City bans many businesses in North Ridgewood area

DAYTONA BEACH — Dave and Sherry Keith were in their 40s two decades ago when they moved into a tidy cottage-style home on Weber Avenue, a block from seen-better-days North Ridgewood Avenue. Ever since, they've been trying to hold back the tide of a progressively concentrated homeless population in their neighborhood.

With the Volusia/Flagler County Coalition for the Homeless, United Way, Salvation Army, Second Harvest Food Bank and several other social service organizations holding down forts along nearby North Ridgewood Avenue, they've watched the area transform from mainly residential to a certain kind of commercial that they say doesn't lend itself to family-style living.

"It's good to help those in need," Ms. Keith said, "but it shouldn't all be on the shoulders of this little area over here. We have transients walking from the Salvation

Volusia school grades drop slightly

By Patrick McCallister
For Hometown News

VOLUSIA COUNTY—Six B's, two C's and two D's. For a student with 10 classes, that would be a 2.4 GPA. Average.

Earlier this month, the Florida Department of Education announced its annual high-school grades. Volusia County Schools' 10 high schools were in the middle of the pack.

"The majority of our schools stayed steady," Alicia Parker, coordinator for program accountability and evaluation, said. "We saw a couple decrease, and one make a nice jump."

That one was Mainland High School. It went from a D to a B. Dr. Cheryl Salerno, principal, said she was excited by the news.

"I know everyone wants to know the secret, the one thing that made the difference, and there is no one thing," she said in an interview. "Everyone at Mainland has always worked hard for every student."

Of Florida's 474 graded high schools, 147 got A's or 31 percent. About 47 percent or 224, earned B's. Another 72, or 15 percent, got C's. There were 25 D schools and six

F schools. Overall, the state's high schools did a little better than last year — 145 schools got A's, 188 earned B's, and 69 had C's. There were 57 D's, and 11 schools were given F's.

Volusia had one A high school last year, five B schools, one C, and two D. University High in Orange City was added to the graded schools this year. It got a C. While Mainland went from a D to a B, Atlantic went the other way, dropping from a B to a D. New Smyrna Beach High, too, lost ground, going from an A to a B.

Surrounding counties had very different results on the state's high-school grading. Brevard County did much better than Volusia. It had 12 high schools get A's, and three earn B's — a 3.8 GPA. Flagler had two B's, and an F. Lake County had four B's, two C's and a D. Seminole had four A's, and five B's — a 3.4 GPA.

According to Ms. Parker, high schools had new grading criteria with added categories this year. Those changes cost some Volusia schools a letter grade.

"I was disappointed we had four schools that earned the A status, and got a penalty that reduced that

Activist honored for his support of those with AIDS

By Dan Harkins
dharkins@hometownnewsol.com

ORMOND BEACH — Jim Geary's life story is littered with the dead and dying.

In 1974 at 22, distraught by his grandmother's passing, he moved from Washington, D.C., to San Francisco and began work as a nurse's aide in the oncology wing of a local hospital. In his spare time, he fought alongside Harvey Milk, the city's first openly gay city supervisor, against a new law that would ban the gay population from teaching in public schools. The proposed ordinance was killed, but so too were Mr. Milk and Mayor George Moscone at City Hall.

Around this time, Mr. Geary began volunteering as a grief counselor for the Shanti Project, a nonprofit devoted to those with life-threatening conditions. He soon became the director of volunteer and client services. Then a new illness started picking the gay community apart.

"It was 1981 and I was approached by a gay man asking if a support group existed for the disease he'd contracted," Mr. Geary recalled. "Nobody seemed to know what it was."

The man had dark purple lesions on his skin and would get a yeasty residue in his mouth. He seemed to contract every bug being passed around. Mr. Geary wrote to area oncologists about it and learned they were seeing more patients like this with compromised immunity.

What resulted from these inquiries was the first AIDS support group and residential program in the country, with Mr. Geary at the helm for the next seven years.

"My whole life had prepared me to be in the position I was, to be a gay man already in an organization providing services to those with life-threatening diseases," the now-60-year-old says. "I accepted the role."

It was a frightening time. Nobody knew exactly what caused the new illness. The average life expectancy was only six months, with no drugs to treat it. At first, AIDS and its precursor HIV were often referred to as "gay cancer," the "gay plague" or "GRID" — gay-related immune deficiency.

Mr. Geary said the support groups were extremely important to those afflicted.

"It was a great opportunity for

Local company creates promising emergency housing

By Robert Burns
For Hometown News

EDGEWATER — Like giant playing cards, large, thick sheets of composite material — basically styrofoam covered by fiberglass — were recently scattered across the parking lot of an Edgewater warehouse. In one direction were walls, in another the thicker floor boards, by the warehouse doors leaned the roof components. Only yesterday, placed together, they were a fully-functioning building. Today, they are separated and headed to a U.S. Military base here in the Southeast to be field tested for possible use in Haiti.

"We've been working on this concept for quite some time," said award winning, New Smyrna Beach-based architect Kevin Schweizer about World Housing Solution's prototype modular building.

For years now, Mr. Schweizer has worked on cutting-edge designs for high-end residences and workplaces, winning awards and making a name for himself. All along, he's also been working on what amounts to the construction trade's "golden fleece": affordable, functional, rapidly shipped, easily put-together structures.

It looks like they may have hit the nail on the head.

It's hard to imagine a disaster that happened more than a century ago is still compelling emergency responders, but it is. When the earth shook beneath the buildings of San Francisco back in 1906, structures collapsed, fires swept through the city, thousands were killed and tens of thousands were left homeless. The government attempted to create small, single family residences but faced cost constraints and a dire shortage of building materials.

Ever since then emergency responders have attempted to deal with the ongoing need for shelter, but have fallen short. Tents went up all over Miami-Dade in the wake of Hurricane Andrew, but tent-life is far from an ideal living condition in humid, bug-filled south Florida.

A product that is transportable enough to utilize after disasters is seldom cost-effective or built to last longer than the immediate need. The most recent example of emergency shelter short-fall was when trailers provided by the Federal Emergency Management Agency in the wake of Hurricane Katrina were found to be emitting toxic vapors.

Structural Engineer Kent Davis and retired airline pilot Larry Kraker, who have teamed up with Mr. Schweizer to work on the transportable emergency shelter dilemma, were down on their hands and knees recently, applying a thin layer of bonding material to the underside of the composite material that the men believe will succeed where others have failed. The construction grade polystyrene wall-board that they use to make what they call Structural Insulated Composite Panels, was initially developed for use in the wings and bodies of airplanes.

"Well, we found that the components of other modular buildings were made of much heavier materials," Mr. Kraker said. "Then we thought about the relatively light weight of material used for flight and that knocked the weight down dramatically."

Easily assembled and taken apart, these light-weight materials are also virtually fire proof because of the composite material used as the laminate. And they have stood up to category 3 hurricane levels during testing.

Veteran educator and engineer Davis first moved to Florida in 2004, a year the state was hit with multiple hurricanes.

"Kevin contacted me about working with him on a number of projects concerning 'rethinking' some basic designs here in Florida," he said, "and really, that's where

My pea brain needs a rest

Now that I have been attacking your senses with this column for over two years I encounter quite a few readers who are surprised that I have been able to sustain it for this long. A common question these days is "how do you keep coming up with such great ideas?" While that seems nice, I am not overly flattered by that question. The inference is that a dullard like myself has accomplished a minor miracle in coming up with a hundred or so columns. That's okay, sometimes I am amazed myself.

Actually, I write it off as the difference in properties of the brains of men and women. Women like my wife Lana never give their brains a rest. Thinking, always thinking. Lana gets out of bed each morning ready to hit me with a solution to some pressing problem that she has fleshed out while in bed.

When I am in bed

I am either sleeping or trying to sleep. Mornings, my body gets up, but my brain?

Not so much. I need a good while and a pot of strong coffee before I can even think of discussing solutions to the simplest of problems.

