More than a year later, red light cameras still watching

DAYTONA BEACH — Alejandro Toala just knows he didn't run that red light one October night last year at Nova Road and International Speedway Boulevard. It doesn't matter, he said, that the event was crisply recorded by one of the 18 traffic cameras mounted a little more than a year ago at seven of the city's busiest intersections.

"I had to fight this," he said last week, just after fighting and winning his case in court. "How hard times are today and they want to take the juice out of people this way? And I didn't even do it. It's terrible."

On April 4, 2011, red-light cameras went online in Daytona Beach. More than 30,000 cars have been cited for running red lights since then, but enforcing those citations has often proven difficult for the city, especially when recipients take their cases to court. Some legal experts call the cameras unconstitutional.

On top of that, the system hasn't been as profitable as city leaders would have hoped. Though the company that installed and operates the cameras estimated annual revenue of about $3 million, the city only netted about $756,000 by late March.

With the city paying Gatso USA $4,600 a month to operate each of the cameras, the city will only break even, prompting the Daytona Beach City Commission to trim $3 million from its 2011/12 budget.

"We expect to end up a wash this year as far as revenue goes," said Commissioner Pam Woods, "but if we're reducing the number of people running red lights then that makes it a success in my eyes."

Mr. Toala doesn't think safety has anything to do with it, though.

"It's money is what it is," the 48-year-old from Port Orange said.

So, when he got a $158 ticket through the mail with a photo of his license plate on it, the 48-year-old ignored it. A month later, he got a citation to pay $264 or appear in court.

So a few months ago, he attended traffic court at the Light hurricane season, but lots of rain predicted

By Patrick McCallister
For Hometown News

VOLUSIA COUNTY — The Atlantic hurricane season got an early start with two named storms before it officially started on June 1. Nevertheless, Volusia County officials are reporting that they expect a lower-than-average tropical storm season this year. At the same time, they're predicting that a countywide burn ban might be lifted before long.

The early storms were what Volusia County Fire Services Deputy Chief Jeff Smith was hoping for. Beryl, while dampening the holiday weekend for residents and tourists, was an answer to many local firefighters' prayers. The county, and Central Florida, were facing a possible repeat of the 1998 firestorm season.

"It did do some good," Mr. Smith said. "The drought index we use did come down because of (subtropical storm) Beryl."

The storm dropped about two inches of rain across Volusia.

"We were all hoping for 4 to 8 inches as was predicted," the deputy chief said. "The (Keetch-Byram Drought Index) is still in the 500s. That's pretty high."

The week before the storm made landfall on Monday, May 28, the county fire services was reporting 17 wildfires. That dropped to eight after the storm. Additionally, Mr. Smith said the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration is reporting that a persistent La Niña weather pattern is subsiding. La Niña, or "the little girl," is created by unusually cold ocean temperatures in the eastern equatorial Pacific. It pushes moisture northward, particularly to the Pacific Northwest, and dries Florida.

Mr. Smith said La Niña is giving way to an El Niño, or unusually warm ocean temperatures in the equatorial Pacific. That has the opposite weather effect.

"They're predicting that we're going to get an abnormally wet summer," Mr. Smith said. "We're expecting that, but we haven't got into that pattern yet. When we get into the two- or three-times-a-week rain, we can look into lifting that burn ban."

Although a light tropical storm season is predicted, Volusia County Emergency Management officials advise residents to have emergency supplies on hand. An emergency-supply checklist is at www.volusia.org/emergency.

VOLUSIA — He's a familiar name to some Volusia County voters — those who tune into WSBB AM 1230, New Smyrna Beach. They will recognize his voice from programs such as "Boston Pops." Jason Davis, a relative political newcomer, is one of two candidates so far for the Volusia County Chairman seat being vacated by Frank Bruno this year.

Some may recall Mr.

Davis' unsuccessful bid for Florida's 24th Congressional Seat in 2008. The district covers about half of Volusia. That year he went up against two well-known opponents — Tom Feeney and Suzanne Kosmas. Mr. Davis said he's proud to note he's never held an elected office, or appointed board seat.

"I'm not part of the system," he said.

Mr. Davis said, if elected, his top priority will be reducing the county's budget, and paying off bonds it's issued for capital projects.

"If you want to reduce the budget, it goes to consolidation," he said.

For example, Mr. Davis noted that the county has several agencies involved in law enforcement: the Volusia County Sheriff's Office, the corrections department and Beach Patrol. He said it likely makes more sense to DAYTONA BEACH — The Midtown Cultural and Educational Center will help build character and integrity, says Brian Faircloth, son of T.R. Faircloth, who was a local educational leader and the namesake for the city's newest gymnasium.

"This is going to be uplifting and totally positive. I'm optimistic about what's going to happen with the community," Brian Faircloth said at the center's recent opening. "I think this center is going to bridge the gap in terms of races, nationalities and socio-economic backgrounds."

Offered in the nearly 23,000 square-foot recreation complex is a dance studio, multipurpose room, which has a kiln for making ceramics, a kitchen, a music studio, a computer lab and a gymnasium.

AVID program is saved — at least for one year

By Patrick McCallister
For Hometown News

VOLUSIA COUNTY — Almost 900 Volusia middle and high school students were "AVID" this school year. That is, they were part of Advancement Via Individual Determination, a college-preparation program aimed at turning middling students into high performers. Things looked like AVID was heading to the district's program graveyard after this school year, but it's been resuscitated.

At a May Volusia County School Board meeting, Dr. Margaret Smith, superintendent, announced that the district was cutting AVID, because of ever-tightening budgets. That didn't go over well. Not with anyone. Especially not the students.

T. DeWitt Taylor Middle-High School junior Jessica Juarez, 17, said students there started a petition drive, Facebook group, and letter-writing campaign against the program closure. She's been in AVID since ninth grade.

"We just feel like we've been pushed out of our nest," she said in an interview. "We don't feel like we can fly yet — like we're falling slowly."

In a sudden turnaround at the last school board meeting Tuesday night, Dr. Smith said the program was saved — at least for the 2012-2013 school year. School Board member Stan Schmidt said in an interview after the meeting that no one on the school board had the heart to wonder what happens after that.

"I don't think anyone even asked about the (2013-2014) school year," Mr. Schmidt said.

AVID is federally funded under Title I. Previously, Dr. Smith told the board that reductions in education funding, and a requirement for districts to put some federal dollars in reserve, made AVID unsustainable. At the last meeting, she said that district staff was able to negotiate a way to keep the program for now.

"There have been some changes that have occurred that allowed us to target some federal funds," she said.

In the interview, Mr. Schmidt said, "We were told we had to withhold 10 percent of federal dollars. Now we have permission to only withhold 9.5 percent. That is how we were able to fund AVID."

Glenda Butler, AVID district director, said 13 Volusia middle and high schools have AVID. Its budget for fiscal year 2011-2012 is $1.4 million. It started locally with a couple of schools and about 200 students in the 2003-2004 year.

To be in the program, a student must give up an elective to attend an AVID instructional class. In that class, the student learns many skills high academic achievers developed because of training or intuition. Some of those skills are collaborating with others, keeping good notes, and finding advantageous classroom seating. Another skill AVID emphasizes is organization. Many schools with AVID programs adopted its strategies throughout their student populations — in particular the emphasis on well-organized binders.

