FDOT removes traffic lights

The Florida Department of Transportation recently removed traffic lights on several north-south intersections along Seabreeze Boulevard and replaced them with temporary stop signs.

The replacement of the signal structures was scheduled as part of an ongoing replacement plan; however, concerns about potential high winds caused by Tropical Storm Emily expedited their removal. The locations are as follows:

Daytona commissioners deny live music request on Seabreeze

By John Bozzo
For Hometown News

DAYTONA BEACH – The luck of the Irish has run out for the owner of Robbie O’Connell’s Pub and a plan to offer live music at the Seabreeze Boulevard venue.

Despite the pub’s location in the nightclub district, the City Commission recently voted down a plan to give the pub a pass on city rules for live entertainment.

At its core, the issue pits city leaders who want to set minimum standards versus a business owner trying to ensure success, as well as cater to the desires of residents and tourists.

“I feel that live entertainment in the sense of music, comedy acts, live theater, arts and similar performances should not be limited or stymied in any fashion by the city government,” said Robbie O’Connell, pub owner, in an e-mail response to questions.

Mr. O’Connell expressed disappointment his request to offer live entertainment from stages on both the first and second floor of his pub was rejected by the Commission and prevented from moving ahead to a public hearing. The Planning Board had also previously rejected the request. Entertainment at the pub would See MUSIC, A2

Johnson to head state sheriff’s association

By Jeannine Gage
jgage@hometownnewsol.com

VOLUSIA COUNTY — Volusia County Sheriff Ben Johnson has a lot on his mind: pill mills, Internet cafés, metal theft, sexual predators. Now, as the newly appointed president of the Florida Sheriff’s Association, he’s going to share those thoughts with state leaders.

“We work with legislators to get laws passed and take up issues important to law enforcement in the state,” Sheriff Johnson said.

The Florida Sheriff’s Association gives sheriffs “a forum to address lawmakers to push for positive changes in Florida’s public safety arena,” according to its website. It also provides services to sheriff’s offices such as training and legal services, and runs the Florida Sheriff’s Youth Ranches.

“This year, we are really looking at trying to strengthen laws to combat the prescription pill problem,” Sheriff Johnson said. “We want to

City approves limited ban on social services

By John Bozzo
For Hometown News

DAYTONA BEACH — When city officials proposed a sweeping ban on social service agencies in redevelopment areas in 2009, there was an outcry from officials at those agencies. They convinced city leaders to take a closer look at the issue before enforcing a blanket ban.

Two years later, an effort led by Ray Salazar, president of the United Way of Volusia/Flagler Counties, to meet the city’s goal to improve neighborhoods but take less drastic action on social services, has been okayed.

City commissioners unanimously approved the new plan on Aug. 3.

“In my opinion, the ordinance is a vast improvement of the original ordinance,” Mr. Salazar said in an interview. “The original ordinance contained a definition of social services that discriminated against the low income and unemployed.”

There is no attempt to define social services in the new ordinance. Instead, the new ordinance prohibits specific activities the Commission deemed less appealing for neighborhoods.

“All along, we have been saying, if you want to prohibit social services,

Ormond chooses park design

By John Bozzo
For Hometown News

ORMOND BEACH — Steadily, the city is working toward its goal of opening a new oceanfront park by January 2013.

The park would mean a lot for businesses and residents, City Manager Joyce Shanahan said in an interview.

“Clearly, for the businesses along (S.R.) A1A, I believe having a place for a concentration of visitors will improve business traffic in the area,” Ms. Shanahan said.

“Likewise, residents are looking for a place to access the beach in a safe manner,” she said. “The park will have plenty of parking, so you don’t have to worry about crossing A1A while toting little ones with you.”

The latest step forward for Andy Romano Beachfront Park came on Aug. 3 when the City Commission gave its design preference for the park, which mirrored previous comments from resident forums and advisory boards.

A final design is expected to return for approval by the elected officials on Sept. 6.

Features in that final design will include a water-splash play area, shaded playground, concessions, restrooms, pavilions and parking.

Music

have been limited to Irish music. Mr. O'Connell said he learned of the city rules governing live music after spending money on renovations.

Although the Seabreeze Boulevard district has struggled along with other business corridors in the city, with empty storefronts showing up during the national economic decline, O'Connell's pub is a popular destination.

Mr. O'Connell wants to keep it that way.

"We feel music is a big part of running a long term successful pub," Mr. O'Connell said. "Being denied this simple request is mind boggling. Also, as an employer it is my duty to provide the most stable business we can."

Mr. O'Connell said, "We should be striving to be a town that other towns emulate, not the other way around."

To a majority of city commissioners, striving to be a town other towns emulate means establishing standards and sticking to those standards.

O'Connell's pub currently does not conform to city rules because it offers beer, wine and liquor without offering restaurant service. A settlement with the city permits the pub to offer spirits legally. That settlement specified no live entertainment at the pub, according to a city memorandum.

To bend city rules and in a way to permit live entertainment, O'Connell had proposed negotiating a special zoning area for the pub, called a planned commercial development. Although the minimum size for a planned commercial development is one acre, the size for the pub would have been 0.615 of an acre.

"I feel like this is a very different use for the (planned commercial development) process than is typical," said Kelly White, one of the four commissioners who opposed O'Connell's request (three voted for approval).

In April 2010, the city agreed to allow live entertainment in restaurants as long as the entertainment is confined to a contiguous area of no more than 100 square feet. O'Connell's had no plan to add a restaurant and asked for an exception to allow two stages of no more than 100 square feet.

"They requested multiple waivers on basically all the rules," said Pam Woods, another commissioner who opposed the changes.

Mr. O'Connell also asked for a waiver from city rules limiting live entertainment from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. The pub is open from 3 p.m. to 3 a.m.

Also, the pub asked to be exempt from city rules prohibiting a cover charge and dance floor.

Finally, O'Connell's pub is not set back far enough from other buildings to qualify for the planned commercial development special zoning district, according to a city memorandum.

"The problem I have with this is the opportunity was there to play within the rules," said Patrick Henry, who also voted against the pub's request. "... If we set a precedent by doing this, every other month we might have a restaurant or bar coming up."

Commissioner Edith Shelley also voted against the pub's request. Mayor Glenn Ritchey and Commissioners Cassandra Reynolds and Rob Gilliland voted in favor.

"One of the things I do when I visit somewhere is I look at what things the place has that my city doesn't," Gilliland said. "If we want to be like St. Augustine, this is the kind of concept we need to embrace."

Mr. Ritchey said he wanted to move the item forward to a second consideration and public hearing. However, that would have taken a supermajority of five votes because of the Planning Board's vote to deny the rule changes.

In an unrelated comment, Mr. O'Connell said he was not related to the famous singer, songwriter and Celtic philosopher also named Robbie O'Connell.

It's hard to reason with hurricane season

There is nothing quite like the apprehension one feels when the first leaf quivers in advance of a hurricane. You are at once fearful and yet somehow exhilarated.

That was how I felt in 1999 when Hurricane Floyd was approaching our shores. The local TV channels had been tracking the storm since it made the Lesser Antilles, wherever that may be. I don't think we ever refer to those islands by that name unless a hurricane is nearby.

I was not particularly worried and waited until Floyd was about 36 hours out to go to the store for batteries and bottled water. Of course, by then there was none left.

The weather people were saying we should fill our bathtubs with water for emergency consumption. I did that but, at the same time, thought I will probably never get that thirsty.

The curvy projection lines on the news were still showing the storm would hit somewhere between Ft. Lauderdale and Charleston, S.C. As the big storm roared up the coast, however, they changed the landfall prediction to around a block on either side of my house.

I must admit when I moved to what we call the north peninsula of Ormond By The Sea, I did so with little confidence. The peninsula is in actuality an island and little more than a sand spit with too many houses on it.

When we moved in, my wife, Lana, and I were excited that we could see a clear view of the ocean from our front yard. With a major hurricane barreling down on us, that view seemed a lot less appealing.

