Edgewater Fire captain Jill Danigel and her husband Friedhelm Danigel went to New York City to pick up an I-beam section of the World Trade Center that will be turned into a memorial at Fire Station 55 in Edgewater.

Trip to pick up WTC artifact leaves lasting impression

By Casey Preston
cpreston@hometownnewsol.com

EDGEWATER — During their 2-day, 1,100-mile drive to New York City last April, Friedhelm and Jill Danigel had plenty of time to speculate about the 417-pound piece of World Trade Center wreckage they were en route to pick up on behalf of the Edgewater Fire Department.

However, it did little to prepare the couple for the scene they witnessed upon entering John F. Kennedy International Airport's Hangar 17, an 80,000-square-foot space packed with structural remains from the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks on the World Trade Center.

As they waited to collect the piece, the Danigels scanned the hangar floor to see hundreds of steel beams that went down with the buildings' collapse. They also observed a bike rack that was pulled from the wreckage, along with several bikes that were still locked to it.

The Danigels immediately understood that this was no ordinary road trip.

"Driving up, we're thinking, 'Oh, this is pretty cool,'

Former FDNY chief loses nephew on 9/11, travels to NY to help

By Casey Preston
cpreston@hometownnewsol.com

EDGEWATER — In his 38 years with the Fire Department of New York, Joe Daly thought he had seen it all.

Then, on Sept. 11, 2001, the Edgewater resident and volunteer deputy fire chief turned on his radio to hear his former hometown had become the target of the largest terrorist attack in U.S. history.

"I never believed that somebody would do that," he said. "It's such a tragic thing."

Although he moved to Edgewater in the late 1980s, Mr. Daly still had countless ties to friends and family in the New York area.

Mr. Daly's first call was to his sister, Joan Rall, to check on his nephew, Edward Rall, an FDNY firefighter for Rescue 2, an elite search-and-rescue group stationed in Brooklyn.

He learned that Edward, 44, was just leaving the firehouse after completing his shift when the 8:46 a.m. call came in that the north World Trade Center building had been struck by American Airlines Flight 11.

Mr. Rall, an 18-year FDNY veteran, immediately hopped on a truck and headed for the scene. Like 342 of his fellow firefighters, Mr. Rall would never return.

His phone conversation with his crying sister that morning was one of the most emotional of his life, Mr. Daly said.

In the days and weeks following the incident, Mr. Rall's body was counted among the hundreds missing at the scene. Although Mr. Rall's mother, Joan, and wife, Darlene, held out hope for weeks that he would be found alive, Mr. Daly knew that no one could last that long amidst destruction that severe.

"After four days it was no longer a search," he said. "It was a recovery."

Although it had been more

Local cop recalls Flight 93 crash

By Michael Salerno
For Hometown News

PORT ORANGE – For Rick Lingenfelter, it was business as usual on the morning of Sept. 11, 2001.

The part-time Port Orange cop was then living in Indiana, Pa., just an hour away from Pittsburgh, where he was the station commander of the Pennsylvania State Police's Indiana County barracks. That morning, he planned to interview applicants for emergency SWAT officer positions.

That was before he found out a plane struck the North Tower of the World Trade Center in New York City.

"Just as the interview started, my desk officer called me over to say a plane just hit the World Trade Center," Mr. Lingenfelter recalled. He then turned on a television in the barracks, where he viewed the image of the towers on fire.

The scary thought of his country being under attack became scarier when he was warned terrorists could be striking closer to his home.

The Federal Aviation Administration notified state police of a possible hijacked airliner headed for Pennsylvania.

As this happened, news broke that a second plane hit the World Trade Center, this time striking the South Tower.

Mr. Lingenfelter was shocked.

"You can't believe somebody did something like that in our country," he said.

At 10:03 a.m., United Airlines Flight 93 crashed in Shanksville, Pa.

Andy Romano Beachfront Park design chosen

By John Bozzo
For Hometown News

ORMOND BEACH — Children and maybe even adults will frolic in a beachfront splash park.

Family pavilions will host oceanfront reunions.

Dunes will be restored, children will have a separate shaded playground and viewing areas will be provided for people to merely sit and enjoy the splendor of the beach and the Atlantic Ocean.

Those features and more were all approved Tuesday as the City Commission unanimously gave its blessing to a concept plan for the new Ormond Beach's Andy Romano Beachfront Park.

Named after the city's first lifeguard, first beach concessionaire and a longtime recreation enthusiast who remains active today, the park will be a popular addition to this city, whose voters approved issuing $5 million in bonds last year to help buy the park.

Volusia County's ECHO program, which pays for environmental, cultural, historic and outdoors programs with a voter-approved tax, chipped in with $3.5 million to help secure the site.

Developing the park with the amenities envisioned in the concept plan will cost about $2.6 million.

Restrooms and a concession area are included in the plan, which will also provide 190 parking spaces, 50 picnic tables, 16 pavilions of various sizes, 14 grills and 40 benches. All told, the park will have a seating capacity of 488.

A drop-off area will be provided by the restroom-concession area, which will be designed to resemble the city's historic beachside coquina fire department building.

In the park concept, planning officials used comments from residents in public forums, city advisory boards, city staff and the City Commission.

"It was pretty clear the community wanted these items in the park," said Beth Lemke, of Zev Cohen & Associates, the consulting

Ormond Beach asks for economic development ideas

By John Bozzo
For Hometown News

ORMOND BEACH – Despite the "Great Recession," Joe Mannarino points to success with the city's Strategic Economic Development Plan.

Now, Mr. Mannarino, the city's economic development director, wants about 70 people to help update the five-year plan that was adopted in 2006, to plan for even more prosperity.

Volunteers will commit to working 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., Sept. 17, in a workshop at the Ormond Beach Performing Arts Center, 2nd Floor Blue room, 399 North U.S. 1.

Those who would like to participate are asked to reserve a spot by Sept. 10 by calling (386) 676-3266 or by e-mail at mannarino@ormond-beach.org.

The 2006 Strategic Economic Development Plan is an 85-page document outlining goals, objectives and strategies that Mr. Mannarino said he refers to "every day."

In a nutshell, the five-year-old plan boils down to three goals that show Ormond Beach's past successes and point to the city's prosperous future, he said.

Those three basic goals are:

•Keeping existing businesses in the city and helping them grow

•Recruiting new businesses to the city

•Rebuilding the city's downtown

Mr. Mannarino can point to a trifecta of successes in the goal to retain and grow businesses already in the city. These successes meant overcoming obstacles.

After Hawaiian Tropic sold for $83 million in 2007 to Playtex, more than 100 people were laid off at the Ormond Beach plant. But Energizer Holdings gobbled up Playtex for $1.9 billion and the company put $20 million into the Ormond Beach plant, rehiring those laid off and 100 additional people.