Mary Catherine Swanson started AVID in 1980. She was the head of the English department at San Diego's Clairemont High School. A court ruling sent many inner-city youths to the school, although many weren't prepared for its expectations. Swanson developed the program to help the incoming students accept higher academic rigors by teaching them skills and attitudes they would need. AVID began with 32 students, and has spread combine them all under the Sheriff's Office to eliminate duplicated positions.

"Consolidate these agencies and get them under one roof," he said.

While the race is non-partisan, Mr. Davis, 50, is a lifelong Republican. Mr. Davis said he learned about leadership in the Army, where political labels disappeared and individuals were taken on their merit. He served from 1980 to 1993, including in operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm. The sergeant was injured in combat, ending his military career.

The Apopka native moved to the area shortly after discharging from the service.

He said time with and service to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 3282 in Port Orange, has helped him see the affects of local taxes on retirees and others on fixed income. Mr. Davis hopes to responsibly reduce the county's property taxes by evaluating its expenditures and eliminating those that aren't contributing to safety or quality of life.

"We're one of the highest taxed and lowest paid counties in Florida," he said. "We're so taxed, and this is a (destination for senior citizens). They can't support themselves here."

Also high on Mr. Davis' priorities is improving the county's relationship with the 16 cities within it, and tackling the longstanding "Palmetto Curtain," a reference to Volusia's sparsely-populated middle that seems to separate the interests of cities on the eastern and western sides.

"Unite our county," he said. "Get our cities together to work and play well together, and East and West can work together."

Mr. Davis is in a long-term committed relationship, and has an adult daughter who lives out of the area. He's also a member of Bikers for First Amendment Rights in Holly Hill.

When I want a dog, I think Chicago

If there is such a thing as hot dog season, it is here. All across Volusia County, folks will be plopping those wonderful tubular treats onto the grill to the delight of young and old. That we as Americans love hotdogs is one thing most of us can agree on, but how to build one seems to put us at odds.

A while back in my fishing column, I mentioned how I missed the great hotdogs that are found in the Chicago area. I guess it should have been clear that I was throwing down the gauntlet, but I honestly didn't even consider it. You see, those of us who have lived in the Chicago area know there is nothing to debate.

Once, several years ago, I became involved in a discussion on the comparative merits of a Chicago dog and a famous Nathan's dog from New York. Although my adversary was passionate I ended that argument with one question. I asked what comes on a Nathan's? The fellow replied, "Oh you can put on mustard, relish, onions or any number of things."

BZZZZZZZZZZ! You lose.

A Chicago dog comes with a wonderful array of goodies mostly unknown to New Yorkers and it is all placed there for you. All you have to do to a Chicago hot dog is eat it.

OK, sit up straight and listen closely, for I will now reveal the proper way to make a glorious Chicago-style hot dog.

You begin with an all-beef weenie that is large but not too large. The perfect one is made by the Vienna Beef Company and practically every hot dog stand in Chicago uses them. It is cooked in the dirty water method usually found in the tank of a street vendor. No grilling for a Chicago Dog and (heaven help us) certainly no frying. When you drop a quality weenie into hot oil listen closely and you will hear it crying.

LAND LINES

The bun is of a high quality and is served slightly steamed. Once the weenie is in the bun, the New York hot dog man's job is complete but in Chicago, we are just beginning.

Next comes the mustard. No brown or spiced mustard will do. Only good old yellow American sunshine is allowed and it is never put on the weenie. Put a small line of mustard on each side of the bun.

Next comes the relish. If you are trying to build one as you read this, stop right here. You don't have the proper relish. The proper relish is a strangely bright, fluorescent green concoction and is never sweet and not available locally. But, say you have the proper relish, next comes the onion, a good one and finely chopped. A Vidalia or even a red one might do.

A long crisp, slender, slice of dill pickle that is as long as the dog, is next. Now cut a firm tomato into small wedges and put four on our dog. Next, you will add four hot sport peppers — those of you with a sensitive palate may substitute mild pepper rings.

OK, cut a juicy fresh cucumber into slices and add four of those. For the topper, sprinkle liberally with seasoned salt that is heavy on celery seeds.

Now carefully place your creation on a sheet of last week's Hometown News and next to it dump a big tongs-full of hot, salty, greasy french fries straight from the fryer.

Roll it up to keep it warm and pass it on to someone you love. Stand back and watch their eyes light up as they tear into it.

As you can see, there is no use comparing anything else in the cylindrical food genre, but still some will persist. After my fishing column appeared, I received a letter from Jerry of Jerry's Beachside Cafe. He told me that he had recently won a local competition and invited me down to try his pride and joy. Jerry runs his dog stand from a trailer in the parking lot of Tom Renick Park in Ormond By The Sea not far from my home, so I did stop by. He was correct. His dog may be the best around these parts and I can tell you he has a great flair for the grilled bread he uses in place of a bun. Jerry's is a great hot dog but I won't do him the disservice of comparing it to a Chicago hot dog. You see, in the Chicago area, hot dog stands are a way of life and exist on an average of two to a block on any throughway. The method for making a dog in the manner described above was set as a standard many years ago and now if you want to sell hot dogs in that market you must have the product that your customers expect.

Anything less and you are soon out of business.

Now I only have one other comment on hot dogs and try to keep this to yourself — I don't want to lose my standing with Chicagoans. (I was stationed in Frankfurt, Germany in the Army and call tell you the Frankfurter won't make it either) The very best tasting weenie in the world is the original Ballpark Franks. Fifty million kids are not wrong!

Lilian Place to celebrate first year

By Christina De Paris
 For Hometown News

DAYTONA BEACH — To celebrate the first anniversary of the restoration and opening of Lilian Place, the Heritage Preservation Trust will hold a celebration Sunday and unveil an original bronze lamp that first hung in the home's hallway window in 1884 and served as a guiding light for travelers of the Intercoastal waterways.

"The lamp was probably quite beautiful when it was up there and now it will be returned to the site it was in, in 1884," said Nancy Long, Heritage Preservation Trust president.

The lamp was hoisted down using a contraption with chains and lit up by candlelight to shine through the stained glass that originally adorned the windows.

The bronze lamp itself is embellished in jewels and will be displayed on a table for the public to view during the celebration event Sunday, June 10 starting at 2 p.m.

The lamp is one of five pieces original to the oldest home on the beachside and date back to 1884, the year Lawrence Thompson constructed the house.

Randy Barber/staff photographer

Lilian Place on Silver Beach Avenue is the oldest house on Daytona's beachside.

"The Thompson family have been so nice about donating some original pieces of furniture from the house and loaned us this old lamp," Ms. Long said.

Thompson family members have not owned the house since 1984, but still play an intricate role in its preservation. The site is a fine example of Italianate High Victorian architecture, constructed with high ceilings, wood crown moldings and wood floors.

In addition to the unveiling, there will be a steel drum band, food and drinks, book signings by local authors, performances, and tours of the historic home.

Tracy & Stacy's Masterpiece Jewelers will offer free modern and vintage jewelry evaluations for up to three items for Lilian Place members and their guests.

Most of the activities will take place outdoors — Ms. Long describes the unique property as having a great breeze and excellent view of the river.

The party is free and open to the public, and tours will cost $5. Members of Lilian Place can tour the home for free, and memberships cost $25 per year.

The grand opening last June was a huge success for the Heritage Preservation Trust, with over 200 people in attendance and they expect a nice turnout this weekend as well.

Visit www.heritagepreservation-trust.org or call Nancy Long at (386) 299-4974 with any questions regarding Lilian Place.

