State of the County: Much has been done; there's more to do

By Erika Webb
ewebb@hometownnewsol.com

Volusia County accomplished a lot in 2012, according to three County Council members, but the county will "essentially be out of the road construction business" very soon, said the chair.

At the council meeting May 2, members Joyce Cusack, Pat Northey and Josh Wagner along with County Chair Jason Davis delivered the State of the County Address. They lauded growth, citizen protection measures, progress and potential while praising the concerted efforts of staff, citizen volunteers and public-private partnerships for effectively executing policy.

Councilwoman Joyce Cusack talked about economic development.

"The state of Volusia County is good," Ms. Cusack said. "We have created new jobs and helped existing businesses expand. More people are flying in and out of our airport and booking events at the Ocean Center. New driving rules have made our beaches safer."

With a goal of cutting through the red tape and being business friendly, performance-based incentives prompted expansion of existing businesses in Volusia County, particularly in manufacturing and technology.

Ms. Cusack listed ARK Technologies, Frontier Communications, Teledyne Oil and Gas, and AO Precision Manufacturing among those that have utilized the incentives for expansion.

"Collectively these companies anticipate 300 new job opportunities right here in Volusia County," she said.

The business incubator at DBIA, managed by the University of Central Florida, had 13 fledgling companies as clients by the end of 2012, its first year in operation.

"We are thrilled with this success, and we would like to see more businesses that are just starting out, benefit from their support," Ms. Cusack said.

The county's operating budget was reduced by $8 million last year, "making it six years in a row the county has significantly downsized without abrupt service cuts and employee layoffs," Ms. Cusack noted.

Popular music duo shoots music video on the beach

By Richard Mundy
For Hometown News

With 50 to 60 mph winds blowing great globs of sea foam across the parking lot and into the street, a crowd assembled on the beach at Andy Romano Beachfront Park to shoot music history accompanied by 100-plus animated would-be video actors and actresses. The grips, the lights, the sound, the cameras and the extras backed up the band Florida Georgia Line for their music video shoot.

Having shot footage in Georgia previously, they had to shoot some in Florida to be fair to their name. The individual names of the singing duo are Tyler Hubbard, favorite son of Monroe, Ga., and Brian Kelley of Ormond Beach. Having been given the key to the city of Monroe, Ormond Beach did not want to be outdone, especially since Brian Kelley is the son of Mayor and Mrs. Ed Kelley.

Tyler and Brian both began playing guitar in high school and were introduced to each other by a mutual friend in Nashville while attending Belmont University. The rest, as they usually say, is history.

Two young ladies are putting together a benefit concert for an arts program at Seabreeze High School in Daytona Beach.

Sara Tomarelli and Ashley King will sing during the From My Heart concert on at 7 p.m. Saturday, May 11, in the school auditorium.

Admission is $10 with all the proceeds going to the American Musical Theatre program at the school.

"Funds are needed to keep the program going. It's not school funded," Ms. Tomarelli said. "Usually students raise funds or get donations.

"We both are big supporters of the arts," she said.

Driving school teaches young drivers safety

By Andres Butler
For Hometown News

One local car dealership isn't just about selling cars, at least for four times out the year.

Gary Yeoman's Ford Lincoln in Daytona Beach is holding a Teen Driving Safety Class from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, May 11.

The event, co-sponsored by Port Orange law firm Rue Ziffra & Caldwell, will be in the parking lot of the dealership at 1450 North Tomoka Farms Road in Daytona International Auto Mall.

The classes are broken down into four sessions geared towards driving safety.

Former Formula One race car driver Tommy Byrne is the teacher of the course. Byrne created and designed the Diablo Drifter race car and racing style. He also has taught up and coming drivers and amateurs how to race. In addition, he has taught police and teenagers driving safety.

The classes are for drivers ages 15-19 and they are free. To take part in the course, participants must register online and possess a valid driver's license.

"It's a very cool course. It's a good program for kids and it teaches them how to control the car in certain situations like rain, snow, and ice. This course also gives them the tools to be safe," said Cathy Calderoni of Gary Yeoman's Ford Lincoln.

The dealership has been doing the courses for the past two years and has had some success. They hold the classes every quarter.

Not since the duo of Brooks and Dunn burst on the music scene and set the music world on fire, winning Top new Vocal Duo of the year from the Academy of Country Music in 1991 and, in 1992, the Country Music Association's Vocal Duo of the Year, has a new duo been as successful.

Florida Georgia Line did it the hard way, releasing their song "Cruise" independently. After 14 weeks, it hit the Top 10, faster than any debut since Brooks and Dunn's "Brand New Man." Now having sold over a million downloads, it has reached #1 on the iTunes Country Singles Chart, it was certified gold and then platinum. Also, Florida Georgia Line has just been named New Artist of the Year by the Academy of Country Music.

The resemblance to Brooks and Dunn only goes so far, as Florida Georgia Line has more energy and excitement to go with their unique sound. The closest definition of their sound would be hard rock/heavy metal meets dueling banjos. It ranges from a raucous, all-out party sound to songs with a softer edge, too, as with their song, "Black Tears."

Capturing the public's attention with their songs got the duo a record deal with Republic Nashville Records, part of Universal Music Group. "Cruise" is on their new album entitled "Here's To The Good Times."

It was difficult to figure who was more surprised, the audience or the boys, when Taylor Swift joined them on stage in an impromptu moment at a recent concert to help them finish the night with their hit single "Cruise."

As for the music video, the shoot went on well into the night and they had to get it finished. This was the only open date they had available. The very next day they performed at the Suwannee River Jam in Live Oak with Sheryl Crowe. Then they helped kick off Taylor Swift's North American Tour "Red" in Louisville, Ky.

Mayor and Mrs. Kelley were at the shoot, freezing and being blown about like everyone else. But their smiles showed it's doubtful they felt anything but pride.

Drive

"We have already done about three or four of these driving schools. These kids come in with a smile on their face and leave with a smile on their face as they learn different situations and obstacles when it comes to driving," Ms. Calderoni said.

The organizers of the event also hope the students learn an appreciation for driving.

