare feet. Whoever originated the phrase "the dignity of labor," should have had the bastinado applied to him. These poor people would, I know, like to trade some of their dignity for the other persons cash.

There is but one Paris, and we, like others, enjoy it.

Our trip has been a most enjoyable one. It carried us through Holland, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Italy and France. My wife and I will be glad to get back home to Florida. Our regards to you, and to all friends.

Very truly yours,
W. B. LAMAR.

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE LEON.

The Hotel is Now First Class and Presided Over by an Excellent Management.

Guests of the Leon who have recently returned to Tallahassee for the winter are exceedingly pleased to note the vast improvements which have been made there under the new management. Mr. Beverly, the new proprietor, is an experienced and progressive hotel man, who sees the necesity for first-class appointments for a first-class hotel, and has been so fortunate as to secure the services of a manager of experience and ability, under whose rule the domestic machinery runs smoothly and harmoniously.

With Mrs. Daniels to receive the lady guests with the cordial hospitality for which she is noted, and Mr. Daniels to look after the wants of all, the hotel should not lack a liberal patronage this winter.

Still Working for Florida.

Hon. W. B. Lamar and wife on returning home from Europe have stopped over in Washington for a few days, and are stopping at the Willard. Mr. Lamar has done this for the purpose of assisting the tobacco and long staple cotton interests before the ways and means committee.
