Conservancy urges volunteers to join in waterway cleanup

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownsol.com

Residents and visitors are encouraged to play a role in preserving Volusia County's coastal waterways by participating in the International Coastal and Halifax/Indian River Cleanup from 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 15.

This worldwide annual event, hosted by the Ocean Conservancy, features many locations along the coast for people interested in helping clean up the environment. This year, the Halifax/Indian River clean up — historically held in the spring — is being held in conjunction with the International Coastal Cleanup.

Over the past 26 years, more than 9 million volunteers have removed more than 145 million pounds of trash from 152 countries. Last year in Volusia County, there were 816 volunteers who removed 2,178 pounds of trash off our local beaches.

"Not only is trash cleaned up during this event to help preserve our environment, but also every piece collected is recorded," said Stacey Bell, cleanup coordinator with Volusia County Environmental Management. "This gives us the ability to identify what types of items are polluting the coast and can give us insight on solutions to prevent this type of litter in the future."

Food packaging and smoking related items has been the top two items removed from coastlines worldwide over the past 26 years totaling more than 66 million pieces removed. Over the last 26 years, Ocean Conservancy beach cleanup volunteers have collected enough cups, plates, forks, knives and spoons to host a picnic for 2 million people.

Volunteers can participate in the cleanup at locations along the Halifax River, Indian River Lagoon and beaches from Ormond-by-the-Sea south to Bethune Beach and Oak Hill. Visit www.volusia.org/cleanup to view all Volusia County locations and clean-up event details. Some river locations host boat launches for participants to bring their own kayaks, canoes or motor boats to clean the coast. Those who pre-register online will receive a Coastal Cleanup memento at the end of the event.

Participants are encouraged to bring buckets or used, plastic shopping bags to separate recyclables from trash; garden gloves to reduce the trash generated by the use of plastic gloves; and drinking water. They should also wear sunglasses, a hat, sunscreen and comfortable clothing and footwear.

For more information about the cleanup, visit www.volusia.org/cleanup, call (386) 238-4716 or emailsbell@co.volusia.fl.us.

Mouse warehouse gives reptile lover part of his dream

By Dan Harkins
dharkins@hometownnewsol.com

DELEON SPRINGS — Carl Barden has about 800 poisonous and hungry snakes to feed every week at his Reptile Discovery Center in DeLand. That amounts to about 2,000 rodents that meet the darkness every month.

Finding fresh and healthy food for the snakes he regularly empties of venom at the operation is a hassle he says will keep him up at night sometimes.

"Sometimes I sit in bed at night and actually wonder, 'What am I going to do when Larry Groskey retires?'" Mr. Barden muses, without breaking into a laugh. "He's very crucial to our operation here."

Larry Groskey, 65, is the rat man he's talking about, a now-retired commercial drywall contractor who's owned a tucked-away mouse (and rat) warehouse off Reed Street that Mr. Barden hopes will magically stay open forever, continuing to grow as it has to serve his still-growing legion of venom producers.

But Mr. Groskey says that's not happening. This is as large as he needs to go in order to support his true passion, the real reason for the rodent operation's existence in the first place: Larry's Reptile Farm, home since 1999 to thousands of big snakes, turtles, alligators and iguanas that expect to be fed on schedule in order to maintain an appropriately docile demeanor.

"That's always been my goal, since I was 10," he said. "It's never had anything to do with the rodents. I've always been a reptile guy. My parents were always deathly afraid of reptiles and I never

Waste companies get $1K roll-off fee

By Patrick McCallister
For Hometown News

HOLLY HILL—Any company can pick up demolition and construction debris in Holly Hill now, but the service has a new price tag.

"If a company wants to bring their own roll-off into Holly Hill, they can," Jim McCroskey, city manager, said. "But they have to pay $1,000."

The Holly Hill City Commission gave its final nod Aug. 28 to a proposed ordinance that would require any company that provides temporary solid-waste collection to pay $1,000 to do business in town. Roll-off is a description for trash receptacles that are picked up and taken away after they're filled, rather than emptied into trucks.

Until recently Waste Management was the only company that was supposed to provide roll-off solid-waste service in Holly Hill. Mr. McCroskey said others frequently provided roll-off service. Roll-off service is now at the city's discretion.

Amy Boyson, company spokeswoman, said Waste Management is the exclusive provider of roll-offs in some cities it has contracts with, but not others.

"Every city and county is different," she said. "In some areas, there are severwas.”

There’s no sign out front here, only a bamboo-lined drive that leads to a small one near the operation.

He’s zoned for agriculture, so to advertise an attraction like this wouldn’t be legal. Rezoning to commercial would lead to thousands of dollars more in property taxes.

“Why do I want to go and do a thing like that?” he asked.

He’s not all that interested in school groups and gawkers anymore, anyway. Reptile lovers looking for food should just put the phone down right now, he said. No new customers.

“Everyone I take care of here are personal friends of mine,” Mr. Groskey said, “people I’ve been dealing with for 10, 20 years or more. And in turn, they give me reptiles. ... This is like my lifelong hobby, an expensive hobby.”

There’s not really much money to be made on the reptile farm, he said, which has swelled at times to more than two dozen big snakes like anacondas and pythons, several hundred species of land and water turtles, and a slowly growing family of alligators in an acre-long, fenced-in pond out back.

Right now, he’s got about 15 big snakes, an assortment of other reptiles, a small pond for his 12-foot rescue alligator named Big Boy, and more than a dozen alligators that have taken up residence in his “Crocodile Lagoon,” too.

“I have more trouble keeping things out than I ever have getting them in,” he said.

The alligators start heading toward the small dock as soon as the door clanks on the chain-link fence surrounding the pond. He said he started the pond to house all the turtles he was donated and baby alligators just started crawling in under the fence.

“They know what time it is,” he says during a recent visit, shaking the bucket of dog food he brings down every afternoon before turning in for the day.

In Big Boy’s pond nearby, Mr. Groskey has just placed a fawn that recently became road kill. The gator didn’t seem to mind how it got there.

This is the kind of set-up he’s always wanted, ever since he was 10 and hunting water snakes and painted turtles in the creek behind his Dayton, Ohio, home. His collection has been growing ever since his family moved to Altamonte Springs in 1958.

“I would tell my parents, ‘I want a lot of reptiles and a reptile farm and they didn’t want to have anything to do with that idea,’” he said.

They weren’t the only ones to have a problem with his admitted obsession.

By the time Mr. Groskey had a home and a second wife in Deltona, he had about 75 snakes in the garage and nearly as many turtles wandering the backyard.

His third wife didn’t like the arrangement either.

So in 1999, Mr. Groskey bought this place out in the country with retirement earnings he had tucked away. His third divorce was finalized a week before.

His third wife, he recalled, “said it was gonna come down to, either it’s me or the reptiles; one of us is gonna go.” And I said, ‘Let me tell you right now, I’m gonna have my reptiles and you’re gonna be gone.’

It was a common refrain.

“All three of my ex-wives were afraid of snakes and didn’t want to have anything to do with it,” he said. “I believe the reptiles were the reason I got divorced each time.