Whenever I am home and not writing I like to sit slack-jawed in front of the TV watching mindless drivel like "The Forty Best Celebrity Divorces" or, if I am lucky, "Married with Children." My wife (and, I suspect, most women) does not care for inane TV programming. They want to actually use their brains while watching. The programs that cater to the ladies are laden with instructional subjects. Men don't want to be instructed by TV, they just want to watch TV. Sports, bikini contests and shows about alligator hunters are big hits with men.

Now, with that in mind,

LAND LINES

you may ask how men ever accomplish anything if they never exercise their brains. It all comes down to narrowing your abilities. Give a man a task and he will focus all of his powers on its completion. When working on a problem men zone in on it without any distractions. The ladies are the queens of multi-tasking. That right there is my answer to why men and women seem to be so different in personality. As I sit in my boat waiting for a fish to bite, I am not writing columns in my head. My only worry is a tug on the line. When I sit down with a pen and legal pad to write, fish are not in my thoughts. I am focused. As soon as I have finished a column I will turn on the TV to "Man vs. Food" and allow my pea brain to revert to its previous inert state. I have to rest after all that focusing.

You know, it is no mistake that men's magazines are geared to the visual and in ladies' periodicals you will find lots of tests and lists. "Ten ways to change your wardrobe" seems to be popular, as does "Five ways to brighten up your marriage." Women's brains must always be working.

While it is a fact that throughout history men have come up with the world's greatest inventions, women are smarter. In a word, the difference is concentration. For a given time men can devote their all to a given problem. Ladies just have too much going on to accomplish that. I will wager that after old Tom Edison invented the light bulb he took a nap. By the time he woke up Mrs. Edison had compiled a list of places to use that light bulb. While he considered his work done it probably opened up a floodgate in her fertile mind. Of course, that is only conjecture on my part, for I knew neither of them.

Still, if my theory is correct, men and women are cut out for totally different careers. Men are fine with the repetition of factory work while ladies are better suited to be something like a travel agent. That would allow their minds to wander the planet.

At my house, Lana keeps up with the birthdays of everyone in our extended family, sorts out the problems of our grown children, makes sure that our 8-year-old granddaughter is challenged at school and helps out our friend and neighbor, Pat McMullen. She makes sure that I am at the places where I have promised to show up and in her spare time she looks after our clothes, cooks the meals and cares for her invalid mom.

I sit in the corner with my mouth hanging open scribbling on a pad.

Sometimes I fish.

LEGAL BRIEFS
Quick Answers to Common Legal Questions

3 1/2 Times more money. That is why insurance companies don't want you to hire an experienced Car Accident Attorney.

Insurance companies do not want you to hire a lawyer when you're involved in a car accident. Why? Because they know they'll have to pay a larger, fairer settlement amount! The Insurance Research Council found that the settlement figure was 3 1/2 times higher for claimants represented by Lawyers. (Insurance Research Council 1999 Study). Statistics prove that victims of a car accident benefit when they hire an experienced Car Accident Attorney. Don't go it alone. When you are involved in a car accident, there are many things that need to be done immediately in order to protect your rights. Evidence can disappear in a matter of days, if not moments. Pictures of skid marks, property damage, bruises, scrapes and road rash can all disappear quickly. In addition, witness recollections can fade quickly or the witness can disappear altogether. Intersection videos, 911 tape recordings, surveillance camera videos and officer dashboard video cameras are all kept for only a short period of time before they are disposed of or recorded over. Hiring an experienced car accident attorney will allow this evidence to be obtained and secured.

One of the first things a victim of a car crash does is notify their insurance company. Many insurance companies from both sides of an accident, attempt to quickly contact the parties of an accident in order to interview them before an attorney gets involved. The purpose of this is not to protect you or to provide better service; it is to obtain information to be used against you. That is why it is not uncommon to see Insurance company road side assistance vehicles from Insurance companies like Progressive and State Farm at accident scenes on the highway. Never talk to an insurance company without speaking to an experience car accident attorney. For example, I once represented a victim of a motorcycle accident who accepted a quick settlement offer of a few thousand dollars from State Farm after his motorcycle accident. Several weeks later after seeing a doctor and getting an MRI of his shoulder, he found out that he had a torn rotator cuff. When he contacted State Farm he was advised that he had settled his case and signed a release and that State Farm would not be paying any more money. He eventually had surgery and incurred thousands of dollars worth of medical bills and lost wages. His claim was worth in excess of $50,000.00 and he settled for less than $5,000. This is why anyone involved in a car accident should contact an experienced car accident attorney.

Southern Baptist Convention considers name change

By Patrick McCallister
For Hometown News

VOLUSIA COUNTY — The Rev. Billy Graham — perhaps America's most beloved minister — is Southern Baptist, as was President Jimmy Carter, a beloved humanitarian. But so were many who advocated slavery and racial segregation. Indeed, the denomination formed in 1845 largely because of splits in the Baptist church over slavery.

In 1995, the Southern Baptist Convention apologized for its former support of slavery and racial segregation, and it continues to be the largest protestant body in the United States with more than 16 million members.

However, recent studies showing that many people view "Southern Baptist" negatively is prompting many churches to change their names and many in the church hierarchy to consider a complete name change for the denomination itself.

"We used to be known as First Baptist Church of Ormond Beach," said the Rev. Jerry Schaeffer, pastor of communications and ministries at Riverbend Community Church. "Our name was changed in 1997 by the congregation in a unanimous vote. It was an attempt to reach out to all people, not just to Baptists. That proved to be a good move. We've had a lot of people from different denominations come and get involved here."

Mr. Schaeffer said that as the Southern Baptist denomination has been losing members over the last four years, Riverbend has been gaining. He said the local church doesn't hide its affiliation with the denomination, but uses very few of its offerings.

Many believe the church is viewed negatively because of its conservative tenets that have not changed with an increasingly progressive world.

Southern Baptists are doctrinally similar to most other evangelical Christian groups. They believe that the Bible is inerrant, God is a personal, triune being, Jesus alone provides freedom from sinful nature, and there's no salvation from everlasting punishment in hell apart believing and placing faith in him. Additionally, Southern Baptists believe it's the duty of Christians to evangelize, and "to seek to make the will of Christ supreme in our own lives and in human society." However, the denomination states, "Church and state should be separate."

In recent years, the Southern Baptists have come under fire for including in their basic doctrinal statement that women should submit themselves to their husbands, and for limiting pastoral positions to men. President Carter cited that as a main reason for famously leaving the denomination in 2000.

Reverend Bob Hadley of Westside Baptist Church in Daytona Beach believes changing the church's name is a bad idea.

"The Southern Baptist Convention has over the years established itself as an influence in the United States," Rev. Hadley said. "To move away from that (name) some would say is moving away from a positive, strong heritage."

When Doctors Get Back Pain & Sciatica, This is What They Do...

Finally, A Breakthrough In the Treatment of Back & Neck Pain & Sciatica Caused by Bulging, Herniated Or Squashed Discs.

In this doctor's opinion, the best breakthrough treatment for serious back pain of our age is NOT surgery, but a non-surgical, safe & painless, state-of-the-art technology now available in Ormond Beach.

Ormond Beach – When a local doctor came to consult with me about low back pain and sciatica down his leg, he told me he's seen too many patients who've had surgery and he wanted to avoid it at all cost. He had seen 3 or 4 patients that I had treated and the "amazing results they had received" and he was asking me if I could help him.

You see, after I treat a patient, I always send a medical report of findings to their doctors, keeping them informed of the patient's progress. I also encourage the patient to report back to their physician for a visit and to show-off their newfound health to their doctor.

This doctor had several patients come back to him from our office after treatment to do just that and he came to me with his own condition.

I've successfully treated Dentists, Nurses, Chiropractors, Veterinarians, Physicians, Therapists, just to name a few. I've treated even more of their staff. I haven't treated a spine surgeon yet...pride is a funny thing, but I'd be honored at the opportunity.

Doctor or not, every person entering our office undergoes a thorough history, extensive examination, and review of spinal films. We then determine the cause of their pain, whether they are a good candidate for non-surgical spinal decompression and then I consider the severity of the case and decide on acceptance of their case.