"We want them to leave these classes with a new respect for driving. We also want them to leave knowing how to be safe on the road," Ms. Calderoni said.

Teaching young drivers road safety is very important with the dangers on the road, which can be fatal.

"There are a lot of dangers on the road. We must teach them safety now at this young age. How to be safe on the road, how to react in a dangerous situation and how to keep control of their vehicle," Ms. Calderoni said.

Maybe a dog's life is not so bad

LAND LINES

DAN SMITH

From the age of five to 20 years old, my constant companion was Brownie my dog.

After Brownie died, I never owned another dog. To be sure, I did feel some guilt at not having a dog to share the young lives of my son and daughter, but by the time Lana and I had children, the world had changed.

Dogs could no longer run free. Living in the city meant all dogs had to be confined and leashed. I could never bring myself to treat a dog that way. My memories of Brownie living a free and carefree life are precious to me. It would not have been the same to keep him inside or in a small fenced yard. The world was Brownie's oyster. A good climber, if anyone left a ladder up on their house my dog would have to be retrieved from the roof.

This entire dog reminiscing was brought on by a dog food commercial. It was not one of those commercials where a bunch of cute puppies are running to the food dish. I was sitting scribbling in a notepad my next offering to this newspaper, when I heard a voiceover say, "Beneful medley now in Tuscan and Romano style." Huh? I stopped writing to look up. Are they talking about dog food? Could it be the ad was for Northern and Southern Italian style dog food? Can dogs now read? I don't know how I could have missed that.

With the commercial weighing on my mind, the next time I was in the local supermarket I took a stroll down the pet food isle. Oh my!

Right then I realized just how out of touch I had become. What an assortment of exotic names for people to indulge themselves with while trying to feed the dog. I saw something called Chef Michael's Grilled sirloin. Come on, that has to be a fib. There was low-fat dog food and some with antioxidants. I always thought the idea was to get Brownie all the fat I could. The price of those dog foods floored me. I don't remember my folks ever buying actual dog food for Brownie. He ate what we ate. Our dog always loved it when we had pork chops. The bones would be a treat that lasted for a week.

Brownie and I shared everything. I have heard the modern theory that you are not supposed to feed your dog chocolate, but old Brownie was a card-carrying chocoholic. Back then I had never heard of such, so whenever I had a treat I shared it with my dog. Hershey bar was a favorite as was Baby Ruth but a fudgesicle was an indulgence much anticipated by us both.

On the dog food shelf there seemed to be a lot of food containing rice. Celebrity chef Rachael Ray even has a line out featuring beef with brown rice. Really? Brown rice? Brownie was a true meat eater and would only eat rice, bread, mashed potatoes and corn if you covered it in beef gravy.

I found a brand with the unlikely name of One Beyond (interplanetary dog?) that stated the contents were ranch raised lamb and barley.

Brownie would have been fine with the lamb no matter where it was raised, but you could hold the oats.

Now look, I am well aware that there is a considerable bunch of you who are so in love with your pet you have lost all sense of reality. I see them walking their dogs after putting clothes on the poor animal.

Can't we let our dogs have a little dignity? There is a woman near where I live that carries the little dog for a walk. Who's walking who? All the while, the dog is licking her face — you know one of a dog's most enjoyable talents is the ability to lick its butt.

I want to tell the woman she could eliminate the middleman and do it for him, but I don't think that comment would be accepted in the spirit it is intended.

My dog loved spaghetti and meatballs and only tolerated spaghetti with meat sauce. All flavors of ice cream were shared and I loved to feed him those little Tootsie Rolls so I could watch the tongue work to get it unstuck from his teeth.

Since Brownie lived to be 15, I don't believe all that chocolate was what did him in.

I'm not suggesting you give it to your dog, but I am telling you it is not poison to all dogs. I guess I was lucky to have a dog that could eat anything. Brownie's favorite food was one that had turned rancid. Good to eat; good to roll in. I suppose if you left a can of that gourmet Tuscan Style dog food out in the sun long enough, it may have even been good enough for old Brownie. One last note: In the market I found one and a half isles of pet food and only a third of an isle devoted to baby food. Amazing!

(Research tells me there is 76 million dog owners in the U.S. I hope only a small percentage writes to complain about this column.)

LEGAL CORNER

When Your Doctor Doesn't Respond

Written by:Kim Bouck, Esq.

Within the health care profession, it is not uncommon to see established doctor-patient relationships. This is due to the nature of the field itself, where many patients schedule appointments with the same physician for years on end. Doctors in this type of relationship with their patients are held to a high standard, and must respond in a timely manner when called to handle one of their patient's needs. If, however, the doctor does not respond when called by the nursing staff of the hospital, he or she can be considered negligent and medical malpractice ensues if their patient suffers a devastating injury as a result of this absence.

Cases where a doctor may assume malpractice for failure to respond is often found within obstetrics and gynecology situations. For example, if a woman is laboring and the fetus is demonstrating signs of distress, her personal doctor (or the doctor on-call) is expected to respond if called upon by the nursing staff or other physicians. In the same situation, the nurse who examined the expectant mother may be held liable as well if he or she does not recognize the signs of fetal distress (therefore delaying to seek prompt attention from the physician.)

Another instance where a doctor can be deemed negligent of failure to respond often occurs in the emergency room setting. For example, the physician on duty in the emergency room may examine a patient and recognize the need for immediate, specialty consultation. As a result he or she will place a call to the on-call specialist, a doctor who has knowledge in a specific field of medicine. If the specialist fails to respond to the ER doctor's request, then he or she has committed medical malpractice. Although there is no physician-patient relationship established between the specialist and the patient, there is a responsibility to respond if the specialist is on-call and agrees with the ER physician that the condition cannot wait to be treated.

Determining whether or not a doctor has committed medical malpractice by failing to respond to a call can often be difficult for a patient (or their family) to prove. However, a seasoned malpractice attorney will often have the knowledge and resources to determine whether or not the lines of communication between hospital staff members were complete and that there was documented evidence for the need of the on-call specialist.