So he’s stayed focused on his reptiles. To feed them, he started raising mice and rats in a 10-by-20-foot shed that has been expanded five times since then.

His own snakes wouldn’t be the only customers. Currently he’s got 750 trays of mice and 250 trays of rats. In each tray are one male, two females and as many babies as their love can muster.

Since he won’t expand any further, he says he recently told Mr. Barden that he would soon have to end his contract so he wouldn’t have to terminate all his others.

“I said, ‘Carl, the choices I have now, it’s either keep you and kick everybody else to the curb or the other way around,’” he said. “I told him, ‘I’m not gonna put all my eggs in one basket. I’ve operated for over 30 years. I’ve got the blessings to do what I’m doing here. I’m not going to ruin that.”

Mr. Barden isn’t happy about that.

“A reliable and constant source of healthy rodents is of huge consequence to us,” he said. “This is gonna hurt.”

al service providers.”

Ms. Boyson wasn’t at the meeting and said she’s not familiar with Holly Hill’s ordinance. She said roll-off solid-waste service increases and decreases for many reasons, but the construction downturn has decreased the number of roll-off customers.

Mr. McCroskey told the council he expected about six or seven companies will pay the $1,000 a year to do solid-waste roll-off service in Holly Hill.

“We’re just trying to find ‘out of the box’ thinking to bring in some revenue so the burden is not put on the taxpayers throughout the year,” Commission Rick Glass said. “This is part of the ‘out of the box’ thinking. I think it’s a great idea to generate some revenue.”

I'm so sorry Uncle Albert, we should have listened to you more

I believe most families have at least one weird old uncle or aunt.

In my own, it was my Uncle Albert Boswell, the oldest of my mom's five brothers.

When I was a kid I found him a bit scary and did my best to avoid him. Sometime in the 1980s, he moved to Florida and took up residence in a camper trailer near Fort Pierce. Uncle Albert was born in the year 1900, so it was always easy to keep up with his age. He had no children or family and my mom was always worried about him living alone.

At her behest, I would drive down once or twice a year to check on him. That visit usually didn't last long for Uncle Albert was not very forthcoming. Both sides of my family had ties to Great Britain, and even though Uncle Albert was born in South Carolina, he had affected a slight British accent when I could get him to talk.

Usually when I went to see him, I made sure he was getting his prescriptions and such. He never drove, but lived near shopping so he was mostly self-contained. There was really little need for me to go there, but I was trying to be the good son and make my Mom happy.

On a particularly warm January day, I made the long drive and just before I arrived, I stopped for a six-pack of beer. We sat on chairs in the yard, and when I pulled out the cold beer I thought I saw a definite twinkle in the old man's eye.

We drank in silence for a while and then he began to talk.

LAND LINES
DAN SMITH

Evidently, I had discovered the key to his memory. I asked him what he had done for work and he told me he had been a horse trader of some talent. The blasted cars had put him out of business. He hated automobiles with a passion and that was the reason he never learned to drive. He also told me he was a trick shot artist in a Wild West show.

Now as you know, I can spin a pretty good yarn and am not above a bit of exaggeration for entertainment purposes, but a Wild West show? Come on!

Albert said that he had worked for Buffalo Bill and would gallop around the arena on horseback while shooting targets. Hmmm. Live ammo, in a crowded arena? Okay.

After that stint, he had just quit working. When I asked him how he had managed to live all of these years, he said he had seven wives who took care of him. Seven? Boy this old guy could really shovel it.

I asked Uncle Albert if he had actually married all of those women, and he said he had, but with a couple of them he had sealed the deal by jumping over a broomstick. That led me to ask about divorce and he told me he never actually divorced any of them. He then showed me how he crafted a divorce.

He put his hand to his mouth and kissed it and said, "The back of me hand to you for life." That was it.

He said that each woman had made money to keep him up, but in the 1940s he had been a session guitarist in Nashville. Oh sure. This man had little stubby fingers like sausages. It seemed to me he would have trouble tying his shoelaces with those.

Anyway, after that visit I began to go to see him more often, always with beer in hand. In 1989, Uncle Albert passed away at the age of 89. When I went to clean out his little trailer I found photos of him playing guitar with some of the famous pickers of country music.

There were also moldy old pictures of seven rather attractive women. Stuck back under a cabinet and wrapped in an old blanket was the finest set of matched pearl handle Colt revolvers I had ever seen.

You know you just can't tell what our older family members have done in their lives. Please take the time to listen and maybe record their memories. When they are gone, they are gone. Oh, and by the way, if you are one who does not have a weird aunt or uncle in the family perhaps you should look closer. It may just be you.

Hot dog truck out of Renick Park

By Cecil G. Brumley
cbrumley@hometownnewsol.com

Someone looking to buy a hotdog at Tom Renick Park on Ocean Shore Boulevard in Ormond-by-the-Sea during the Labor Day weekend suffered a disappointment.

After 10 years in operation there, the Beach Café was closed.

Owner of the food truck,

Jerry Onesky, said he was informed by letter that his contract with the County of Volusia Coastal Services was terminated.

Joe Nolin, Coastal Division director, said, "There were some violations of the contract conditions. We received a number of complaints about the violations."

Mr. Onesky blamed someone who had wanted to partner with him on expanding his business for the complaints. However, he acknowledged that he did violate the terms of the contract, which included not leaving his food truck at the oceanfront park overnight.

But he also noted the county had not been collecting the $300 monthly fee he was supposed to pay under the contract.

Mr. Nolin said the county had not begun billing Mr. Onesky because his contract was just renewed. "The contract wasn't effective until earlier this month."

Mr. Onesky lamented his closing. "When I opened, no one else wanted anything to do with it. I took it and turned it into a successful business," he said.

Bugler striving for veterans to get live 'Taps' at funeral

By Patrick McCallister
For Hometown News

VOLUSIA—Four notes arranged in the nation's most familiar bugle signal, "Taps" turned 150 this year, and a local bugler believes all veterans should get a live playing of the beloved call at their funerals. However, many don't.

"I started working for (the Florida Army National Guard Military Honors Program) about five years ago in the honor guard doing military funerals," Richard Puckett said. "I counted it up the other day—I've done around 400 (funerals)."

Mr. Puckett started playing "Taps" at funerals before joining the Army back in 1955. He's played trumpet since the fifth grade.

"One of the first times I played 'Taps,' I was in high school," he said. "I played 'Taps' for an individual, I don't remember his name, but it was in Roanoke, Va. I remember it well."

Mr. Puckett spent 31 years in the military. Much of it in the 29th Infantry Division, Virginia Army National Guard, band.

"I was the enlisted band leader," he said.

Mr. Puckett used to play "Taps" at veterans' funerals throughout the area, from Volusia north to Jacksonville, and westward to Ocala and Gainesville. He hasn't played a funeral for the National Guard's honors program for about a year.

Richard Puckett, a Palm Coast bugler, plays 'Taps' at veterans funerals in Volusia County.

The program stopped paying buglers.