Ex-county judge aims for court clerk post

By Dan Harkins
 dharkins@hometownnewsol.com

Editor's note: Leading up to the August elections, Hometown News will be running profiles of the candidates for county and city races. You can find all profiles at www.hometownnewsol.com.

VOLUSIA COUNTY — Daytona Beach attorney Steve deLaroche had a change of heart this election cycle.

Until April, the 48-year-old former county judge was set to attempt a return to the county bench. He left in 2007 under state ethics investigation for fixing traffic tickets for his father-in-law and a handful of others. But then he withdrew and threw his hat into the ring for clerk.

He won't be alone. One Republican, Mr. deLaroche, one Democrat, the clerk's former human resources manager Anne Marie Wrenn, and one undeclared candidate, former deputy clerk Christine Sanders, all have declared their intention to unseat longtime Clerk of Court Diane Matousek, a Republican who faces her first contested race since 1996.

Since it's the only partisan county race, Ms. Matousek will have to defend her seat in the August primary as well as the November general election.

Mr. deLaroche, of Ormond Beach, says he had two heart attacks in the aftermath of the charges, prompting his resignation. After that, investigations by the Florida Judicial Qualifications Commission and the Florida Bar Association were suspended.

Though the possibility was there that the ethics investigation would reopen if he were reelected, Mr. deLaroche insisted that his switch to the clerk's race had to do with a conversation he had with his wife, during which she reminded him about his displeasure with so many aspects of the bench.

"At one point I had three cases about corrosion," he recalled. "And it seemed like 75 percent of the cases involved driving under suspension. If you ask any attorney, I think they'd say I was far and away the front-runner in the judge's race, but it's not just about finding a job; it's trying to find one that you're passionate about."

Mr. deLaroche said he understands the county judiciary in a way Ms. Matousek, who started as a file clerk in the office at 18 and as clerk in 1992, doesn't.

"I have a much better understanding," he said, "as to what a judge needs from the clerk's office — what we've come to expect of them and what they can do better."

He said his background is also more diverse.

After graduating with a bachelor's in economics from the State University of New York, Mr. deLaroche got his juris doctorate from Stetson College of Law.

He worked first as a state prosecutor then in private practice, until 2004, when he ran for county judge with the most expensive campaign in county history — spending nearly $150,000. At 36, he became one of the youngest judges in the state.

During his time on the bench, he said he was able to accomplish many administrative goals. One term as chief county administrative judge, he oversaw the redrawing of geographical lines to better distribute caseloads among county judges. He said he also secured a more cost-effective probation services contract, so "we were able make more on probation instead of paying money out."

Atlantic Center for Comprehensive Dentistry
 KRASKI, COSTELLO & DRAKE P.A.

Let Dr. Costello create "Your Winning Smile"

People choose cosmetic dental procedures for various reasons - to repair a defect such as a malformed bite or crooked teeth, treat an injury, or just improve their overall appearance. For these and many other reasons, cosmetic dentistry has become a vital and important part of the dental profession and one of the fastest growing areas of dentistry. For example, tooth-whitening procedures have tripled over the past five years. Common cosmetic dental procedures can be performed to correct misshaped, discolored, chipped or missing teeth. It also can be used to change the overall shape of teeth - from teeth that are too long or short, have gaps, or simply need to be reshaped.

You're missing the point about no smoking laws

I saw the response in the June 1 edition to the rant "Smokers need to move."

In response to that I have to say "sorry pal, but when you say in your response that, 'I can get that...' you don't." To me it appears that the main problem you have is that it's a matter of smokers' feelings not being taken into account, or that non-smokers act like they have more rights than smokers. As a former smoker (and I am guessing that you are a current or former smoker) I actually agree with your solutions to cheap perfume users, left-hand slow drivers and unruly kids. But the point you're missing is why were the "No Smoking" laws enacted in the first place.

Just as a tour guide wouldn't lead his tourists through the middle of a shooting range or swimmers are not allowed far out into a raging, rip tide surf, some significant evidence has shown that second-hand smoke is very harmful to those subjected to it. And when customers have to walk through a smoke-filled store entrance door, they are subjected to just as much second-hand smoke as if smoking were allowed in the store.

I will admit that it appears that the stores are part of the problem, as many of them place ash containers right outside the door to their store, tacitly proclaiming that to be the smoker's area. My solution would simply be to move the ash containers 20 feet away from the store doorway and discourage their employees (probably the primary offenders) to not smoke at the entrance door. Smokers do have rights, but not at the expense of the health of others.

In response to: 'Smokers need to move'

In response to the person who said you should not smoke near the entrance to a store. You already cannot smoke inside anywhere. Why not allow us to smoke outside. What are smokers going to do? This is totally ridiculous.

In response to: "Appalled at column on welfare abuse"

I just want to rave about the letter: "Appalled at welfare abuse" in the May 25 edition. The writer definitely had it right. I applauded him for writing a letter. I worked hard my whole life for 30 years. I came to Volusia County and I could not find a job and was on food stamps briefly. I was embarrassed at first. Now, I am back at work and am thankful for the help I got. Thank you, James Doumas, for setting it straight.

We did it!

Don't offend art with 'artsy'

I have other things to do, but your newspaper, which I usually appreciate, was just deposited in my driveway and you put something on the front page that will not wait; zero tolerance is mandatory.

Having devoted most of my adult life to the elimination of the filthy word, "artsy," whenever it appears without its complement, "fartsy," I have to take immediate action. There is no word more trivializing, demeaning and destructive to art than the foul "artsy." If you value art at all, do not use it.

And now, having had to type it twice in such a small space of time, I must go wash my hands.

Food trucks should spur restaurants to do better, not complain

For those following with interest the current disquiet over the presence of food trucks in certain quarters of Volusia County, the adage attributed to Abraham Lincoln "Better to remain silent and be thought a fool than to speak out and remove all doubt" may have been brought to mind. A number of restaurateurs have expressed displeasure with the presence of the mobile vendors, betraying, unfortunately, a fairly profound lack of understanding of simple market economics. One business owner referred to the fact that he pays some $10,000 in property taxes. At the risk of stating the obvious, property taxes, levied at the county level, cover the services provided by the county and its municipalities, including fire protection, libraries, public park maintenance, schools, and a host of other benefits that accrue not only to property owners, but to those who merely lease or are simply passing through. The outlay of property taxes, be they paid by a neighborhood greasy spoon or a three-star gourmet establishment, do not guarantee customers or serve as insulation against economic downturns, competition or poorly-prepared food and lousy service.

Another representative of a storefront operation noted that her business suffers a drop when the food trucks are in the area. The proper response to such a claim is: So what? Should some enterprising entrepreneur decide to create a traditional restaurant a few blocks away from her store, she may expect much worse. Instead of demanding that the competition be stymied at every step by strategies engineered by elected officials, perhaps local eateries could devise plans that serve to attract and cultivate loyal customers with innovative menus, fresh and delicious ingredients and superlative service. Their objections are a sure and solid indication of a group under siege, afraid that the competition is going to offer a product that is of higher quality, better tasting, quickly prepared and delivered with a more sincere smile. Overcome by their talent for belly-aching, these brick and mortar restaurateurs forget, of course, that they offer something no mobile food vendor can possibly match: indoor seating on comfortable chairs or booths in a climate-controlled environment with amenities such as numerous and varied menu selections, ambience, sociability, restrooms, and a wait staff at the beck and call of its customers. And guess what? Their prices reflect those abundant charms.

