County seeking input for bridge

By Andreas Butler
For Hometown News

Volusia County is looking to replace the Veterans Memorial Bridge and has started getting input from residents.

The first monthly meeting on the new bridge that connects Orange Avenue and Silver Beach Avenue was at the Daytona Beach Regional Chamber of Commerce at 126 E. Orange Ave. on June 4.

"This is a community project and we are trying to make sure that all elements of the community are represented," County Councilman Joshua Wagner said.

The Veteran's Memorial Bridge is officially known as the Tom Staed Veterans Memorial Bridge. The bridge connects City Island to the Peninsula/Beachside and goes over the Halifax River.

"Some people call it the Orange Avenue bridge and others the Silver Beach bridge. I think that once it's done it will be known as the Veterans Memorial Bridge," Councilman Wagner said.

The structure was built in 1947 and is now obsolete.

"This is one of our oldest bridges and it's close to failure. When it breaks down we have to go out and get custom parts, which are very expensive. It's only a matter of time when we won't be able to drive over it," Wagner said.

The plan is to demolish the bridge and replace it with a new one by 2016.

"We will build a completely new bridge. We have a few years in the planning phases and then a few years with the actual construction," Councilman Wagner said.

There are funds available for the project. The county already has secured $48 million in federal funds.

"It's all federally funded. We got the funding a few years ago. Without the federal funding we couldn't do it. I don't think that we will spend the entire amount," Councilman Wagner said.

There are discussions to build an arch style bridge with underpasses for fishing and a veterans' memorial park adjacent to the bridge. There are also ideas of putting plaques commemorating the armed forces, military units and local veterans.

The bridge project is separate from the city of Daytona Beach's Orange Avenue Redevelopment Plan.

Residents that attended the meeting are excited about the possibilities of the new bridge.

"I think that the ideas surrounding this project are pretty good. I think that it's too bad that the plaques aren't in brail like at theme parks. It will also be nice to have people put their family members' who served plaques there," Scott Lar-

Commissioners can't see approving tower

By Richard Mundy
For Hometown News

The Ormond Beach City Commissioners denied permission to Capital Intercom and AT&T to build a 150-foot camouflaged telecommunications tower at 1102 W. Granada Blvd. by a 4 to 1 vote.

Mayor Ed Kelley was the lone vote for the application. The tower would have been built in the South Forty Trails subdivision.

Ric Goss, Ormond Planning Director, gave a presentation explaining the proposed ordinance to allow the tower to be built at West Granada and Clyde Morris Boulevard.

Mr. Goss explained two specific issues the Site Plan Review Committee used as reason for denying the application. First, the property was already an existing non-conforming developed site and an additional use would require the site to be brought up to code. Secondly the proposed tower has a required 300-foot setback from residential property. The application

School retirees go out with a bang

By Patti Light
For Hometown News

The Pine Trail Players 2013 Retirement Roast had its largest show ever on Friday, May 31. More than 100 people came to The Venue in Ormond Beach to honor the six retirees of the school, including Lynn Skierski Boesen, Jan Brokaw, Barbara Gionfriddo, Diane LeJeune, Carol Leonard and Melissa Paro, with dinner and a show.

Now an annual presentation, the event began years ago when Courtney Ronco started writing skits and songs "roasting" those retiring, and the event has grown to include six acts of song, dance, skits and music. The costumes are outrageous; the skits poke fun at the teachers and their experiences.

County Council considers appraiser data for CRAs

By Erika Webb
ewebb@hometownnewsol.com

Volusia County Property Appraiser Morgan Gilreath told County Commissioners that Community Redevelopment Areas are noble, but they inequitably shift the tax burden.

At the regular council meeting June 6, the property appraiser presented a CRA blight analysis titled "Using Property Appraisal Data To Assist in Analyzing Blight."

Its purpose: to present an objective view of real estate information to aid city and county decision makers in addressing CRAs.