Daniel Blackman, military honors state coordinator, said budget cuts mean few veterans are getting live performances of "Taps." Most are getting digital performances done with music players that fit into bugles' bells. A user presses a button, and has a few seconds to raise the instrument to his or her lips to appear to be playing.

"The correct name is the ceremonial bugle, which is a recording made by a soldier," Mr. Blackman said. "I'd love to have a live bugler at every service."

But he can't. Mr. Blackman said he has to pay buglers $50 to perform "Taps" at funerals, or get unpaid volunteers. He said the price of travel often keeps the handful of buglers that do exist from volunteering, so members of the honor guard stand with ceremonial bugles and act like they're playing "Taps." He said the honor guard attends about 425 funerals a month.

Tom Day, founder of Bugles Across America, said use of the ceremonial bugles has become so commonplace throughout the country that it's becoming rare for veterans to get live performances of "Taps" at their funerals. The organization is trying to change that.

"The guy who invented (the ceremonial bugle) — I'm on his list, but not his Christmas card list," Mr. Day said.

The organization has about 8,000 volunteers throughout the nation who'll perform "Taps" at veterans' funerals.

Mr. Day said there's a popular story about a Union officer composing "Taps" for his son, a Confederate soldier who fell in battle. While it's a terrific story, he said it's not true. "Taps" was a variation on an extinguish-lights bugle call that'd been in use in the United States since about 1800. That, in turn, was a variant on a French bugle call.

In 1862, General Daniel Butterfield and brigade bugler Oliver Wilcox worked out a less formal sound for the end-of-day call. The men of the Third Brigade, First Division, Fifth Army Corps, Army of the Potomac were the first hear "Taps."

Mr. Puckett said veterans' families can call him to play "Taps." His number is (386) 569-9943. He will, time and finances permitting, perform at veterans' funerals for free. Volunteer buglers can also be found by visiting www.bugle-sacrossamerica.org.

Mark Twain Village

If the Delta Queen comes to New Smyrna Beach, I propose a theme park be built on the adjacent land to lessen the weirdness of a Mississippi paddle wheeler on the Mosquito Lagoon. Call it Mark Twain Village, with the "Rollin' on the River" roller coaster encircling a quaint village of artist's shops and boutiques selling trashy trinkets related to the antebellum wonders of the great Mississippi River towns.

A St. Louis arch could create a gateway across the river to Chicken Island where a casino would be built for offshore gambling, with a ring of docks to harbor anyone wanting to spend a few wistful hours at Cap'n Twain's Gaming Saloon. Patrons could also take the Huck Finn raft from the mainland. New Orleans is ripe for exploiting with a nightly Mardi Gras and bars o' plenty. Plus during hurricane season — Katrina's Hideaway could be an evacuation destination with a rooftop observation bar. Don't forget Memphis. A mini-Graceland attraction could pull in busloads of Elvis fans. Annual celebrations of his birth and death might become as popular as Bike Week. And for the kids — Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn are fodder for rides and knick-knacks. If you throw in some cultural and educational events, you might even put a little shine on this whole sordid affair.

If someone really wants to put New Smyrna Beach on the money making map they've got to think big — or it just won't float the boat.

Pick it up

In a recent newsletter from the Mayor of South Daytona, it was said the employees always stop and pick up trash or debris on their own time. There are instances that prove this not to be true. It's noticed there are city vehicles (trucks) that pass along our streets on a daily basis without stopping when trash is present. A prime example is on the corner of Palm Grove Court and Pope Avenue where two cardboard boxes are clogging the drain. Never mind that we have a hurricane on the way, several trucks have passed by without cleaning the drain. As a concerned citizen, it would be appropriate for me to pick up the debris, but I'm waiting on those employees mentioned by the mayor to clean it up.

As we travel our beautiful little city, it's noticed that there are a number of patriotic citizens living here. But please, whether it is Old Glory, service, pro team and/or college, take down the torn, faded or ripped symbol and replace it.

Response from Jeanne Willard, city of South Daytona public information official: In the newsletter, Mayor George Locke was responding to an FPL-funded Political Action Committee mailing that attempted to pit residents against city hall by stating "community support comes from the citizens who live and work in the community ... not from those who work in and for city hall." The mayor's point was that city employees live and work in our community, take great pride in the services provided and many go the extra mile to ensure that our city is an attractive place to live. With approximately 23 percent of the city workforce vacant due to budgetary constraints, it's likely that we will occasionally miss some debris on city streets. Residents can help keep our city beautiful by calling the Public Works Department at

A few things for Votran to consider

Votran's fixed-route and paratransit services are both flawed. I am a very dissatisfied customer, and would like to know what recourse I have regarding the following situations:

No. 1 - Identify your vehicles and act in the best interest of the handicapped. On Friday, Aug. 24, I had a reservation for a pick up at my home. I was advised by both the man who set up my service and repeatedly by your dispatchers to wait at the front courtyard because I live in a gated community. I did everything as instructed. The appointment was for 10 a.m. When no Votran vehicle arrived by 10:25 a.m., I called your dispatcher who told me that I was not there and did not live at the given address because someone told their driver so. Hello. Check my driver's license. It turns out you sent a man in a Southern Komfort taxi who couldn't figure out the woman with the walker at the entrance was the passenger. Your dispatcher refused to send the cab back once the mistake was unraveled. No one ever told me a taxi might show up instead of a Votran-identified vehicle. I missed a job interview thanks to Votran's confusion and disregard. It's tough to find any kind of job in my condition and you just made matters worse.

When I called and asked for a supervisor, the dispatcher put me on hold interminably.

No. 2 - Use common sense in unusual situations and act in the best interest of the handicapped. On Thursday, Aug. 23, a friend took me to Walmart in Port Orange. The friend had to leave in a hurry. I said no problem, I will catch a bus. I asked the driver to be dropped off at Swallow Tail Drive as other drivers had done previously, and he said it was against the rules. I walk with a walker and it was loaded with groceries. I explained I could not drag the walker across the 20-foot swath that was soggy to boot at Village Trail. He basically said it was not his problem. I asked him to write down the customer service number and he refused. I asked him to help me with the walker and he refused. He dislodged the ramp on an angle instead of flat to the ground. A man on the bus offered to help and he struggled across the grass. I slid out off the bus on what was more like a slide than a ramp.

When I called the office, the representative said the driver had acted properly, and my response was that surliness is not proper. I asked to find out how to request a bus stop at Swallow Tail near McDonald's and she said Votran has nothing to do with that; I would have to call Port Orange. I said someone in her building had to know the answer to this question, and she said she didn't have time. I said I would wait until Friday.

Meanwhile, I called Port Orange with the question and they sent me right back to Votran. I left a message for the Volusia County Manager and got no answer.

I called the Votran representative back and after some phone tag, we connected. She suddenly was on the case and said someone is being sent out to determine if the bus stop I requested is feasible. She said she would keep me posted.

No. 3 - Side issues: As a frequent rider, let me add that bus shelters are few and far between; the Plexiglas shelters could suffocate you in the heat; many of the bus stop benches are covered with red ants. I take my life in my hands just going the short way from Village Trail to Swallow Tail. The speed limit is too high on Village Trail, there is no crosswalk from the condos to the bus stop, and the sidewalks are cracked and littered with palm fronds, etc. Walkers barely ambulate over grass, so getting to the sidewalks is difficult.