Do You Have A Disc Problem?

If you experience any of the following in your back or neck, chances are your pain is due to a disc bulge, herniation or degeneration:

- A vice-like squeezing feeling in your back
- Sitting causes back or leg pain
- Stabbing pain at the belt line or in your neck
- Can't turn over in bed without hurting
- Numbness in your toes or fingers
- Fire down your legs
- Searing pain radiates into your arm
- Prickling in your leg or toes

Finally, Some Good News

If you've been suffering with back pain or arm/leg pain caused by a disc bulge, disc herniation or squashed or compressed discs.

I can now GUARANTEE your satisfaction with my nonsurgical computerized treatment for bad discs and bad backs!

It's all because of 14 recent medical studies on spinal decompression.

Until recently, the only advice for many of you suffering in pain was to try what you've been told:

- ✓ Try exercising
- ✓ Try physical therapy
- ✓ Try pain medications
- ✓ Try muscle relaxers
- ✓ Try pain shots
- ✓ Try dangerous back surgery
- ✓ Just live with it

If you're like most, none of these have worked for you or you are afraid of what could happen if you do try some of these. Exercising makes you hurt more, pain medications and muscle relaxers cover up the problem and give you side effects. Pain shots can cause more pain, don't work or don't last very long nor FIX the problem, back surgery didn't work or made you worse. Or maybe you were one of the lucky ones that back surgery actually helped, but now the problem is back with a vengeance.

Caution! Decompression is DIFFERENT than old time traction or hanging upside down or inversion machines which can make your muscles squeeze the discs even harder!

Whatever your situation, you owe it to yourself to check into a Breakthrough Computerized Non-Surgical Treatment for back pain and sciatic or leg pain caused by a bulging, herniated or squashed disc or discs.

It has helped hundreds of people who were suffering just like you. This new treatment machine I'm calling my squashed disc machine.

How Do Discs Go Bad?

Over time the discs in your back tend to get squashed or compressed, especially if you've played certain sports when younger or have a job that requires lots of sitting or standing in one place for long periods of time. Car accidents, lifting things, very physical jobs just to name a few.

It's kinda like a cookie with cream filling, and the cream filling will start to ooze out from between the sides of the cookie if pressure is applied on top of the cookie (like gravity on our spines).

Eventually this happens to a lot of us. Statistics are something like over 80% of Americans will suffer with back pain sometime in their life.

Back to my new computerized squashed disc machine. You're probably wondering how this new machine works.

How Does This Machine Work?

Haven't you ever had the thought... "Gosh, if somebody could just pull me apart...I would feel a whole lot better"... Yeah, I know you have. And it kinda makes a bit of sense.

Well someone else, actually a medical manufacturer, back pain specialists, neurosurgeons and engineers have come up with just that. A machine that gently pulls you apart, stretches the disc to a certain point that causes a drop in pressure inside the disc (like a little vacuum in the middle of the cream filling) causing the cream filling to suck back in!

In my clinic, I've treated hundreds of patients with non surgical spinal decompression with great results so there should be no reason your back pain should be any different.

Actually, I'm so sure we can help you with your back problem, I'm willing to back it up...but not with hot air.

I GUARANTEE your satisfaction.

That's right, I can guarantee your satisfaction because there are only a very small percentage of people we can't help. And I'm going to let you know if you're not right for the treatment.

Most Serious Back Pain Sufferers Are Very Skeptical Of This New Procedure, As Skeptical As I Was When I Purchased My First Decompression Machine, So If You Are Skeptical...See What Some Of Our Patients Who WERE Good Candidates Have Had To Say About Our Program:

"When I came in to see you I had been to several doctors. They were not helping and I was taking lots of pain pills and muscle relaxers. Before the treatment I would get out of bed and fall to the ground. I was in very severe pain. I was slow to react to the DRX9000 treatment, but I stayed with it. Today I feel great. No more pain or pain pills. I want to thank all the staff at Dr. Labonte's. They are awesome."

- Lisa F., Ormond Beach

"My experience at Dr. Labonte's office has greatly improved my quality of life. The DRX 9000 protocol for a herniated disc worked for me. After 6 weeks of treatments my back was better than before I injured it."

- Dan N., Ormond Beach

"Dr. Labonte and his staff exude an upbeat and caring concern for each patient. I was treated as a person and not just a number. Thanks to Dr. Labonte, his staff and the DRX 9000 my quality of life has been restored to what it was eleven years ago. I am looking forward to resuming the active lifestyle I used to enjoy. I cannot emphasize how fantastic I feel. I heartily recommend the decompression treatment. All I can say to Dr. Labonte and his staff is thank you for the concern and extraordinary patient care you gave me during the treatments."

- Ray G., South Daytona

And that's why I'm offering for a limited time...

Money wasted on fireworks could be put to better use

This country spends billions of dollars on fireworks for New Year's Eve and Fourth of July. Let's get over it. Let's use it for the homeless or children. Fireworks are not helping the country. That money can be better spent.

Casinos will not help Volusia, more businesses will

Recently, a person wrote in encouraging the building of casinos in the area to generate jobs. While this does seem like a quick fix solution to the jobless rate, it, in my opinion, would not be the best solution. I have lived in Las Vegas. I have worked in Casinos. There has been no proof of anyone in this area that is capable of handling such a large empire. There is also the fact that with casinos, the crime rates will increase. That will make a strong case for more police, but there aren't too many in this area that could become police officers. We live in an area that seems bent on no growth. These small towns encourage the building of more homes when there are plenty of homes sitting empty. These small towns do everything that they can to discourage the growth of business. If you think I am wrong, then think about this. How many businesses are in your small town? How many clothing stores, retail outlet stores or even large box stores are in your town. Yes, New Smyrna Beach just got a Super Wal-Mart. Here is what I have heard since it opened "It is too far to drive." "The employees are rude and the shelves are never stocked." This has helped the K-mart but now the K-mart is closing down, so just how much did New Smyrna Beach gain? Take a look at Edgewater, there is a Bealls Outlet store, a Chick-fil-A and a Burger King, one Subway and a couple of Chinese restaurants. Edgewater has a Winn Dixie and a Publix, but no Wal-Mart, no Target, no Michaels, not even a Big Lots. I feel that the people who are in charge of these cities are not making the best choices for their cities, but unless the public starts to wise up and let the city officials understand that they actually want businesses and jobs these small towns will continue to do just exactly what they are doing — slowly becoming small town ghettos.

Letters

In response to: 'Public comment time shortened'

The decision by the Daytona Beach City Commission to cut public comment from three minutes to two minutes caught my attention and my ire. I have a counter proposal: Whenever any Daytona Beach city commissioner is running for re-election and intends to address any civic group or organization to seek their votes, then a two-minute time limit should be set for candidates.

The same rule should especially apply to incumbent politicians who participate at veterans' memorial events (e.g. Memorial Day and Veterans Day).

The citizens' time is as valuable as the candidates they elect to office.

Barr & Associates: Raising the bar in physical therapy

By Cathy Wharton
For Hometown News

When it comes to post-injury medical treatment, physical therapy is regarded as a vital means of rehabilitation. It can be a major key to the healing process. However, the role of physical therapy is much broader in scope than is ordinarily perceived.

One of the most comprehensive physical therapy, (or PT) facilities in the area is Barr & Associates in Ormond Beach. Owned and directed by Dr. Jacob Barr, this modern facility has state-of-the-art "everything" for physical therapy.

Dr. Barr has been a physical therapist since 1999. In January of 2008, he opened his own practice. As someone interested in sports and exercise, physical fitness and therapy was a natural fit for Dr. Barr. The framed collages of collectible sports cards on his office wall reflect his interest in sports, and the spacious therapy rooms attest to his dedication to fitness and exercise.

Dr. Barr treats many athletes — not only high school and college athletes but the "weekend warriors," those who tend to overdo it on their days off. A large part of Dr. Barr's practice is the alleviation of non-surgical (and post-surgical) pain for these athletes.