"This is not a blight study," Mr. Gilreath said. "This is looking at some of what I call blight-related building characteristics and some other information."

He discussed blight related characteristics, effects of CRAs on countywide taxation and outcomes — as in, are there any?

"The Florida statutes have been amended to the point where, according to the statutes … you could define a tile floor as blighted," the property appraiser said.

The purpose of legislation for CRAs is to fix a blighted area, he explained.

"When is it fixed?" he said.

There are 16 existing 30-year CRAs in Volusia and $10 million annually funding them; over half of that is from the county's general fund.

"To my knowledge we have the most CRAs of any county in Florida," Mr.

CRAs

Gilreath said.

He explained 57 percent of money going to CRAs is "shifted into the city" by taxpayers from all over Volusia County.

"If you have a blighted area, a CRA performs a noble purpose. Fixing a blighted area is a good thing," Mr. Gilreath said.

But, he countered, "tax shifting inequities" occur when a designated geographic area is not blighted.

Those also occur when there is blight and CRA monies are targeted so city operating budget funds are re-directed as a result of "extra outside funding."

"Taking money from citizens outside of a city and, through budgetary shifting from one account to another, covering (even indirectly) costs which would be city costs, is what I call 'Tax Shifting Inequities,'" his report stated.

"Taxation of people across this county is what CRAs do. That's a serious deal in my mind," he told the council.

In his "building blight" analysis Mr. Gilreath separated residential from commercial/industrial land use and identified two items in the data base for qualifying buildings: quality of construction and historical value changes for the past 20 years.

The analysis indicated residential and commercial properties showed different building "blight characteristics," and concluded there "appears to be more residential than commercial "blight" at this point in existing CRAs."

In addition to separating residential and commercial data for analysis, Mr. Gilreath proposed a "land use mix analysis" for decision makers to examine whether or not CRA project funding illustrates the areas showing the greatest blight are receiving the greatest project funding.

"These statistics should be measured against the same data countywide and citywide," his report stated.

"It is possible that you could have a blighted area residentially and you put money into commercial properties in that area and continue to appear blighted," Mr. Gilreath said in a phone interview after the meeting. "In terms of CRAs, you should be able to say, 'How much did you get and where did you spend it?'"

Rental rates should be part of every CRA study, he advised the council, noting lower rental rates may be indicative of blight.

To determine blight-related characteristics for buildings Mr. Gilreath recommended establishing a "minimum level" point 15 to 20 percent below countywide and citywide averages for quality of construction and building depreciation.

The property appraiser cited DeLand's Spring Hill CRA as having "the highest blight characteristics of any (of the CRAs) we have."

"That was a good one," he said.

County Manager Jim Dineen recommended the council utilize Mr. Gilreath's data as an elemental resource in the CRA application review process.

Mr. Dineen suggested it would be beneficial to have Mr. Gilreath take a "laser view" of a community, "in terms of what they supply" along with physical characteristics to provide a more valid picture of needs and projected outcomes.

"I do believe this will help the community when they submit an application," Mr. Dineen said. "I think they will be better focused themselves."

Councilwoman Joyce Cusack said she's in favor of seeking the property appraiser's input as leaders proceed with CRAs. She asked if she understood correctly that "money can be used from outside the CRA."

Mr. Gilreath reiterated that 57 percent is already coming from the general fund, that cities are indirectly taxing citizens who don't live in those cities.

He called using tax revenues generated outside of the CRA a "questionable practice."

Council member Doug Daniels said he has a different view.

"This is a poor county," Mr. Daniels said. "Having CRAs is one of the very few economic development tools we have, and we have to use it, but we have to use it wisely."

He said just analyzing properties as they are, is a static way of looking at things, not the right way.

Looking at potential CRAs in terms of end result — return on investment, employment potential and the likelihood that financial circumstances of citizens within the community would improve as a result of establishing a CRA — is what decision makers should be looking at, he said.