While it is certainly no crime to knock the free enterprise system and the choices that consumers make, critics may do well to bear in mind that some of us will remember such denigrations of open competition, and will reward those businesses that have earned and deserve our patronage. City leaders would also be wise to pay attention and remember that customers are voters. A gentle reminder: both capitalists (even those in name only) and those occupying elective office serve at our pleasure. Bon appétit!

Beach expo planned

The Beach Eco Expo will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, June 9, at the Ocean Center in Daytona Beach.

The expo is geared toward beachside property managers and their staff, residents, visitors, tourism professionals and anyone else who has an interest in learning more about beach wildlife, the sea turtle habitat conservation plan program, the beach lighting ordinance and beach safety.

Jennifer Winters, sea turtle habitat conservation plan program manager, said people attending this free workshop will learn about the beach environment from a number of experts.

Attendees can learn about the beach environment and other wildlife, the sea turtle habitat conservation plan program, lighting ordinance, and safety topics.

Staff from the Marine Science Center and Beach Safety will be present along with other non-profit organizations and vendors. Vendors will showcase products or educational information about our beach environment and offer ways you can help protect it.

The event is free; parking is $5 at the Volusia County parking garage.

For more information, call (386) 238-4716.

Flag Day celebration planned

The Ormond Beach Elks will hold its Flag Day celebration at 1 p.m. Sunday, June 10, at the lodge, 285 Wilmette Ave. The ceremony is open to all Elks and their guests. It will be followed by a lunch of hot dogs, baked beans, macaroni sale and chips. Admission is free.

For more information, call (677) 7180.

Meeting with the city manager planned

The next meeting with the Ormond Beach City Manager Joyce Shanahan will be held from 3:30 to 4 p.m. Monday, June 11, at 22 S. Beach St, in the training room. The public may attend.

Juneteenth banquet planned

The Juneteenth Committee in Daytona Beach will hold the Juneteenth-Banquet, celebrating June 1865 African American Freedom in Texas and honoring hometown heroes, at 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 12, at the Midtown Cultural and Education Center, 925 George W. Engram Blvd., Daytona Beach.

Tickets are $25 per person. Semi-formal attire is required.

ORMOND BEACH

Proposed project may boost oceanfront

Those crafty Canadians of Bayshore Capital apparently will be the first up for a new project on the Daytona Beach oceanfront.

Bayshore wants to build 700 condo/hotel units on 10 acres it owns at 801 S. Atlantic Ave., between Lenox and Ribault avenues. The project would be done in two 350-unit phases. The Toronto company is seeking heavy incentives from the city, including ad valorem tax abatement, water/sewer construction cost reimbursements, the Florida Brownfield Tax Refund Program and tax increment revenues. That means the city would get little out of the project, but the economic development potential is big.

Apparently, Bayshore believes the world economy will continue to improve enough that it can sell the condo/hotel units. Basically the company is looking for investors to buy the units, which it can then rent out like hotel rooms. The owner gets a share of the proceeds with Bayshore, or another company it may sell the management contract to, gets a fee. The unit owner also would have to pay for maintenance.

For anyone who hasn't followed oceanfront development in Florida, many of the resorts are run that way. Some notable ones in Daytona Beach include part of Ocean Walk, the Plaza Resort & Spa and the Daytona Beach Resort & Conference Center.

If all goes as planned, this could be a catalyst to help boost the moribund oceanfront. However, there are still plenty of people who will weigh in on the project, including the residents of the area around Lenox and Ribault avenues. The first hearing on the project was scheduled Wednesday for the city's Community Redevelopment Agency.

The successor to Mercedes Homes at Tuscany Woods in Daytona Beach, KB Home, is building about 40 townhouse units there. KB Home previously bought a big chunk of land there for $880,000. Mercedes is closing its operation and has been liquidating its land holdings in Volusia County and elsewhere.

One of the big hotel renovations on the beachside in the Daytona area is complete. Vantage Hospitality Group has rebranded and reopened the Atlantic Resort Ocean Palm, 2323 S. Atlantic Ave., Daytona Beach Shores. All 106 rooms of the resort have been remodeled and equipped with refrigerators, microwaves and coffee makers, and have free WiFi and cable TV.

Posh Capital of Atlanta bought the hotel in September for $3 million and hired Vantage to manage the resort, which is now a Lexington Inn & Suites. Vantage has about 25 Lexington hotels either open or in development in the U.S. and China. Vantage also has the America's Best Value Inn chain, which includes a motel at 1305 S. Ridgewood Ave. in Daytona Beach.

If you're flying out of Daytona Beach International Airport, you can expect crowded airplanes. Despite filling about 90 percent of the seats on their Daytona flights, Delta Air Lines and US Airways still aren't adding any flights with just five for Delta and three for US Airways in June.

Consolidated-Tomoka Land Co. has sold two of its properties to help pay for an extremely expensive Walgreens in Boulder, Colo. The Daytona Beach-based public company got $8 million for its Northern Tool property in Asheville, N.C., and a Walgreens property in Powder Springs, Ga. The revenue will be used to pay for the $7.4 million Colorado purchase and another tax-exchange property purchase.

If you're thinking about buying a house, but aren't sure how to get started, Community Legal Services of Mid-Florida and the Daytona Beach Regional Library are presenting a first-time buyers workshop from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at the City Island library, 105 E. Magnolia Ave., Daytona Beach.

Presenters will include Jodi Peña Castaldi, a foreclosure and housing counselor with Community Legal Services of Mid-Florida, along with a local home inspector and a member of the Daytona Beach Area Association of Realtors. Attending the workshop could help you get a mortgage easier as well as give you the knowledge to make your first home-buying attempt a success. Registration is required and may be made by calling Community Legal Services at (386) 506-5384.

Students must apply to and be interviewed for AVID. Many are invited to apply, based on academic data about them. Ms. Butler said about half who apply are accepted into the program. She said this year, and most, all the AVID students in their senior year of high school graduated. By their senior year, almost all had been in AVID for three or more years. About 75 percent of this year's AVID seniors applied to four-year universities, and slightly more than half were accepted. Many others reported that they'd attend two-year colleges.

Mr. Schmidt said with the one-year reprieve, the local AVID program could seek private funding to help stabilize it from future federal cuts.

"It would be nice, but you're talking ($1.4 million)," he said. "That's how much the program costs. It's right in the core of what we're trying to do — it hits our at-risk students. The school board itself is on board with this thing, but $1.4 million a year would be difficult to raise."

Finally, A Non-Surgical Treatment for Neck Pain, Arm Pain, Hand Pain Numbness and Headaches Caused by Bulging, Herniated or Squashed Discs!

Computerized Breakthrough for Sever Neck Pain and Ruptured Discs...It's NOT Just for Back Pain Anymore! ...Of Course If You Suffer With Back Pain, We Can Help You Too.

Bill Labonte's Office in Ormond Beach, FL receives inquiries about his new non surgical treatment for herniated, bulging and degenerated discs from all over the nation. As a result, he has one non surgical disc machine for lower back pain and second one to treat neck, arm and hand pain from disc problems in the neck.

If you are suffering with SERIOUS neck pain or hand or arm pain caused by a bulging, herniated or degenerated disc, pay attention. This may be the most important article read this year!

Do You Have A Disc Problem?

If you experience any of the following, chances are your pain is due to a disc bulge, herniation or degeneration:

- Tight muscles in your neck
- Turning your Head causes neck pain
- Shooting pain in arms or hands
- Migraine Headaches
- Numbness in your arms, hands or fingers
- Fire down your arms
- Prickling in your hands
- Weak hand or wrist muscles

Finally Some Good News!