If you or a loved one has questions regarding a medical malpractice claim and would like legal counsel from a medical negligence attorney, Contact Rue, Ziffra & Caldwell for your free consultation.

County

"More people in Volusia County are working and we can feed our family and pay our mortgage," she said.

Council Member Josh Wagner focused on the beaches, where the county has moved to make things more Disney-like.

"I think I get to deliver the best part of the county address, which is the beach," Mr. Wagner said. "I'm passionate about the beach."

Among last year's changes aimed at improved safety and customer service, Mr. Wagner listed a campaign to encourage parking instead of driving, new rules prohibiting texting while driving on the beach and a requirement that beach drivers keep their windows down and headlights on.

Parking is prohibited in front of most beachfront parks, and the county has created one-way traffic zones in key areas, Mr. Wagner said.

Beach employees are using "smaller more approachable vehicles with security enhancements," he added.

"We're on our way to becoming the artificial reef capital of the world," Mr. Wagner announced.

Sixteen new artificial reefs were built off the county's coast last year, using tons concrete that would otherwise end up at the landfill, he explained.

"This project is funded by the County Port District dollars and it provides jobs and moves money into local businesses," he said, calling it a win-win for the marine industry and the environment.

The county's "trails queen" Pat Northey praised successful efforts to complete and open the county's first six miles of East Central Regional Rail Trail, linking Thornby Park with Green Spring.

Ms. Northey said the benefits from the county's parks and trails are endless.

Among the county's advances in leisure last year, she listed sea wall replacement and restroom repairs at Ed Stone Park in DeLand, grant funds for a new dock and kayak launch at Mariners Cove Park in Enterprise, the addition of a playground, volleyball court and basketball court to Strickland Park in Holly Hill, a basketball court at Cypress Lake Park in DeLand, programs at DeBary Hall and scrub strolls at Lyonia Environmental Center.

"There really is no downside to our trails and our park system," she said.

She credited community partners for the accomplishments.

"Without assistance from these profit and non-profit groups many of the activities I mentioned would not have taken place," Ms. Northey said. We appreciate our partners, thank you very much, and all they do for the community."

A Green Volusia $2.4 million federal grant afforded the installation of energy and water efficient retrofits at county facilities.

"These improvements save hundreds of thousands in utility costs and an estimated one million gallons of water a year," Ms. Northey said.

The grant also benefitted the Neighborhood Stabilization Program through which 29 foreclosed homes were purchased by the county, repaired and resold to first-time homebuyers.

"What a great program that is," Ms. Northey said.

County Chair Jason Davis looked ahead.

He said council members all want to protect and improve the quality of life and keep Volusia County in a forward direction.

He talked about challenges and opportunities.

He listed business attracting assets, including a qualified workforce, natural resources, favorable weather, five universities and a prime location.

These benefits, he said, are not necessarily enough to boost the economy.

"The competition for business expansions and development and relocation is fierce," Mr. Davis said.

The news for infrastructure was grim.

With the completion of the Williamson extension, road construction will cease.

The reason is quite simple: we're running out of money … we can't keep up with road maintenance costs and barely have enough to cover our road construction debts," Mr. Davis said.

He said the ability to provide a transportation system is crucial for Volusia's future.

He spoke in favor of private space enterprise coming to Volusia, and expressed enthusiasm over SunRail, saying it will be a catalyst for the creation of thousands of jobs as shops and businesses develop up around the rail station and all the platforms."

"County government cannot do what it's always done and expect to deliver both tax relief and expanded quality services," he said.

Counties, cities and residents will have to cooperatively find ways to create effective, yet affordable government, Mr. Davis added.

In other business, the council voted 6-1 to draft a resolution in support of Space Florida's proposed "Shiloh Complex" private spaceport in Southeast Volusia.

A presentation given by the state agency's CEO and president, Frank DiBello, revealed what was known: Space Florida has its eye on 150 acres inside the Merritt Island National Wildlife Refuge.

Mr. DiBello said an extensive search along Florida's east coast for an ideal location for a commercial launch complex ended at the site near Oak Hill.

Wanted

Wanted Person: Timothy Joseph Davis
Birth Date: Feb. 4, 1977
Distinguishing features: Tattoos on chest, left hand and left leg; scars on back, head, chest and left leg
Reason wanted: Failure to register as a sexual predator
Last known location: Orange City

Timothy Joseph Davis

Crime Stoppers of Northeast Florida is seeking information on the whereabouts of 36-year-old Timothy Joseph Davis. Davis has been adjudicated by the courts as a sexual predator as a result of prior convictions out of Seminole County and Hillsborough County. Under Florida's sex offender laws, Davis is required to register and regularly update his residency status with law enforcement. He last registered as a transient in the Orange City area, with no permanent address. However, he missed his required re-registration date and his current whereabouts are unknown. On March 19, an arrest warrant was issued for Davis charging him with failure to register as a sexual predator.

Davis is 6 feet tall and weighs about 148 pounds. He's bald and has hazel eyes. If you see Davis or know where he is, don't attempt to apprehend him. Anyone with information regarding Davis' whereabouts is asked to call Crime Stoppers toll-free at (888) 277-TIPS. You can also Text your tip by texting "TIP231 plus your message" to CRIMES. Anyone who provides information to Crime Stoppers will remain anonymous and can qualify for a reward of up to $1,000.

Missing Mr. Hood

I just finished Dan Smith's column from May 3 on the shade tree mechanic. Just wanted to say that brought up some fond memories of when I was a kid of taking my car over to Roy Hood. Mr. Hood could always fix a car no matter what the problem. He could fix almost everything, everything but a broken heart. Sometimes he even mended them pretty well. Mr. Hood was a fond memory and so were those times. Thanks for the article.

CRAS – wasted money

Though there are some real advantages to the Community Redevelopment Areas, I have seen a lot of wasted money in many projects over the past 20 years.

For example, look at the money spent on the Daytona Boardwalk projects; a few years ago they planted nice palm trees along the walkway only to be torn up a few years later and replaced by concrete. Heaven knows how much those trees cost.