When commercial circumstances within a CRA improve, residential will follow suit as a result, he added.

"As far as urban counties in Florida, we are, let's face it, the sick man of Florida," Councilman Daniels said.

Finally, Mr. Gilreath noted establishing CRA success criteria — "non-existent at present" — is important.

"There is simply no existing written criteria to suggest when blight is over," he noted.

He proposed creating definitions for quantifiable statistics that will cure the blight in terms of businesses, new employment, increased prices, increased rentals and other factors.

"You can't be successful if you don't know what success is," he said.

In search of the disappearing Florida alligator

LAND LINES

DAN SMITH

Volusia County occupies a kind of a strange niche as a tourism destination.

Florida as a whole is well known as a winter getaway for refugees from points north and we get our fair share of those.

Each year Canadians, Europeans and visitors from the northern states flock to this county with the strange name in hopes of enjoying a mild winter like the one we just experienced.

Our most famous event is in February when the racing world turns its eye on Daytona International Speedway for the Daytona 500.

Of course, the largest event is Bike Week in March, but no matter what the calendar says, that is not a winter happening.

For the most part Eastern Volusia County is decidedly a summertime destination. Thousands of Americans and people from abroad come here to visit our endless beach. Most of those will tell you they are thrilled just to see the palm trees and the Atlantic Ocean.

Many will privately confess the hope of seeing alligators and sharks. The public holds a childlike fascination for our most famous predators. They want to see them — just not too closely. They enjoy knowing that gators and sharks are about, but usually that knowledge alone is enough for them.

As a fisherman I am often asked about both. Whenever I am surf fishing and wading couples ask what I usually catch? I always reply: sharks. It amazes me to watch them retreat from the four inches of water they were standing in.

Of course, most of the questions are about the alligators.

These days alligators have become pretty big TV stars. The tourists are invariably surprised to hear of my indifference to the big lizards. They want to know why I am not afraid to be in my little kayak in these gator-infested waters? When I tell them I don't give it much thought, they are amazed.

The tourists don't know that I was raised in the Great Atchafalaya Swamp in Southern Louisiana. There I co-existed with gators for all of my young life. If that name sounds familiar, it is the swamp where all of the alligator hunting takes place on the History Channel's show "Swamp People." I suppose my first encounter was when a young gator swallowed my red and white fishing bobber when I was 10 years old. Pretty good fun for a kid.

Unfortunately the alligator population of Eastern Volusia County is nearly depleted. Last fall when I met Troy Landry of "Swamp People," we spoke of the loss of alligator habitat there and here.

When I first arrived on these shores more than 45 years ago, gators were very common. Every pond had at least one resident alligator and seeing one cross a road was not unusual at all. Sharing space with them while fishing was also common. Now it is rare to see one east of Interstate 95.

A few years ago, there was one living in the spring fed stream on North Beach Street near the Fairchild Oak and a big one could usually be found sunning near Sanchez Park in Ormond Beach. No more.

Now if you want to see gators, you will need to go west to places like Lake Woodruff or the St. Johns River near Osteen. After a baby gator showed up on the beach recently, I took a trip in my kayak looking for alligators near Bulow Creek State Park.

On a high tide, I took my kayak into places no one had been in years and looked for gator sign. No nests, no slides, no wallows— nothing.

These days, tourists have little reason to worry about me being devoured in my little kayak. Sometime back, a family of pasty white visitors stood on the bank to watch me paddle by. "See any alligators" they happily asked? "Why yes," I answered. "There was one right there a few minutes ago." Before I had the words out, the family had bolted in every direction as fast as their pale legs could carry them. The father was fastest and left their toddler to fend for himself. Naturally I really enjoyed that scene. On a slow fishing day, you take your fun where you find it.

son said.

"As for the park, I like the idea of people putting their family member names on plaques. Maybe at the top of the bridge let's put their service unit names," David Farris said.