> "I like personally to hear from business owners as to why they are here and what they can do to attract other businesses they can be customers or suppliers to."
> Ed Kelley
> Ormond Beach Mayor

"We convinced them to keep the plant open here," Mr. Mannarino said. "They closed an outsourcing operation in Canada and we showed them it would pay to bring the jobs here."

Another retention success is the nearly complete, $2.5 million expansion by Pace Analytical, an environmental testing laboratory. The company plans to add 35 people to its staff of 65.

After Pace bought the former ELAB building in 2008, Mr. Mannarino met with the Minneapolis-based company representatives as they returned home from a Bermuda vacation.

"We did a back-of-my-trunk presentation," he said.

This year, Mr. Mannarino met with Carver Pump officials to avert a possible shutdown after the company bought Delta P Systems. Also, he persuaded Emergency Communications Network officials to buy an additional building at the Airport Business Park for expansion, rather than relocate the existing business and 65 people.

Ormond Beach hopes to recruit new businesses rest with marketing remaining lots in the Airport Business Park, as well as forging ahead with plans for Ormond Crossings, a 3,000-acre planned project straddling Interstate 95 south of U.S. 1. Plans include five-million square feet of industrial and commercial office space, 11,000 jobs, $575 million in construction spending over 20 years and $42 million more annually in property tax income for the city. Design standards for roads and infrastructure could reach the City Commission for discussion in October.

Ormond Beach's downtown has also seen a revitalization with renovation projects for dining-entertainment venues, including the completed Caffeine Bistro and Rose Villa.

Mr. Mannarino attributes the city's successes to having a good plan.

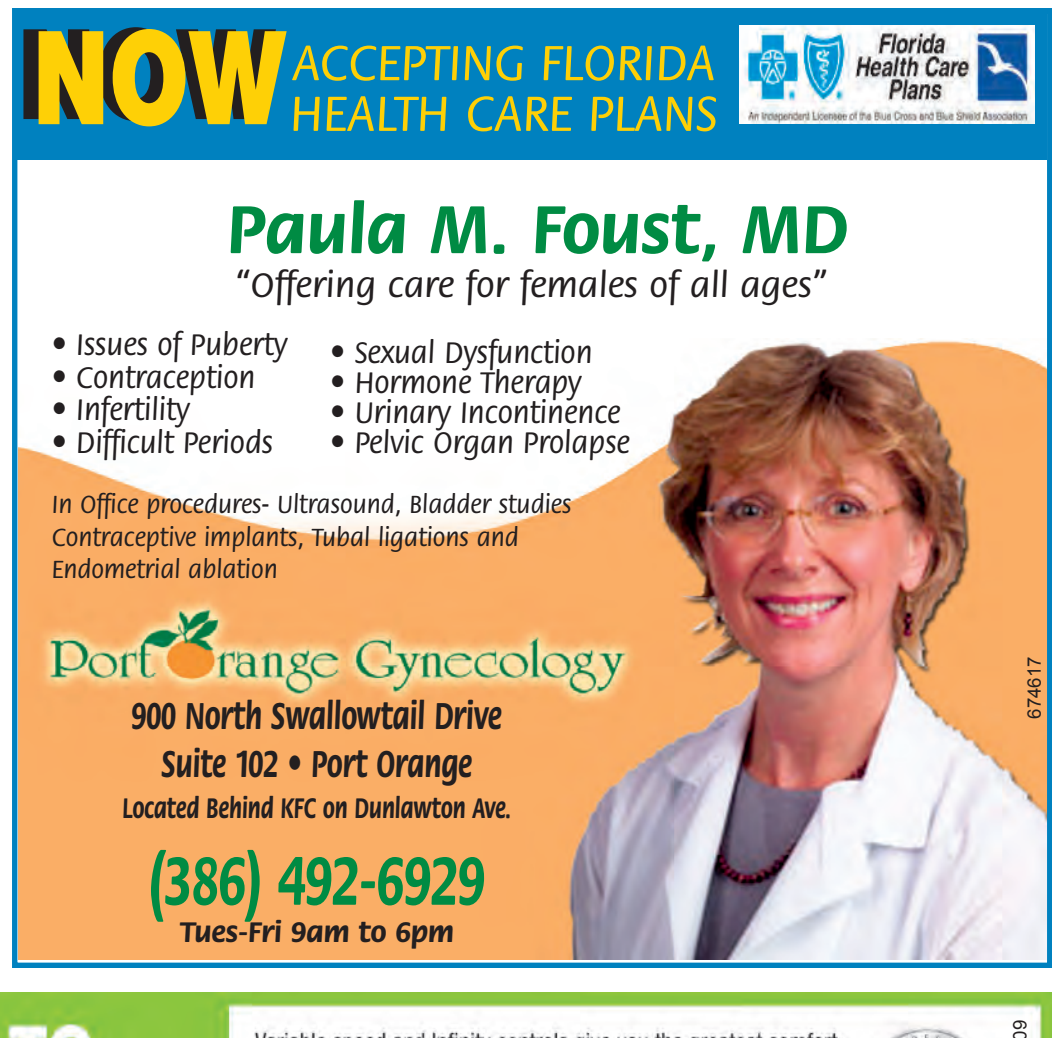
"Having the materials to meet with these people and show them what you can do is vital to economic development," he said.

The economic development director wants to hear from the public.

"We we're now asking folks is to come and listen to where we are today, what was accomplished, then break into groups and revisit some goals and objectives," Mr. Mannarino said.

Mayor Ed Kelley said the upcoming workshop is a way to reach out to the community so people can share their ideas about how to attract and maintain businesses.

"I like personally to hear from business owners as to why they are here and what they can do to attract other businesses they can be customers or suppliers to," Mr. Kelley said. "You have the ability, when you're a company, to pick up local suppliers."



Do you ever stop to think …

LAND LINES

DAN SMITH

Do you ever pause to think about how fortunate we are to be living in Volusia County? We are truly blessed to reside in a place that most people only dream of visiting, and even then for only a short vacation.

Our children have been witness to countless awe-inspiring space launches and have seen alligators and manatees in the wild.

Our beautiful subtropical landscape abounds in lush plant life and creatures that do not survive only 200 miles north of here.

Twice a year, Daytona becomes the world center of racing. Millions of fans of the sport must watch the action on television, but most of us live so close that we can hear the roar of the powerful engines from our own front yard.

At our eastern border lies 26 miles of the most unique beach to be found anywhere. For that entire span, the green Atlantic is available to everyone.

It is truly a marvel.