As the storm grew near enough for the skies to take on an ominous look, my neighbors all packed up and left. I stood fast.

LAND LINES

DAN SMITH

With the wind howling and the storm only a few hours away, a police car with a loudspeaker came down our street and shouted that the westbound bridges would close in two hours. If we wanted to evacuate, it was our last chance.

I panicked. Within a few minutes, Lana, my son Landan, the two cats and I were in our small sedan cruising north on I-95.

My plan was to achieve free rent at my sister's house in the Atlanta suburbs. All went well until we were in Jacksonville.

I took the bypass intending to get on I-10, but when I reached the ramp, it was plugged solid with traffic. Below the ramp, the interstate was parked solid, and people were out of their cars milling around.

Not to worry, I told the family. I know the South Georgia back roads like the back of my hand.

I began cutting cross-country, and each road was plugged worse than the last. At one point near Jessup, the four-lane was filled with cars that were stopped. Many of the folks were out walking their dogs as their cars sat in the traffic lanes. We met some nice folks from as far away as Miami.

As I inched my way west, we began looking for food, but all of the restaurants had closed. McDonald's had sent their employees home after running out of food. Same for all of the others.

At a store, I raced a pregnant woman for the last two cans of canned chili. The store's microwave had long since given up the ghost and we ate them cold.

Further along and desperate for gas, I was able to talk a young lady who had already locked up into turning the pumps back on long enough for me to tank up.

Behind me, a mother of three small children began crying when she found out I would be the last gas customer. I fudged a bit and allowed her to gas up and pay me. I figured that might make up for my transgressions with the chili.

By 4 a.m., I was still behind the wheel. I had been driving for 17 hours and had evacuated all of 150 miles.

I was dog tired, and when I saw a dim sign along a back road that read, "Evacuees welcome to Enigma, Ga. free coffee and a place to rest," I pulled in.

There was free coffee, but it was in a large urn that had probably not been cleaned since Sherman's march to the sea. I passed.

Lana asked to use the restroom, which turned out to be a port-o-let placed about 100 feet out in the dark. The lady insisted Lana could not make the journey to the facility without carrying a 2-by-4 for needed protection.

With that, we said goodbye to Enigma.

Eventually, we did make it to Atlanta and, sure enough, learned that the storm had stayed off shore.

As it turned out, it had been the third-largest evacuation in the history of the United States.

I hope you take this as a cautionary tale. As I am writing this, a tempest is brewing in the tropics, and if worst comes to worst, you may want to evacuate.

Leave early.

Through public forums, meetings with advisory boards and discussions with the City Commission, a lot of people have had a chance to voice their opinion on the design of the park.

"None of us are architects, although we play one sometimes," Mayor Ed Kelley quipped.

Architects from Zev Cohen and Associates had distilled previous comments into two basic design concepts for the park.

On Aug. 3, it was the City Commission's turn to pick from the two options, Plan A or Plan B.

"More parking, more open park area, more benches, more seating, more restoration of dunes, more covered porches — it's a no brainer, Plan B," Commissioner Rick Boehm said.

Plan B offers 187 parking spaces compared to 158 in Plan A. Also, Plan B kept 1.8 acres of open space versus 1.4 acres in plan A.

A slightly higher potential price tag, $2.5 million, goes with Plan B, as opposed to $2.4 million for Plan A.

More and larger pavilions, more picnic tables, more barbecue grills and more benches were proposed in Plan B.

Comments in resident forums and from city advisory boards also slightly favored Plan B, although both plans had some support.

Elected officials did choose an architectural feature from Plan A. The commissioners preferred construction of the restroom-concession building to mimic the city's historic beachside coquina fire hall rather than look like a lifeguard tower.

Commissioners agreed to include a water-splash play area despite concerns about the estimated annual $25,000 cost of maintenance.

Commissioners approved 'Plan B,' shown above, for Andy Romano Beachfront Park in Ormond Beach. Minor changes will be made before final approval is considered on Sept. 6. To see the design online, go to www.ormondbeach.org, click on Andy Romano Beachfront Park, community meetings, and Part 1.

"We get one chance to do this (oceanfront park)," said Commissioner Troy Kent, who added that the splash park at the South Ormond Recreation Center is "wildly successful."

"Rip currents, deadly sharks, jelly fish and man of war, there are many times when it's not appropriate for anyone to get in the water," he said. "Some people like the beach, they just don't like the water (ocean). They love a splash park."

The mayor wondered if a splash park would be too successful, but went along with adding the water feature.

"We will create a monster of people taking their kids there, dropping them off to use the splash park and not going in the ocean," Mr. Kelley said.

The concession area will be designed so a food vendor can keep meals warm or cold to serve to the public, but food could not be cooked in the concession.

Commissioner James Stowers said nearby restaurants might want to bring cooked food over to sell to what is expected to be a crowded park. "That's a win, win," Mr. Stowers said. "We're supporting our local businesses."

However, there was an initial negative reaction about the potential of applications for food vendors being processed through Volusia County and then the money from vendors being given to the city.

Several city commissioners initially rebelled at the idea of county control of the concessions.

However, Ms. Shanahan, the city manager, said Volusia County would only be making available its process to coordinate applications from vendors. Ormond Beach vendors could still apply and the city would still get the vendor fees.

Mr. Kelley said the question of selecting a vendor would be another issue for another time. As for now, the architects have a clear set of preferences from the City Commission to finalize the park design, he said.

Voters last year approved a bond issue to pay $1.5 million of the cost to buy the 4-acre oceanfront property at 839 S. Atlantic Ave. for a park. Volusia County chipped in $3.5 million toward the $5 million acquisition cost from its ECHO program, which pays for environmental, cultural, historic and outdoors programs from a voter-approved tax.

City commissioners named the park in honor of Mr. Romano, the city's first lifeguard and beach concessionaire, who has remained active through the years in leisure and recreation programs for Ormond Beach.

LEGAL BRIEFS

Quick Answers to Common Legal Questions

Delay or Abandonment of Treatment Protocols in the ER

When negligent medical care is provided to a patient in the emergency room, there are stringent standards one must prove to initiate a medical malpractice claim against the hospital, ER physician or ER nurse. In most cases, victims of malpractice may have to prove that the "reckless disregard" standard was met.

The reckless disregard standard is a part of established medical malpractice statutes that claim, in emergency situations, the plaintiff must prove that the caregiver demonstrated wanton and willful reckless disregard in the care and outcome of a patient.

One situation where a medical care provider can demonstrate reckless disregard is during the triage phase of a patient's emergency room visit. The hospital ER staff is supposed to evaluate each patient when they arrive to determine the degree of urgency needed to attend to each person. If this is not done correctly or in a timely manner and the patient is injured a result of these failures, there may be a viable malpractice claim.

Another demonstration of reckless disregard can often occur when a medical care protocol is abandoned before completion and for no apparent reason. For example, an emergency room doctor may commit malpractice if he or she starts working up a cardiac issue for a patient complaining of chest pains but begins to seek out other causes before completely ruling the cardiac issue out. If the patient then goes on to develop another condition, such as a heart attack, there may likely be a case for medical malpractice. Opposite of this situation is when an emergency room doctor does not initiate an indicated treatment protocol. This can happen when a patient complains of severe abdominal pain (with guarding, tenderness and rebound phenomenon) and the proper surgeon is neither notified nor consulted.

If you or a loved one believes to have been the victim of a doctor's demonstration of reckless disregard or any other type of medical malpractice claim, remember that you always have the option of seeking legal help from a malpractice attorney.

List arrest addresses

For as long as I have been receiving Hometown News there have been Police Reports about arrests in the community. This public record is a service to our neighborhoods so that residents can be aware of what is happening around them and an important tool in crime prevention.

In your Aug. 5 edition, you omitted the addresses. I hope this was simply an oversight or a one-time occurrence for this very useful public record column.