But Dr. Barr treats non-athletes as well. Patients with a host of orthopedic problems and/or musculoskeletal pain have found successful treatment at this foremost facility. The overriding treatment for the majority of these patients? Movement.

"Physical therapists are looked upon as the movement experts. We base most of our therapy on movement," said Dr. Barr. "We treat our patients one-on-one, individual attention for a full hour. Not all facilities do that."

One of the programs at Barr & Associates is "Back-to-Golf," a fitness and performance program founded by Bud Ferrante, a physical therapist and Orthopedic Clinical Specialist based in Carmel, California. Mr. Ferrante has worked with a number of PGA Tour players, including Tom Watson and Vijay Singh. Dr. Barr is certified in the modality that Mr. Ferrante developed: the bio-mechanics of proper golf swing and the prevention of injury. Components of the program include flexibility, strength, balance and coordination.

Another major focus at Barr & Associates is osteoporosis. Enter the "Walk Tall" program. As stated, it is: "A Comprehensive program for Osteoporosis Management and Postural Correction."

This unique program is designed not only for those with osteoporosis or osteopenia, but also for those with posture, walking and/or balance issues. Benefits of the program include increased flexibility, bone and muscle strength, improved posture, improved digestion and breathing, improved body mechanics and pain reduction. Barr & Associates has staff members who are trained in the "Walk Tall" program.

In conjunction with the National Osteoporosis Foundation, Dr. Barr also sponsors a support group for those with postural problems. Specialists from the medical community are invited to speak. Meetings are held every second Tuesday at 4 p.m. at the Ormond Beach Public Library and are open to the public.

When it comes to equipment, Barr & Associates has only the best. One of the newest and most unique rehab tools available anywhere is the Anti-Gravity Treadmill. Based on NASA technology, this machine was initially marketed towards use in professional sports, whereby the patient can "rehab from surgery, or train through injury, without pain." The concept is based upon "unweighting" the patient, from 1% of normal body weight up to 80%, depending on the severity of the problem. Unweighting reduces impact on joints and muscles, thus helping to accelerate the healing process. The "AlterG," as it is called, is not available everywhere. Currently there are only 10 in the state of Florida, and only one in Volusia County. Barr & Associates is among that elite few.

Also new at Barr's is the "Bio-dex," a computerized system that does balance testing on those who have difficulty with gait or walking. This is especially useful for helping treat Parkinson's symptoms.

Barr & Associates receives referrals from a variety of sources — other physicians, patients, health fairs and seminars. Additionally, the business accepts a variety of insurance plans — Medicare, Workman's Compensation and private health insurance.

"A lot of patients don't know that they can use a provider of choice," said Dr. Barr. Proudly displayed on a hallway wall at Barr's facility is the staff motto: "We keep you moving in the right direction." And indeed they do.

Barr & Associates is located at 1425 Hand Avenue, Suite H, Ormond Beach. Hours are Monday – Friday, 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Phone (386) 673-3535.

Proposed exclusive gambling rights act would be bad for Florida

Two new bills named the "Destination Resort Act" have been filed in Tallahassee that would award exclusive full-casino licenses to three large scale "destination resorts."

Rep. Erik Fresen and Sen. Ellyn Bogdanoff have filed these bills, which aim to "reduce gaming in the state and have the kind of gaming that is actually going to produce revenue."

While these three new facilities would pay a 10-percent tax, pari-mutuels and card rooms elsewhere in Florida would still pay a 35-percent tax rate. The agreement with the Seminole Tribe allowing them the exclusive right to operate blackjack, baccarat and other table games at their seven casinos (and their annual payments to the state) would cease.

The proposed bill would allow exclusive licenses for Las Vegas-style games at three locations in Dade/Broward in exchange for a $2-billion investment from each resort. Applicants would pay $50 million for the right to compete for the licenses and would be judged on their financial strength, ability to generate jobs, provide revenue to the local economy and draw tourists/high-rolling gamblers from Latin America, Asia, Europe and the U.S.

The 10-percent tax rate proposed for the resort casinos is the lowest in the nation, except for Nevada's 6.5 percent tax rate on gambling. Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio have tax rates in excess of 30 percent. The proposed casinos would be open 24 hours a day, every day of the year, and be allowed to serve alcohol during all of those hours. Prospective bidders on a "destination resort" license include Malaysian-based Genting Americas.

HOMETOWN VOICES

The Daytona Regional Chamber opposes the Destination Resort Act in its current form. The Chamber's reasoning for opposing it includes the 35 percent to 10 percent discrepancy in tax rates, loss of revenue from the Seminole Tribe compact, and the disparity of tourism within the State.

Baptist

LifeWay Research recently did for the denomination, more than half of Americans, 53 percent, favorably view toward Southern Baptists. However, 40 percent of respondents have an unfavorable view of the denomination. Among those who don't regularly attend church, 44 percent had a negative view toward Southern Baptists. Surveyors talked to 2,000 adults.

Survey participants where shown the names of different Christian denominations and religions and asked to rate their views between strongly favorable and strongly unfavorable. More than 60 percent have a favorable view toward Methodists. Catholics were viewed favorably by 59 percent of respondents.

When shown the query, "When I see (fill in denominational affiliation) in the name of a church, I assume it's not for me," 35 percent strongly agreed that Southern Baptist churches were not for them. Slightly fewer showed an aversion to Baptist generally, 29 percent. The study showed that respondents were most favorable toward nondenominational, or community, churches. Only 20 percent said nondenominational churches are not for them.

Riverbend may have made a good choice.

"We saw the word 'Baptist' as a barrier to being able to reach more people," Mr. Schaeffer said. "We wanted to reach all people, not just those who wanted to associate with Baptists."

The Rev. Michael Fronk, chaplain at Stetson University, is ordained by the Southern Baptist Convention, but does not belong to a Southern Baptist Church.

He explained that the apparent popularity of nondenominational and community churches is because of increasing religious shopping among Americans.

"Denominations had brand loyalty," he said. "I grew up this, and so I'm this. But, Americans are shoppers now. You have a cafeteria style of churches."

He added, "They seem to know there's more to church than the company line."

Mr. Hadley said he believes that disfavor toward the Southern Baptist name is likely rooted in a more general opposition to God, the Bible and Christianity.

"The question becomes when you're looking at a sampling of 2,000 people, where is that sampling coming from?" he said. "I'd also like to know what that 2,000 said about churches in general."

Get free help to quit smoking

For Hometown News
Volnews@hometownnewsol.com

If resolutions were as easy to keep as they are to make, there would be fewer cigarette smokers in Volusia County.

Seven out of 10 adult smokers report that they want to quit completely. Last year, about half of them made an attempt to quit. Yet, few (6.2 percent) were successful.

The Volusia County Health Department and Tobacco Free Florida are encouraging smokers to use the program's free and convenient quit resources to start the year smoke-free and increase their chances of staying smoke-free for good. Evidence-based cessation counseling and Food and Drug Administration approved nicotine replacement therapies provided by the program can double to triple your chances of successfully quitting.

Nicotine is one of the most addictive chemicals. The current design and contents of cigarettes make them more attractive and addictive than ever before. Today, cigarettes deliver nicotine more quickly from the lungs to the heart and brain. Poor preparation and a quit plan that's not entirely right for you can make quitting even harder. While quitting is difficult, it is not impossible. In fact, there are now more former smokers than current smokers in Florida.

"Tobacco use is the leading preventable cause of disease and premature death nationwide," said Dr. Bonnie J. Sorensen, director of the Volusia County Health Department. "Tobacco use results in an estimated 28,600 deaths in Florida each year, which breaks down to 88 tobacco related deaths daily in the state of Florida. Now is the time to quit smoking."

Smokers who want to quit should not be discouraged. Most former smokers made several attempts before finally quitting permanently. The average smoker attempts to quit between eight and 11 times before ultimately succeeding.