Do you ever stop to think about how wonderful it is to be living in Central Florida? We live our lives in close proximity to the world's No. 1 tourist destination.

The theme parks in Orlando represent a once-in-a-lifetime escape for families around the planet, but for us it is just a day trip.

Our central location puts us only a few hours from the calm waters of the Gulf of Mexico or the tropical islands of the Keys.

Miles of citrus groves cause tourists to stop for photos, but most of us are able to grow oranges in our own backyards.

How lucky we are to live our lives in such a place.

Do you ever stop to think about how great it is to live in the state of Florida? All of the 50 states are available to us, but we have managed to put down roots in the most exotic one of them all.

No snow or ice for us. Many winters are almost non-existent and are more like the spring season of some northern states.

We do have long, hot summers, but with Florida having the most shoreline of any state in the union, that seems just about right.

It costs us nothing to enjoy the ocean, gulf, rivers and lakes. Add to that the fact that we have more fresh-water springs than any other state and you get a clear picture of our abundant water resources.

My, what a great state for us to call home.

Do you ever take a minute to stop and think about how lucky we are to be living in the United States of America? Only a small percentage of the world's population can lay claim to being a citizen of the greatest nation on earth.

Each and every one of us has the right to live as we choose and to accomplish whatever our work ethic and talents allow.

We have the right to vote for the people who will run the government and to dissent mightily when we disapprove.

Our country is a land of infinite variety and beauty, and I hope you will all take the time to visit each state as I have.

The U.S. will constantly amaze you from sea to shining sea.

I know that we will all pause with heavy hearts this weekend to remember what happened 10 years ago in New York, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.

I would urge each of you to also take the time to revel in what we do have and not to dwell on hate.

The people who caused the destruction were themselves filled with a burning hatred for our free and easy way of life.

I would never ask you to forget the attacks of 9/11 and the innocent lives lost on that day, just as we as a nation will never forget the atrocities of Pearl Harbor.

Instead, I would ask that you say a silent prayer in your own way and fill your heart with the joy of what we have here in this great country.

Without a doubt, it was the envy of our success that drove our enemies to commit their despicable deeds. Take pride in your country, state, area, community and the home in which you live.

It has been said many times before, but it is true that living a good life is the best revenge.

I know that we will all pause with heavy hearts this weekend to remember what happened 10 years ago in New York, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia. I would urge each of you to also take the time to revel in what we do have and to not dwell on hate.

Quick Answers to Common Legal Questions

Top 5 Things to Avoid When Filing a Social Security Disability Claim

The Social Security Disability (SSD) claim process is both complicated and difficult. Trying to understand the multitude of Social Security regulations, standards and procedures can be a daunting task for any potential claimant. Although attorneys and representatives handling disability claims often give advice as to ways to maximize the chances of getting a claim approved, many times disabled individuals with solid claims are denied because of things that they should not have done, or things that they should have done but failed to do.

Below are the 5 most common mistakes that I see individuals filing for Social Security Disability make which hurt or eliminate their chances of being awarded disability benefits.

1. Waiting too long to apply

The quicker you apply for disability after recognizing that you will not be able to remain in the workforce, the quicker your period of eligibility for disability benefits is protected. Waiting too long to apply for benefits can result in the loss of your disability insured status; meaning that even if you are physically or mentally disabled, you will not qualify for benefits because you will not have enough credits to be insured. Although you may still qualify for disability under the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program, strict financial requirements have to be met for eligibility under SSI.

2. Not giving Social Security complete information

Frequently, I see disability denials where the information used by Social Security to evaluate the claim is incomplete. First of all, make sure you disclose all of your medical providers and their contact information in your initial application. Secondly, disclose all of your medical conditions to the Social Security Administration. Finally, when it comes to your past relevant work, be detailed in the description of your physical and mental activities.

3. Focusing on medical conditions and not on limitations

The magic word in the world of real estate is location. The magic word in Social Security Disability law is limitations. You have to be specific as to the physical or mental limitations that you have as a result of your disabling medical conditions. Limitations are the individual physical and/or mental restrictions caused by the symptoms flowing from your medical conditions. In other words, in what ways are you limited in doing certain activities as a result of your medical conditions?

4. Relying on your own "common sense" to win the case.

You have to prepare your case according to what Social Security is looking for and not what you believe makes sense. Believe me, common sense is not necessarily required in the pursuit of Social Security Disability benefits.

The following "common sense" issues are irrelevant (i.e., do not count) in the disability review process:

- That you cannot think who in their right mind would give you a job with the medical condition(s) you have
- That the possible, hypothetical, job Social Security says you could do pays very little
- That you have never done that hypothetical job in your life and have never trained for it
- That the hypothetical job Social Security says you can do does not exist in your city, county or state and even if it does there are no openings for it
- That the hypothetical job Social Security says you can do is something that you have never even considered doing

All of these factors do not come into play when Social Security is evaluating your case. Instead, concentrate in proving why you cannot be expected to complete a work week without physical and/or mental interruptions.

5. Not using time to your advantage.

It is true that it can take a long time from your initial application to the adjudication of your claim. However, you should do your best to use the amount of time it takes to process a disability claim to your advantage. Time gives you the opportunity to develop your claim. Always remember that if your Social Security claim is approved you will be entitled to receive back benefits. That means that the government has to compensate you for the time you spent going through the process to receive your approval.

Close calls for many family members

On Sept. 11, 2001, I was at my office in Washington, DC, when I received a call from a friend who asked if my son, Tony, still worked in the World Trade Center. You see, Tony was there in 1993, working for Cantor Fitzgerald...when a bomb was detonated in the basement. That time, it was five hours before I found out he was safe.

I told my friend that, yes, he still worked in the Trade center but he was off that day and at the New York Giants vs. Denver Broncos game in Colorado.

Tony was one of only five survivors out of 770 employees at Cantor Fitzgerald that day.

My younger son, Richie, worked at Building 5 of the Trade Center. He was not in harms way, but did, however, view the carnage of the collapse of the Towers.

I was evacuated from our building on Connecticut Avenue in DC because of our close proximity to the White House. As I was seeking a way out of Washington to my home in Maryland (the Metro was shut down), I remembered that my sister-in-law worked at Tower 2. Fortunately, she missed her bus from Staten Island and arrived on the scene after the two planes hit the Trade Center. She literally ran for her life to the Staten Island Ferry; was given a life jacket and experienced a harrowing trip back to the Island while the ferry listed and rolled from the debris from the buildings.

My daughter, Susan, worked uptown and saw many of the "walking wounded" in midtown trying to find a way home.

I feel I am the most blessed person and mother in the world to have so many of my family involved in the unbelievable disaster, but they all lived through it. Let us all pray we never see this devastation in our lifetime.