Editor's note: The Volusia County Clerk of Court has removed addresses from the public record arrest reports, so we no longer have access to them. www.clerk.org

Who approved dog park?

The destruction of Bicentennial Park is one of the worst travesties in Volusia County Parks' history. On the home page of the Volusia County parks website regarding Bicentennial Park, it says: "Hikers looking to get back to nature may take a jaunt along one of the park's nature trails and boardwalks. Winding through the scrub habitat, gopher tortoises and raccoons call this area home." They just bulldozed down the scrub habitat. Instead of seeing gopher tortoises, we are going to see dogs. Who approved this dog park? Where is the money coming from in this economy? Why didn't they leave the ancient scrub jays? It is blight on another part of this county. It is horrible.

Mail delivery is not what it use to be

Ever since the Daytona Beach Mail Processing Facility on Bill France Boulevard was closed and consolidated with Lake Mary, mail delivery has not been the same. I attended one of the town hall meetings where it was said there would be no disruption of service. That is anything but the case. A facility that was in the top 20 in the country was closed and moved to a facility that is listed in the 230s. It doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out that the move was not a wise decision. When mailing checks from work, if the check was mailed on Thursday, contractors and vendors received the check on Saturday or Monday. Since being moved to Lake Mary, I mailed a $34,000 check to a local contractor and the check was received 12 days later. The contractor needed this check in order to meet their payroll. After five days passed, I voided the check and the new check was physically picked up, as they didn't want it mailed again. A local business owner told me that the volume of mail that is received is not what it use to be. Someone I know has a spouse with a heart condition and the mail order prescriptions are being delivered later. This is not acceptable. I'm sure there are many others out there that have noticed a change too. Perhaps they should open Daytona Beach again and close Lake Mary. Bigger is not always better. From what I hear, the facility in Lake Mary is in total chaos and poorly managed. I urge you to write a letter to your local politicians, Bill Nelson and John Mica, to voice your concerns. Also, Dave Patterson, district manager, Suncoast District USPS in Tampa or go to usps.gov, scroll down to customer service and write a complaint.

Thanks for sidewalk coverage

I would like to thank John Bozzo for his excellent reporting on the recent issue of the sidewalk for John Anderson Drive. Thanks to Mr. Bozzo and the Hometown News, the public was thoroughly informed about all sides of the issue and participated in a fair public hearing before the City Commission.

A final decision was reached with all necessary input and accepted with closure by citizens. Mr. Bozzo's reporting is appreciated for his total body of work in contributing to our community for many years.

In response to:

'Let's concentrate on what is really important'

Yes, here we go again, another school year. Over the summer, I have read many responses, mostly negative, about the students having to follow a countywide dress code. Let me repeat that because there seems to be confusion. It's a dress code, not a uniform policy. The students are not being told to wear uniforms, they are being told to wear clothes that are appropriate to a learning environment, plain and simple. They will still be able to be an individual. I encourage the public to review the dress code that is available online at the Volusia County Schools website before they write a viewpoint that only points out how uninformed they are. I also encourage anybody who opposes the dress code to ask themselves, "When is the last time I stepped foot into a classroom?" Ask any teacher, administrator, or volunteer who has been in a high school, middle school, or even elementary school what some students wear to school. If that is not an option, walk down Flagler Avenue on a Friday or Saturday night and observe what the club goers are wearing. That should do it. The school board is only asking that students wear clothes that cover parts that need to be covered. Students are in school to prepare themselves for their future and they should treat it, and themselves, with respect.

In response to:

'Let's concentrate on what is really important'

I was really aggravated with the rant "Let's concentrate on what is really important." This person is obviously uninformed as to what the criteria is for the dress code in public schools. According to the rant, the school board wants to "force all children to remove any form of individuality and in turn make them all look like carbon copies." This isn't what's happening. By requiring students to dress appropriately for school means no cleavage, midriffs, buttocks, or underwear should show. How is that making everyone look alike? It's called looking age-appropriate and respecting the school environment so everyone can concentrate on learning. And yes, we do teach history, math, reading, spelling, and many more lessons each and every school day. This person also asked the question how wearing "the same exact clothes" will improve education? For starters, they aren't wearing the same exact clothes as everyone else. Those are called uniforms. By having students dress appropriately for school, distractions by attention-seeking adolescents who view school as a beach party instead of an institute of learning should reduce drastically. Kids need to know what is acceptable and what is not in an ever-changing MTV and Internet-ruled world where anything goes. You say you're concerned about our future. Okay, let's start with how they're dressed so they can compete with the rest of the world and be taken seriously.

Casey Anthony jury not brave

A writer took issue with Dan Smith's opinion in the July 22 Land Lines column that Casey Anthony undoubtedly murdered her little girl. The writer said the jury spoke bravely. I don't think it took bravery to quickly decide a verdict and disregard the prosecution's strong case. The jurors allowed their reasonable doubt to be clouded by a slick three-ring circus defense. I am offended that the writer compared Casey Anthony, a narcissistic liar whose existence centered on indulging her every need, to our brave young troops drafted into the hell of Vietnam where every day was a struggle to survive. The writer's comparison to a self-centered woman who made horrendous choices is ludicrous.

Port Orange resident will take on 100-mile kayak expedition in the fight against pancreatic cancer

I was expecting the call, but not the news. It was the evening of March 22, 2010 when I received the first of two calls last year I'll never forget. The unexplained pain my otherwise active and healthy mother had been experiencing now had a name: pancreatic cancer. The cancer had also spread to the liver.

Some of my best memories of growing up in Virginia are of our family spending many days on the water and I quickly grew to love it. We did it all—crabbing, fishing, boating, swimming, and camping. Family trips to the Outer Banks of North Carolina were an annual event beginning in my toddler days. So when, in early 2007, my wife, two boys and I, moved to Port Orange from Virginia, it was natural to take up water sports here. I began kayaking and was hooked from the start. Initially, Mom and Dad were a little concerned about the new hobby. They worried about the safety of such a little boat. Over time, they grew more comfortable with it.

After learning of Mom's cancer, I began making regular trips to Virginia, spending a week each month visiting. Mom looked remarkably good, even during the chemo treatments. She did lose hair and weight, but remained amazingly active. The visits were wonderful and were over far too quickly. During each visit, we would spend time looking at pictures I'd taken while kayaking and kayak fishing between visits to Virginia. Of course, with the pictures, there were stories to tell. This was something that Mom and Dad enjoyed and led me to start Peachpit

HOMETOWN VOICES
SCOTT H. PEACH, JR.

Paddlin', a website and blog. It turned out to be really good for us and provided hours of enjoyment and conversation about our life in Florida and my kayaking and fishing adventures.

On Sept. 25, 2010, I was kayak fishing in Spruce Creek with friends. That's the day I was called to return to Virginia. Dad was taking Mom to the hospital. She was in tremendous pain, and had been much of the night. Dad was obviously worried and upset. I told him I'd be there in twelve hours. He then delivered a message from Mom, "bring your suit." Mom passed at 3:00pm, September 28, 2010, surrounded by family and friends. She fought hard, but the cancer was too much. Mom was just 67 years old.

On September 26, 2011, I will begin a kayak expedition, "In Memory of Mom." The trip is to raise awareness of the need for a cure and to raise funds for pancreatic cancer research. Beginning in Mom's birth city, Suffolk, VA, I'll paddle 100 miles on the Nansemond and James Rivers with my college buddy, Les Preece before arriving in Chester, VA, Mom's resting place. Along the route, we'll pass areas Mom loved to visit and that hold great family memories. I hope to raise $5,000 for the Lustgarten Foundation for pancreatic cancer research.

Mom and Dad were avid estate and yard sale hobbyists. The kayak I will paddle is one of their treasures from an estate sale in Virginia and is one of their greatest bargains, paying a small fraction of its actual value. The kayak is unique in that it can be taken apart into three sections for travel. After a visit last spring, I returned to Port Orange with it and have paddled it more than 300 miles since.