"I like the idea of using the arch design and the educational standpoint. I just would like to see the five branches of the armed services logos up in color and being distinctive," David Sewell said.

But not all were pleased with what they saw and heard at the meeting.

"I am disappointed. I haven't heard why this is a good project yet. Why do we need this?" July Chive asked.

Tower

proposed a waiver of 117 feet making the setback 183 feet. That would also reduce the maximum tower height to 91 feet.

Mr. Goss said the Planning Department would also recommend denial of the application.

Lauralee G. Westine, agent for AT&T, Capital Telecom and property owner Shah Industries Inc., presented details on the request, citing such benefits to the city as enhanced 911 service as well as increased data capacity as demand continues to increase.

She said during an April 4 public hearing, Dick Morgart, president of the South Forty Trails Home Owners' Association, indicated his group had no objection to the tower.

Ms. Westine exhibited a number of photographs and maps showing locations and sightlines as well as several photographs showing what the tower would look like when placed in the surrounding landscape. The applicant is proposing a "MonoPine" tower, which is a "camouflaged" tree-shaped structure with the transmitters hidden within the branches. The "trunk" would be painted brown and the branches green, simulating a tall pine tree.

The tower has been variously called everything from a toilet brush, a Frankenpine, a tall artificial Christmas tree, a sign of progress and a necessity.

Ms. Westine said, according to the Volusia County Sheriff's Office, 75 percent of the more than 318,000 calls to 911 were made on cell phones.

Also, she said the city's Fire Department, Police Department and the Sheriff's Office use AT&T as one of their service providers and AT&T will be the anchor tenant in the proposed tower.

Lack of capacity to handle an increase in usage would result in dropped and blocked calls, Ms. Westine said. Reducing the height of the towers would decrease this capacity.

Only two citizens spoke against the resolution — Lee Khazraee, who lives 7 miles from the proposed tower, and Dr. Charlene Evans Thomas, who lives across the street from it. Dr. Thomas was concerned that if the tower is not going to have a light on it, a plane could hit it.

In other business, the city agreed to pay River Bend Investment Group $230,000 to settle a lawsuit filed in 1989. River Bend and the city entered into a lease agreement regarding the building and operation of a golf course. The lease called for trees on a green belt buffer area to be maintained by the city in a "natural condition." The city removed the trees. In an attempt to remedy the problem, the city spent $350,000 to create a berm and concrete wall. This was unacceptable to the River Bend Group.

Also, the commissioners voted unanimously to place new restrictions on businesses that are sexually oriented. Treading lightly around first amendment rights, they agreed to the use of zoning restrictions and special and conditional use criteria for the businesses.

We need the trees

New Smyrna Beach is a beautiful small city steeped in history and boasting some of the best beaches around.

My favorite beach in particular is the wild beach of the Çanaveral National Seashore.

We have such a lovely entrance into New Smyrna when coming off of Interstate 95 and onto State Road 44.

What makes SR44 so nice is the great stretches of old native woods (jungle). However, recently there has been an awful lot of destruction along SR44 right past Murphy's gas station.

Unfortunately not a whole lot of the beautiful native woodlands of New Smyrna beach have been designated preservation lands, actually only a small portion are protected. I am sad to see the destruction and even sadder to hear a Ford dealership is moving in where once lived our native trees and wildlife. We cannot afford to lose trees; they are a very important part of the ecosystem and keep balance to our ever-changing environment. Plus woodlands are the home of a great variety of plant and animal species.

I hope our city can try to make a difference and not be like everywhere else. Keep our city green and beautiful. Are you reading this, city commissioners and planning and zoning committee members? I know a lot of New Smyrna Beach residents feel the same as I do about the destruction of our beautiful woodlands off SR44. Please keep this city beautiful!

In response to: 'Why so negative'

I agree with "Why So Negative," and hope that one of your Rant & Rave columns will include only raves — we get tired of all the rants all the time.

We have so much to be grateful for.