Then there is all the money spent on the Main Street CRA. Now what do we have but torn down buildings, parking lots, and a few shops and bars that are open some of the time? They destroyed what could have been a restored landmark hotel, establishing another parking lot. I have seen money wasted in paving stones. Now we must maintain them by cleaning, resorting and replacing damaged ones, more unnecessary costs.

Some of these buildings could have been preserved and added to our historic Main Street area. The city of Daytona Beach does not do a good job in preserving our historic sites. Members of these boards should think twice before wasting our taxpayer money and approve projects like they were spending their own money, then maybe they would not waste so much. Maybe it is time for us to do away with the CRAs and decide in each city how the tax money would be spent in what areas. Will freezing property values in these areas really help the area?

Owners of the properties should use their own money for improvements and maybe receive credits from the city where they are located.

In response to: 'Gun rights, but no patriotism?'

May I suggest the following answers to the two questions posed?

First, the writer asked "what about my right to be free from indiscriminate violence?" A "right" is a legal, social or ethical principle of freedom or entitlement. The Constitution of the United States guarantees all citizens the right of freedom; unfortunately, there can be no right to be free of human violence or evil, only laws against such, and current federal and state statues are abundant with these laws. Only if all humanity were rid of evil would such a utopia be possible. The good news is that one does have a right to protect one's self against human acts of violence and the right to own guns is a vital element in the exercise of this right.

The writer's second question was "why did only 1 percent of Americans answer the call to fight in our recent two wars in Iraq and Afghanistan?" Although I do not understand the relationship between private gun ownership and fighting an international war nor do I have any knowledge as to the accuracy of this number, I will say that if this number is low from a historical basis. It may very well be because the vast majority of Americans disagree with our political leaders' philosophy that America should be in the business of "Nation Building."

In response to: 'Gun rights, but no patriotism?'

In response to the blurb in the April 26 edition about gun rights and the lack of call to duty, I am a veteran and come from a family of veterans. My grandfather was awarded the Silver Star in World War II. My dad served proudly in Vietnam and I served six years. Yes, unfortunately many of our service men and women did multiple tours in Iraq and Afghanistan, but how much of that was from funding cuts? Many of our soldiers were not even outfitted with the proper equipment they needed to survive over there.

On your right to not have to worry about gun violence, do you honestly think taking away our guns is going to stop criminals from using them? Have you seen the statistics showing the increase in violent gun crimes in countries that have banned guns from citizens? (hint: they are very high) If the laws that are currently on the books were enforced violent crime would be down, instead they are swept under the rug and people cry for more laws. Do I not have the right to protect myself? If you choose to not own a gun, it is your choice. My family along with countless others have served this great nation to protect our rights to bear arms and freedom of speech. Allow me the right to exercise my freedoms, not take them from me because you don't like guns.

In response to: 'Gun rights, but no patriotism?'

Well you certainly got my blood pressure up. My family must be that 1 percent you're claiming and let me tell you why. My father was on Normandy Beach. My father-in-law was in World War II, Korea and Vietnam. I lost four cousins and eight friends in Vietnam. My husband also served in Vietnam, My son who has a wife and four kids has done four tours In Iraq and Afghanistan and may be heading out soon again.

Gun ownership is a right and a right that should be respected. What seems to be falling through the cracks are sadly, the Newtown shooting was done by a son who had mental issues, Mom kept wanting to hide and did not do enough to keep a gun away from him. But based on what I have read about him he would have gotten an illegal gun if he had to. Most of these violent shootings and crimes are not by legal gun owners. My cousin had guns in his house from day one and made his own bullets, he raised his two children in this house and never ever locked up the guns. He taught his children to respect the fact these are not toys.

I grew up with shotguns right in the front closet so easy to get to and we would never touch them without permission. The people who are doing all these shootings should never be near a gun. I am OK with deeper background checks. I am OK with someone with mental issues should not have a gun. I am not OK with being bundled into a group of sadistic people who want their 15 minutes of fame on the news.

In response to: 'Close the airport tower'

The person making the statement cannot wait for the tower to close because of the noise. A couple comments caught my attention. How uninformed this person is. The writer goes on to say the circling planes are flown by "foreign" students. Obviously, they have a problem with anybody other than Americans.

They moved to their residence in Ormond Beach eight years ago. I am pretty sure the airport was there long before they moved to the area. Again didn't do their homework. Looks like the tower is staying. Whether its there or not, the foreigners are going to fly over your home. This person may want to consider moving.

I welcome people from all around the world to Florida. People complain that we ship jobs overseas, but when we have a niche of flight training as this area does, people complain. They are never happy. A little thinking never hurts.

Kitten season

Florida is right on the verge of kitten season. This means that every single cat out there that is not spayed or neutered is having kittens. Animal shelters across the state are rapidly filling up with kittens. There also is a problem with big-hearted, well-meaning people who feel they are doing the right thing. If you find a litter of kittens in your flowerbed, under your shed, on a casual walk in the woods or in your attic, please leave them alone.

These kittens are better off with their mother than in a shelter. A mother cat can give these kittens the necessary nutrients they need at this very early stage. Newborn kittens need to be fed every two hours. Every time someone takes those kittens home and realizes how much work there is they contact a shelter. Please do your best to leave those kittens alone. If newborn kittens come into the shelter and they do not have a surrogate mother or a foster available the survival of those kittens becomes bleak. Even if you don't see the mother, she is there hiding until you leave so please if you really want to do something for them put out dry kitten food and fresh water and walk away. Once the mother cat feels it is safe to come back she will take care of her babies and enjoy the healthy food. So please leave the kittens alone.

In response to: 'Remember When…'

Yes, I do remember when all you mentioned in the article was quite the way of life. And, it was a good life. I also remember decorations in your yard were not removed because someone else wanted them. If we could afford what the neighbor had, we found out the cost and purchased them ourselves. If we couldn't, we enjoyed looking at theirs in their yard. This past weekend someone liked 12 of my gnomes enough to take them home with them. It would be nice if they would return them to my yard in South Daytona so all of us could enjoy them again.