My father is heavily involved in the trip as well. We've spent hours on the phone reviewing the route, locating suitable camp locations and planning safe crossings. He will provide transport to the starting point and will be there to greet us at the finish and take us to visit Mom's grave to conclude the journey.

On the kayak will be a picture of Mom and Dad and an "In Memory of Mom" logo. Additional logos will be of the great companies providing sponsorship, MTI Adventurewear and Aqua-Bound Paddles. On board will be a GPS unit sending our location to a website showing our real-time location and movement.

Mom loved my passion for the water. While she would have worried about our safety on the upcoming trip, she and Dad would have been our biggest supporters. I wish she were still here to share in the experience. I think this adventure would make her happy. In memory of Mom, I paddle.

Ban

be specific about the type of social services you're trying to prohibit," Mr. Salazar said.

In addition to an increased visibility of the homeless during the national economic downturn, city officials said they're shouldering more than their share of services.

Daytona Beach is home to 271 social service agencies, 56.9 percent of all social service agencies in Volusia County. Of those, 105 social service agencies are in redevelopment areas. The city with the second-highest number of social service agencies in the county is DeLand with 69, or 14.5 percent of the total.

"We're trying to get other cities and Volusia County to see that Daytona Beach isn't the only place for social services," Mr. Salazar said. "The homeless tend to congregate where the social services are available."

The new social service ordinance prohibits certain activities in redevelopment areas, such as:

- Congregate meal facilities: A place with daily scheduled meals for families or individuals. One congregate meal facility exists in a redevelopment area, at the Windsor Apartments, a public housing high-rise for seniors and the disabled. The Windsor meal program will be allowed to continue as a legal use, not conforming to the new rule.

- Food banks and feeding programs. However, food pantries that only accept food donations and do not feed people on site would be allowed in redevelopment areas.

- Homeless services, such as food distribution, vocational training or counseling provided on site in redevelopment areas to assist the homeless.

Some other more commercial activities were also banned from redevelopment areas in the new ordinance, including check cashing services, temporary labor halls, outdoor storage, used clothing sales and used furniture sales.

Commissioner Kelly White unsuccessfully asked about removing the ban on used clothing and used furniture stores.

"Our redevelopment areas aren't redeveloped yet and people have needs that are not Chanel," she said.

But Edith Shelley said she expects revised rules in the future to permit "vintage" used furniture and clothing stores, but to keep out "junk" businesses.

Pawn shops were also added to prohibited businesses in the Midtown, South Atlantic Avenue and Main Street redevelopment areas, but will still be allowed in the Downtown Redevelopment Area.

In the Midtown Redevelopment Area, package alcohol beverage stores were prohibited under the new ordinance.

Some of the residents who spoke expressed concerns about shutting down existing services or businesses, but current operations can write the city for permission to continue.

"Existing social service providers are grandfathered in as legal, nonconforming uses, although they cannot expand services or change their mission," Mr. Salazar said.

There was also some confusion among residents about what type of commercial activities would be prohibited.

Some speakers objected to banning social services in redevelopment areas.

"People need food," said Jerome Wiggins. "People need clothes."

Others supported the changes.

Mary Ann Jackson-Trumbull, a resident, said the ordinance that prohibits expansion of social services in redevelopment areas is needed to improve neighborhoods.

"When others and I support the ordinance, please do not think of us as non-caring people," Ms. Jackson-Trumbull said. "We are caring people."

Chris Daun, another resident, added, "I see this as a tremendous opportunity for the City Commission to look at the economic impact of social services on our city."

Mr. Salazar, the United Way president, did not speak during the Aug. 3 City Commission meeting, but in an interview he described social services and blight as a "chicken or the egg" controversy.

"Some people believe you bring in social services and blight and crime follow," Mr. Salazar said. "Others believe, as I do, that blight and crime occur and social services are like paratroopers that go in and address the needs."

Social services were doing a good job providing for the homeless and keeping down the visibility of those without homes from city streets until the national economy tanked, he said.

"They had nowhere to go but to loiter around," Mr. Salazar said. "That means social service providers had to do a better job giving them something to do, some place to go."

The United Way chief said he's sympathetic to the city's issues, which are worsened because the majority of housing is rentals, which typically are not kept up as well as owner-occupied residences.

Code enforcement to improve the appearance of neighborhoods is one strategy to combat blight and crime, which the city does through its Daytona Proud initiative.

In comments before the final vote on Aug. 3, Mayor Glenn Ritchey said the prohibitions against social services applied only to the redevelopment areas, a small portion of the city.

"It's important to remember we're not saying people are not welcome in Daytona Beach," Mr. Ritchey said. "These are redevelopment areas and this is a big city."

"It's important for me to say people are welcome," he said.

BACK TO SCHOOL IMPORTANT NUMBERS

HELP YOUR CHILDREN UNDERSTAND WHO AND WHEN TO CALL

The best time to prepare for an emergency is before it happens. During an emergency, it's easy to become disoriented or upset, so you need to have all the important phone numbers readily available ahead of time. Write each phone number clearly so that it will be easy to read. Use a pen with dark-colored ink; this is seen the best when you are in a hurry or the lights are dim. Make sure that babysitters and relative familiarize themselves with the list. Once you have filled in the appropriate numbers it is time to practice with your children.

TEACHING YOUR CHILD HOW TO CALL FOR HELP

Have your child practice dialing and speaking into a telephone. Your child should know:

- 1 - How to dial 911
- 2 - His or her full name & full address
- 3 - How to give a short description of the emergency.

Prompt him or her with questions that an emergency operator would ask, such as "What is your name?", "Where are you calling from?", and "What is the emergency?"

Stress that the description should be short ("Mommy fell down") and that he or she should be calm and stay on the phone.

Practice until your child feels comfortable.

No one wants to think about an emergency happening at home, but it's better to face that possibility than to be caught unprepared. So keep emergency numbers close by. It's a small step that could have big consequences.

Resident earns degree

William Zachary Hollifield, a resident of Daytona Beach, has earned a Bachelor of Science from Excelsior College.

Excelsior College is an accredited, private, nonprofit institution that focuses on the needs of working adults.

Its primary mission is to increase access to a college degree for adult learners by removing obstacles to their educational goals.

Local resident earns degree

Alexander Heggblod of Ormond Beach received a Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree from Western Governors University.

The university held its semi-annual commencement ceremony in Salt Lake City on July 23 and celebrated the graduation of 1,972 graduates at the university's 21st semi-annual commencement.

DSC hires assistant coach

Former University of Arizona swimming and diving champion Caitlin Iversen has been named assistant swimming and diving coach at Daytona State College and coordinator of the Falcon's developmental swimming squad.

Ms. Iversen is from Centennial, Colo., where she was an All American and state champion at Cherry Creek High School four years in a row. She also had a storied collegiate career as a member of the University of Arizona's Women's Swimming & Diving squad, helping the Wildcats capture both Pac-10 and NCAA team titles. She ranked in the top 10 all-time for Arizona in the 200-meter backstroke, and the 200-meter and 400-meter individual medleys. Ms. Iversen also participated in the 2008 US Olympic Trials, finishing ninth in the 200-meter backstroke.

CBI to hold Excel course

The Center for Business and Industry at Daytona State College will hold an Excel 2007 Advanced course to be held at Daytona Beach Campus, Thursday, Aug. 18 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. with a one-hour break for lunch. The Daytona Beach Campus is located at 1200 W. International Speedway Blvd.