Free resources

Volusia County residents who are interested in quitting and would like additional information, can contact the Tobacco Prevention Program at the Volusia County Health Department at (386) 274-0603. The local program office will assist them with a schedule of local classes and offer to them a free "Quit Kit." This toolkit offers discount coupons, tips and educational information to assist residents in this quit attempt.

Tobacco Free Florida offers a number of free and convenient resources to help Floridians quit using tobacco.

•Phone: Call the Florida Quitline at 1-877-U-CAN-NOW to speak with a Quit Coach who will help you assess your addiction and help you create a personalized quit plan.

Bans

Army to North Ridgewood to get food at Second Harvest, then they're over to the Coalition offices. They're constantly swarming through our neighborhood. My husband, today he counted 11 homeless people in an hour who went by the front of our house. And we're not even a through street. It's out of hand."

Shortly after moving in, the couple would watch as homeless men and women hunkered down in nearby wooded lots to light up the night like "fireflies" with crack smoking. The lots are trimmed now, but the problem is vacant properties and the homeless using them for bathroom breaks and temporary bedrooms. The Keith's lawns are regularly littered with bagged beer bottles and cigarette butts.

It doesn't help, they say, that the main street that used to offer businesses like a movie theater, framing shop and diners is now littered with pill mills, adult bookstores and soup kitchens.

City commissioners appear to feel the same way and unanimously gave initial approval at a recent meeting to a law that would prohibit several new types of businesses and organizations in the North Ridgewood Avenue neighborhood, which residents call the Uptown area. The ordinance gets a final vote on Jan. 18.

The law would ban any new tattoo and massage parlors, adult theaters and bookstores, check cashing services, plasma donation centers, day labor halls and flea markets. It also puts a stop to any new social services — from food pantries, soup kitchens and shelters to homeless services, rehab facilities and halfway houses.

Commissioners already stopped, about five months ago, all new social service expansion in the city's redevelopment areas, two of which directly abut North Ridgewood.

Though the organizations already operating in the North Ridgewood Avenue area would be grandfathered in, under the law, those agencies wouldn't be able to expand appreciably anywhere in the North Ridgewood Avenue area, which lies between Mason Avenue and George Engram Boulevard.

Mrs. Keith told commissioners before they voted for the ordinance that something had to be done to preserve home values. County property appraiser data recently showed those values had dipped 42 percent in just four years.

"It's a full-time job being poor," she said later in the week, during a phone interview, referring to how many homeless people must shuttle from one location to another for each daily meal. "But for one neighborhood to have to put it all up, it's not fair."

The law wouldn't go as far as some residents would like. Though pleased with the developments, which are three years of planning in the making, area activist Chris Daun asked commissioners if they could add bail bondsmen, abortion clinics, pawn shops, pill mills and storage facilities to the banned businesses list. No discussion was held on Mr. Daun's request.

Commissioners seemed behind helping North Ridgewood put on a new face. Zone 3 Commissioner Kelly White, who represents about half of the area, said after the meeting that about 60 percent of the county's social services are concentrated here.

"It's not that we don't want them," she said. "It's just hard for us to do a good job of handling all of them anymore."

North Ridgewood Avenue's cleanup isn't confined to Daytona Beach, either. North of Mason Avenue, the thoroughfare passes into Holly Hill, where city commissioners also passed an ordinance on Tuesday night banning many of the same types of new establishments: pawn shops, homeless organizations, check-cashing businesses and outdoor flea markets.

In other business, Daytona Beach city commissioners gave preliminary approval to a ban on new convenience stores in the Midtown Redevelopment District, which until 2004 was known as the West Side redevelopment Area. The historically black neighborhood — bordered by George Engram Boulevard on the north, Shady Point on the south, Nova Road on the west — is currently home to 16 convenience stores.

Not only have many store owners in the area voiced their support of stopping any new competition, many citizens have also spoken up against the proliferation of these businesses.

Zone 6 Commissioner Cassandra Reynolds, who's represented the area for seven years and lived there for nearly five decades, said after the meeting that she'd had enough.

"Whenever another (convenience) store comes in or tries to come in, it does give me great pause," Ms. Reynolds says, "because it makes me wonder: are people looking at what has historically been allowed to occur in and around a lot of these stores?"

Police Chief Mike Chitwood agreed.

"When you look at convenient stores, what are they selling? They're selling liquor and cigarettes. They're selling death," he said. "They're not even somewhere you can go food shopping or where neighborhood kids can find work."

Commissioners expect more drastic changes to the Midtown area once presented with a master revitalization plan in about a month that's been in the works for more than a year — a product of the Midtown Redevelopment Board and planners and architects from Florida A&M University.

School News

Teacher of the Year finalists named

In December, Volusia County Schools announced five finalists for 2013 Teacher of the Year from a pool of candidates nominated by every public school in the district.

The five finalists are: Kip Dickens-Best, Pine Trail Elementary; Leslie Birney, Citrus Grove Elementary; Heather Henderson, University High; Melissa Marple, Edgewater Public and Sandra Tweedy, Spruce Creek High School.

A teacher of the Year subcommittee spent more than a week reading every application to select the top candidates. Those applications were then read and ranked by a larger committee who chose the five finalists.

The winner will be named at an awards ceremony at 6 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 10, at the Daytona Beach Hilton Oceanfront Resort.

Grades

grade," she said.

The state's school grading started in 1999, with the Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test (FCAT) results being the primary measure. In 2002, student learning gains, primarily among the lowest quartile, was added to the formula. In 2010, the state added four-year graduation rates, participation and performance in accelerated curricula such as advance placement classes, postsecondary readiness, along with graduation rate for at-risk students, to the formula for high school grades.

At-risk students are those who got a level one or two on the reading and math portions of the FCAT in the eighth grade, according to Ms. Parker.

Andrew Spar, president of the Volusia Teachers Organization, said that changes the Florida Legislature has been making in recent years threaten to reduce schools' grades in coming years.

"I think the school grades are good, but not as good as they could be," he said. "Teachers are feeling overwhelmed."

Mr. Spar said that recent legislation has eroded class-size restrictions, making it more difficult for teachers to ensure students' success.

"What we're hearing from teachers is they went from 25 kids, to 26, 27, 28," he said. "That adds up. When you're teaching six classes that adds up."

clients to come and meet others with the illness and receive some of the nurturing that they were deprived of because of the tremendous hysteria that we were experiencing at that time," he said.

Though three decades have passed, Mr. Geary's continued work with the AIDS community recently landed him on HealthLeaders magazine's list of the nation's top 20 health leaders in the country. To him, it's just another opportunity to educate the masses.

"I'm grateful to be one of those tens of thousands who are doing similar work and making an amazing difference in people's lives," he said.

Mr. Geary left the Shanti Project in 1989, moving to Ormond Beach with his long-time partner, Jess Randall, to be close to Mr. Geary's parents.

Though the couple felt they might have contracted the disease back in the beginning, they agreed not to get tested themselves for HIV until either one started experiencing symptoms.

In 1992, it was Mr. Randall who first showed the signs.

He was tested. It was full-blown AIDS, with a T-cell count below 200. Mr. Geary was tested too, and though his T-cells were still above 200, they were low enough for him to be diagnosed with HIV.

His life became consumed with caring for Mr. Randall, who passed away in 1998.

"For three years in a row, we took three-month vacations to make more of the time we had left together," recalls Mr. Geary. For the last three years of Mr. Randall's life, Mr. Geary was his primary caregiver.

After Mr. Randall died, Mr. Geary focused mainly on writing his memoir. He fell in love again with Jeff Allen, who is chairman of the local Partnership for Comprehensive HIV Health Planning. Both men are longtime AIDS survivors who cared for a partner who died of AIDS.

They've been together now for a dozen years.

"He was with his partner for 12 years before he died and I was with mine for 20," says Mr. Geary. "So we had that in common. Of course, we still carry the depth of feeling and love we shared with our former partners, and we make room for that in our current relationship. We just take that love forward and continue to manifest that in our own relationship."

Last year, Mr. Geary published his memoir, Delicate Courage. Then, three months ago, he decided to do for the Daytona area what he'd done for the nation: start its first AIDS support group.