We can help if you have been suffering with neck pain, arm or hand pain caused by a bulging disc, disc herniation or squashed or compressed discs.

Until recently, the only advice for many of you suffering in pain was to try what you've been told:

- Try exercising or physical therapy
- Try physical therapy
- Try pain medication
- Try pain shots
- Try back surgery
- Just live with it

If your like most, none of these have worked for you. Exercise hurts, pain medications and muscle relaxers cover up the problem and cause side effects. Pain shots cause more pain, don't work or last very long and don't FIX the problem. Or maybe back surgery didn't work, worked but didn't last or even made it worse.

Caution! Decompression is DIFFERENT than old time traction or hanging upside down or inversion machines which can make your muscles squeeze the discs even harder!

Whatever your situation, you owe it to yourself to check into this Breakthrough Computerized Non-Surgical Treatment for back pain and sciatic or leg pain caused by a bulging, herniated or squashed disc or discs. It has helped hundreds of people who were suffering just like you.

How Do Discs Go Bad?

Over time the discs in your back tend to get squashed or compressed, especially if you've played certain sports when younger or have a job that requires lots of sitting or standing in one place for long periods of time. Car accidents, or heavy or repeated lifting.

It's kinda like a cookie with cream filling, and the cream filling will start to ooze out from between the sides of the cookie if pressure is applied on top of the cookie (like gravity on our spine). Eventually this happens to a lot of us. Statistics show over 80% of Americans will suffer with back pain sometime in their life.

How Does This Machine Work?

The computerized decompression machine gently pulls you apart, stretches the disc to a certain point that causes a drop in pressure inside the disc (like a little vacuum pulling the disc back into proper placement. In my clinic, I've treated hundreds of patients with non surgical spinal decompression with great results so there should be no reason your back pain should be any different.

Most serious Back Pain Sufferers Are Very Skeptical Of This New Procedure, As Skeptical As I Was When I Purchased My First Decompression Machine, So If You Are Skeptical ...See What Some Of Our Patients Have Had to Say About Our Program:

When I came in to see you I had been to several doctors. They were not helping and I was taking lots of pain pills and muscle relaxers. Before the treatment I would get out of bed and fall to the ground. I was in very severe pain. I was slow to react to the DRX9000 treatment, but I stayed with it. Today I feel great. No more pain or pain pills. I want to thank all of the staff at Dr. Labonte's. They are awesome.
Lisa F. Ormond Beach

I have gone from waking up 4 times in the night with pain radiating down my right arm and numbness to sleeping through the night and waking with no pain or numbness in the right arm. The whole staff has treated me so wonderful, They have all been there to listen and do anything possible to help me get well and on the road to recovery from cervical disc bulging. I am so pleased that I have found this treatment center and am very happy with the wonderful service and medical help from the whole staff. You couldn't find a better group of people that provide excellent care and are some of the nicest people I have met. I would definitely recommend them to anyone who has neck pain or disc pain.
Candy B, Ormond Beach

Within less than halfway through the treatments, my major neck discomfort ceased. The experience from the front desk, the technicians, and the doctor were extremely friendly, caring and professional. I highly recommend Dr. Labonte's Team.
Robert T, Ormond Beach

My experience at Dr. Labonte's office has greatly improved my quality of life. The DXR9000 protocol for a herniated disc worked for me. After 6 weeks of treatments my back was better than before I injured it.
Dan N, Ormond Beach

Dr. Labonte and his staff exude an upbeat and caring concern for each patient. I was treated as a person and not just a number. Thanks to Dr. Labonte, his staff and the DXR9000 my quality of life been restored to what it was 11 years ago. I am looking forward to resuming the active lifestyle I used to enjoy. I can not emphasize how fantastic I feel. I heartily recommend the decompression treatment. All I can say to Dr. Labonte and his staff is thank you for the concern and extraordinary patient care you gave me during the treatments

Interstate Batteries has the power

By Cathy Wharton
For Hometown News

DAYTONA BEACH — From cameras and cell phones to flashlights and toys, a lot of our household items require batteries in order to operate. AA's, AAA's, C's and D's — of course, we never seem to have the ones we need on hand. Luckily, you can find these kinds of batteries at most any store. Car batteries are pretty easy to come by as well. But there are thousands of other types of batteries, many of which are not as readily available — that is, until now.

Located on Mason Avenue in Daytona Beach, the Interstate All Battery Center is a one-stop shop for literally thousands of batteries — all kinds of batteries. Though the name "Interstate" is generally associated with car batteries, their product line exceeds most expectations.

Interstate Batteries is not just for cars and trucks — it is also for motorcycles, scooters, boats, RV's, wheelchairs, cell phones, laptops, wrist-watches, home protection systems, and yes, even flashlights. The store's huge inventory carries batteries for just about any need. And if they don't have a particular type on hand, they can get it.

"I have access to over 16,000 types of batteries," store owner Debbie Loyd said. "Our customer base is anyone who has a device that needs a battery, and I can supply it."

Ms. Loyd has supplied batteries for medical devices in hospitals, as well as car batteries for county and city vehicles. Additionally, she has worked with NASCAR. "We have a good relationship with NASCAR," she said. "We provide at the Speedway — Kyle Busch is our driver (for Interstate Batteries)."

How did Debbie Loyd get started in the business of selling batteries?

"My husband had worked for his brother, who has an Interstate Battery Distributorship in Orlando," she said. "He worked as a sales rep, then later purchased a distributorship. He (husband, Chip Loyd) has 30 years experience in the business."

Previously in Port Orange, Interstate has been at its current location for the past 10 years. Three years ago, Mr. Loyd expanded his operation to include a retail store. In order to accommodate the new store, he remodeled the entire front end of the building. While Mr. Loyd owns the distributorship (handling the warehouse and installation aspects of the operation), his wife, Debbie, owns the store — the Interstate All Battery Center. In fact, they are two separate businesses housed under the same roof.

A quick look around the Interstate All Battery Center reveals a clean and orderly shop with an array of battery products, all neatly arranged for easy selection. Shelf items include battery testers, cell phone accessories, camcorder batteries, tool batteries, and much more. Also in shop is a display of automotive batteries plus several marine batteries for watercraft. In addition, the Interstate Center carries a product called "Jump Pack" — a "rescue kit" for outdoorsmen. The kit consists of 12-volt DC Power, 120 volt AC Converter, built-in USB port, built-in charger, built-in work light, a safety flasher and a compressor with gauge. In the words of a once-famous ad, "don't leave home without it."

But selling products is not the only thing the business is about. Service comes first," Ms. Loyd said.

"We are here to make sure

the customer has their needs met," she said. "We're here to help them solve their problems. We're not just about selling, but service."

Indeed, every serviceable battery-run product is given the utmost attention and care. If an item needs repairing, or needs a new part; or perhaps just needs oiling, the shop's experienced and knowledgeable four-man staff will take care of it. Another unique feature of the business is that Interstate buys used batteries, which they then rebuild. Rebuilt automotive batteries come with a one-year warranty. They also rebuild cordless tools.

While Interstate is a national company, the local business is definitely community oriented. Lining the wall across from Ms. Loyd's office is a number of awards and plaques showing the many teams they have sponsored, from high school soccer and basketball, to softball for the City of Ormond. The Loyds also reach out to veterans; and they refurbish wheelchairs for those who are in need.