The fee for the course is $85 and includes a student workbook with a CD-ROM containing the lab files used in class. These are 'hands-on' courses and each participant will have their own computer. Courses may be canceled due to a lack of enrollment. For information about additional courses visit www.theCBI.com

Chance for locals to 'lose big,' win money begins Aug. 14

For Hometown News
Volnews@hometownnews.com

VOLUSIA COUNTY — Losing pounds could turn into big dollars for area residents participating in the Volusia Building Industry Association's second consecutive "Losing Big Weight Loss Challenge." Halifax Health and the Volusia

YMCA have signed on as "Official Health Sponsors" for the event, which begins Aug. 14 and is expected to attract 500 area residents who will compete to win a portion of the $15,000 purse. "Last year, we were thrilled with the response to Losing Big, and actually had to stop the registration at 500, as we had no idea how popular it would be," said Alissa Bennett of Design Studio A and Losing Big Weight-Loss Competition Chair. "This year, we have spent countless hours preparing so we can handle well over 500 participants. For a $99 registration fee, participants will have access to any Volusia YMCA three times per week; weekly weigh-ins, nutrition and exercise tips; and six challenges, including a 5k run, boot camps and Zumba. Before and after pictures, a T-shirt and local discounts are included in the package as well. "We believe the Losing Big Weight-Loss Challenge provides an outstanding opportunity to help Volusia County residents learn to incorporate healthy choices into their daily routine, which will not only improve their lives, but improve the well-being of our entire community," Ms. Bennett said.

The Losing Big Kick Off and initial weigh-in will take place Aug. 14 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Port Orange Amphitheatre and will conclude Nov. 6 at the same location. For more information, visit www.losingbig.org.

Business leaders go "behind bars" to benefit the MDA

Business and community leaders from the city of Daytona Beach and surrounding communities will go behind bars for the Muscular Dystrophy Association's Executive Lock-Up on Thursday Aug. 18 at the Daytona International Speedway. The apprehended will be "arrested" by volunteers and transported to "jail" at the Daytona International Speedway during the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. While being "incarcerated" jailbirds will have their "mug-shot" and "finger prints" taken and thrown behind bars for approximately one hour to raise "bail money." Funds raised at the Executive Lock Up will support MDA's various programs that benefit over 1,300 families in Central Florida. "Bail money" will provide clinic visits, fund support group sessions, assist with repairs of wheelchairs, leg braces, and communication devices, and send children with Muscular Dystrophy to be able to do more to shut down these pill mills." The association's executive director Steve Casey said that as President, Sheriff Johnson will be responsible for presiding over the association, working with the staff and board of directors to guide the efforts and direction of the 117-year old non-profit organization. "Sheriff Johnson was selected for the position because of his extensive experience working in various roles with Sheriffs' Offices throughout Florida" Mr. Casey said in a press release. "He brings over 30 years of experience as well as several honors and awards." Another important issue he wants to bring to state lawmakers, Sheriff Johnson said, is the sharp increase in metal thefts. "They're stealing copper from shopping center (air conditioners), bronze flower pots from cemeteries and storm drain grates from the streets," he said. "It's causing a lot of problems. Sheriff Johnson said he will urge legislators to pass laws that require the metal recycling industry to report transactions, similar to the way pawn shops must. Sheriff Johnson, who said being elected president of the association is "one of the proudest moments of my career," hopes to bring more awareness to "what sheriff's do" while he serves his term. "We do a lot more than running cars up and down the roads and putting people in jail," he said.

Business incubator goes from 'Innovation to Realization'

A community partnership was officially forged recently as representatives from Volusia County and the University of Central Florida Business Incubation Program cut the ribbon on the new 8,000-square-foot business incubator at the Daytona Beach International Airport.

More than 200 people – including representatives of federal, state, county and city government, airport officials as well as UCF and other universities and school officials from Volusia – gathered outside of 601 Innovation Way to hear county and UCF spokesmen talk about the $1.4 million renovation that turned part of the airport's international terminal building into the University of Central Florida Business Incubation Program – Daytona Beach International Airport.

Gordon Hogan, director said the UCF Business Incubation Program currently serves 108 client companies and provides a wide range of services in a campus-like environment, including affordable office space, as well as access to a receptionist, a site manager, business mentors, educational classes and necessary business equipment. The centers also have off-site clients, who utilize all of the services except actual office space.

The Daytona Beach incubator – which will be led by Site Manager Doris Garzon-

Bernal, former manager at Daytona State College's Small Business Development center – eventually can house up to 20 start-up companies in a supportive environment designed to accelerate growth and create local employment opportunities.

The first tenant in the center is Mel Hall, the founder of Innovation Research Engineering and Development, an alternative energy company that is developing wind turbine technology that could provide low-cost sustainable electrical power similar to that used on Mag-lev trains.

Business incubation has shown to be the most cost-effective way of generating new economy development and job growth in the local community.

Florida Hospital cancer center hires executive director

Luis Chanaga will serve as the Florida Hospital Memorial Medical Center Comprehensive Cancer Center's Executive Director, where he will be responsible for the overall administrative and operational management of the hospital's cancer center.

This includes overseeing the daily operations of the radiation department, medical oncology practices, cancer registry, cancer research, and care coordination, as well as maintaining physician relations and developing and implementing strategic plans for the Comprehensive Cancer Center.

In addition, Mr. Chanaga will have collaborative oversight of inpatient oncology, diagnostic imaging, laboratory, physical therapy, and other places within Florida Hospital Memorial Medical Center's healthcare continuum where cancer services are provided.

Mr. Chanaga has worked for Adventist Health System in several key positions since 2001. His most recent position was as the administrative director for the Florida Hospital Cancer Center in Kissimmee, which is also a free-standing center with Medical and Radiation Oncology components. In addition, he was also responsible for Florida Hospital Kissimmee's Patient Access and Retail Services Departments.

Brian Regan: family-friendly and funny comedian

For Hometown News
Volnews@hometownnewsol.com

Comedian Brian Regan will be performing at the Peabody Auditorium in Daytona Beach, for one performance only, Thursday night, Aug. 18.

The show will begin at 8 p.m. and is a Comedy Central Live Event.

Releasing two critically acclaimed hour Comedy Central specials and DVDs in as many years — 2008's "The Epitome of Hyperbole," and 2007's "Brian Regan Standing Up" — Mr. Regan, who critics call "family-friendly and funny," has set a standard of excellence that others continually try to follow.

His non-stop theater tour has visited more than 80 cities each year since 2005. In March, he set the record for the most consecutive shows by a comedian at Abravanel Hall in Salt Lake City with five sold out performances. The previous record was four shows set by Jerry Seinfeld in 2005.

His 1997 CD, "Brian Regan Live," has sold more than 150,000 copies and consistently charts in iTunes Top Ten Comedy Albums. His 2000

"Comedy Central Presents" special continues to be a viewer favorite and Brian's independently released 2004 DVD, "I Walked on the Moon," is available at www.BrianRegan.com.

Tickets priced at $39.50 are on sale now at www.LiveNation.com or www.Ticketmaster.com, all Ticketmaster outlets, or the Peabody Auditorium box office. To charge by phone, call Ticketmaster at (800) 745-3000. All tickets are subject to applicable taxes, and service and handling charges.

For more show information, check out www.livenation.com.

Week of 8-12-2011

Aries-March 21-April 19

Co-workers and associates need to know how much you appreciate them. Loyalty and support depend on it. You have the drive and ambition to get the ball rolling. The greatest success comes when you delegate parts of the plan to trusted associates to carry out. This team effort insures short and long term success.

Taurus-April 20-May 20

Refuse to let self-doubt slow you down or sidetrack you. Your priorities are in line. You know what you want. Stay strong in these beliefs. You have a great heart. You work hard. Live in the moment and you will see success everywhere you turn. Refuse to let the world or negativity rob you of your rightful rewards.

Gemini-May 21-June 21

Maintain your present routine. It will continue to move you forward toward your goals and dreams. You have an inexhaustible supply of goodwill and encouragement to others. You always know when family and associates need a helping hand. Be sure to let others know what you need as well Great Communicator.

Cancer-June 22-July 22

You are what heart is all about. Your love is legendary. You have great empathy. When others hurt, you hurt. You are always there to give comfort. Yours could be called A Celebration of Life. This wonderful sense of humanity will always guide you in the right direction. You are a true Spirit Guide. Keep up the great work.