Maureen Gibbons
Port Orange

Response from Steven Sherrer, Votran general manager: Votran has responded directly to Ms. Gibbons to apologize for her experience. Votran staff has taken immediate action to research the details of this rider's experience and is prepared to take corrective action if warranted.

Votran customers should expect and receive safe, courteous and reliable service from our company and its associates. Please be assured that wherever possible we will take appropriate action to ensure this occurs.

While all regular fixed route buses are accessible to disabled passengers, there are many roadside conditions that make it difficult for disabled passengers to navigate to or from our bus stops. Even though there are sidewalks in the area where Ms. Gibbons lives, they are situated far away from the edge of the road where the bus must stop to board and deboard passengers.

Votran staff participated in a Florida Department of Transportation site inspection of this section of Dunlawton Avenue in July 2011 to identify transit challenges for disabled passengers that FDOT should address in their next construction improvement on that particular section of road.

There are more than 2,000 bus stops throughout the county with varying roadside conditions, in both urban and rural situations. In many places, it is not possible for disabled passengers to access the fixed route system. Votran Gold is the door-to-door service that provides public transportation for passengers who cannot use the regular fixed route bus. Passengers using Votran Gold are escorted from their door way to the vehicle. Ms. Gibbons has already gone through the eligibility process and been approved to use Votran Gold services. Votran Gold performs approximately 1,000 trips per day, with about 40 percent of the service completed under contract by other providers of transportation services. We did, unfortunately, fail to deliver our standard of service to Ms. Gibbons for her Votran Gold trip and we will take necessary steps to help prevent the same inconveniences from occurring in the future.

I would like to see the Delta Queen in New Smyrna Beach

I applaud Dan Smith for his writing on the Delta Queen and New Smyrna Beach in the Aug. 24 edition.

I agree it would be a beautiful addition to the little seaside community.

My wife and I go to New Smyrna often (I have lived in the area for 33 years) and truly enjoy the small local shops and eateries. We enjoy history and being able to partake in it.

We hope the city does not make this a political thing, just an enjoyable thing. I would love to sit on deck, enjoy a beverage and eat something tasty and dream a lazy dream.

Now, doesn't that sound good?

George Hilbert
South Daytona

Does history repeat itself?

Our country is in tough shape right now with the most controversial election ever. The candidates are the most childish acting adults ever to run for president of our nation. Our government departments can't get along; state and federal officials are at each other's throats. States are so diverse and they are losing control of their laws, their people and their rights that make them the state they are. States' rights must be considered and that is something the federal government seems less and less willing to do.

Back in history, before President Abraham Lincoln, our country was going through the same thing when people started moving west during the Gold Rush. The states were going to split and create two countries, which was encouraged by England. When Lincoln came along, he never said he agreed with either side, that it was each state's decision, but he did want to keep the nation whole. The rest is history, but even back then the president realized some things are a state's issue.

Today, about 154 years later, we are having a similar issue with states arguing over the health care, Medicare issues. Debating over illegal immigration also has been a big topic. Welfare fraud and the abuse of food stamps are coming up in several states. Voting laws and regulations are a big topic with the coming election, with many states not wanting either presidential candidate on the ballot.

This isn't what our country is about, we have lost our true freedom to live in peace, freedom of religion, our beliefs and rights as individuals. Our states are being forced to give up their individual rights of choice to come under the control of one man, one law. We are here because we want our choice of religion, beliefs, voting rights and to be an individual person, not a robot.

Our founding fathers issued many warnings about the dangers of growing and intrusive government, which they sought to control with our Constitution. Thomas Jefferson was one of the best when he said, "Most bad government has grown out of too much government."

With the coming election and some states rising up against the forced new illegal immigration laws, over the possible next president, Obamacare and being forced to add extra Medicaid, we are going back in circles for everything that our country fought for. We are losing that freedom our forefathers gave us. We need changes in our government that this election isn't prepared for and the candidates cannot handle. This election has people who are too immature, greedy, set in their ways from long term positions, have wealth and are seeking power and control. Our country cannot and will not survive on those terms. This past year those in the position to do so have not made any decisions to turn this country around for the better.

Somebody out there is making money

Somebody out there was making money over the summer. But it apparently didn't get spread around enough.

In June, taxable retail sales in Volusia County were up 5.32 percent at $503.5 million from $478.1 million in June 2011, according to figures just released by the state Department of Revenue. Just about every retail sector was up, and all the major sectors grew, except building supplies. The home improvement and new construction supplier are catching up, though, and were almost even with last year.

Based on housing starts in July, the building suppliers should do better. There were 85 new housing units started in July in Volusia, almost double the 49 started in July 2011, according to a U.S. Census Bureau report. The single-family housing starts were at 71, up from 41 last year.

Daytona Beach and Port Orange led the building spurt with sharp increases from last year. West Volusia also continues to show improvement.

While unemployment was down in July from July 2011, the overall economy apparently still needs to improve drastically to have a significant impact on employment.

But what's showing up on the EmployFlorida.com website provides some hope. One of the most significant is manufacturing jobs. In recent days, Covidien, the hyperdermic-needle maker in DeLand; Edgewater boat maker Boston Whaler; and Teledyne, the Daytona Beach undersea connectors manufacturer; have all had multiple listings for jobs.

Hopefully the August labor market report will start showing some improvement.

Amicorp Corp. of DeLand seems to think the housing market is improving. The company is seeking a stormwater system permit from St. Johns River Water Management District to complete the 196-lot Sabal Lakes subdivision in New Smyrna Beach. The development is off Pioneer Trail, between Glencoe Road and Sugar Mill Drive.

All the most recent big commercial real estate deals were in Orange City with the Kohl's-anchored West Volusia Towne Centre selling for $12 million. A Brooklyn, N.Y., investor bought the shopping center out of foreclosure. American Realty Capital bought the Ruby Tuesday property at 1212 Saxon Blvd. for about $2.3 million from CNL Funding. Even Major Leaguer Luke Scott got in on the action. He and a partner bought a medical office complex on Harley Strickland Boulevard for $923,500.

The Pantry of Charlotte, N.C., is celebrating the completion of renovations to two of its Kangaroo Express stores with re-grand opening celebrations. The stores are at Bill France Boulevard and Mason Avenue, and Beville Road and Williamson Boulevard, both in Daytona Beach.

Hendrick Honda (formerly Jon Hall Honda) is adding 6,800-square-foot of space to its dealership in Daytona Beach.

On the restaurant beat, Sonny's Bar-B-Q has opened at the junction of U.S. 17 and U.S. 92 in DeLand. The U.S. 1 Restaurant & Grill at 2842 Ridge-wood Ave. in South Daytona has closed.

Although it still isn't on the store listings for The Pavilion at Port Orange, a Dollar Tree has definitely opened there. It's nearest to Williamson Boulevard in the strip that includes Marshalls and Michaels.