Jewish Federation helped 20 families

When 9-11 happened, our small Federation (the Jewish Federation of Volusia & Flagler Counties) wanted to send funds to individual families who had lost loved ones but we were of low income. We knew we couldn't raise more than $50,000 like the big organizations, but we were compelled to do something.

I called our National organization and asked for the names of 20 families we could send money to. Of course, they denied us because of privacy issues but after I persisted, they relented.

But it was not to be because of the anthrax scare. I knew that they would be afraid to open a letter from our organization. One of our board members who was a private investigator came to our rescue. He was able to secure their phone numbers. You can't begin to imagine how shocked they were when I called these families and explained that they were going to receive $2,500 from our organization.

When I called the 20th family, the woman told me she had lost not only her husband but one of her sons. She lamented that she had gone down for assistance to one of the bigger organizations and signed a multitude of papers but unfortunately they had lost them. Because I had talked to the previous families, they had told me where they received help and I relayed this to her. She couldn't believe that a lady from Ormond Beach was telling her where to go for assistance.

We received so many letters of thanks and pictures from these families for this small gesture. When help was needed we were there and this Federation felt proud that 100 percent of the funds collected were given to people who really deserved help.

PORT ORANGE

Two Thousand One, Nine eleven

Sometimes attributed to Paul Spreadbury

Two thousand one, nine eleven
Five thousand plus arrive in heaven
As they pass through the gate,
Thousands more appear in wait
A bearded man with stovepipe hat
Steps forward saying, "Lets sit, lets chat"
They settle down in seats of clouds
A man named Martin shouts out proud
"I have a dream!" and once he did
The Newcomer said, "Your dream still lives."

Groups of soldiers in blue and gray
Others in khaki, and green then say
"We're from Bull Run, Yorktown, the Maine"
The Newcomer said, "You died not in vain."

From a man on sticks one could hear
"The only thing we have to fear.
The Newcomer said, "We know the rest,
Trust us sir, we've passed that test."

"Courage doesn't hide in caves
You can't bury freedom, in a grave,"
The Newcomers had heard this voice before
A distinct Yankees twang from Hyannisport shores.

A silence fell within the mist
Somehow the Newcomer knew that this Meant time had come for her to say
What was in the hearts of the five thousand plus that day.

"Back on Earth, we wrote reports,
Watched our children play in sports
Worked our gardens, sang our songs
Went to church and clipped coupons
We smiled, we laughed, we cried, we fought
Unlike you, great we're not"

The tall man in the stovepipe hat
Stood and said, "Don't talk like that!
Look at your country, look and see
You died for freedom, just like me."

Then, before them all appeared a scene
Of rubbled streets and twisted beams
Death, destruction, smoke
and dust
And people working just
'cause they must
Hauling ash, lifting stones,
Knee deep in hell, but not

"Look! Blackman, Whiteman,
Brownman, Yellowman
Side by side helping their

So said Martin, as he watched the scene
"Even from nightmares, can

The soldiers above had seen it

But look very closely. You're

All of those people, even those who've never met you
All of their lives, they'll never

Don't you see what you've

You've brought them together, together as one."

Eerie 9/11 image stays with fireman

By Casey Preston
cpreston@hometownnewsol.com

EDGEWATER — At the mention of Sept. 11, 2001, the first images likely to spring to mind are the World Trade Center towers spewing black smoke into the blue New York sky, the second plane ramming into the south tower and people jumping hundreds of feet to their death before the towers' collapse.

But for Edgewater volunteer firefighter Everett "Butch" Hatton, who has more than 50 years of firefighting experience in New York and New Jersey, the image he can't get out of his mind is a table of half-eaten breakfast food.

On Sept. 14, 2001, Mr. Hatton was on the phone with his son Ray, a NY/NJ firefighter who was a member of an elite search-and-rescue mission at the World Trade Center since the morning of the attack. As in their previous phone conversations over the past two nights, Ray tried his best to describe to his father every detail he could remember from the scene at Ground Zero, no matter how gruesome.

That night, as he listened to his son describe the scene on an unknown floor of the World Trade Center his group tunneled to earlier that day, Mr. Hatton could take no more.

"They found a table with coffee cups and half-eaten bagels on it, set up like nothing happened," Mr. Hatton said. "The only thing missing was people."

When Ray's group saw the scene, they stood in silence for several moments, as though the grave reality of the situation had finally set in.

"They were working off adrenaline for days. They never hesitated, they just went in and worked," Mr. Hatton said of the rescue firefighters. "I think that's

"It wasn't long after that … I was a first responder (to the crash site at Shanksville) with as many people I could take with me," he said.

He headed for Shanksville, located about 60 miles away from Indiana County, with a team of about 20 officers from his barracks.

"We brought all our (on duty) personnel," he said. Off duty and night shift personnel, he added, were asked to come into work to keep the state police barracks functional while daytime personnel traveled to Shanksville.

When he arrived, he saw a huge crater on the ground where the plane made impact, and smoke coming from trees that were on fire as a result of the wreckage.

Mr. Lingenfelter said he knew what his task was as soon as he saw the crash site.

"We knew immediately upon arriving there were no survivors," he said. "We knew we needed to protect this to recover remains and personal belongings."

State police were tasked with controlling all points of entry in order to keep spectators away from the site, which needed to be preserved for federal agencies so they could identify every person on the plane, including the hijackers.

His troop's main purpose was to establish a perimeter at the crash site and treat it as a crime scene. Following that, police searched the scene for body parts, plane parts and personal belongings, some using lasers to identify found objects.

As the day moved forward, more agencies became involved in protecting the perimeter, including the FBI and the FAA, increasing the scale of the operation.

By the end of the first night, an organizational pattern was established and officers were given specific tasks. Most of the initial responders, including Mr. Lingenfelter, stayed in Shanksville for two weeks, operating out of a makeshift command post in a garage area near the site.

Mr. Lingenfelter was assigned the role of logistics officer, which made him responsible for arranging meals, lodging and supplies for the officers in the inner and outer perimeters.

He got help from the surrounding community.

A local Wendy's restaurant donated free food to all officers at the site at the insistence of the restaurant chain's late founder and owner, Dave Thomas, who said he wanted to help the Pennsylvania State Police.

Cellular One, a local cell phone company, built a cellular tower near the crash site and gave the officers cell phones as a way to help improve their communication. Someone delivered Porta John portable toilets to the site and also cleaned them at no charge to police.

"We didn't ask," Mr. Lingenfelter said. "People just gave."

His time working at the site where Flight 93 crashed was very emotional, Mr. Lingenfelter said.