Leo-July 23-Aug. 22

You live your full life like there is no tomorrow. It's called Leo Passion. You are a fire sign you know. This is your true nature. You plan for the future but you live it now. This makes you a wonderful inspiration for those around you who feel and see this light. It uplifts everyone. Life is going your way. Keep it moving.

Virgo-Aug. 23-Sept. 22

SUNDAY, Aug. 14

"Company": The Cinematique Theater of Daytona Beach will be joining the ranks of just a few select theaters nationwide to exhibit the 2011 performance of Stephen Sondheim's multi-Tony Award winning 1970 musical Company. Featured in the 2011 Tony Awards, the musical in concert features the talents of Jon Cryer, Stephen Colbert, and Neil Patrick Harris. This limited-release film adaptation of the groundbreaking concept musical is accompanied by the New York Philharmonic. The production was shot in early April as part of the Philharmonic's spring gala. In addition to Harris, Cryer and Colbert, the all-star cast includes Patti LuPone, Christina Hendricks, Craig Bierko and Martha Plimpton. Company's plot revolves around Bobby (Harris), a single man unable to commit fully to a steady relationship, let alone marriage, the five married couples who are his best friends, and his three girlfriends. The story unfolds as a series of short vignettes linked by a celebration for Bobby's 35th birthday. The Cinematique Theater will screen the film at 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. on Sunday Aug. 14. Tickets are $18 each for general admission and $16 for members. The Cinematique Theater is located at 242 S.

Beach Street, between Orange and Magnolia Avenues downtown. The theater is a café cinema offering a wide selection of lunch and dinner selections along with traditional movie concessions including beer and wine. Seating is limited, advanced tickets are suggested and available at the box office or by phone: (386) 252-3118. For more information, visit www.cinematique.org

Sunday Cinema: The Port Orange Regional Library will show "The Sea Inside" at 2 p.m. in the library auditorium, 1005 City Center Circle. The real-life story of Spaniard Ramon Sampedro, who fought a 30-year campaign in favor of euthanasia and his own right to die. In Spanish with English subtitles. This film is PG 13 and is 125 minutes long. For more information, call (386) 322-5152, Ext. 4.

MONDAY, Aug. 15

Afternoon at the movies: The Port Orange Regional Library will show "The Music Never Stopped" at 2 p.m. in the library auditorium, 1005 City Center Circle: Tale of a father who struggles to bond with his estranged son Gabriel, after Gabriel suffers a brain tumor that prevents him from forming new memories. Julia Ormond stars. This film is PG and is 105 minutes long. For more information, call (386) 322-5152, Ext. 4.

TUESDAY, Aug. 16

Improv & Indie: Improv troupe Random Acts of Insanity

will perform at 9 p.m. at 10 p.m., "Conan O'Brien: Can't Stop" will be shown. After a much-publicized departure from hosting NBC's Tonight Show - and the severing of a 22-year relationship with the network - Mr. O'Brien hit the road with a 32-city music-and-comedy show to exercise his performing chops and exorcise a few demons. The "Legally Prohibited From Being Funny on Television Tour" was Mr. O'Brien's answer to a contractual stipulation that banned his appearance on television, radio and the Internet for six months following his last show. Tickets are $5. The film is rated R and is 89 minutes. The Cinematique Theater is located at 242 S. Beach Street, between Orange and Magnolia Avenues downtown. For more information on Cinematique, movie schedules, reviews of the films being shown, details on membership and donations to the not-for-profit organization, visit www.cinematique.org or call the box office at (386) 252-3118.

Poetry reading: The Tomoka Poets present a reading by Ormond Beach poet Carol Thomas from 7-9 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 16, at Java Jungle 4606 Clyde Morris Blvd., in Ravenwood Square, Port Orange. Following Ms. Thomas' performance the mic will be open to all who wish to share poetry. Admission is free. For more information, call (386) 760-8969.

A delicious variety of 'good for you' and 'bad for you' dishes

Hello smart shoppers. Every once in a while, I've just got to have a "bad for you" meal like liver and onions. I have included a recipe for that and some other dishes that can be made into "good for you" meals in this week's column. Enjoy, see you next week.

SPINACH-ARTICHOKE DIP (NIB)

regular and low-fat

I can't pass this high fat appetizer up when I see it on a menu. I tried and succeeded in creating a lower-fat version. Using low-fat to no-fat ingredients did the trick except the Parmesan cheese, which has no acceptable substitute.

10-ounce box frozen, chopped spinach, thawed
14-ounce can artichoke hearts, drained and coarsely chopped
3/4-cup grated Parmesan cheese
3/4-cup mayonnaise, not salad dressing
1/2-cup shredded mozzarella
1/2-teaspoon each of garlic powder, pepper and salt

NOTE: Add 3 tablespoons softened butter substitute if using fat-free cheeses.

Squeeze spinach in a colander and then between paper towels to remove excess moisture. Combine all ingredients except artichokes using an electric mixer. Mix in artichokes by hand.

Place in a low, oven-proof baking dish. Bake at 350 degrees until lightly golden and heated through, about 20 minutes. Serve with pita or tortilla chips.

STUFFED EGGPLANT (NIB) regular and low-fat serves 4 to 6

Baby eggplants make an unusual and delicious entree when they are stuffed. A little meat goes a long way.

3 baby eggplant, 1/2- to 3/4-pound each
1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
1/2-pound "fat-free" freshly ground beef

ROMANCING THE STOVE with the Grammy Guru ARLENE BORG

5 whole scallions (green onions) chopped
1 large clove garlic, finely chopped
1 large egg or 2 egg whites
Two 1-inch thick slices day old Italian bread
1 handful grated Romano cheese
Several sprigs fresh Italian parsley, chopped or 2 teaspoons parsley flakes
3/4-teaspoon salt
1/2-teaspoon black pepper
2 tablespoons milk

Soak the bread in water, remove crust, then squeeze out excess water. Sandwich bread may be substituted.

Cut off stem end of eggplant, cut in half length-wise, place in baking pan. Carefully scoop out pulp leaving 1/4-inch shell. Chop pulp.

Place oil in a large skillet; cook eggplant with scallions and garlic. Add meat, cook until almost all the pink is gone. Remove from heat; let cool slightly.

Mix in remaining ingredients and pile into eggplant shells. Top with spaghetti sauce or try my quick sauce below.

Cover with foil, bake in a preheated 375 degree oven for 45 minutes to 1 hour. Serve with a side of spaghetti or rice.

QUICK SAUCE

8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 can water
1 teaspoon dried onion flakes
1/2-teaspoon garlic powder
Salt and pepper

Mix all together and pour over eggplant. Bake as directed.

CHICKEN LIVERS AND ONIONS serves 4

This is a wonderful Jewish dish. The original recipe was made with schmaltz (chicken fat). Needless to say the entire recipe is high in both fat and cholesterol even without the schmaltz. Today I use butter substitute such as Smart Balance and canola oil.

1/2-cup butter substitute
1/3-cup canola oil
2 pounds chicken livers (remove pieces of fat)
4 large onions, thinly sliced
Salt and pepper to taste
1/4 cup or more of water

Place half the butter substitute and oil in a heavy skillet over medium heat and cook onions until transparent. Remove from skillet with a slotted spoon, set aside.

Add remaining butter substitute and oil to skillet, raise heat. Cook livers until lightly browned, turning often. Add onions and seasonings. Continue cooking until livers are no longer pink. Add water and cover for a few minutes. Serve with mashed potatoes and frozen green peas.

BEEF OR CALVES LIVER, SAUTEED (NIB) serves 4

2 to 2-1/2 pounds liver
1 cup flour
Salt and pepper
Canola oil
Sautéed onions
Bacon

Remove skin from liver and cut in serving size pieces. Mix flour with salt and pepper. Dredge liver (press meat into flour mixture until totally covered).