Yee haw, parking

Wheeeee Doggies! We are getting so excited about having parking meters on Flagler Avenue and the Boardwalk.

Our local merchants and their employees cannot wait.

Now they have to plug meters every two hours or find a very rare parking spot. We condo owners along the beach are also very excited. Now people can come looking for a place to park for free. Guess we can all hire another employee to sit outside all day to have them towed. Towaway signs do not work.

Most towns are doing away with meters. Wonder how much our public officials paid to have this survey done. Did they also do a search to see how many of these would be vandalized in a month, and how much to replace?

Seems to me there is a nice empty spot on the North Causeway for a huge parking garage, and then bus them to the beach. Oh, I forgot. We want to sell that parcel and make tons of money. Turning into another Daytona Beach.

Grocery store aid

I would like to thank the lady behind me at the discount grocery store on Mason Avenue and Nova Road for paying for my groceries when I didn't have enough money at the check out. All my life I helped others out and it was very appreciated when this lady helped me when I needed it.

Thank you and God bless you.

Customer care

On TV and in newsprint ads, you see a big box store stating they are better and cheaper than a large food chain.

I used to shop the food chain and it was always a good experience — polite and willing to do whatever it took to please the customer.

Recently I was picking up a DVD at the big box store and saw a sale on bacon. After picking up several other things, I went through the check out. Upon reaching my car I realized I was overcharged for the bacon by almost $1. I went back into the store and went to the meat manager. He said it was the lower price and I would be refunded my money. I understood they had a policy if overcharged, that item was free up to $3. So I went to the customer service and was only given the difference in the actual price not the total that I paid up to $3. The manager told me they don't have that policy anymore. Well, it isn't worth it to me to have to run back and forth to the store because they don't set their prices right.

As I told some other people about this, they informed me they had the same thing happen to them at that store with cherries. The sign said cherries were $1 per pound. Several people took the bag weighing approximately two to three pounds and were charged $12 at the register. They were told the sign is wrong. We have to change it. Guess where I will be shopping from now on, the store that cares about their customers.

In response to: Vietnam Veterans of America

I will comment on the recent letter by Sgt. Larry Wersley of Vietnam Veterans of America.

Yes, there are plenty of us who do not respond kindly to the "welcome home" comment.

I know a lot of men who will never join because of that phrase.

I have a patch on my vest that states 58,044 brothers (and sisters) died for America in this war.

Yeah, I know they added a few more later, but that was the first one issued from our "group."

We did not "dodge the draft" or go to Canada or other countries. Our President Lyndon Johnson asked for our help and we gave it.

Please don't tell a Vietnam veteran welcome home. After being spit on by progressive hippies, it doesn't help. We just get ticked off.

Heck, try being a "real" man/woman and buy him a "coldone" and for God's sake don't say "thank you", because you're about 40 years too late.

"Seedy South Daytona"

Recently, there was an article in the Hometown News describing our city as being "seedy", and it is believed that the writer is "right on."

As any of you travel around our small city, put away your cell phone, quit texting and look out your window. It is amazing, but a shame to see some of the things that are left behind by those who litter.

A small list would include: beer bottles, plastic bottles of all sorts, soiled baby diapers, dog waste, lottery tickets, candy wrappers, egg cartons and hundreds of other items that make our city look like a trash dump.

With the recent rainfall, look at the drains that are clogged from the trash and debris that has been thrown from autos and disposed by unconcerned individuals. We, as citizens, have a responsibility to keep our area, including our streets litter free.

Hopefully the citizens of our city will read Hometown News and dispose of it in the recycle bin and not let it lie in the front of their home.

Wants to keep antenna

Why should I have to remove the roof antenna after I do not have a TV satellite contract?

After all, the satellite company installed it. I need help. What do you think?

Keep the memory in Memorial Day

I think it is shameful that people use Memorial Day for a sales pitch. The dollar comes first and the veterans come second. I have people say have a happy Memorial Day. Do they know what Memorial Day is all about?