Missed joy

June 18, 2013, will be the 60th anniversary of my high school graduation. Shortly after that I, and many others, were drafted into the Army and on to Korea for two years. I lost touch with most of my 195 classmates. There have never been any reunions or any information about my classmates or me. I am told by the high school administration, all records before the 1964 school desegregation law were destroyed at the time. What a shame. How un-American. I can only imagine all the joy I have missed.

Don't tell me

You can tell me I have to pay the full amount of my taxes on time, even though there are those who don't and don't get caught.

You can tell me they are guilty of murder even though they are let go because of a stupid legal blunder.

You can tell me smoking is dangerous, even though I have smoked for 62 years and my doctors tell me I am in good health.

But please don't tell me the law will be cracking down on texting while driving. Even though you will first have to give a police officer another reason to pull you over before they can ticket you for texting.

Isn't that just plain stupid?

Letters

Listen to the relevant

After reading Sheila Dillon's letter to the editor in the April 26 Hometown News, I would like to quote John F. Kennedy: "I am not so much concerned with the right of everyone to say anything he pleases as I am about our need as a self-governing people to hear everything relevant."

Susan McLeod
New Smyrna Beach

Close charter schools

The charter schools are Jeb Bush's Republican scam to weaken the teachers union and destroy locally, elected school committees' control of our children's education.

Charter-school teachers are not state certified and many have no background checks. Their financial records are a mess and one "principal" gave herself a $150,000 bonus after her school was closed for financial "irregularities."

Charter Schools waste millions of our tax money and records prove they don't educate our children any better than the public schools. Time to tell our representatives to get rid of charter schools now.

VOLUSIA BUSINESS
CECIL G. BRUMLEY

It far surpassed any other recent local news even though it won't open until early 2016. Just the announcement that a Hard Rock Hotel & Café would be built on Daytona Beach rippled through the business world and may finally push the somewhat blighted beachfront forward again.

At the turn of the century, the 21st century that is, the future looked bright for the "World's Most Famous Beach." Ocean Walk was opening with its mixture of condo-hotel rooms and timeshares, and an entertainment complex with restaurants, bars, shops and a cinema. The next step was supposed to be heavy redevelopment of the Boardwalk. It didn't happen and then the Great Recession hit.

The vast empty expanses along the shore left by the severe economic downturn seem incongruous with a beach that's mentioned and shown in popular movies, songs and books.

While the Halifax area already has some good resorts and three rebuilt hotels in the works, Hard Rock and Bayshore Capital's plans to build an estimated $100 million complex in the 800 block of South Atlantic Avenue takes the area up to an even higher level. The hotel will have 250 rooms with 100 condos, 28,000 square feet of banquet and meeting space, and, of course, a Hard Rock Café with its rock and roll memorabilia and live music.

With the Protogroup's plans for a huge resort and conference center in the 400 N. Atlantic Ave., Daytona Beach has the catalyst to see much more blight eliminated and one of world's best beach areas become the resource that the Volusia County economy so desperately needs.

The newest report on sales tax collections continues to show Volusia County's desperate need for more hotel rooms. Even though International Speedway Corp. reported improvement in Speed Weeks activity this year, sales taxes collected for lodging in February was down from February 2012. Overall sales tax collections were up 2.7 percent, but Volusia probably lost a lot of business to surrounding counties as race fans looked for places to stay. Fortunately that problem is being addressed. The report also showed the improvement in housing construction is not a mirage. Sales tax collections for building supplies and home furnishings, two sectors spurred by new home construction, were both up in February from last year.

Another area that still needs improvement is airline service at the Daytona Beach airport. While Delta Air Lines did provide direct Saturday flights to New York for a short time, for May, Delta has five daily flights to Atlanta while US Airways has three daily flights and two additional Saturday flights to Charlotte.

More proof of an improving housing market is investors keep buying up chunks of idle housing lots, hoping to find builders to use them. Skymark Investments paid $594,000 for 31 lots in the Alexandria Pointe subdivision in DeLand. Charles Wayne Properties handled the deal and pointed out that Skymark should be able to find builders easily.

One of the best developments for New Smyrna Beach is moving forward. Construction is starting on the restaurant and tiki bar along the North Causeway for New Smyrna Beach Marina.

Ishwar Naran, who operates several hotels he has redeveloped along the beach, has bought a motel site in DeLand for $1.6 million. At that price, Naran is probably serious about building a new motel on North Woodland Boulevard.

The news also remains good on the labor front. In April, initial claims for unemployment compensation were at 1,523, down 7.7 percent from 1,650 in April 2012. Claims still aren't quite as low as needed to tighten the labor supply and push wages higher, but they are getting closer.

Managing Editor Cecil G. Brumley has tracked business and the economy in Volusia County for more than 16 years. Contact him at cbrumley@hometownnewsol.com or follow him on Twitter @cecilbrumley.

Textile Values continues to offer the latest trends in window treatments

By Cathy Wharton
For Hometown News

When it comes to enhancing windows, there's one local company that has seen the trends and stayed with them all — Textile Values Draperies & Blinds.

The business started in the early 1970s when Carol Smith opened a drapery shop in Masonova Plaza. In 1974, her brother, Bill Fosmer, joined the business and began learning the intricate details of custom-made draperies. Not only did he help his sister make draperies, but over time, he learned every aspect of the business — including installation and sales.

As the business grew, it became clear more space would be needed. In order to meet the needs of retail customers (homeowners) and decorators, a custom-designed, two-story facility was built on west Mason Avenue in Daytona Beach.

According to owner specifications, the building has two workrooms — one upstairs, one downstairs — plus a showroom on the first floor that features a host of sample fabric books, all conveniently categorized, and readily available to customers.

Now in its 23rd year at the same "new" location, Textile Values has undergone a number of changes. First, the popular look of custom-made draperies began to give way to a different style of window furnishing — vertical blinds. Textile Values was the first such business in the area to make vertical blinds. In order to meet the demand, the company added extra help. As the popularity of verticals grew, the concept of "esthetic value" expanded. While verticals are still around and still popular, verticals today, including valances and cornices, are mostly fabric-covered, thus blending easily with any décor.

Bill Fosmer shows some of the hundreds of patterns available at Textile Values Draperies & Blinds on Mason Avenue in Daytona Beach.