Heat about 2 tablespoons oil in heavy skillet and cook liver, browning on both sides. Beef liver can be served medium or well done.

Drain on paper towels. Serve with sautéed onions and crisp bacon strips.

HOT ONIONS (NIB)

Makes enough for a crowd and freezes great!
Top your hot dogs or hamburgers with New York-style Hot Onions.

3 pounds onions, sliced thin
2 tablespoons Canola oil
8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 tablespoon catsup
1/2-teaspoon each, salt and pepper
Cayenne pepper or crushed red pepper to taste (optional)

Sauté onions in oil (adding a little water if necessary) until transparent. Add remaining ingredients, cover and cook over low heat until onions are tender.

When a recipe is not in my cookbook, it will have (NIB) next to the title.

For an autographed cookbook, send $20 ($15 for the book, $1 for tax, $4 for shipping and handling), or for multiple books sent to one address, it's $4 S&H for 1 book, add $2 postage for each additional book ($15 plus $2). •"A Second Telling - September 11th: Here Is New York:" This powerful set of photographs is drawn from the Permanent Collection of the Southeast Museum of Photography. The original exhibition was organized in response to the World Trade Center tragedy of 2001, and to the unprecedented flood of images that resulted from that event. The goal of the 2002 project was to collect, organize, display and preserve for historical purposes the broadest possible view of this event and its aftermath. The 2002 presentation of "here is new york" at the Southeast Museum of Photography was one of only a handful of such presentations outside of New York City. More than 50 images were acquired by the museum from the 1,200 photographs that were originally exhibited at the museum in spring 2002. The images on display at the museum include powerful and poignant images taken by professional and amateur photographers. The exhibition is subtitled "a democracy of photographs" because the images on display were taken not only by top photojournalists and other professional photographers but also by schoolchildren, office workers, emergency workers and amateurs. This exhibit will be on display from Aug. 18-Oct. 2. The museum is located at Daytona State College's Daytona Beach Campus, Hosseini Center, 1200 W. International Speedway Blvd., Daytona Beach. For more information, call (386) 506-4475.

KRASKI, COSTELLO & DRAKE P.A.

Let Dr. Costello create "Your Winning Smile"

People choose cosmetic dental procedures for various reasons - to repair a defect such as a malformed bite or crooked teeth, treat an injury, or just improve their overall appearance. For these and many other reasons, cosmetic dentistry has become a vital and important part of the dental profession and one of the fastest growing areas of dentistry. For example, tooth-whitening procedures have tripled over the past five years. Common cosmetic dental procedures can be performed to correct misshaped, discolored, chipped or missing teeth. It also can be used to change the overall shape of teeth - from teeth that are too long or short, have gaps, or simply need to be reshaped.

Cancer Patients' Hair Falls Out Overnight!

Overcoming cancer challenges both men and women try to be courageous and accept the reality that treatment will cause them to feel sick and in many cases they will experience almost immediate hair loss. Chemicals used to attack fast growing cancer cells also attack the cells of the hair follicle which are also fast growing cells. Both men and women have to be realistic that losing their hair is not as important as losing their fight to become healthy once again.

Coping with Hair Loss
Losing your hair overnight is devastating to the psyche. We are accustomed to getting up in the morning and looking in the mirror and seeing our face framed with hair. We do not feel as young and healthy as we once did. Are people going to stare? Are people going to ask? What am I going to say? Why me? How am I going to deal with this? Hair is so important to men and women that some have chosen to forego treatment because they just cannot stand the thought of being completely bald. Perhaps if these individuals who were so devastated by the thought of losing their hair had been shown options they would have consented to treatment.

Options that Make Sense
Depending on the degree that hair loss affects a man or woman there are a wide variety of options from covering the head with hats, scarves, ready made wigs or even custom cranial prosthesis. A wig or cranial prosthesis would be the choice for activities such as shopping, dining and other active social interactions. Many people do not know the difference between a wig and a custom cranial prosthesis because they have never needed either one before. So, let us look at each one:

Wigs are usually all machine made or partially machine made. They are pre cut and styled and come in limited colors and styles.

Custom Cranial Prosthesis are designed specifically for those suffering from hair loss due to medical conditions. Most importantly, they are designed to match what your own growing hair looked like. They are treated to resist dirt, oils and body acids while providing maximum comfort.

Finding Options
Wigs, hats and scarves can be found in department stores, wig shops and even flea markets.

Carl Walters Hair Systems is the only accredited facility in Volusia County for Custom Cranial Prosthesis. At Carl Walters Hair Systems personal consultations in private booths provide the patient with the option to duplicate as close as possible the hairstyle and hair color they had before their hair loss. For a no obligation, fact finding consultation you are invited to call and make an appointment.

States, from California's Death Valley to the deep backwoods of Louisiana and North Carolina, 2010 Baum Award winner Christopher Sims had access to both the military's public affairs office and his character role as 'war photographer' in one of the 'villages,' where, as a result, he was able to create the award winning series of images. Spread out over thousands of acres, 'villagers' in these military training grounds are often from local communities near the Army bases. They feature such a vast array of individuals to include spouses of active duty soldiers, as well as military veterans of America's wars in Vietnam and Korea, some of whom are amputees and who play the part of wounded villagers in their new identities. Pretend villagers featured in the photographs are often recent immigrants from Iraq and Afghanistan who have now found work in America playing a version of the lives they left behind. “Ed Grazda – Excerpts: Afghanistan Diary:” Mr. Grazda was one of the last photographers to leave Afghanistan before the ban on photography, music and television by the Taliban. He is a well-respected observer on the region's recent history, having spent 20 years photographing in Afghanistan and Pakistan. His images are a powerful social and cultural document that shows the cruel devastation of a nation and its people by decades of political turmoil. “Lucian Perkins – A Journey Through Afghanistan:” Taken in late 2001 by a Pulitzer Prizing winning photographer, Lucian Perkins, these pictures show the immediate aftermath of the initial battles in Afghanistan with graphic and moving imagery. Lucian Perkins covered many of the important world crises and conflicts as a photojournalist for the Washington Post. Lucian Perkins graduated from the University of Texas at Austin with a degree in biology and worked on the student newspaper, The Daily Texan. In 2000 Perkins won his second Pulitzer Prize along with two colleagues at the Post for their coverage of the Kosovo conflict. In 1996 he won World Press Photo of the Year. In 1995 he and Post reporter, Leon Dash, were awarded a Pulitzer Prize for their four-year study on the effects of poverty on three generations of a Washington, D.C. family. In 1994 he was awarded “Newspaper Photographer of the Year” by the National Press Photographers Association for a portfolio that included projects in Russia and a “Behind-the-Scenes” look at New York fashion shows. From page B1

Your instincts continue to guide you on when to act and when to wait. Trust in your higher power. When you feel the blessing of spirit, take bold action. No power on earth will stop you. True happiness follows.

Libra-Sept. 23-Oct. 22

You always have kind words for everyone. It's because of your human kindness. Your feelings run deep. When you love, you love deeply. When you hurt, you hurt just as much. Listen to your inner wisdom. Continue to trust your first impressions. They speak when you are listening.

There is no greater truth.

Scorpio-Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Aren't you glad you held firm to your beliefs when others tried to sway you with theirs? Your heart power is unmatched. Others may not always understand you, but they are awed by your results. This glorious inner strength will always be there to light and guide your path when you ask for it. Yours is a blessed life.

Sagittarius-Nov. 22-Dec. 21

When you begin to get sidetracked, step back, catch a second wind, regroup and move forward again. Look at your options. Prioritize them. Work on the most important ones first. Your greatest dreams are on the way. Now is no time to get stuck or give up. Have a little fun every day. Now take it to the next level.

Capricorn-Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Your strong belief in doing things right is a major factor in your wonderful personal and spiritual growth. When you get that "Right" feeling, nothing can slow you down in your quest for victory over life. Your heart is huge. You are a superstar in life and spiritual royalty. It's because of forgiveness, compassion and loyalty.