One particularly painful memory he recalled was seeing buses of mourning family members stopping 200 yards from the crash site, some constructing makeshift memorials dedicated to the victims of the crash.

Seeing the grief of the families "was probably the hardest part of my job," Mr. Lingenfelter said.

"I'll never forget the moment the first bus came," he said. "It was a very sad moment."

As the first bus left the site, he and a captain in his post gave a hand salute – a gesture that was so appreciated by the family members on the bus that all of his troopers began saluting all the incoming and outgoing buses that visited the site.

"It was the most significant thing we (police) started at Shanksville," Mr. Lingenfelter said.

After his work in Shanksville, Mr. Lingenfelter was promoted from lieutenant to captain. He retired in 2005 and moved with his wife to Daytona Beach Shores, but after two years he sought part-time police work with the City of Port Orange, where he continues to work today.

With the 10-year anniversary of the terrorist attacks drawing nearer, Mr. Lingenfelter reflected on how the U.S. has changed since Sept. 11, 2001.

He said he's seen change in that the federal government has spent billions trying to beef up security throughout the country, and spending on wars in Iraq and Afghanistan increased the country's debt.

He changed as well, expressing fears that another terrorist attack may occur in the future and urging the federal government to take a stronger stand in preventing such attacks from occurring on American soil.

"I don't have any respect or trust for a culture that's trying to eliminate us," he said. "No one forgot Pearl Harbor. America acted pretty strong back then. We can act stronger after 9-11 to protect us from further harm to our citizens."

Just as hard as it was for Mr. Lingenfelter to believe America was under attack on Sept. 11, 2001, he found it hard to realize 10 years have passed since that fateful day.

"It's still hard to believe after all these years those people lost their lives, and it's hard to believe the lasting effect (the attacks) had on our families and America."

ERAU opens three buildings

Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University has completed the final three buildings in the James Hagedorn Aviation Complex.

The new, high-tech Emil Buehler Aviation Maintenance Science Building, Samuel M. Goldman Fleet Maintenance Hangar, and Flight Operations Building are grouped together on ERAU's flight line, adjacent to Daytona Beach International Airport. The Buehler and Flight Operations buildings replace older structures; the Goldman building replaces a hangar destroyed by a tornado in 2006.

than a decade since Mr. Daly was an active FDNY member, the relationships and loyalties he built in his nearly 40 prior years with the department made the decision to fly to his New York hometown shortly following the attacks an easy one for the chief.

"I got up there as soon as I could," he said. "That is my second family."

In his few weeks there, Mr. Daly visited several familiar companies where he was formerly stationed. He also performed dozens of hours of stress debriefing, encouraging fellow firefighters and affected loved ones to talk about the tragedy that had taken place.

"To see (Chief Daly) was a comfort for a lot of people," said Edgewater fire Capt. Jill Danigel. "He's too modest to admit it, but the Daly name carries a lot of weight up there."

When a firefighter is lost in the line of duty, it is customary for the department to unite as a family for a memorial service in remembrance of their fallen friend. Since joining FDNY in 1951, Mr. Daly has made a point to attend as many services as possible. However, with Sept. 11 claiming 343 firefighter lives, by far the department's largest single-day toll, the frequency of services, five to eight per day, forced Mr. Daly to skip far more than he

Artifact

but once we got there the gravity of everything really hit us," said Jill Danigel, Edgewater Fire Captain. "We just couldn't believe we were seeing the things we normally only saw on TV."

The Danigels were two of several dozen people at the hangar that morning who traveled from all across the country to pick up a salvaged World Trade Center fragment. As 9/11 stories were traded among the group, Capt. Danigel could not help but take a moment to think of the nearly 3,000 lives that were lost that day, 343 of which were fellow firefighters.

"Just being there brought all these emotions out," she said. "The experience was much more powerful than we ever could have imagined."

The artifacts are owned by the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey. For years, the group stored about 1,200 salvaged steel beams in Hangar 17 of JFK Airport in Queens, NY.

Some of the artifacts were selected for the National September 11 Memorial and Museum at Ground Zero, while others were used in 9/11 investigations conducted at the National Institute of Standards and Technology in Gaithersburg, MD.

In 2009, the Port Authority began offering the remaining 1,112 pieces free of charge to cities, firehouses, museums, military bases, and nonprofit groups in all 50 cities and seven foreign countries for use in Sept. 11 memorials, provided that they are displayed to the public without an admission fee.

For the Edgewater Fire Department, which will move into a new firehouse on Jan. 1, 2012, this provided an opportunity to feature the artifact in a 9/11 memorial outside their new station.

"The timing of everything was perfect," said Edgewater Fire Chief Steve Cousins. "The memorial will be a great addition to our new station."

Demolition of the previous Station 55, which the department called home for 40 years, began last February. It is being replaced on the same U.S. 1 property by a 10,100-square-foot building that will feature 3,600 square feet of living space, more than seven times that of the old building.

After a lengthy review process, the Port Authority informed the department its application had been accepted and there was a 417-pound steel I-beam piece waiting for them at the hangar.

The Port Authority gave them the option to either pick up the piece or pay to have it shipped. For Capt. Danigel, though, this wasn't a choice at all.

"I looked at (driving to New York) as an honor. Meeting with people from across the country and seeing how much it meant to them to personally pick up their piece was much more powerful than having a shipping company going, 'Hey, here's your piece,'" she said. "It is a piece of history, so we felt we should treat it that way."

Chief Cousins said it is a matter of respect.

"You have ownership of that particular piece because it had an effect on the entire country. It represents people's lives and the impact it had on all of us," he said. "It's extremely valuable to us."

Several people were at a loss for words the first time they saw the artifact. While the Danigel's drive to New York was laced with typical road-trip chatter, Capt. Danigel said their return trip was much quieter, both their minds occupied by the piece of history that lay in their truck bed.

"We didn't talk for a long time after we got it," she said. "You look at it and think, 'Did someone die here? Did this piece land on somebody? Was somebody trapped underneath it?'"

The Danigel's first stop with the artifact was their home to show their daughter, Lauren. For several minutes, the three stood around the I-beam in silence.

"We were all awestruck," Capt. Danigel said.

The first time Chief Cousins saw the steel artifact, which the department surmises was a floor beam, he could not help but speculate about the people and events surrounding the piece.

"You stare at it and your mind goes from there. You think, 'What floor was this on? I wonder who worked there?'" he said. "It's emotional. There's no way around it."

An illustration of the memorial, sketched by Edgewater Fire Rescue driver and local artist Greg Swets, shows the I-beam straddling a pile of rubble, "because that's where it was found," Capt. Danigel said. The rubble, which will be constructed with bricks from the old firehouse, will also feature a large American flag underneath the artifact.