Other innovative window treatments, such as shutters, louvers and shades, came in to vogue as well over the past several years. "We've had to adapt to different styles, find a way to embellish the window," Mr. Fosmer said.

Customers have ordered all kinds of hard and soft window coverings. Bamboo is but one example.

Textile Values offers only the best names in the industry, including Hunter Douglas and Kirsch, and other high-end brands.

But Textile Values doesn't stop there. In addition to window enhancements, the company makes bedspreads and pillow shams, tablecloths with matching placemats and napkins, plus throw pillows, and indoor or outdoor chair cushions. Everything is custom-made, on premises.

One of the most significant changes in the business occurred in 2007. When Carol Smith decided to retire, Mr. Fosmer took the helm. Under his leadership and direction, Textile Values has continued to prosper.

Just around the corner, however, was what few people saw coming — an economic slow-down of major proportions. When the nation's economy began to falter in 2009, so did a lot of companies — including this sister-brother team who had worked so long and tirelessly to build a lasting enterprise. In 2010, the "trickle-down effect" had reached into every corner of the nation's housing market, affecting every aspect of the industry. Home owners, contractors, builders, suppliers, decorators, even the textile industry, were in deep trouble. For many small businesses, it was devastating. Some simply could not survive.

"It was a rough three or four years," Mr. Fosmer said. "We were almost out of business."

Though times were hard, Textile Values managed to stay afloat and see things through.

Today, Mr. Fosmer is seeing a resurgence in orders. "Business has picked up," he said.

And Ms. Smith has rejoined the business. In addition to himself, Mr. Fosmer now has another installer, whose wife is employed as a seamstress for the company.

After nearly 40 years in the textile and drapery business, Mr. Fosmer is not slowing down. He continues to offer his customers the best in quality, service and installation. "We also give free estimates," he said. And by all estimates, Textile Values will be around for many years to come.

Textile Values is at 1649 Mason Avenue, Daytona Beach. Store hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Phone: (386) 274-3269.

schools, we need to keep this program," Ms. King said. "This is a good program that we would hate to see leave Seabreeze. It's an asset to all the programs there."

The girls are classically trained sopranos. During the concert, they will sing songs in English, Spanish, Italian and French as well as songs from famous opera singers Josh Groban, Sarah Brightman, Andrea Bocelli and others. They also will perform songs by Celine Dion and Barbara Streisand and others.

"We don't speak the languages, but we have voice teachers who help us with the renditions in Spanish and Italian in Jo Traywick and Anna Maria Cavicchia," Ms. Tomarelli said. "Ms. Cavicchia was born in Italy and is a former opera singer. We do understand what the songs mean though."

Ms. Tomarelli is a freshman at Seabreeze and a member of the theatre program with a 3.6 GPA and her favorite subjects are theatre and Spanish.

Ms. King is home schooled and dual enrolled at Daytona State College with a 4.32 GPA. She enjoys her singing classes, but also math, science, dance and English.

Both girls have been singing for most of their lives.

"I started at six years old in the church choir. One director heard my voice and started giving me lessons," Ms. King said.

"When I was five, my Dad heard me singing in the car one day. He was like Wow! And said let's try it and see how it goes," Ms. Tomarelli said.

Singing is an emotional and spiritual fulfillment for the two young ladies.

"It is often an escape for me from problems at school, with family and friends and etc. It's a good stress reliever," Ms. Tomarelli said.

"Singing is the most magical thing in the world. When you sing, you feel whole. You are where you are supposed to be and doing what you are supposed to be doing," Ms. King said.

The two teamed up thanks to one of their singing coaches. They feel they are the perfect team.

"One of our voice teachers decided that we sound good together. We have been together now for two years. We met through music, but now we are basically like sisters. We are always together on weekends singing. I think our voices blend together," Ms. Tomarelli said.

"I think our voices blend well and are the perfect matches for each other," Ms. King said.

Sam Tomarelli is Ms. Tomarelli's father and serves as manager for the girls.

"In my opinion, they are two of the finest female vocalists in this area," Mr. Tomarelli said. "When their voices blend together it can only be described as amazing. The selection of songs, you won't find anybody else singing this type of music."

The girls are concerned with the state of the arts in schools and are also conscious of the state of the arts in society.

"Budget cuts have taken away a lot of arts programs in school," Ms. King said. "It's sad, because many programs serve as a release for kids. They help relieve stress. Many kids often redefine themselves through the arts, especially music. I wasn't really outgoing as a child, but the arts have helped me. It's also happening in our culture. A lot of people don't know what opera is as well as other art forms of art, theater and music."

"The funding isn't there in schools. The band and dance departments are suffering at our school," Ms. Tomarelli said. "The arts are very important. They need to be respected and we need to pay attention. People need the arts in life. My situation may be different because I really like singing, acting and dancing."

In the future, the girls plan to have music in their lives.

"I am headed to Stetson University and will major in vocal performance," Ms. King said. My long term wish is to be a pastor and work in the church and use music as a form of worship."

"I have three more years of high school left, but I always wanted to be a professional singer," Ms. Tomarelli said. "I know a lot of people do, but singing is my dream."

Daytona Playhouse ends its season with the comedy, 'You Can't Take it With You,' opening Friday, May 10. From left, Abby Wallace as Penelope interrupts the young lovers played by Christiana Luciano and Nick Harshman.

Playhouse ends season with comedy riot

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Daytona Playhouse ends the 2012-13 season with the Pulitzer prize winning comedy, "You Can't Take it With You," directed by Bruce Heighley, opening Friday, May 10, at 100 Jessamine Blvd.

It is the late 1930s and Alice Sycamore (Christiana Luciano) worries her rather wacky family will not meet the standards of her fiancé's family — the dour and straight-laced Kirbys played by Jerry Doty and Anji Brazell.