Aquarius-Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You handle responsibility very well. You know and do what is expected of a leader. Such a strong conscience. Don't forget that you need nurturing too. Take a break. Slow down. If your heart isn't in it, don't do it. Your best ideas surface when you are relaxed and feeling happy. Now we all share your renewed joy.

Pisces-Feb. 19-March 20

Say this out loud each morning upon arising: "My life is filled with joy, peace, love, health and abundance. I gladly share my abundance with others. I take time each day to be alone with my source to heal, renew and be inspired. This is my day. I see god in everyone. I am richly blessed and so grateful."

Swedish man caught trying to split atoms at home

Spend any time surfing the Web and you are bound to find stories that are just too bizarre to be true. Here's a sampling, edited for length. Remember, just because it's online doesn't mean it's true!

From nypost.com: 'Rent Too Damn High' candidate faces eviction

A candidate who ran for New York governor because "the rent is too damn high" says he's being evicted from his rent-controlled Manhattan apartment because his landlord wants to charge a new tenant more.

Jimmy McMillan tells the New York Post he pays $872 for the rent-controlled East Village apartment. He says the landlord wants him out because "my rent is too damn low."

HOW WEIRD IS THAT?!
SEAN MCCARTHY

McMillan, now planning a run for president, says he's told his lawyer to file a counterclaim for $70,000. The case is pending in Housing Court.

Building owner Lisco Holdings said in court papers that McMillan violated his lease because the apartment is not his primary residence as required by rent-controlled rules. It says he lives in Brooklyn. McMillan says that address is his office.

From mail.com: Police officer hit by stolen car gets up, catches thief

A police officer knocked down by a driver in a stolen car jumped up, raced after the fleeing man and stopped him with a Taser.

Surrey Police set up a roadblock on the M25 highway just outside London to catch Lee Adamson as he drove a stolen BMW.

Police officer Dan Pascoe was standing at the door of his patrol car when Adamson crashed into it. Pascoe was knocked off his feet by the impact but immediately jumped up and chased after Adamson, who abandoned the BMW a few meters away and ran off.

Pascoe stopped him by firing a stun gun. Adamson, 29, was jailed for 23 months for dangerous driving and resisting arrest.

From sacbee.com: Swedish man caught trying to split atoms at home

A Swedish man who was arrested after trying to split atoms in his kitchen said he was only doing it as a hobby.

Richard Handl told The Associated Press that he had the radioactive elements radium, americium and uranium in his apartment in southern Sweden when police showed up and arrested him on charges of unauthorized possession of nuclear material.

The 31-year-old Handl said he had tried for months to set up a nuclear reactor at home and kept a blog about his experiments, describing how he created a small meltdown on his stove.

Only later did he realize it might not be legal and sent a question to Sweden's Radiation Authority, which answered by sending the police.

"I have always been interested in physics and chemistry," Handl said, adding he just wanted to "see if it's possible to split atoms at home."

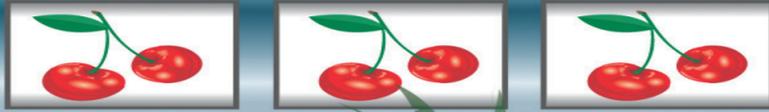

Police have refused to comment. If convicted, Handl could face fines or up to two years in prison.

Although he says police didn't detect dangerous levels of radiation in his apartment, he now acknowledges the project wasn't such a good idea. "From now on, I will stick to the theory," he said.

Weird

A pregnant suburban Chicago woman was so determined to finish the Illinois bar exam that she completed the test even after going into labor.

The Chicago Tribune reports 29-year-old Elana Nightingale Dawson had started the final portion of the exam when the Northwestern Law School graduate went into labor. The exam must be finished to be valid.

Nightingale Dawson says her goal was "to get through the exam as fast as I could and leave" unless anything more serious happened.

Her contractions were about 15 minutes apart. After finishing, she walked with the proctor about one block to a downtown Chicago hospital.

The Downers Grove woman's son, Wilson, was delivered by C-section about two hours later. She'll find out in October if she passed the bar.

From msnbc.msn.com:

Police to man: Stop wearing that bunny suit

Police in Idaho Falls have told a man to stop wearing a bunny suit in public after people complained he has been frightening children. Residents in the city of 54,000 people also reported William Falkingham, 34, occasionally wears a tutu with the bunny suit, police said in a statement.

Police warned Falkingham after a woman said she saw him dressed in the costume and peeking at her young son from behind a tree and pointing his finger like a gun.

While a police report said other residents were "greatly disturbed" by his activities, one neighbor defended Falkingham as eccentric but otherwise harmless.

"He's got the bunny outfit, a cowboy suit and a ballerina dress, but you don't see him except where he's tripping through his backyard," Deborah Colson told Reuters. "He's got a strange lifestyle at home, but we all do weird things at home."

Falkingham told officers he "enjoys wearing the suit" but understands the concerns and that he could be cited as a public nuisance, police spokeswoman Joelyn Hansen said.

You never know what creatures you'll come across in the water

One of the fun happenings in the salt water is to encounter a creature where you would not expect to find it.

I haven't seen it in a while, but once upon a time it was common for alligators to go for a swim on the beach. That always gave our Canadian visitors something to talk about when they returned home.

Some years back, my wife, Lana, and I saw a killer whale in the surf at Ormond By The Sea. Doubting my own eyes, I went home and did some research and found out that it was indeed a possibility.

Just a few weeks ago, my daughter, Shayla, was at Ponce Inlet with some friends when they saw something unusual. Soon Shayla sought out her pop to find out what the creature may have been.

FISHING WITH DAN

She described it as very large with lots of white spots. Whale shark was my answer. Sure enough, a couple of days later, the news channels carried some very good photos of a whale shark just south of here.

Not long ago, I was wading for flounder with my friend and neighbor John Rector. The water was very murky, and we were about 50 feet apart when John stepped into a drop off and right on top of a sleeping manatee.

The frightened sea cow sped off. The water exploded all around John. I am sure the manatee was no more frightened than John; it must be disconcerting to be atop something unidentifiable that is obviously larger than you. That will get your heart pumping!

I wade for flounder all summer, and I try my best to avoid stingrays, jellyfish and horseshoe crabs, but the other day, finding exactly what I was looking for gave me a real start.

Wading in my usual flip flops, I was in water where I could not see the bottom when my foot came down right on the back of a very large flounder.

At first, all I could do was grit my teeth as I expected to feel the barb of a stingray. Relief came in a split second when I recognized the fish as a flounder.

A couple of years ago, a seal showed up at Ponce Inlet. That had to be a fun sighting.

About the same time, bonefish started to be caught around Disappearing Island. Ordinarily, you won't find bonefish north of Miami.

Years ago, it was dangerous to go to the beach at night during turtle-nesting season. Black bears would be on the beach eating the turtle eggs. That hasn't been reported in a while, but it is still possible.

Recently, I wrote of seeing a tripletail fish caught near Tomoka State Park. That is becoming increasingly rare in these parts.

Three years ago, I was casting a plug in Thompson's Creek near Ormond Beach when I caught a barracuda. It was only a baby about a foot long, but you would not expect to find any barracuda back in there.

During the recent shrimp run, I reported that I cast-netted a bonnet head shark in the Halifax just south of the Orange Avenue Bridge. Anytime you throw a big net into the depths of the boat channel, you may be surprised at what comes up.

It was about 15 years ago that I netted a long, thin silver fish. It was more than a yard long and never more than 2 inches wide with a mouth full of nasty looking teeth. It turned out to be a sabre fish. Pretty rare for the inshore.

Chance encounters only add to the fun of the local fishing experience. You may catch a hundred reds, trout or whiting, but every now and again, something strange is bound to show itself when you least expect it.

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for more than 40 years. E-mail questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net. His book, "I Swear the Snook Drowned," is available for $10.95 at (386) 441-7793.