He's never denied making a mistake in dismissing his father-in-law's $35 ticket, though he says he would have made the same decision for a stranger. Other ticket fixing allegations were never proven, he said.

"I shouldn't have handled it," he said, referring to his father-in-law's ticket. "It was wrong. But I always believe the mark of character is what you do after you make a mistake. I didn't try to work my way out of this. I admitted it."

With that in the past, he's intent on finding ways to make the clerk's office run more cheaply and efficiently.

Though Ms. Matousek

recently told Hometown News that the coming two years would see the creation of a paperless filing system for attorneys and other professionals, Mr. deLaroche said it should have been done years ago.

He applauded Ms. Matousek's foresight in 1996 when she secured the domain name www.court.org and proceeded to automate many services. Nevertheless, he said the office's website isn't even equipped to inform defendants about when and where upcoming court hearings will be — a service long provided by many clerks across the country.

"She made a start and it just petered out and died," Mr deLaroche said about Ms. Matousek's drive into the digital age. "We're the largest county in Florida that still doesn't have that system in place. She's been there 30 years. This should have been done long ago."

our children, improve cultural awareness in our children and our community and it's going to bridge the technology gap between Daytona and Port Orange and Ormond," said Volusia county teacher Monique Reed of Daytona Beach.

The computer lab has digital photography software and visual arts programs, and offers access to the web for both children and adults. The music studio is designed for recording, and can also be used for practice.

The grand opening to the state-of-the-art facility located at the cross road of Nova Road and George Engram Blvd. attracted an enthusiastic mix of public officials and city workers, community members and other staff that were involved in the project's development.

"The city council said that they were going to (build the center) and they did it," said Leisure Services Director Percy Williamson, to a crowd packed wall to wall inside due to the rain that day. Raphael Jackson of Daytona Beach lives within blocks of the center, and was "beyond impressed" as he walked through the corridors and toured the many spaces that make up the multifaceted facility.

"This is just wonderful," he said. "I remember the old building; I remember it being torn down and I watched it being built. The best part is now I don't have to travel to other centers."

Mr. Jackson plans to bring his grandchildren to the center to utilize the spaces.

The Midtown Cultural and Educational Center cost $4.5 million, and replaces the Cypress Street Recreation Center, which was built in 1949.

City officials and developers both came to the conclusion that wrecking the original building and starting from the ground up would be comparable in price to renovations.

The help of $800,000 from the city, $1.2 million in grants from Volusia County's Environmental, Cultural, Historic and Outdoors program, and a $2.5 million loan brought the space to fruition.

The new facility is modern in structure and functionality, and is about double the size. It uses energy-efficient technology, such as engineering systems that regulate lighting and air conditioning by motion-detection.

This project is the second of a three stage approach. The final installation will be tennis and basketball courts, and baseball fields at the new complex, but will only occur with funding.

Even without the additions, the center still has much to offer.

"(The Center) is going to help our community understand what's going on in education system as well as what's going on in the rest of the world."

Hours of operation will be Monday to Saturday, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The center has opened just in time to register for the 9-week summer camp for children ages 5 to 16, which begins on June 11 and runs through August 10.

Call Leisure Services for more information at (386) 671-8337 or (386) 671-3406.

City Island Courthouse Annex on North Beach Street. But the auxiliary police officer supervising the cameras during the alleged incident couldn't attend, he said, so more than a dozen people had their court dates rescheduled to last week.

That's when Hearing Officer John Pascucci, the auxiliary officer and Mr. Toala watched the tape of the incident together. Mr. Toala's vehicle slowly crosses the intersection marker just after the light goes red; however, a second later, the tape shows his reverse light illuminate and Mr. Toala reversing his car out of the intersection.

The police officer tells the judge she must not have watched the tape long enough. Judge Pascucci dismisses the charges.

"I knew I stopped," he said toward the bench. "One of you guys gonna buy me lunch?"

In the courtroom

One man outside Mr. Pascucci's court said, "Big Brother, 1984," when asked about the cameras. Another man called them "a scam" because of the constitutional right to face an accuser in court.

"You can't go in there and face that camera," said the man, who feared having his name published. "That camera can't talk, so it can't say, 'I saw that man driving that car right there.'"

But that's what's happening. The first Daytona Beach intersections that got the cameras were Nova Road at Mason Avenue, George W. Engram and International Speedway boulevards, as well as International Speedway at Ridgewood Avenue and Clyde Morris Boulevard. In July, last year, the cameras were added at Indigo Drive and International Speedway, along with Bellevue Avenue and Nova Road.

Citation recipients have 30 days to pay fines, sign affidavits stating they weren't the drivers when their vehicles allegedly ran red lights, or ask to contest them. At first, the citations are handled as code violations. If recipients ignore the citations, they're upgraded to state Uniform Traffic Citations sent by certified mail. In other words, the citations become tickets, and fines can escalate up to about $300.

To fight a red light camera ticket, alleged suspects come together twice a month in Mr. Pascucci's court. They use a variety of tactics to win.

Some insist someone else was driving, to which Mr. Pascucci demands a sworn affidavit informing the court who was. Others attempt to see if the cameras have been calibrated, something that is required to be done about twice a year.

Local attorney Aaron Delgado has a tip for those who get the citations — don't fight city hall in traffic court, although you have a good chance of winning if you do. Hiring an attorney is likely to cost defendants more than the $158 fine, he said, and no points are assessed against the license for those convicted anyway.

Still, Mr. Delgado has represented about 30 who opted to fight the citations.

"Every single one I've had has been dismissed," he said. "The nitty-gritty of it is there's all these procedural issues to be followed in a trial. At each hearing, it's like snakes and ladders."

That is, he said, attorneys representing Daytona Beach have been saddled with defending a program in its infancy, when many of its kinks have yet to be ironed out.

"I think the concept in broad strokes is not illegal, but the way it's being executed has legal issues," Mr. Delgado said.

For instance, until recently, an attorney could have a case dismissed if he or she could prove the cameras hadn't been calibrated on schedule.

Besides the denied right of facing your accuser in court, several other constitutional issues arise when considering red light cameras, Mr. Delgado said.

Not only does it shift the burden of proof to the driver away from the prosecution, he said, but it also, until recently, has denied due process when cameras weren't calibrated as often as required to assure accuracy.

"If one of these cases got in front of a higher court," Mr. Delgado said, "I think that higher court would be very critical."

Fifteen states have banned the use of the cameras due to constitutional issues.

On the streets

Sgt. Joe Heller, of the Daytona Beach Police Department traffic unit, knows all about those red-light camera citations — from both sides.

A few months back, he got a letter telling him his car ran a red light. It offered a helpful website to go look for himself.

"I played the video, and the pictures were clear as day," he said. "I didn't enjoy paying $158 dollars."

The cop wasn't driving the car. A family member was.

Sgt. Heller said the city might not have gotten the cash it expected from the red-light cameras, but it has enjoyed other benefits. For one, he noted, traffic-enforcement officers no longer spend as much time sitting at busy intersections awaiting red-light infractions.

"Now we're able to free up those resources and do other things," he said. "That's worked out real good."

The Daytona Beach Police Department reviews video from the red light cameras in order to issue citations. It's using reserve officers with special training to do that.

Susan Carbone, the city's public information officer, said the police department spends about 40 hours a week on duties related to cameras. She said reported traffic accidents are down about 8 percent citywide, but it's difficult to know if and how the cameras have contributed to that reduction.

Mr. Delgado said he's seen no evidence the cameras have made the roadways safer.