"It's going to be really nice," Capt. Danigel said of the monument, which is scheduled to be completed by Jan. 1 along with the rest of the station.

"The memorial isn't just for us," Chief Cousins said. "It's for everybody in the community."

would have liked.

"Everyone was stressed out. There was so much sadness," he said. "It was very emotional."

A Nov. 15, 2001 story in The New York Daily News recounts Mr. Daly's recollection of one of the final conversations he had with his nephew, which he shared at his memorial service before a large crowd of FDNY firefighters, NYPD officers, friends, and family.

"We talked about the firemen that had lost their lives (in the hardware store blaze in Astoria, Queens) on Father's Day," he said. "Eddie was very upset, but it didn't change his feeling about what he wanted to do."

At Mr. Rall's service, his wife assured attendees that he was living out his lifelong dream as a firefighter, just like his grandfather, two uncles, and two cousins. His brothers, Keith and William, are active NYPD officers.

Mr. Rall is survived by his wife, Darlene, and their three sons, Joseph, Matthew, and Daniel, who at the time of their father's passing were 16, 14, and 12, respectively.

Randy Barber/staff photographer

Volunteer Deputy Fire Chief Joe Daly of Edgewater Fire/Rescue.

Mr. Daly also recalls a particular service honoring FDNY firefighter Lincoln Quappe, who worked with Mr. Rall in Rescue 2, which has left an image in his mind that has remained for nearly a decade.

At the end of the service, as Mr. Quappe's casket was carried from the church and placed on a fire engine, each firefighter in attendance simultaneously stood at attention and saluted him goodbye. They were joined in their gesture by Mr. Quappe's 4-year-old son, who raised his small hand to the brim of his father's dress fire cap to salute his dad for the final time.

Mr. Daly currently lives in Edgewater and donates his time to the community as volunteer deputy fire chief. Although he still visits his sister's family in New York, very seldom will their discussions revert back to that day.

"Time is a great heal," he said, "but it's still not a replacement."

Let Dr. Costello create "Your Winning Smile"

People choose cosmetic dental procedures for various reasons - to repair a defect such as a malformed bite or crooked teeth, treat an injury, or just improve their overall appearance. For these and many other reasons, cosmetic dentistry has become a vital and important part of the dental profession and one of the fastest growing areas of dentistry. For example, tooth-whitening procedures have tripled over the past five years. Common cosmetic dental procedures can be performed to correct misshaped, discolored, chipped or missing teeth. It also can be used to change the overall shape of teeth - from teeth that are too long or short, have gaps, or simply need to be reshaped.

The official unveiling of the Andy Romano Beachfront Park's preferred plan will be at an open house on Sept. 15, at 7 p.m. at The Casements.

firm that put together the design.

However, there were residents who wanted less parking and opposed features such as the splash park, playground, pavilions and concession area.

Those critics continued to lobby the City Commission on Tuesday.

Pat McMullen, an Ormond Beach resident, wanted the design flip-flopped.

"Move the parking to the front because I bet you can't see the ocean from your car," she said.

A Zev Cohen representative said people would be able to park and see the ocean from their vehicles.

Mimi Monroe, an Ormond Beach resident, said the parking plan for the park would create an overcrowded beach.

"I propose a maximum of 100 parking spaces, footpaths and more dune restoration," she said. "It's a wonderful part of the beach. Please don't mess it up."

Charlie Wilkes, another resident, lobbied for a more simplified park.

"Let's keep it natural, save some money and maybe we can buy another park farther up the road and spread out the crowd," he said.

Mayor Ed Kelley said some people wanted 100 parking spaces and some wanted 250.

"It was difficult to arrive at a number," he said. "We can't please 100 percent of the people."

The mayor worried about the future success of the park.

"As nice as we're making this, we're going to have to have staffing there," he said.

Several commissioners proposed saving money by building fewer pavilion structures.

"I think this park has a little bit of something for everyone," Commissioner Troy Kent said.

As the design and bidding process continues, the City Commission can make more changes before the park is scheduled to open in January 2013.

But the man whose name is honored at the park, Mr. Romano, said he's happy with the proposed park concept.

"The main thing we need is a place for people to park and access the beach," he said after the meeting.

when they first realized what they were up against."

Per his father's advice, Ray spent the next few days at his home, giving him the chance to spend time with his family and attempt to come to terms with the dark images in which he had been engrossed for three days.

"I was extremely shaken up and I wasn't even there," Mr. Hatton said. "A scene like that will stay with a man for a long time."

Ray, like many New York and New Jersey firefighters, still feels a strong connection to the tragedy, which creates stresses and emotions not unlike those felt by soldiers upon returning from war, Mr. Hatton said.

Mr. Hatton still takes annual trips to New York City to pay his respects to victims of the attack that he says has remained in his thoughts since the first tower was struck.

"It's not like, 'Oh, it's Sept. 11, let's remember,'" he said. "It's on (my) mind all the time."

your heart you are close to pure truth. Refuse to listen to the head. Bring up the good stuff, plan your course and take action. Now hang in there and help the new exciting ideas take root, give birth, grow, bear fruit and make you happy. Yeah!

Libra-Sept. 23-Oct. 22
The gift of love is reflected so strongly in your heart and actions. Accept from the core of your being that the universe loves you and is well pleased with your graceful, beautiful spirit. Your passion is highly capable of achieving great results. Stay connected. The richness in your heart will continue to flow for all your days.

Scorpio-Oct. 23-Nov. 21
Get in touch with the most burning desires in your heart. Manifest them in your life. You have a beautiful spirit. Allow it to awaken you to these high aspirations. Focus on the most important things first. Surrender to the higher power and ask the universe to bless you. Now, be patient and let it work for you. It will.

Sagittarius-Nov. 22-Dec. 21
Important decisions are looming in your future. Who am I, where am I going, how am I going to get there and when? We all have to redefine ourselves just like the earth goes the seasons and cycles. You are coming into a new season. It is a good time for you. You are a child of thanksgiving. Let your gratitude flow.

Capricorn-Dec. 22-Jan.19
It's important to stay grounded. You are an earth sign, you know. When you feel scattered or distracted it's time to slow down, take a step back, refocus, be patient and watch for a sign that it is time to move forward again. Work on the top priorities first. You will make it through all challenges just fine.

Aquarius-Jan. 20-Feb. 18
You stand strong in any undertaking. You never give up. You were born with the courage to take action on your convictions and inspirations. You have the capacity to go beyond normal expectations and produce extraordinary results. Mighty forces are with you. Call on them as needed and life will continue to bless you.