"When I started doing this, it was almost all gay men," he says. "But now, we have 40 to 45 percent heterosexual women and about 25 percent are African American. It's a diverse group in terms of gender and ethnicity, yet we're able to really uplift one another by sharing our stories and finding the commonality in what we're experiencing."

Group member Mary Benesield remembers crying with a stranger at the health department for two hours after learning she was HIV positive in April. The 38-year-old South Daytona resident said she's never used IV drugs and has slept with three partners in her entire life. She still doesn't know how she contracted the disease.

Until Mr. Geary formed his new support group, she had no one to turn to.

"I've personally never known anybody with HIV or AIDS," she says. "Here I am going into this situation alone. And then I meet these people and there's a moment like, 'Wow, I have somebody to actually talk with who will understand.'"

Mr. Geary's soft-spoken demeanor has helped her and other group members open up.

"Jim is one of the sweetest people you'd want to meet," she says. "He's always there making you feel at ease. And him and Jeff are so inspiring. They've been HIV positive for, like, 30 years. I'd already given up on taking my meds every day and then I look at them and how they've done it. How can I complain?"

Mr. Geary finds hope in the much-improved prognoses given to new HIV patients.

"With better medication and understanding, people are living longer, deciding to continue to work," he said. "Where 20 or 25 years ago, people didn't have the energy to continue working, now people are staying active, exercising, contributing to the community. That has been a major change. One problem in that, though, is for maybe younger people who look at HIV and AIDS and see it as more of treatable illness. And they may feel that it's not as important to engage in safe-sex practices."

The group meets at 5:30

Randy Barber/staff photographer
Jim Geary sits with his dogs Benji and Jasper at his home in Ormond Beach recently.

p.m. every Tuesday at 851 Beville Ave., Suite B, in Daytona Beach. It's gone so well that Mr. Geary is working with Stetson University to set up another group in the DeLand area — a venture still in the formative stages.

For his 60th birthday, Mr. Geary's parents, Joe and Martha, are taking their son on an 11-day cruise to South America. Joe Geary says his son deserves a break for all his tireless service.

"I'm telling you, I could not ask for a better son," the senior Mr. Geary said. "My wife and I are very proud of Jim — not just his accomplishments, but the person he's become."

Mr. Geary, their only child, came out to his parents at 17. It didn't change their opinion of him at all.

"My wife and I decided early on that we wouldn't break communication with Jim, so he'd always feel free to come home if he had a problem," Mr. Geary recalls. "He's always included us in everything."

He was still the compassionate, outspoken, prying person he'd always been, so attuned to others' emotions.

"If you have a problem, he'll find out what it is," his father says. "He'll get into your stuff in a minute, but that's what makes Jim Jim."

Jim Geary remembers his parents always being the supportive mentors that many of his gay peers no longer had in their lives.

It broke his heart to tell them he was HIV positive.

"At that time, I felt I was telling them their son was going to die before them," he says, "and now I don't feel that. I feel that I will most likely outlive them now."

People choose cosmetic dental procedures for various reasons - to repair a defect such as a malformed bite or crooked teeth, treat an injury, or just improve their overall appearance. For these and many other reasons, cosmetic dentistry has become a vital and important part of the dental profession and one of the fastest growing areas of dentistry. For example, tooth-whitening procedures have tripled over the past five years. Common cosmetic dental procedures can be performed to correct misshaped, discolored, chipped or missing teeth. It also can be used to change the overall shape of teeth - from teeth that are too long or short, have gaps, or simply need to be reshaped.

 Like the San Francisco earthquake before them, hurricanes are helping generate better, speedier approaches to society's need for safe, inexpensive housing.
 “What's exciting about these structures though,” said World Housing Solution President Ron Ben-Zeev, “is that their uses are far more broad than simply military or emergency applications. The designs on many of these structures will be perfect for day-to-day living.”
 World Housing Solution draughtsman John Hasty is working on the design of a half-dozen modular homes that will be shipped from Edgewater to North Africa within the next few months.

The order hasn't been finalized yet, but the numbers could be anywhere from 500- to 5,000 shelters.
 “I was born in Israel, and then moved all over the world as a child,” said Mr. Ben-Zeev, “in north Africa and Middle Eastern countries, there are social considerations successful building designers have to take into account.”
 A raised roof does much to draw-off the continuous heat and interior walls provide a modicum of privacy for the different genders.
 “We often think, people live just like us everywhere else,” Mr. Ben-Zeev said. “That's just not true.”
 The sky's the limit for this still humble Southeast Volusia firm.
 “If, in fact, the military engineers give this building the thumbs-up,” Mr. Davis said, “we're prepared to shift into high gear.”

ORMOND BEACH — Culture and diversity will be highlighted during the 23rd annual Native American Festival next weekend at The Casements in Ormond Beach.

There will be many educational and entertainment activities at the three-day festival.

The festival will be an opportunity to learn about many different tribes through storytellers, artist and Native American food.

Mr. Sawgrass has been involved with the festival since its beginning as a folk festival on the lawn of the Casements.

More than 5,000 people are expected to attend this year's event, which will feature Intertribal Native dancers, Aztec dancers from Mexico, reptile and wildlife exhibits, Native American cuisine, See NATIVE, B2

STAR SCOPES

James Tucker
Week of 1-13-2012

Aries-March 21-April 19
Finding, enhancing, increasing and protecting your divine purpose should be the No. 1 priority in life. You are the leader of the zodiac. A true leader operates from humbleness and gratitude for all that has been given. Move on and give hearty praise to all who have helped you thus far and more will be given.

Taurus-April 20-May 20
Find humor in little things. Laugh a lot every day. Tell someone a story that makes them feel good. Get out of your own way. Let your humanity show. Poke a little fun at yourself. People love us as much for our realness as for our talent. It's a good part of being human and letting your humor and joy keep us safely balanced.

Gemini-May 21-June 21
Wonderful motivation is fueled by using your warm, caring nature to help others. You are at your best when you are able to communicate your visions and dreams. You are in heaven on earth when those in your circle get it, respond and take action. Wow! You are a miracle worker. Keep the spirit flowing.

Cancer-June 22-July 22
This is your time of the zodiac year. The question is what are you going to do with this great heart power? The answer is simple: first, give thanks for all you have been given this year. Second, find ways to rally the family together and share more love. Third go to the world and teach others what a spiritual life is all about.

Leo-July 23-Aug. 22
Venus in Leo increases your motivation because of the love that lives in your heart. You may have wordly inclinations, but your heart and spirit rule you. It has to be all right on the inside before it can be OK on the outer. The main lesson is follow your heart and gut instincts first. This your truest and greatest blessing.

Virgo-Aug. 23-Sept. 22
Your generous attitude to others is your greatest

Lightfoot, Lennon Sisters and magic act play Peabody next weekend

For Hometown News
 Volnews@hometownnewsol.com

The Peabody Auditorium will be filled with singing and magic this weekend.

Gordon Lightfoot, a prolific songwriter and folk-rock singer, has remained popular for more than 50 years and is considered an international folk-rock legend. Now in his fifth decade of touring, Mr. Lightfoot is coming to Daytona Beach to perform at The Peabody, Thursday, Jan. 19, at 7:30 p.m.

His hits include: "If You Could Read My Mind," "Sundown," "Ribbon of Darkness," "Rainy Day People," and "The Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald." Elvis Presley, Johnny Cash, Barbara Streisand, Johnny Mathis, John Mellencamp, Toby Keith and many other popular artists have recorded his songs.

Tickets for Gordon Lightfoot are $57, $44 and $39, plus service fees.

The Lennon Sisters, "America's Sweethearts of Song," will hit the Peabody stage Friday, Jan. 20, at 2:30 p.m.

Television history was made in December 1955 when four sisters, aged 9 to 16, debuted on the nationally televised Lawrence Welk Show.

Charming the nations with their sweet-voiced harmonies, The Lennon Sisters were an overnight sensation and became regulars on Welk's show for the next 14 years before starring in their own TV show.