Leave your pets at home

Pet lovers please leave your pets home when shopping. If you really love your pets, do not leave them in the hot car while you are shopping, no matter if it's 5 minutes or 15 minutes. The car is way too hot.

Tattoos are not makeup

Tattoo artists are not the same as makeup artists. Make up you can wash off. If commissioners think they are the same, then they should go to the tattoo parlor and have them tattoo stupid on their forehead. What's next, massage parlor?

Oceanview property starting to sell fast

VOLUSIA BUSINESS
CECIL G. BRUMLEY

It's not exactly a land rush, but there's evidence the new projects on Atlantic Avenue in Daytona Beach are spurring interest in vacant beachside property.

Most recently, an investor named Boris Chernousov bought vacant land at 1930 S. Atlantic Ave. and 55-61 Schulte Ave. in Daytona Beach Shores. Both parcels were owned by FCB Properties LLC and were one time part of the Bray & Gillespie portfolio. The South Atlantic property has 1.56 acres, is zoned mixed use and sold for $400,000. The Schulte Avenue site is .86 acres, zoned tourist commercial and sold for $75,000.

"The interest in land on the west side of Atlantic Avenue has been increasing now that most of the oceanfront parcels have been sold," said Tom Corso of Charles Wayne Properties in a news release. "The purchase of these two parcels is the last of FCB Properties LLC holdings, the holding entity for Bank of the Ozarks in Volusia County."

Mr. Corso, who represented Bank of the Ozarks in the deal, ended up with the portfolio after it purchased Park Avenue Bank, one of the many lenders in the Bray & Gillespie empire that filed for bankruptcy in 2008.

He expects the South Atlantic property to develop quickly. "The property has mixed use zoning, excellent visibility, location and dimension creating attractive upside potential. The land on Schulte Avenue is a little more challenging since it is a block off Atlantic Avenue, requiring more creativity and time to develop."

Jon Zolsky of Fun Coast Realty LLC represented the buyer, who used the corporate name 1930 South Atlantic Ave., LLC.

Speaking of the new projects, a step was taken on at least one of them recently. The Protogroup obtained a permit to demolish the old hotel at 500 N. Atlantic Ave., which means the intent to start construction this year is still there. Multimillion dollar projects like that one and the planned Hard Rock Hotel & Café move slowly, so don't expect too much too soon. You can't rush something with that much money involved.

The economic indicators continue to point to improvement in Volusia County. Initial claims for unemployment compensation were at 1,691 in May, down from 1,837 in May 2012. Bed tax collections countywide were at $698,000 in April, up just .6 percent from $694,000 in April 2012. Both statistics show the area continues to see slow, steady improvement. It's probably not enough for folks who are still in shell shock from the Great Recession, but at least it's headed in the right direction.

The Atlantic Ocean isn't the only waterfront creating business interest in Volusia. Kittredge Investments wants to build a marina, restaurant and fish camp on a 25.4-acre site on the St. Johns River along Lemon Bluff Road, east of Osteen. Lemon Bluff is a part of Volusia that most county residents probably have no idea exists, yet it has steadily developed over the years. Also, St. Johns Marina, west of DeLand on State Road 44, wants to increase its boat slips to 170 and add a small RV park for overnight guests.

Here's a head scratcher for you. Chase Bank wants to knock down the big souvenir shop at Dunlawton Boulevard and Peninsula Avenue in Daytona Beach Shores and put up an office there. It would be built across the intersection from DiMucci Cos.' new office building. And, yes, that's the souvenir shop that was just built a few years ago to replace the Pizza Hut that was heavily damaged in the 2004 hurricanes.

In one of the biggest steals in quite some time, a Canadian investor has acquired Indigo Golf Club for $1.25 million. It previously sold for $3.6 million in 2006. Indigo was one of the premier golf courses for many years in Daytona Beach and, with a little sprucing up, it could be again.