Here is a quick update on the old Walmart at New Smyrna Beach Regional Shopping Center. According to CCI Properties, which negotiated the purchase of the property by GC Development, the first two tenants there will be Big Lots and a Bealls Outlet, which means the existing Beall's outlet in the shopping center will move there.

Library of Congress wants 'all' veterans' stories

By Patrick McCallister
 For Hometown News

VOLUSIA — Attention, veterans.

The Library of Congress wants your stories.

The American Folklife Center is preserving them for researchers, writers, students and the public at the Veteran's History Project, and area veterans have numerous ways to get their stories into the project. One is in Deltona Victor Velle, a Vietnam veteran and owner of History Rescue Team, volunteers to record fellow veterans stories to send to the project.

"It's such an underpublicized program," Mr. Velle said. "They don't fund anything for this project; it's all volunteer."

Bob Patrick, director of the Veterans History Project, said it started in 2001.

"It started quite innocently," Mr. Patrick said. "A congressman from Wisconsin heard his father and a buddy swapping war stories in the backyard. He got out his video camera and recorded them. The light bulb went on — he said, 'These are the things we need to preserve.'"

What started as a family recording for posterity became a bill in 2000 to create the Veterans History Project to capture and preserve all veterans' stories. It enjoyed unanimous support in both houses of Congress, and the president quickly signed it into law.

"We receive about 100 collections a week," Mr. Patrick said. "We have close to 83,000 collections."

While most of the audio, video or written collections are submitted to the project by families, or veterans themselves, others are done and sent by volunteers. Two years ago, the University of Central Florida joined those collecting stories for the Veterans History Project.

"We realized this would be a valuable opportunity for our students to do something hands-on with history," Barbara Gannon, project coordinator, said. "It served a lot of our interests. It gave our students a wonderful learning opportunity, and helped integrate our veteran students."

According to Tiffany Rivera, coordinator of educational and training programs, the university started interviewing veterans for the project about two years ago. The school has collected about 150 recordings. It's digitized about 120 and put them on the Internet at www.riches.cah.ucf.edu/veterans. Also, people can visit the John C. Hitt Library at 4000 Central Florida Blvd., Orlando, to hear and see the audio and video recordings.

Ms. Gannon said the UCF Community Veterans History Project is looking to add many more stories to its collection.

"We have on our website a place for people to sign up (for interviews)," she said. "They sign up themselves. We also reach out to the community and ask people to sign up."

She said that interviewees have many options about where to tell their stories.

"They can come to us, or we can go to them," Ms. Gannon said. "We prefer to do it at people's homes. That's where people are comfortable -- in their home."

Jessica Souva, program liaison for Florida, said other schools are helping veterans share their stories with the project.

"Florida State University is also an option," Ms. Souva said. "Some veterans prefer not to be interviewed in person, but by phone."

FSU's Reichelt Oral History Program can record veterans' stories by landline telephone. For more information, call the program at (850) 644-4966, or visit www.ohp.fsu.edu/contributing.html.

Work Mr. Velle does for the Veterans History Project is free of charge, but not free of costs. He estimated that, because of his professional equipment, his interviews with veterans cost about $200 each. He also travels to meet with and record veterans.

"One of the limitations we've had is there's a cost to doing these," he said. "We do this as a public service. You can't charge for it, and can't even accept money from the veteran if he offers it."

That limits the number of interviews Mr. Velle does. Another limitation, he said, is reluctance of many veterans to have their stories recorded.

"I'd say there's a myriad of reasons," he said. "People who served don't feel they did anything special. They don't think of themselves as heroes. It was part of being American."

Mr. Velle is at (321) 947-0144, and www.historyrescueteam.com.

Ms. Gannon, too, said many veterans are reluctant to share their stories.

"People don't understand that we're interested in all veterans," she said. "Some people think we are only interested in (your story) if you're a combat veteran. We're interested in the entirety of the veterans' experiences."

Most of the Veterans History Project's recording participants aren't professionals, according to Mr. Patrick. He said the Boy Scouts of America recognize veteran recording projects toward gaining Eagle Scout status, several schools allow recording veterans' stories for academic and public-service credits, and many libraries have made room for amateur volunteers to record there.

"I've got one guy in California who took on this project as a campaign to remember his father, a World War II veteran," Mr. Patrick said. He has a room at a Los Angeles library to do interviews monthly. He's done more than 200 interviews.

To find out more about recording a veteran's story for the Library of Congress, or to watch or listen to digitized recordings, visit www.loc.gov/vets.

Stetson to mark Sept. 11 with 'Day of Action'

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

On Tuesday, Sept. 11, as part of the national 911day.org movement, Stetson University will host a "Day of Action" of service and programs in remembrance of the events of 9/11. The public is invited to attend.

"The attacks on 9/11 were a tragedy, but they reignited a sense of service and civic duty in our country," said Heather

Hamilton, a Stetson staff member who is coordinating the "Day of Action" programs. "We believe that taking this day to reflect on our values and then take action on their behalf is an important part of our commitment to our community and country."

At 8 a.m., community members will gather at the campus flag located in front of Elizabeth Hall, 421 N. Woodland Blvd., DeLand, where members of the university's ROTC program will lead a ceremony to lower the flag to half-mast in remembrance of the victims of the terrorist attacks on Sept. 11, 2001. Stetson President Wendy Libby will give brief remarks.

At noon, select faculty, staff and students will be panelists for a forum to discuss the effects of 9/11 on our society and community. The discussion will be held in the Stetson Room of the Carlton Union Building, 421 N. Woodland Blvd.

From 4 to 5:30 p.m., Stetson volunteers will be doing beautification work at the DeLand Easter Seals Center.

At 6 p.m., community members will again gather at the campus flag for a closing ceremony at which the flag will be raised back to full mast in recognition of our country's resilience after 9/11. Stetson student Brian Emery, whose father passed away during the attacks, will give brief remarks.

Throughout the day, the Center for Community Engagement will be collecting donations of clothing, accessories, shoes, household items, office supplies and books for AMVETS, as well as financial contributions for the Community Foundation of East Central Florida's "Feed Our Neighbors" endowment campaign (<http://cfecf.org/feed-our-neighbors>).

Gun visionary builds future at UCF incubator

By Patrick McCallister
For Hometown News

VOLUSIA COUNTY — The M1911 is a legend among gun aficionados, but Cliff Benjamin says he can make the venerable pistol better.

The 66-year-old owns Better Firearms Designs, one of 11 businesses getting a leg up at the University of Central Florida Business Incubator at the Daytona Beach International Airport.

"Right now, we have a patent on a modified (M1911) handgun," Mr. Benjamin said. "I'm trying to bring that patent to market — either by licensing to a manufacturer, or manufacturing it myself."

In his ideal world, Mr. Benjamin would find a gun maker to manufacture handguns using his patented design, and he'd be busy hiring local folks to modify existing ones.

"There's millions of 1911s out there," he said. "It's the most popular handgun in the U.S. today. They sell 300,000 to 400,000 a year."

Mr. Benjamin believes his design could make waves in the pistol market and account for up to 10 percent of future M1911 sales. He said valuing the monetary possibilities is difficult.