Pisces-Feb. 19-March 20
Your natural leadership, humanity, good heart and helpful spirit affect everyone who comes into your life. You are a star. Why? Because you inspire everyone. You are of the light. You make a large, positive impact on all our lives. Maybe this is why spirit saved you for last in the zodiac to insure victory for all at the end.

When Doctors Get Back Pain & Sciatica, This is What They Do...

Finally, A Breakthrough In the Treatment of Back & Neck Pain & Sciatica Caused by Bulging, Herniated Or Squashed Discs.

In this doctor's opinion, the best breakthrough treatment for serious back pain of our age is NOT surgery, but a non-surgical, safe & painless, state-of-the-art technology now available in Ormond Beach.

Ormond Beach – When a local doctor came to consult with me about low back pain and sciatica down his leg, he told me he's seen too many patients who've had surgery and he wanted to avoid it at all cost. He had seen 3 or 4 patients that I had treated and the "amazing results they had received" and he was asking me if I could help him.

You see, after I treat a patient, I always send a medical report of findings to their doctors, keeping them informed of the patient's progress. I also encourage the patient to report back to their physician for a visit and to show-off their newfound health to their doctor.

This doctor had several patients come back to him from our office after treatment to do just that and he came to me with his own condition.

I've successfully treated Dentists, Nurses, Chiropractors, Veterinarians, Physicians, Therapists, just to name a few. I've treated even more of their staff. I haven't treated a spine surgeon yet…pride is a funny thing, but I'd be honored at the opportunity.

Doctor or not, every person entering our office undergoes a thorough history, extensive examination, and review of spinal films. We then determine the cause of their pain, whether they are a good candidate for non-surgical spinal decompression and then I consider the severity of the case and decide on acceptance of their case.

Do You Have A Disc Problem?
If you experience any of the following in your back or neck, chances are your pain is due to a disc bulge, herniation or degeneration:

- A vice-like squeezing feeling in your back
- Sitting causes back or leg pain
- Stabbing pain at the belt line or in your neck
- Can't turn over in bed without hurting
- Numbness in your toes or fingers
- Fire down your legs
- Searing pain radiates into your arm
- Prickling in your leg or toes

Finally, Some Good News
If you've been suffering with back pain or arm/leg pain caused by a disc bulge, disc herniation or squashed or compressed discs.

I can now GUARANTEE your satisfaction with my nonsurgical computerized treatment for bad discs and bad backs!

It's all because of 14 recent medical studies on spinal decompression.

Until recently, the only advice for many of you suffering in pain was to try what you've been told:

- √ Try exercising
- √ Try physical therapy
- √ Try pain medications
- √ Try muscle relaxers
- √ Try pain shots
- √ Try dangerous back surgery
- √ Just live with it

If you're like most, none of these have worked for you or you are afraid of what could happen if you do try some of these. Exercising makes you hurt more, pain medications and muscle relaxers cover up the problem and give you side effects. Pain shots can cause more pain, don't work or don't last very long nor FIX the problem, back surgery didn't work or made you worse. Or maybe you were one of the lucky ones that back surgery actually helped, but now the problem is back with a vengeance.

Caution! Decompression is DIFFRENT than old time traction or hanging upside down or inversion machines which can make your muscles sqeeze the discs even harder!

Whatever your situation, you owe it to yourself to check into a Breakthrough Computerized Non-Surgical Treatment for back pain and sciatic or leg pain caused by a bulging, herniated or squashed disc or discs.

It has helped hundreds of people who were suffering just like you. This new treatment machine I'm calling my squashed disc machine.

How Do Discs Go Bad?
Over time the discs in your back tend to get squashed or compressed, especially if you've played certain sports when younger or have a job that requires lots of sitting or standing in one place for long periods of time. Car accidents, lifting things, very physical jobs just to name a few.

It's kinda like a cookie with cream filling, and the cream filling will start to ooze out from between the sides of the cookie if pressure is applied on top of the cookie (like gravity on our spines).

Eventually this happens to a lot of us. Statistics are something like over 80% of Americans will suffer with back pain sometime in their life.

Back to my new computerized squashed disc machine. You're probably wondering how this new machine works.

How Does This Machine Work?
Haven't you ever had the thought…"Gosh, if somebody could just pull me apart...I would feel a whole lot better". Yeah, I know you have. And it kinda makes a bit of sense.

Well someone else, actually a medical manufacturer, back pain specialists, neurosurgeons and engineers have come up with just that. A machine that gently pulls you apart, stretches the disc to a certain point that causes a drop in pressure inside the disc (like a little vacuum in the middle of the cream filling) causing the cream filling to suck back in!

In my clinic, I've treated hundreds of patients with non surgical spinal decompression with great results so there should be no reason your back pain should be any different.
Actually, I'm so sure we can help you with your back problem, I'm willing to back it up…but not with hot air.

I GUARANTEE your satisfaction.

That's right, I can guarantee your satisfaction because there are only a very small percentage of people we can't help. And I'm going to let you know if you're not right for the treatment.

Most Serious Back Pain Sufferers Are Very Skeptical Of This New Procedure, As Skeptical As I Was When I Purchased My First Decompression Machine, So If You Are Skeptical…See What Some Of Our Patients Who WERE Good Candidates Have Had To Say About Our Program:

"When I came in to see you I had been to several doctors. They were not helping and I was taking lots of pain pills and muscle relaxers. Before the treatment I would get out of bed and fall to the ground. I was in very severe pain. I was slow to react to the DRX9000 treatment, but I stayed with it. Today I feel great. No more pain or pain pills. I want to thank all the staff at Dr. Labonte's. They are awesome."

- Lisa F., Ormond Beach

"My experience at Dr. Labonte's office has greatly improved my quality of life. The DRX 9000 protocol for a herniated disc worked for me. After 6 weeks of treatments my back was better than before I injured it."

- Dan N., Ormond Beach

"Dr. Labonte and his staff exude an upbeat and caring concern for each patient. I was treated as a person and not just a number. Thanks to Dr. Labonte, his staff and the DRX 9000 my quality of life has been restored to what it was eleven years ago. I am looking forward to resuming the active lifestyle I used to enjoy. I cannot emphasize how fantastic I feel. I heartily recommend the decompression treatment. All I can say to Dr. Labonte and his staff is thank you for the concern and extraordinary patient care you gave me during the treatments."

- Ray G., South Daytona

And that's why I'm offering for a limited time…

Try delicious, low-fat beef stew and make frosting in a flash

ROMANCING THE STOVE
with the Grammy Guru
ARLENE BORG

Hello smart shoppers, hope you had a good week.

At this time of the year when the weather is hot our minds never seem to go to stews and one-pot meals, but because they can be cooked in the oven and in advance they leave lots more time to be outdoors while your dinner cooks itself. There's got to be dozens of beef stew recipes out there, each cook adding her own special touch.