Tony Kirby (Nick Harshman) invites his parents to the Sycamores a night too early and chaos ensues. Mom Penelope (Abby Wallace) writes racy plays, big sister Essie (Samantha Cooper) pirouettes to her husband Ed's (Alec Luby) expert accompaniment on his xylophone, her father Paul (Robert Siegel) and his friend Mr. De Pinna (Henry Orlowski) try out the latest fireworks in the basement. Rheba, the maid, and her boyfriend Donald (Tiffany Johnson, Elliot Hooper) deftly set out cornflakes and tomatoes for dinner ... all at the same time in the same room. Grandpa Vanderhof (J. Walker Fischer) presides joyfully over the whole brood and his snake aquarium.

At any given moment, the door could open to an eclectic assortment of guests: volatile Russian dance teacher Boris Kolenkhov (Peter Gutierrez) or Her Highness Olga (Madeleine Borth) who works as a local waitress, tipsy actress Gay Wellington (Gretchen Wynegar) or a government man (Jim Borth). It is a riotous night of swinging doors and fireworks popping.

Tickets are $16 for adults, $14 for seniors 55 and older and $5 for 18 and younger. The play runs through May 19.

For more information, call (386) 255-2431 or visit DaytonaPlayhouse.org.

Orchid society will bloom at fairgrounds

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Volusia County Orchid Society will host its 18th annual Orchid Show and Sale, Mother's Day weekend, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, May 11, and Sunday, May 12, at the Hester Exhibit Hall at the Volusia County Fairgrounds, 3100 E. New York Ave., DeLand.

Come see beautiful orchids and orchid exhibits that showcase this year's theme "Garden of Orchids."

Professional orchid growers, including four new to the annual show, will offer thousands of orchids for sale as well as advice on how to grow and care for orchids.

Visitors to the show can purchase orchid corsages and floral arrangements made daily at the society's floral booth.

Bring your orchid plants from home or buy one at the show, and have them repotted or divided by society members for a nominal fee.

Come vote in the People's Choice Awards for the most favored orchid exhibit.

Lectures, demonstrations and door prizes are offered daily. Raffle tickets for orchids and related items will be available and a food concession is on site. Orchids, orchid supplies, and other related items will be available

Week of 5-10-2013

Aries-March 21-April 20

Emotions are running a little high right now. Stay focused on your three top priorities. Relax so you are not scattered .

Taurus-April 21-May 21

Worry weakens your desire. You have begun new projects. Refuse to let the world or demanding people pull you off course and choke out the recent positive gains.

Gemini-May 22-June 22

The more you try to figure things out the less you know. There is a better way to get the right information. It is to "sense" things around you.

Cancer-June 22-July 22

Let go of clutter and outdated things in life. Flow is very important. Have some fun along the way. This will keep you happy and balanced.

Leo-July 23-Aug. 23

You always seem to say and do the right things at the right time. You have a guardian angel watching over you. You also have old-fashioned values and time honored ideals.

Virgo-Aug. 24-Sept. 22

You are unselfish when it comes to helping others with greater needs than your own. Your spirit loves you for this and circle of friends continues to grow.

Libra-Sept. 23-Oct. 23

No matter what happens in life around you, the key is to stay balanced. Keep a lighter touch. Trust your instincts. This is what keeps you balanced.

Scorpio-Oct. 24-Nov. 22

Follow your heart and tell it the way you feel it. Speak your truth. You have great power and you know how to use it.

Sagittarius-Nov. 23-Dec. 21

You are a fountain of inner strength when you need to be. You don't have to be all things to all people all the time, you know.

Capricorn-Dec. 22-Jan. 20

If it isn't any fun and your heart isn't in it, don't do it. Use this idea and you will stay focused instead of getting scattered.

Aquarius-Jan. 21-Feb. 18

True success is measured by the happiness you feel in your own heart first. Do something nice for someone with a greater need than your own. This is the supreme law of happiness.

Pisces-Feb. 19-March 20

You give total loyalty to family, associates and friends. You are a hero and are so humble. You never ask for much back. Your true happiness comes from the deep well of love in your huge heart.

Art Notes

Poetry brothers cross the line

The team of Dan Pels and Bob Calabrese, who bill themselves as the Poetry Brothers, have finally crossed the line — moving from rave reviews in New Smyrna Beach to a full nightclub-style performance on May 11 at Caffeine Bistro and Wine Bar, 49 W. Granada Blvd., Ormond Beach.

The act, which grew out of the Blues Brothers characters of Dan Aykroyd and John Belushi, will bring the two entertainers together with new routines that prove poets can be genuinely fun.

The program, co-sponsored by the Creative Happiness Institute and the Ormond Beach Arts District, has a suggested donation of $5.

A happy hour starts at 6 p.m. and the performance begins at 7 p.m. Those in attendance can order from a full menu available in The Cellar, the room set aside for the performance.

Parking for the event is accessed from New Britain Avenue at the rear of the restaurant. Patrons can park their own vehicle in the lot signed for Rose Villa Restaurant, or use the valet parking beside the back entrance to Caffeine.

For more information, contact Craig Conrey at craig@ormondmainstreet.com or call (386) 337-4567.

Auditions slated

Daytona Playhouse will conduct auditions for children ages 11 to 18 for "Captain Hook's Revenge." a musical comedy at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, May 19, and Monday, May 20, at 100 Jessamine Blvd., Daytona Beach.

For more information, visit daytonaplayhouse.org.

Women celebrated

Stewart Memorial United Methodist Church will celebrate its annual Women's Day during the month of May.

"Worship in the Yard" will be at 6 p.m. Thursday, May 16, at 317 N. Dr. Martin Luther King Blvd., Daytona Beach.

The celebration will culminate with worship on 10:45 a.m. Sunday, May 19, featuring a presentation depicting influential Christian women of four eras — from biblical times to the 21st Century.

Music will be provided by an ensemble of premier vocalists from the area.

The community may attend all activities. For more information, call (386) 255-1895.

Convention elects Daytona pastor to office

The Florida General Baptist Convention elected the Rev. Dr. L. Ronald Durham as vice president during the 138th annual Session at the Rosen Shingle Creek Hotel in Orlando.

For the first time in the 138-year history of the convention, a Daytona Beach pastor has been chosen vice president.

The convention is made up of more than 600 Baptist churches from Pensacola to Key West, and more than 350,000 members. Prior to his selection, Dr. Durham served as the convention corresponding secretary for the past four years.