"It's hard to say," he said. "But, let's say I got $20 a gun (sold), which isn't unreasonable. That's what, $800,000 (a year)?"

The M1911 is a single-action, recoil-operated semiautomatic pistol. It was the standard sidearm for the military from 1911 to the late 1980s. Some

United States forces are still carrying them. Mr. Benjamin's patented design replaces the M1911's movable-barrel swinging-link locking system with a fixed-barrel gas-retarded blowback one.

In other words...

"It's more accurate," Mr.

Benjamin

M1911, too.

"(I work at the business) about 40 hours a day," he said. "I dream about it at night. I actually work on new (gun) designs in my dreams. I have 20 concepts I believe are patentable"

The UCF Business Incubator opened in July last year, and was the ninth the university started since 1999. Another opened since then.

The Volusia County Council approved about $1.4 million dollars to renovate the business incubator's 10,000-square-foot facility at 601 Innovation Way, and another $750,000 to run it for three years.

Businesses pay anywhere from $270 to $1,000 a month to have office space at the incubator's facility. Most are paying $270 to $350. While that's pretty inexpensive rent, it's not why the businesses are there. The entrepreneurs did a lot of work the hang their shingles there. To get in the program, prospects go through a rigorous application process that includes making repeated presentations. They have to show that they have business ideas that'll work, that they have the dedication to make them work, and the resources they'll need to see them through until the ideas start generating sufficient income.

Better Firearms Designs was one of the first businesses accepted into the incubator. Mr. Benjamin hopes to generate jobs in Volusia County for several reasons. One is to get his two adult daughters to move back to the area.

"God's placed (the business) in front of me," he said. "I'm a Christian, and I believe God puts things in front of you."

Mr. Benjamin lives in DeLeon Springs with his wife Debbie.

Benjamin said. "The barrel doesn't move. The recoil impulse difference is huge."

Mr. Benjamin has been in the gun business since 1966. His father owned a coin shop and he talked him into opening part of it to guns. The result was Ben's Gun & Coin Shop in Holly Hill. After his father's death, Mr. Benjamin closed the store, but he intends to reopen it soon.

He read about the patented M1911 redesign in a trade publication, and got in touch with the engineer. The two were developing a business together when the fellow suddenly died, leaving the patent to Mr. Benjamin. The engineering student got a few ideas for improving the

Naval Air Station getting bigger digs

By Dan Harkins
dharkins@hometownnewsol.com

DELAND — Jack Fortes first came to this city by way of the war effort, back in January 1945. He'd just served a tour on an island in the Pacific Ocean. Now it was time to rig parachutes for the pilots training at the DeLand Naval Air Station.

The place holds a lot of memories for the 88-year-old, and now it will hold even more of them.

In the coming months, the DeLand Naval Air Station Museum that Mr. Vance has helped to guide since it was dedicated two decades ago will undergo an expansion, allowing curators like Mr. Vance to give visitors an even more immersive view of what the wartime '40s were like.

"It's extremely important," he said. "I've been a member of this museum since we opened in 1995 and we've been talking about expanding for almost 18 years of that time. So to finally see this is beyond my greatest imagination, and to know that it's coming very soon is even better."

A 50-by-60-foot building behind the museum, at 810 Biscayne Blvd. overlooking the DeLand Municipal Airport, was recently donated by Ron Herman, owner of All-Quality Products, Mr. Vance said.

Mr. Herman has also agreed to perform much of the labor for the design of the space, which will contain more display areas, as well as room to store other historic relics like an early helicopter and a Grumman TBF Avenger, a torpedo bomber that volunteers are currently restoring to look as good as the snarling F-14 that overlooks the museum's parking lot.

"He originally gave us a very large building and it was too big to build there," Mr. Vance said about Mr. Herman, who was unavailable for comment, "so we donated that to a church and now he's given us this smaller building. It's a blessing."

The building's redesign work was slated to start in August, Mr. Vance said, but they've had some delays.

"I thought we would have started something earlier this week but for the rain," he said.

Mr. Vance hopes the construction can be finished by Nov. 17, which would coincide with a hangar dance to celebrate the museum's 70th anniversary.

65 Million

65,000,000... That's the number of people in the US who suffer from low back or neck pain. Many of these people suffer needlessly.

Bill Labonte's Office in Ormond Beach, FL receives inquiries about his new non surgical treatment for herniated, bulging and degenerated discs from all over the nation. As a result, he has one non surgical disc machine for lower back pain and second one to treat neck, arm and hand pain from disc problems in the neck.

If you are suffering with SERIOUS neck pain or hand or arm pain caused by a bulging, herniated or degenerated disc, pay attention. This may be the most important article read this year!

Do You Have A Disc Problem?

If you experience any of the following, chances are your pain is due to a disc bulge, herniation or degeneration:

- Tight muscles in your neck
- Turning your Head causes neck pain
- Shooting pain in arms or hands
- Migraine Headaches
- Numbness in your arms, hands or fingers
- Fire down your arms
- Prickling in your hands
- Weak hand or wrist muscles

Finally Some Good News!

We can help if you have been suffering with neck pain, arm or hand pain caused by a bulging disc, disc herniation or squashed or compressed discs.

Until recently, the only advice for many of you suffering in pain was to try what you've been told:

- Try exercising or physical therapy
- Try physical therapy
- Try pain medication
- Try pain shots
- Try back surgery
- Just live with it

If your like most, none of these have worked for you. Exercise hurts, pain medications and muscle relaxers cover up the problem and cause side effects.

Pain shots cause more pain, don't work or last very long and don't FIX the problem. Or maybe back surgery didn't work, worked but didn't last or even made it worse.

Whatever your situation, you owe it to yourself to check into this Breakthrough Computerized Non-Surgical Treatment for back pain and sciatic or leg pain caused by a bulging, herniated or squashed disc or discs. It has helped hundreds of people who were suffering just like you.

How Do Discs Go Bad?

Over time the discs in your back tend to get squashed or compressed, especially if you've played certain sports when younger or have a job that requires lots of sitting or standing in one place for long periods of time. Car accidents, or heavy or repeated lifting.

It's kinda like a cookie with cream filling, and the cream filling will start to ooze out from between the sides of the cookie if pressure is applied on top of the cookie (like gravity on our spine). Eventually this happens to a lot of us. Statistics show over 80% of Americans will suffer with back pain sometime in their life.

How Does This Machine Work?

The computerized decompression machine gently pulls you apart, stretches the disc to a certain point that causes a drop in pressure inside the disc (like a little vacuum pulling the disc back into proper placement).

In my clinic, I've treated hundreds of patients with non surgical spinal decompression with great results so there should be no reason your back pain should be any different.

Most serious Back Pain Sufferers Are Very Skeptical Of This New Procedure, As Skeptical As I Was When I Purchased My First Decompression Machine, So If You Are Skeptical ...See What Some Of Our Patients Have Had to Say About Our Program:

When I came in to see you I had been to several doctors. They were not helping and I was taking lots of pain pills and muscle relaxers. Before the treatment I would get out of bed and fall to the ground. I was in very severe pain. I was slow to react to the DRX9000 treatment, but I stayed with it. Today I feel great. No more pain or pain pills. I want to thank all of the staff at Dr. Labonte's. They are awesome.