Let's head to the supermarket and straight to the meat counter. Beef stew, which should be an inexpensive meal, is quite expensive when you check out the price of stew beef. Why that should be is beyond me. What is stew beef? It's simply chunks of beef, usually chuck, that is cut up.

Instead of buying stew beef, buy any cut of chuck, preferably boneless, that is on sale, especially if you can find a buy-one, get-one free deal. Trim all the fat and cut it into 1-inch pieces to make your own stew beef. Being a smart shopper and getting the most for your money is really quite simple – just think first.

These two beef stew recipes are my favorites. An amazing fast frosting for any cake completes the meal.

Enjoy, see you next week.

BEEF STEW
serves 4-6

2 pounds beef, trimmed of all fat and cut into 1-inch cubes
1 large onion, quartered and sliced
4 medium potatoes, peeled and cut in bite size chunks
4 medium carrots, cut up in chunks
4 to 6 peeled small yellow onions (optional)
1 tablespoon dried parsley
1 small bay leaf
1 teaspoon salt
1/2-teaspoon black pepper
1/2-teaspoon garlic powder
1 package frozen green beans
1 package frozen peas

Brown beef in a large covered oven-proof pot. Aerosol cooking spray or the meat juice should provide enough fat for browning. You can use oil if you choose, but we're aiming for a delicious low-fat meal. Add a little water and the sliced onions and continue browning.

Add all remaining ingredients except green beans and peas. Pour in about four cups water or broth. This may seem like a lot, but when cooking the stew in the oven, much of the water evaporates. Cover and bake at 350-degrees until all is tender (about two hours). Stir occasionally. Add green beans and peas and bake until they are done.

Bring pot to stovetop. Taste for seasoning. Remove bay leaf. Add more water if necessary. Shake about three heaping tablespoons flour and 1/2-cup water in a covered jar to blend.

Bring stew to a boil and slowly add the flour-water mixture. Bring to a boil with each addition until thickened to your liking.

You can add any vegetables you choose to your stew. A can of tomatoes and 1/2-teaspoon oregano will give it an Italian flair.

BURGUNDY BEEF STEW (BEEF BOURGUIGNON)
serves 4

While this seems so simple it's an exotic, impressive meal.

2 pounds stew beef, trimmed of all fat and cut into 1-inch cubes
1/2-cup flour
1/2-cup plain dry bread crumbs
1 package onion soup mix
1-1/4 cups water
3/4-cup burgundy or any dry red wine
1 teaspoon black pepper
1/2-teaspoon salt
7-ounce can mushrooms stems and pieces (reserve liquid)
12-ounce package of noodles*

Put all ingredients except noodles in a covered casserole, mix and bake at 300-degrees for about three hours or until meat is tender. Remove from oven, add mushroom liquid until the gravy is of desired consistency. Serve over buttered noodles.

Just a tablespoon or two of butter substitute or a little canola oil will prevent the noodles from sticking together.

Notes: Don't use a pressure cooker for this recipe. The flour and bread crumbs stick to the bottom of the pot.

Beware of egg noodles, remember their first name is egg. Buy no-yolk noodles; they're delicious.

FROSTING IN A FLASH
regular and low-fat

Make the creamiest, dreamiest chocolate frosting in minutes.

Do not use fat-free topping, it doesn't hold up.

8-ounce container whipped topping
1 regular size chocolate candy bar or 12 kisses with or without nuts

Melt candy in the microwave, whisk into whipped topping and frost away.

For an autographed cookbook send $20 ($15-book, $1-tax, $4 for shipping and handling). For multiple books sent to one address it's $4S&H for 1 book, add $2 postage for each additional book ($15 plus $2). Send to: Arlene M. Borg, 1751 S.W. Morelia Lane, Port St. Lucie, Fl. 34953. Check or money order accepted or visit Vero Beach Book Center in Vero Beach.

Bait shops keep the dream — and the shrimp — alive

FISHING WITH DAN
DAN SMITH

All bait shops should be considered an asset to every serious fisherman.

The stalwart folks who man them must be up before the earliest angler, have the coffee made and make sure that the tanks are circulating to keep the bait alive. The last chore alone is enough to turn the shop owner's hair gray. The shrimp are usually handled by the middleman who believes that he has done his job just by getting them delivered.

Ker-splash! he dumps them out and presents his bill. It's up to the bait shop staff to nurse those fragile little critters along until they can be sold. It is not a business for the faint of heart. Anyone who has raised farm animals or livestock can commiserate.

One of the best at this unappealing trade is Ike Leary of Granada Pier Bait and Tackle. Somehow he has lasted 12 years at his location in Cassen Park on the west end of the big Ormond Beach Bridge. Twelve years of dealing with dying bait and a revolving door of politicians who oversee his lease. No sir, not a job for anyone less dedicated. Still, on the average morning you will find Ike behind the counter ready to trade fishing stories with anyone who enters. When I stopped in recently we spoke of the good flounder run and wondered if the shrimp would show up again soon. He listened politely to the tale of how I have just hooked a big snook on a bass worm under the bridge. Together we looked at the foundation of the old wooden shop that his modern one replaced in 1994. That tiny store sat over the water near the boat ramps. I wondered aloud if he and I were the only ones that remembered that.

Years ago my good pal, the late Don Bostrom, who's grandpa helped build the first bridge in Ormond Beach, told me tales of trying to sell the shrimp he had caught. Don said as a kid he would hang around the bait shop at the west end of the bridge and try to sell a mason jar of fresh shrimp to the tourist for a nickel or a dime. Now that would put it at about 90 years ago.

No doubt the Granada Bait shop has a long tradition of service to uphold. And make no mistake, it is a service to the public. Anyone who thinks he will get rich running a bait and tackle shop is spitting into the wind. With that in mind, the next time your launch your boat at the free ramps there stop in and buy a little extra tackle from Ike. It won't hurt any of us and just might encourage him to continue. He has every manner of terminal tackle and good selection of lures and equipment.

One of the things that draws me there are the smoked fish. They are so tasty Ike has trouble keeping them stocked. If you see the "smoked fish" sign posted outside, stop in. You just might catch me enjoying one on the picnic bench by the door. I have come to know that some who read this column are not fisherman at all. If you fall into that category stop into the Granada Pier Bait and Tackle store and buy a smoked mullet to munch while you walk the almost quarter mile of pier. It's good exercise with a great view and there is no more delicious way to get your Omega 3 Acid for the day. If you see me out front of the shop stop over and trade a tale or two. The fish stories go way back.

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for more than 40 years. E-mail questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net. His book, "I Swear the Snook Drowned," is available for $10.95 at (386) 441-7793.