Dr. Durham will work with pastors assigned by the convention president from the Central Florida area. He will also have in his area of responsibility, the 153-acre property owned by the convention in Palatka., which is used as a retreat, and conference site.

Cycle of domestic violence focus of program

The cycle of domestic violence will be explored at Lifetree Café at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, May 12, at 142 Fairview Ave., Daytona Beach.

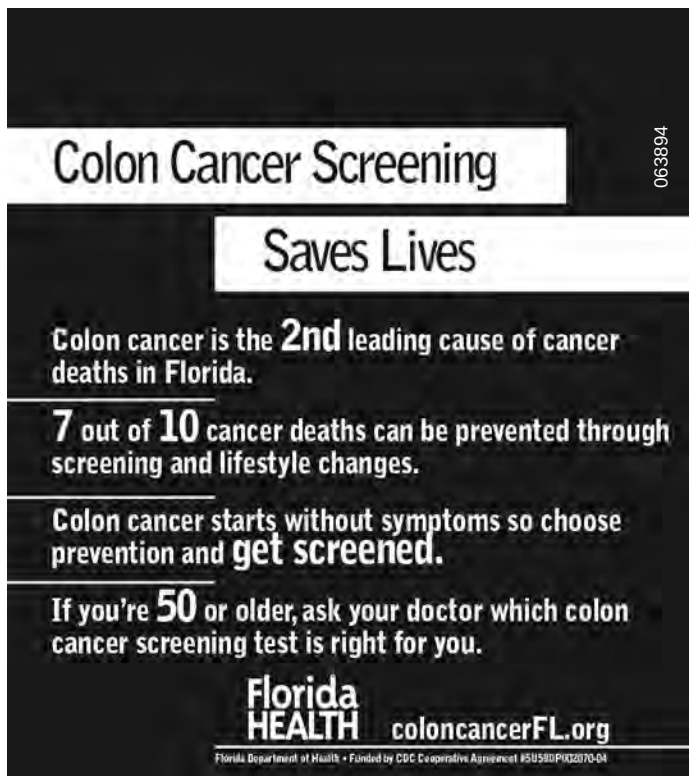
The program, titled "When Love Hurts: Ending the Cycle of Domestic Violence," provides practical strategies for removing those suffering domestic violence from their abusive situations.

Lifetree representative Craig Cable said one in four women experiences domestic abuse. One in nine men is a victim of abuse, he said. "There is help and hope. Both women and men can survive domestic violence."

Admission to the 60-minute event is free. Snacks and beverages are available.

Lifetree Café is a place where people gather for conversation about life and faith in a casual coffeehouse-type setting.

For more information, call (386) 451-5223, (970) 292-4697 or e-mail fmeincke@cfl.rr.com or ccable@group.com.



Blues, reds and a self-releasing trout

FISHING WITH DAN

DAN SMITH

Dang it, the flounder so far have been a real disappointment.

I had one good day and that has been it.

As a follow up to my recent column about bluefish, readers Phyllis and Ed DaSilva of Ormond Beach sent along a photo of a 32-inch bluefish they caught in Strickland Creek. Now that is a big blue for these parts, but the surprising part of that story is where it was caught.

As one who has fished that creek hard for more than 40 years, I can remember catching only one or two bluefish there and they were both small.

A 32-inch bluefish that far from the ocean is a rare catch indeed. I have had a couple big catches myself lately. Before dawn, on the dock at the end of my street, I hooked a manatee. The line broke pretty quickly since I was using 10-pound test on a 1,000-pound animal.

A few days later, I was wading at Tomoka State Park and I hooked another big manatee right in Gary's Inlet. This time the sea cow began to swim parallel to the bank and did give me a line stretch. Now hold on before you begin to write that letter of protest, I hooked both by accident. Believe me I had no intention of trying to catch a manatee with my little trout rod.

Funny thing about that is in all my years fishing locally I can only remember hooking one other. Now I hook two in one week. Strange.

My little jig hook would only represent a mosquito bite to that big old blubbery manatee and I'm sure the critters were not seriously hurt.

On a recent morning, I had a nice trip to Tomoka Basin in my kayak. After about a two-mile paddle, I began to toss my chartreuse jig at a submerged oyster bar I have fished for many years. After three or four casts, my jig took off at a right angle on splashdown. Right away I knew that I was connected to a big, powerful red drum. As my drag screamed for relief, the bull red made lap after lap around the Green Peanut but little by little I began to gain ground.

When I saw the almost quarter-size spot on its tail, I began to worry that it might be oversized but once I had the grippers on it my red turned out to be a perfect keeper. Pinching the tail as far as I could it came to exactly 27 inches and weighed 8 pounds. After that catch, I moved off to look for trout and in one of my favorite trout holes I landed a 22-inch redfish. Not complaining, you understand. Luckily it was very lightly hooked and when I released it, I knew it would live.

Still hoping for sea trout, I continued to pitch my Grandslam chartreuse shrimp tail mounted on a one-quarter ounce white jig head.

My next hook up was a 20- inch red. I have to tell you so far in 2013, my redfish production has been going great guns. Everywhere I go I catch them, even over on the West Coast. After releasing that one, I began the long paddle toward home base and stopped at the engine block. All of the old timers who fish up my way know the engine block is a great trout hole. That place gained its name when a sailboat washed up on an oyster bar and stayed there until nature had completely reclaimed it. Now all that is left is the six cylinder engine block. I switched to the light beer shrimp tail and, just as advertised, the trout began to hit. After turning back a couple of small ones, I hit three keepers in rapid succession. The largest was a fat 17 inches.

Suffering from the lazies, I had the boat full of fish (a 27 inch red and three trout) that should have been on a stringer, when the 17-incher suddenly came to life and hopped over the side. Not a far leap in the Peanut. Oh well, the trout had worked hard for its freedom. Red fishing is really good all around right now, so get out and get yours and be sure to take a kid along.

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for more than 40 years. Email questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net. His book, "I Swear the Snook Drowned," is available for $10.95 at (386) 441-7793.