Lisa F, Ormond Beach

I have gone from waking up 4 times in the night with pain radiating down my right arm and numbness, to sleeping through the night and waking with no pain or numbness in my right arm. The whole staff has treated me so wonderful, They have all been there to listen and do anything possible to help me get well and on the road to recovery from cervical disc bulging. I am so pleased that I have found this treatment center and am very happy with the wonderful service and medical help from the whole staff. You couldn't find a better group of people that provide excellent care and are some of the nicest people I have met. I would definitely recommend them to anyone who has neck pain or disc pain.

Candy B, Ormond Beach

Within less than halfway through the treatments, my major neck discomfort ceased. The experience from the front desk, the technicians, and the doctor were extremely friendly, caring and professional. I highly recommend Dr. Labonte's Team.

Robert T, Ormond Beach

My experience at Dr. Labonte's office has greatly improved my quality of life. The DXR9000 protocol for a herniated disc worked for me. After 6 weeks of treatments my back was better than before I injured it.

Dan N, Ormond Beach

Dr. Labonte and his staff exude an upbeat and caring concern for each patient. I was treated as a person and not just a number. Thanks to Dr. Labonte, his staff and the DXR9000 my quality of life been restored to what it was 11 years ago. I am looking forward to resuming the active lifestyle I used to enjoy. I can not emphasize how fantastic I feel. I heartily recommend the decompression treatment. All I can say to Dr. Labonte and his staff is thank you for the concern and extraordinary patient care you gave me during the treatments

Our economy is worse than ever with a debt that we will never see end. We are so dependent on every other country, except our own. Our jobs are overseas, we import most items and that includes our food.

So, now we have gone back further in history, when we depended on England while we settled in this country. Who to elect in November doesn't matter if they are more worried about acting childish and not telling us how they will improve our great country. We have more hunger, more homeless, more crime and more jobless than ever. We have politicians who cannot pass laws that will help improve our nation, yet feel they should be re-elected. They have not done anything in the last four years for us, so how can we depend on them for another four. We are going to be leaving the biggest, heaviest burden on our next two generations, who will not be educated enough to take control. That generation is too dependent on welfare now and cuts in education have not helped.

I'm sure that if our flag had a heart, it would be broken by now from our selfish greed.

Smithsonian traveling exhibit journeys through Gateway Center

By Dan Harkins
dharkins@hometownnewsol.com

DEBARY — Sandra Wilson, the director for the three-year-old Gateway Center for the Arts, was gliding around the 18,000-square-foot building one recent afternoon like her organization had finally arrived.

Representatives from historical societies throughout West Volusia had just finished spending two days setting up local historical displays to coincide with a sneak peek at the Smithsonian Institution’s traveling exhibition called Journey Stories that was set up in the center’s exhibit hall. Now they were all mingling around and telling their stories, talking about how this event had finally put the fledgling center on the map.

“Who else is going to bring the Smithsonian to DeBary?” Ms. Wilson bragged. “It’s an excellent opportunity with the way West Volusia is often neglected. But people still need to know we’re here. We’re still getting people in here after 31 1/2 years and they still don’t know what it is.”

Local residents like Dave Smith thought displays like this would go a long way toward ending that anonymity.

“The great thing about this is that a town as small as this can land an exhibit as big as this,” Mr. Smith said as he perused the Smithsonian exhibition, which attempts to tell the story of how Americans came to be where they are today. “It says something about the city.”

With the local displays lining the center’s auditorium, local historians were busy telling their own local stories that tied their towns into that larger picture being provided by the Smithsonian.

“What this display does is it celebrates the journey from way back when to now,” said Ken Webster, a member of the DeBary Historical Society. “The trials and tribulations,

She employs a Ouija board to summon the long dead madam, who proceeds to set her niece straight about the afterlife before helping with the book. Myrta returns with her gangster ex-husband and two women who allegedly worked at Myrta's House of Wonders. Spirits and mayhem abound. The show will be performed Oct. 26 to Nov. 4.

Delicious treats that won't destroy your diet

Hello, smart shoppers! This week you're in for a special treat.

Biscotti have become an all-time favorite and I must give you a regular and low-fat version of Almond Biscotti from P.J. of Port St. Lucie. I will also give you a superb recipe for Pistachio-Orange Biscotti from Liz Behm, giving you both the regular and low-fat version.

When I mention a butter substitute Smart Balance (in the original version) is my preferred choice.

What's great about biscotti is they contain only about 100 calories and one equals about two regular cookies; great for a treat even on a diet. The nuts add fat and calories, but they are a good for you fat.

NOTE: Always preheat oven for 20 minutes; an oven thermometer is a must. Bake at 350. Do not use dark pans; they burn too easily. Biscotti are twice baked; baked, sliced 1/2-inch thick with a serrated knife then baked again.

To prevent crumbling when slicing, simply spritz logs with water then wait 5 minutes.

Rather than laying them down to bake each side, Liz suggests standing them up (both sides bake at the same time). For soft biscotti simply eliminate the second baking.

Biscotti can be stored in air-tight containers for up to two weeks. To freeze, place in gallon zipper bags with waxed paper between the layers.

You can dip in or frost with melted chocolate afterward.

NOTE: Many times it is difficult to find unsalted nuts. If salted, rinse nuts, drain and bake on a cookie sheet at 300 until dry. Omit salt in recipe.

Enjoy. See you next week.

ALMOND BISCOTTI regular or low fat, low cholesterol

- 3 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 cup sliced almonds
- 3 large eggs or 6 egg whites or 3/4-cup egg substitute
- 2/3-cup butter, or butter substitute, softened or 2/3-cup canola oil
- 1 cup sugar or use 1/2-cup sugar, 1/2-cup Splenda
- 2 teaspoons almond flavoring

Mix together flour, baking powder and almonds in a large bowl. In another bowl blend eggs, oil, sugar and flavoring. Gradually add to flour mixture mixing thoroughly. Divide dough in half and wrap each in plastic wrap; refrigerate 30 minutes or longer.

Using a butter substitute, lightly grease a cookie sheet; shape each piece of dough into a 12-inch log. Bake until golden for 20-30 minutes. Cool 5 minutes on wire rack.

Proceed as explained above. Dried cranberries and vanilla may be substituted for the almonds and almond flavoring.

PISTACHIO-ORANGE BISCOTTI regular and low fat, low cholesterol makes about 3 dozen

- 1-3/4 cups flour
- 1/2-teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2-teaspoon baking soda
- 1/8-teaspoon salt
- 1/2-cup (1 stick) unsalted butter or butter substitute, softened
- 1 cup sugar or half sugar, half Splenda
- 2 tablespoons grated orange zest
- 1-1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 large eggs or 4 egg whites or 1/2-cup egg substitute
- 1-1/2 cups unsalted, shelled pistachio nuts

Butter 1 jellyroll pan (baking sheet with sides). Sift together first 4 ingredients into a bowl; set aside. Combine butter, sugar, orange zest and vanilla in a large bowl. Using an electric mixer beat on high until light and fluffy, about 2 minutes. Mix in eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Reduce speed to low, add the nuts and mix in. Add the flour mixture and mix only until incorporated. Dough will be soft.