"I'm a rational man," he said. "If I could be shown rationally and objectively that cameras at intersections prevent accidents, I'd not be opposed (to them)."

Still, when suspects do a cost-benefit analysis, Mr. Delgado said, they usually realize it's best to pay $158 and get back to life. He said traffic court is not the place to make political stands or argue constitutional issues. He said that's what city commission meetings are for.

"I think people who are not in favor of these cameras should let the city know," he said. "Write in and talk to your (commissioners)."

To film or not to film?

Commissioners don't have plans to remove the cameras anytime soon. Commissioner Woods says city leaders also expect revenue levels to improve after more problems like camera calibration have been addressed, which should lead to fewer dismissed cases.

"We had to determine what everybody needed to be doing," she said, "so as time goes on, we expect those issues to diminish also."

Mr. Delgado acknowledges that "it's getting harder and harder to win on technicalities."

Across the country, municipalities big and small are having profitable experiences with red light cameras.

In Brick Township, N.J. (population: 75,000), Mayor Stephen Acropolis said the first two cameras that were installed have netted about $1 million in two years, after expenses. In response, township leaders recently added a third camera.

Three statistics stand out, he said: Accidents at those intersections are down 50 percent, 70 percent of those who got a ticket don't live in town and 95 percent of those ticketed haven't gotten another one.

"It was never about money," Mayor Acropolis said in a phone interview. "If it was about money, we'd be charging $200 a ticket like some towns in New Jersey."

The township's camera fine is the state minimum of $80.

"I can't justify people breaking the law," Mayor Acropolis said. "We tell people where (the cameras) are. Big brother is when you don't tell people where the cameras are. We're telling you these intersections have red light cameras. If you're silly enough to go through anyway, so be it."

This week, the DeLand City Commission approved its own red light camera system, Volusia County's second city to make the move.

Not everyone is convinced that safety is the first priority of these municipalities installing red light cameras, though.

John Bowman, spokesman for the National Motorists Association, a drivers' rights group founded in 1982, said one of the main problems with red light cameras is how many cities will come to think of them as revenue generators and not safety tools.

"You find any number of examples where, for whatever reason, if the cameras don't produce the projected revenue ... the cameras come down. But if the cameras were really about safety and providing an effective deterrent, they'd stay up. They'd find a way to pay for them."

Some cities, such as Dallas, Memphis and Springfield, Mo., have even been caught resorting to nefarious means to increase revenue, he said — lessening the time that yellow lights stay illuminated.

"The other side of the story is that, when cities go through the trouble of lengthening yellow lights by a half-second or a second, red light violations virtually go away," Mr. Bowman said.

In Lomalinda, Calif., he said, yellow lights were made to last a second longer, and there was a 90 percent reduction in fines.

"So guess what?" Mr. Bowman asked. "The cameras went away."

For Your Personal Evaluation

Periodontal Disease is an ongoing inflammation caused by bacteria that live in plaque. The inflammation is not always painful, but can damage the tissues that anchor teeth in the bone. As the disease progresses, pockets form and plaque collects below the gum line. Left untreated, it can eventually lead to tooth loss.

Week of 6-8-2012

ARIES - March 21/April 20

Expect to expend a little energy this week to get the job done right, Aries. Leaving it up to others is not the best way to go in this instance. Step up.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

Taurus, focus on the big picture or nothing will get accomplished. It's too easy to get lost in all of the little details. Follow through on the task at hand.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

Gemini, someone will catch your ear and it will only serve to confuse you. You won't know what to make of it but don't get worried. It will all begin to make sense once a few pieces fall into place.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

Lots of people need your help, Cancer. Focus all of your energy on helping others for the time being. You will feel good about your efforts and the good karma that results from them.

LEO - July 23/Aug. 23

Leo, you need to figure out how to turn all of your great ideas into workable projects — especially ones that can make you some money. Get started on a plan.

VIRGO - Aug. 24/Sept. 22

Change will be all around you, Virgo. While you're not overly excited about it, you realize change is essential to growing in your life and career. New work arrangements need to be made.

LIBRA - Sept. 23/Oct. 23

Don't expect this week to go smoothly, Libra. But that doesn't necessarily mean it will go badly. It's just full of distractions and interruptions.

SCORPIO - Oct. 24/Nov. 22

Scorpio, you may be feeling sensual and romantic for the next few days. It could be because of all of the positive attention you have been receiving lately.

Museum gets big grant to fix damaged wing

For Hometown News
Volnews@hometownnewsol.com

DAYTONA BEACH — The Museum of Arts & Sciences has been awarded a $4.379 million FEMA grant to rebuild its flood-damaged west wing.

In May 2009, heavy rains resulted in 4 to 6 inches of water flooding the museum's 20,000-square-foot west wing. Museum staff began the successful removal of art and artifacts at the first signs of water intrusion.

Since the flooding, some galleries have been refurbished to allow them to reopen. However, the Center for Florida History has been closed, as have many of the museum's curatorial spaces.

In August 2009, the State of Florida Division of Emergency Management issued a White Paper with a primary recommendation of demolition with reconstruction at an elevation above the building's current level to prevent future flooding issues. Financed by FEMA and managed by the Division of Emergency Management, the total cost of reconstruction is $5.839 million with $4.379 million provided by the FEMA grant. This will be matched in part by a $1.6 million Volusia County ECHO Grant.

"This is a great day for the museum. The future looks bright to establish the Museum of Arts & Sciences as a major campus for art, science and history and is a gift we can provide the public, who have been continually supportive," said Andrew Sandall, the museum's executive director. "This is the culmination of several years of hard work by the museum staff and board, supported by the City of Daytona Beach and Volusia County."

You may feel happy when a friend or family member comes over to visit today, Sagittarius. You have been waiting for some company for quite a while. Enjoy the visit.

Capricorn, your mind will be all over the place this week unless you find someone to help you get focused. Think of it as having a babysitter who can call you out if you start to stray.

Aquarius, you will be amazed at the results when you finally set your mind to something. Stick with what you're doing and enjoy the ride.

Pisces, help around the house or at the office this week and the work will benefit you and all of the other people with whom you interact.

Beware of sharks in fresh, brackish waters

Not long ago, I had an interesting phone call from Bob Courteaux, who has lived on the Tomoka River for many years. We spoke about the lack of jacks in the river the past couple of years. That would also be true of the Halifax. My trips down around Spruce Creek have revealed there are few there, as well. We all miss the jacks for they can rescue a bad fishing day with their aggressive feeding habits.

Bob also wondered where all of the Tomoka River garfish had gone. Bob told me that 30 years ago, there were so many garfish in the Tomoka River that a local club would organize hunting expeditions to kill as many as they could. The garfish numbers were way out of kilter, and they felt something had to be done. Not exactly environmentally correct, but I get their point.

The main purpose for Bob's call was to tell me about sharks in the river. He said that a while back, he began to bait a half mullet on a stout line and soak it overnight. Each morning, he would have a small bull shark. He was concerned that there may be large ones, as well, and the river is regularly used for all sorts of swimming and water sports.

His fears are well founded. Bull sharks are notoriously fond of fresh water. They have been found up fresh water streams more than 100 miles from the sea. Bull sharks give live birth and prefer to drop their young in fresh or brackish water. As a kid, I caught a bull shark 30 miles inland from the Louisiana Gulf in a bayou that was completely fresh.

Bull sharks average about 7 feet in length and grow up to 10 feet. They are gray to tan on top and white underneath. Many will mistake them for a sand shark, but their snout is more blunt and their attitude much more nasty.