Tickets for The Lennon Sisters range from $34 to $40, plus service fees.

Prepare to be mystified with the Spencer's Theater of Illusion at The Peabody Saturday, Jan. 21, at 7 p.m.

The husband-wife team can penetrate through walls and levitate with the best of them. Be prepared to experience the magic, because the Spencers don't want the audience to just sit in their seat and watch — they want them to participate. In one magical experiment, the entire audience is asked to get involved in an interactive mind reading experience.

Adult ticket prices have two levels: $30 and $35 (plus service fees). Children's tickets are $14 (plus service fees).

For more information, visit www.SpencersMagic.com

Tickets for all the shows may be purchased at the Peabody Box Office, 600 Auditorium Blvd., Daytona Beach weekdays between 10:30 and 5:30 and Saturdays between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., or by calling Ticketmaster at (800) 745-3000, online at www.ticketmaster.com, or at any Ticketmaster outlet. And now, tickets may also be purchased at any local Wal-Mart store in the electronics department. Group discounts are available for 15 or more for this show, by calling (386) 671-3469.

bleeding. It starts with your family, friends and associates. You are happy. Your energy is strong. Your spirit is high. Refuse to let your own demands pull you down and get you stuck in the worldly side. Stay focused on today and everything will work out.

Libra-Sept. 23-Oct. 22
 It's time to surrender to your inner guidance, get your own will out of the way and let spiritual guidance direct you to your main cause and mission. Have you ever thought that you don't have to be balanced all the time? It's time to rejoice and let the power flow and connect you to the source.

Don't forget to rotate pantry items to prevent waste, illness

Hello smart shoppers. I have some important information to share. Do you rotate the foods in your pantry the way the supermarkets are supposed to do, or do you do what I have done, put new packages in the front and wind up using them first?

Pancake mix, biscuit mix, cake mix, etc. have expiration dates, just as all other foods. They can develop mold, which is toxic to some.

While reaching in my pantry for a cake mix, I was shocked to see I had seven boxes of cake mix; I just can't pass up the specials. My eye caught the expiration date on one; 2007, another 2008 and if you can believe it, one was 2005.

Baking mixes can be used for a few months after the date, but years? Many times things don't rise properly but sometimes you're playing with fire. Buy baking soda or powder in the smallest container available. Before you know it, it has expired.

Dairy products can last for days after the suggested date, your nose knows. Cottage cheese and sour cream can last for months past the date if they haven't been opened, but once opened, use immediately. Once a product is frozen, the date doesn't count.

fettuccine Alfredo made the healthy way; it's been eons since it last was published, so here you go.

Experts say this sauce is just about as bad for you as biting into a stick of butter. I will give you both the original and my low fat version.

FETTUCINE ALFREDO serves 4 to 6

Thanks to a chef I have the recipe. Not only did he use almost half a stick of butter for each serving, along with cream and cheese, he also thickened it with egg yolk. Egg yolk is often used as a thickening agent, but it is tricky to work with. I do not use egg yolk, not only because it adds more fat and cholesterol, but also because I've found a little cornstarch blended with water or milk will accomplish the same thing with much less effort.

- 1 package fettuccine
- 1 pint (2 cups) heavy cream or light cream
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 1/2- to 3/4-cup imported Parmesan cheese

- Salt and pepper
- 1 level tablespoon cornstarch (optional)
- 1/4-cup milk (optional)

Cook fettuccine according to package directions, adding a little oil to the water to prevent the noodles from sticking together.

In a medium-size saucepan, melt butter. Add cream. Raise heat to medium high and cook until cream reduces and becomes the consistency of lightly whipped cream. Add cheese and season with salt and pepper. Be sure to keep the heat low to prevent sticking.

If you want a very thick sauce, mix about 1/4-cup of milk with cornstarch; heat until thickened and add to the cream mixture.

Drain fettuccine and place in deep bowl. Top with the sauce and enjoy. Be sure to have extra parmesan cheese available to be passed around.

LOW FAT FETTUCINE ALFREDO serves 4 to 6

- 1 package fettuccine
- 2 rounded tablespoons butter substitute
- 1 cup fat-free sour cream
- 1 cup evaporated skim milk, undiluted (or fat-free half and half)

- 1/2- to 3/4-cup imported Parmesan cheese

Cook fettuccine according to package directions following instructions in recipe for regular fettuccine Alfredo.

In medium-size saucepan, melt butter substitute. Add remaining ingredients, season with salt and pepper and whisk until smooth. Keep it warm, but do not boil.

Drain pasta and place in deep bowl. Pour on sauce. Serve with extra cheese.

PEACH MELBA (NIB) serves 2

This dessert was created at the turn of the 19th century by Chef Escoffier in honor of opera singer Nellie Melba.

It can be fat free if you use fat-free ice cream or frozen yogurt, and sugar free if you use a sugar substitute instead of sugar.

- Vanilla ice cream

For glaze, mix sugar and water together in a small skillet. Cook, stirring constantly, until boiling begins. Lower heat, cover; boil 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla.

Wash, pare, halve and pit the peach. Set syrup over medium heat. Add peach halves and simmer 3 minutes. Chill.

For the sauce, sieve raspberries; add sugar.

In individual dishes, place drained peach, cut side up. Top with ice cream, drizzle with syrup (I spiked the chilled sauce with peach schnapps), top with sauce.

Diamonds are not a basset hound's best friend

Spend any time surfing the Web and you are bound to find stories that are just too bizarre to be true. Here's a sampling, edited for length. Remember, just because it's online doesn't mean it's true!

From kob.com: Couple find $4,500 wedding ring in dog's stomach

A couple has found a suspect in the disappearance of their $4,500 wedding ring — their 10-month-old basset hound.

KOB-TV reported that a veterinarian recently removed the ring from the dog named Coraline after X-rays showed it was lodged deep in her stomach.

Albuquerque resident Rachele Atkinson says she and her husband, Scott, had searched everywhere for the ring before beginning to suspect the dog ate it. She says she now hides the ring.

From mercurynews.com:

HOW WEIRD IS THAT?
SEAN MCCARTHY

Grandma says she was duped by stranger's seeds

A Pennsylvania grandmother says she's no marijuana grower, just a woman who wanted something that would look pretty next to her tomatoes.

A Fayette County jury cleared 67-year-old Alberta Kelley of drug possession and manufacture charges after she told them she simply tossed a handful of seeds into her garden after a bearded stranger gave them to her. Connellsville police charged Kelley a year ago after receiving a tip about Kelley's garden.

Investigators say they found seven well-cultivated,

4-foot marijuana plants behind her home.

Kelley said she didn't know what she was growing. She said the stranger told her they were flower seeds.

From sfgate.com: Polish art student hangs own painting in museum

Art student Andrzej Sobiepan didn't want to wait decades for his work to appear in museums. He took matters into his own hands, covertly hanging one of his paintings in a major Polish gallery.

The young artist is getting plenty of attention after a nationwide TV channel reported on his stunt at the National Museum in the southwestern city of Wroclaw. He told reporters he hoped galleries would give more exhibition space to young artists as a result.

Sobiepan said he was inspired by the elusive British graffiti artist known only as Banksy. His own painting is small, white and green, and partly uses swine leather to show a drooping acacia leaf.

Museum director Mariusz Hermansdorfer told TVN24 that the action revealed some security breaches, but that he also considered it a "witty artistic happening." The museum has kept the painting on display in its cafe. It will be offered for sale at Poland's biggest charity auction.

From news.yahoo.com: PETA seeks memorials to cows killed on Illinois roads

An animal rights group wants Illinois to install highway signs in memory of cattle killed when trucks hauling them flipped in two separate wrecks.

People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals has asked for permission to buy the markers, one in suburban Chicago and one northwest of Peoria. The group says the signs would pay tribute to the more than 20 cattle killed as a result of negligent driving this year.

Illinois Department of Transportation spokesman Josh Kauffman says the request will likely be denied because the state's Roadside Memorial Act specifies that only relatives who lost loved ones in highway crashes may request memorials.