Cover and refrigerate until well chilled, about 1 hour. Divide dough in half. Using lightly floured hands, roll each half on a lightly floured surface into a log 1 1/2-inches in diameter. Arrange logs on baking sheet placing them 5-inches apart. Bake until light brown and firm to the touch, about 25 minutes. Logs will spread during baking. Remove from oven and let cool for 5 minutes; follow directions as

THE GURU'S SPECIAL HINT

Ovens don't have a rack directly in the center. To prevent cookies or cakes from burning on the bottom, place the rack just above the oven's center. For pies, place rack just below the center.

If you're looking for a recipe, just go to my site and follow the instructions to the archives; there you'll find dozens of columns.

the hard effort that it took to get us here."

The local displays attempted to tie in local history with the bigger picture. Mr. Webster was chatting up passersby about city founder Frederick DeBary, who not only ran a prominent steamboat and railroad franchise but also a successful rum and champagne business.

"DeBary Hall was just a playground for his hussies," Mr. Webster noted, "and all this is part of the tour we give every week."

Bob LaFleur, a local historian from Orange City's John Knox Village, was at the sneak peek with his wife, Joan, who was dressed as an early town pioneer from the Stillman family. He wore a bowler's hat to fit in.

He said he can't remember ever having a chance to get together with this many historic preservationists in one place from West Volusia.

"This is the first time something like this has ever happened," he said. "Most of us don't even know each other, and that is wrong."

The local exhibitions will remain on the walls until Oct. 8, but the Smithsonian display runs from the grand opening at 4 to 9 p.m. Sept. 8 until Oct. 13.

The center, at 880 U.S. 17/92 in DeBary, is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday to Friday, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday and is closed on Sunday.

Stetson University named one of 'America's 650 Top Colleges'

Stetson University has been named to Forbes Magazine's annual list of "America's 650 Top Colleges."

The rankings, compiled exclusively for Forbes by the Washington, D.C.-based Center for College Affordability and Productivity, focus on the quality of teaching, career prospects, graduation rates and levels of debt. To see the information online about Stetson University, go to <http://www.forbes.com/colleges/stetson-university/>.

This year's rankings put Stetson at seventh in Florida, 255th among private colleges and universities, and 336th in the nation. The magazine highlights a variety of information about Stetson, including academics, tuition and financial aid, athletics, admissions and student life.

Stetson is among six Atlantic Sun Conference institutions included this year.

The Forbes rankings are based on five general categories: Post-Graduate Success (32.5 percent), which evaluates alumni pay and prominence; Student Satisfaction (27.5 percent), which includes professor evaluations and freshman to sophomore year retention rates; Debt (17.5 percent), which penalizes schools for high student debt loads and default rates; Four-Year Graduation Rate (11.25 percent) and Competitive Awards (11.25 percent), which rewards schools whose students win prestigious scholarships and fellowships like the Rhodes, the Marshall and the Fulbright or go on to earn a Ph.D.

Volusia School District programs win national recognition

Two programs implemented by the School District of Volusia County have been selected for inclusion in the American School Board Journal's Magna Best Practices Database. The programs are two of only 81 highly-scored programs selected for this recognition.

The "Plus One" program adds an hour of instruction to select schools with a high number of economically disadvantaged students. The daily hour calculates to the equivalent of an additional seven weeks of direct and focused instruction, which is funded through federal Title I dollars. Plus One provides students and teachers the time to become reflective learners and utilize a more hands-on approach to learning experiences. There are eight Plus One schools for the 2012-13 school year.

The "Substitute Training and Retention Program" is a three-day training program for individuals who wish to become substitute teachers. Training includes job-shadowing, seminars on classroom management, ethics, safety and how to work with students in the Exceptional Student Education program. Additional training is provided throughout the year. There are now 1,300 active substitute teachers and the fill rate for classrooms exceeds 97 percent each day.

Each year, the highest-scoring programs from those submitted to the Magna Awards are added to the national database where they will be available for five years. www.asbj.com/magna.

Fishing: Everyday is different

Fishing is an interesting hobby because no two days are the same. Recently, I put my kayak into the Halifax River at the end of my street, as I have so many times.

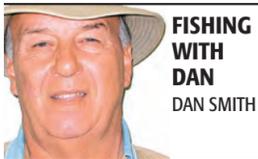

It was just before dawn, and my goal was to paddle over to Tomoka State Park and wade the shoreline, as I often do.

As I cleared the Intra-coastal Boat Channel, I paused to get a lung full of cool morning air.

Soon, I was past the spoil islands with the far bank coming into view highlighted by the rising sun behind me.

That's when things changed. The river was as smooth as ice, and up ahead I could see furious motion.

At first I passed it off as a pod of feeding dolphins, but as I drew near I could tell it was something else. Halfway between the clinker islands and the park bank was a huge school of baitfish riding the incoming tide north.

FISHING WITH DAN
DAN SMITH

As I pushed the Green Peanut into the bait, I was surrounded by feeding fish. Big fish.

A school of tarpon was tearing it up. This was not the usual baby tarpon we encounter around the Tomoka, this was the big boys. I stopped paddling and sat in the middle of the pod of bait watching and listening as the huge tarpon splashed and rolled.

Just then a big head shot up alongside my kayak and for a split second I was eye to eye with a tarpon that had eyes the size of golf balls and a head the size of a trashcan. Oh my!

I was happy the big fish did not capsize me. All around the boat tarpon from 75 to 100 pounds were going at it. Of course, my next thought was trying to catch one. No matter that I was armed with a thin wisp of a rod that was spooled with 10-pound mono.

Like all fishermen, I am ever the eternal optimist. At that point my main worry was that if I attached myself to one of those monsters it might turn me over. As I sat there drifting north with the school, I also thought about the chance of losing the new lure that I had just tied on. Still, I could never forgive myself if I missed such an opportunity over a lost lure or an early morning swim.

I positioned myself as solidly as I could in the kayak and let fly. There was no question of whether I would hookup, and sure enough as soon as it hit the water I was on. It would not have mattered what bait I threw, a strike was a given. The reel began to sing and my rod arched. I readied myself for the jump that I knew was coming. As it turned out the tarpon was not impressed enough with my efforts to jump. It just raised its big head out of the water and shook it a couple times and sent my lure flying. That was all of the work it needed to do to free itself, and it seemed to know it. I sat there laughing and watched the school move on toward the basin. I didn't know if any other fishermen were out on that morning, but I hoped someone else would have the same fun I had just enjoyed. I figured that the giant tarpon would continue on up the Tomoka River and that stream is mostly a dead end so they would have to swim it both ways. Hopefully someone else would have the surprise I had.

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for more than 40 years. Email questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net. His book, "I Swear the Snook Drowned," is available for $10.95 at (386) 441-7793.