In an email, Paul Scott told me that while he and his wife were fishing in the Tomoka Basin, he caught a bonnet head shark. The bonnet head shark is probably the most prevalent inshore shark and can be found in shallow water through the warm months. The smallest member of the hammerhead family, it is not nearly so aggressive and grows to about 3 feet. Bonnet heads are good fun on light tackle and can be eaten.

All of this shark talk took me back to a time in the '80s when I visited a fishing seminar in New Smyrna Beach. A state biologist told me they had recently done a net survey of the fishes in the Tomoka River and Strickland Creek in Ormond Beach. The big surprise catch was all of the sharks. Four species were netted in numbers they had never expected. The only good news was that all of the sharks were small.

In all of my years of fishing these waters, I can't recall a shark of more than 5 feet being taken from those streams. If bull sharks give birth in the Tomoka or Spruce Creek, then mama could be found there at times, but they are probably not in feeding mode.

Let's all be careful with our kids and dogs while having fun in the inshore waters this summer. We get our reputation as the shark bite capital from the bites that occur in our murky surf water, but you can't rule out the same in the Halifax or Indian rivers and their estuaries.

Fido-friendly parks growing in popularity in Volusia County

By Joe Crews
For Hometown News

VOLUSIA COUNTY — Dog parks have been springing up in a number of locations around Volusia County. Several cities, include Edgewater, New Smyrna Beach, Daytona Beach and DeLand, currently include them in near-future plans.

Existing parks around the county include three county-run dog parks: Barkley Square, a 14-acre park at 1010 N. Ridgewood Avenue near DeLand; a 3-acre portion of Gemini Springs in DeBary; and at Bicentennial Park north of Ormond Beach, the newest of the three which opened last October. (Dogs also are welcome at other county parks as long as they are kept leashed and under control.) Orange City built Waggin' Trails Dog Park last year. The 4.5-acre facility at 1201 S. Leavitt Avenue opened in December.

DeLtona's Keyville Dog

Park, at 2600 Keyville Avenue, has been open since 2006.

Other East Volusia dog parks include one on Alabama Avenue in Holly Hill, and Seemore Dog Park in the All Children's Park in Port Orange. (Port Orange also allows leashed dogs in five other city-run parks.)

Daytona Beach officials earlier this month approved building a dog park on Manatee Island. The city will spend about $20,000, mostly for fencing, to create the park just south of the Main Street bridge.

After receiving a petition signed by more than 700 residents asking for a dog park to be built in that city,

South Daytona officials are looking into building a dog park, possibly in the northwest corner of Reed Canal Park. Early estimates are that it would cost about $17,000 for fencing, a water fountain and several benches.

DeLand, too, is planning a dog park as part of its $6-million makeover of Earl Brown Park. Other additions will include a new activity center, new restroom and concession facilities, an amphitheater and upgrades to Spec Martin Stadium.

So, why are dog parks so popular?

Several DeLand residents whose dogs were frolicking in Barkley Square near DeLand recently gave reasons.

Sean Kay said he brings his dachshund to let it stretch its legs.

"He's cooped up in the house all day when I'm working, so I bring him to let him exercise," Mr. Kay said.

Mark Pemberton and his significant other, Susy Murphy, bring their two pugs to Barkley Square several times a week.

"So they can socialize with other dogs," Mr. Pemberton said. "It gives them an opportunity to run around and get exercise."

Although he has not used any other dog parks, Mr. Pemberton believes they serve a need for those residents who may not otherwise have places where their pets can be active. "They're all beneficial for people who live in apartments or whatever," he said. "It's relaxing for us, too."

Girls' six-a-side summer league aims for the goal

By Michael Salerno
For Hometown News

VOLUSIA COUNTY — A summer soccer league has some local girls feeling the need for speed.

When high school soccer leagues wrap up for the summer, some players continue to hone their skills by participating in a variation of the sport known as six-a-side, played on a smaller field with smaller teams.

But smaller doesn't mean slower. Jim Lundy, the organizer of the Houligan's Six-A-Side Soccer League, considers six-a-side faster paced than soccer because the tighter space on the 6-by-12 field where the game is played means the players come into contact with the ball more than they would on a regulation-sized soccer field.

"On the field, everyone's touching the ball a lot more because of the space constraints," Mr. Lundy said. "That's why it's faster. It's a better game as far as making decisions faster."

Girls' high school soccer teams from Port Orange, Ormond Beach, DeLand, and Daytona Beach participate in the summer league, which meets for play Saturday mornings at Mainland High School in Daytona Beach.

Mr. Lundy said six-a-side provides an opportunity for players to continue developing their skills in the off-season.

He keeps the games fun and competitive at the same time. Although the teams compete against each other, with the biggest winners facing off against each other in a championship match set for July 21, he encourages the players to just have a good time.

"It's not do or die," he said. "It's popular because there's no pressure on the girls."

One of the coaches in the league has the same attitude.

Josh Leggett, coach for the Port Orange Hurricanes, said he considers the game a "nice training tool" for his players.

"In six-a-side you get more touches on the ball, which is great for a soccer player," he said. "We don't care if we win or lose, as long as we're getting trained," he said.

Mr. Leggett also likes six-aside because it allows his team to play competitively with a small roster of players. Mr. Lundy said competitive soccer is played with 10 players and a goalkeeper on the team, where six-a-side has five players and a keeper.

Mr. Leggett said the relaxed atmosphere of the summer games helps ease the pressure of playing competitive varsity soccer as they develop their skills.

"It's a good confidence builder," he said. "We work on little things and build on them so we get better."

The players enjoy the summer league as well.

Liara Iler, 15, who plays varsity soccer at Mainland High, said what she and her teammates like the most about six-a-side is the chance to develop their soccer skills while also maintaining the competitive spirit of the game.

"We like competition," she said, speaking for her team. "We think the harder the teams are, the better we'll get."

Port Orange Hurricanes player Katie Hearn, 16, said participating in the six-a-side league helps her team in "improving our soccer skill to our fullest extent."

One of her teammates, Krista Colubiale, 15, said she enjoyed the camaraderie that playing the game provides. "We're all so close as a team and we love spending time together," she said. "We're like sisters."

Saturday's games are held at 10 a.m., 11:30 a.m., and 1 p.m. on the soccer fields at Mainland High School, located at 1255 W. International Speedway Blvd. in Daytona Beach.

LEGAL SERVICES

The hiring of a lawyer is an important decision that should not be based solely on advertisements. Before you decide, ask the lawyer to send you free written information about their qualifications and experience.
Under Florida law, non-lawyers are permitted to sell legal forms & kits & type in the factual information provided by their customers. They may not, however, give legal advice.

Hometown News

Hometown News is looking for free-lance and full-time reporters, photographers and editors.

Hometown News team members are passionate journalists who believe in honest, fair and accurate community news coverage. Staff writers are expected to develop sources and story ideas and write five to seven stories a week. These stories will include everything from city meeting notes and in-depth community issue pieces to light features and entertainment stories. Freelance writers are expected to both develop their own story ideas and accept assignments and work with staff on photo and art opportunities for those stories.

Photographers have a unique opportunity at Hometown News - we are all color, all the time. Great way for freelance photographers to build their portfolios. Photographers must have a good eye for art and know how to get interesting photos, sometimes in challenging situations.

Editors must know their communities and the news that is important to readers. We are looking only for experienced journalists who know what it means to serve their communities through the press.