From salon.com: Caviar

cache found in Russian morgue

Even people who think caviar is to die for might lose their appetite when it's stored in a hospital morgue. But that's where St. Petersburg police found 385 pounds of the delicacy.

A morgue employee and businessman were arrested, but police said the matter is still being investigated and it is unclear if the men will be charged. The arrested men said the caviar was to be a treat for hospital employees at a New Year's party.

Most of the red caviar was from salmon, but 84 pounds of the stash was black caviar from sturgeon, an endangered fish. Amid heavy restrictions on sturgeon fishing, black caviar is increasingly produced and sold illegally.

From msnbc.com: Police: Woman donned mustache, beanie to rob neighbors

A woman in Salt Lake City repeatedly stole from her neighbors while donning an oversized man's suit, a beanie and a fake mustache in an attempt to disguise herself while she entered their home, police said.

She was charged with two counts of burglary and one count of theft for allegedly stealing thousands of dollars. According to police, the victims had noticed several thousand dollars in cash missing from a box in their house. They checked the box a second time and found another $9,000 missing.

The victims had only given their house key to one person, a neighbor, and decided to set up a trap to see if she was the burglar. The Tribune reported. They put a small amount of cash in the box and set up security cameras, court documents state.

The security footage captured the woman, since identified as Manar Ahmad of Salt Lake City, using the key to get into the home, the documents show. Salt Lake City police found her disguise at her house, according to The Tribune.

The Effects of Weight on the Heart
 Wednesday, Jan. 18 | 5:30 p.m.

Heart disease and stroke are the leading causes of death and disability for people in the U.S. Overweight people are more likely to have high blood pressure, a major risk factor for heart disease and stroke, than people who are not overweight. Join Stephen Levine, MD, board-certified general surgeon, for an informational seminar on how obesity can be the leading cause of developing cardiovascular disease.

How to Avoid Heart Disease
 Wednesday, Feb. 8 | 6 p.m.

Heart disease may be a leading cause of death in the country, but that doesn't mean you have to accept it as your fate. # Fun finding an old favorite spot when it's still chock-full of fish

Years ago, in the late '70s, I was intent on finding a lost fishing hole that I was certain existed down in the back waters of the Halifax in Port Orange. Sure enough, accompanied on my row boat by my first cousin and fishing buddy Randy Frisbie, we came upon a deep hole that was surrounded by acres of shallow water flats. That hole would be a fishing bonanza the likes of which I have seldom seen. Now, just after the holidays, I decided to go back there for the first time in many years — this time in my kayak.

Even in its heyday the

FISHING WITH DAN
DAN SMITH

hole only produced at low tide. On a high tide the fish would scatter across the flats and oyster beds but once the water dropped sufficiently they would return to the safety of the eight-foot depths of the hole. When I first discovered the place, low tide was like shooting fish in a barrel. Of course, I fished that hole out back then. It was only about 25 feet wide and 30 feet long — not a big spot to hold so many fish.

As I paddled out in the Green Peanut a couple of weeks ago, it brought back a flood of memories. I smiled as I passed the place where I had wrestled out a nice gator trout years ago. I laughed out loud when I glided past the spot where I had cast netted a big snook while trying to catch bait. That rascal almost caused me to turn over my unstable little rowboat. I paused as I went past the oyster bar that the "Red Man" called home. Red Man was the sun-burned guy who, among all that seafood, existed entirely off of herbs, grains, sprouts and vitamins. Not much remains of the little shack he called the "Health Food Colony" now. (Read more about the Red Man in my fascinating and entertaining book "I Swear the Snook Drowned.")

Once in the hole I wedged the kayak into the bushes and baited with the live shrimp that had been provided by Donald's Bait and Tackle. No artificials here. I am certain that many boats pass over the spot at high tide throwing lures. No good. This is a place to get back to the basics. Extreme low tide and natural bait is the secret.

When Randy and I had first arrived there more than 30 years ago the hole was populated by fish you would only expect to find on the reef. Grunts that weighed a pound-and-a-half were so plentiful that it was difficult to get the bait to anything else. Sea bass, margate, grouper and schools of mangrove snapper that had grown to offshore size were also holed up there. Red fish were thick in the 16- to 18-inch size and many big ones were always lurking about as well.

On this trip I had no idea what to expect. On my first cast I landed a 16-inch red and on the second a 19-inch fish.

OK!

For over an hour I caught reds as fast as I could release them. The drag on my reel was singing a symphony. No trout, no grunts, just redfish — lots of redfish. After turning back the nineteenth red, I pushed off to hunt for bigger game. I never found the big boys but I had a good time looking. It was truly a great day in an old favorite spot. Can't beat it!

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for more than 40 years. E-mail questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net. His book, "I Swear the Snook Drowned," is available for $10.95 at (386) 441-7793.

Collecting crazy ideas for golf trade show

Every January, Orlando is home to the largest golf trade show in the world. I've seen many, many great things at the show over the years. I've also discovered some truly odd items that make me wonder how they got into a golf trade show in the first place.

I'd like to challenge each of you, my readers, to come up with some odd things you would like me to look for while I'm there at the end of the month. You can e-mail me your ideas or send them via regular mail.

First, I'd like to share some of my ideas on new golf products that I'd love to find in a few weeks as well as a couple of the stranger ones I've come across while walking the aisles of the convention center.

I'll begin with a few of my "inventions."

"No Slow Play" ankle bracelet: This product hits you with an electronic shock if you take more than 15 minutes to finish a hole. The longer you take to hit your shot and complete the hole, the more voltage it delivers. It would be reset by passing a spot on the cart path just before the next tee box. One potential endorser for this product would be Rory Sabatini.

JAMES
STAMMER

"You are NOT looking there for your golf ball. It's gone!" golf cart: This cart refuses to go more than 20 feet off the fairway or cart path. No more roaming in adjacent fairways or deep into the woods looking for that 25-cent golf ball.

"Big Box" scorecard: There are times when everyone needs a little more room to write down everything that happened on a hole. Not that I enjoy writing down a 10 and noting that three of those strokes were from balls hit into the water, but I'd like to be able to track my greens and fairways in regulation, the number of putts I take and so forth.

"The Golf Ball that Listens": Who among us hasn't said "If only my golf ball would listen to me!?" After hitting a ball, many of us yell at it to "sit" or "go" or "get in the hole." How nice would it be if we had one that actually does what we tell it?

"Golf Ball Decals": How about a way for you to easily print decals with the image of your least favorite boss, or your mother-in-law on them? You could stick them on your ball, and maybe get a few additional yards from the extra whack you give them.

"The Al Czervik Golf Bag": We've all seen "Caddyshack." How many of us would love to have Al Czervik's (Rodney Dangerfield's character) golf bag? What I wouldn't give for a cold draft beer on the 14th tee in the middle of August or a little rock 'n' roll playing while waiting for the slow group in front of me to finish four-putting.

Now for a few of the more bizarre products that actually exist and that I've found at this convention:

"Cow Mattress": Yes, one company's business listed them as a "cow mattress" supplier. Apparently the same material they use to make floor mats for behind retail counters, or in kitchens and bars, is also used to make another product: cow mattresses.

"Umbrella Hat": I would refuse to use this simply based on how ridiculous it looked on the guy who invented it. The umbrella attaches to your head much like a hat. It was clear so you could see through it, and since it was "hands free", it allowed you to swing a club while keeping you dry. Of course, having your opponents doubled over in laughter may be just what you need to win a few skins.

Now that you have an idea what I would like to discover, let me know your ideas. I'll toss everyone's ideas into a hat and share the best of them with all of you. Best of all, as a reward for your imagination, I will send as many of you as I can something from the show. I usually wind up with lots of gifts and trinkets from the show, and will share those with you all.

Send me your ideas at stammertgolf@yahoo.com or PO Box 2012, Palm City, Florida, 34991.

James Stammer has been an avid golfer and golf enthusiast for nearly 40 years. He hosts the Thursday Night Golf Show on WSTU 1450-AM. Contact him at stammertgolf@yahoo.com.