In case you've forgotten about Raydon Corp., one of Volusia's most high-tech businesses, it's still rolling along. The U.S. Army has awarded it a multi-year contract valued at more than $40 million to design, develop and deliver common driver trainer systems for combat vehicles that are based in Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Japan and Korea.

Managing Editor Cecil G. Brumley has been tracking business in Volusia County for more than 16 years. Contact him at cbrumley@hometownnewsol.com or follow him on Twitter @cecilbrumley.

Lullaby chime welcomes newborns daily at Halifax Health

Halifax Health Medical Center of Daytona Beach now commemorates new births with a special lullaby chime that rings throughout the hospital.

The idea for the lullaby chime came from Kathleen Dulko, corporate controller for Halifax Health, who shared the idea with Bonnie Wittman, service line administrator for the Center for Women & Infant Health at Halifax Health, during a meeting.

Ms. Wittman led the effort with assistance from Lisa Viccaro, a marketing specialist for Halifax Health, who helped to select the song used, and Chad Hutchinson, a biomedical engineering coordinator for Halifax Health, who oversaw the installment of the new public announcement system.

After a year-plus effort, the lullaby chime, which plays "Happy Birthday to You" to announce each birth at the medical center, began welcoming new arrivals on May 21.

Halifax Health receives Trauma II Center recertification

Halifax Health has been recertified as a Level II Trauma Center and a designated Florida Brain and Spinal Cord Injury Program "Acute Care Facility."

The medical center remains the only facility in Volusia County with a Level II Trauma Center and the "Acute Care Facility" designation. Due to the site survey process, Halifax Health has instituted positive changes to its program.

The certification is granted through June 2020.

Hospital earns Center of Excellence designation

Florida Hospital Memorial Medical Center has been designated as a Center of Excellence in Woman's Health Surgeries by the American Institute of Minimally Invasive Surgery.

Earning the distinction means the hospital has not met the American Institute of Minimally Invasive Surgery' stringent standards.

To obtain the certification, all gynecological surgeries, which include both open and minimally invasive procedures, are included in the data review.

Minimally invasive surgery is also known as laparoscopic surgery and is an alternative to open abdominal surgery.

Florida Hospital earns an "A" in patient safety

Florida Hospital Memorial Medical Center was recognized with an "A" Hospital Safety Score by The Leapfrog Group, an independent national nonprofit run by employers and other large purchasers of health benefits.

"Patient safety is central to our mission," said Dr. Ron Jimenez, Florida Hospital Memorial Medical Center Chief Medical Officer. "I would like to thank our dedicated doctors, nurses, and staff for working with us on this common goal."The A scores were awarded in the latest update to the Hospital Safety Score. The A, B, C, D or F scores are assigned to U.S. hospitals based on preventable medical errors, injuries, accidents and infections.

As the first and only hospital safety rating to be peer-reviewed in the Journal of Patient Safety, the Hospital Safety Score is designed to give the public information they can use to protect themselves and their families.

and wigs. And we're gonna have mimes this year during the cocktail hour, which we've never done before," said Ms. Ronco, adding that the only people who are semi-professional is The Firecrackers, a female quartet that performs locally. "Judy Levine is the music professor and it's all live music."

A total of 20 performers started rehearsal and preparations in March, resulting in the hour-long show, followed by dinner from D.B.Pickles. (Pete and Carol Polzella own both the restaurant and The Venue.) Ms. Ronco said her background in dance and choreography, along with her work with The Firecrackers is the basis of the creations. Dozens of volunteers helped with the preparations, costumes, props and rehearsals.

In typical roast fashion, they picked on particular idiosyncrasies and endearing traits. But the real purpose of the Retirement Roast is to honor the dedication of the teachers and employees, not to mention their years of service at the school.

"When you leave teaching, it's a big hole in your life. It's been your whole life — morning, noon and night," explained Ms. Ronco, herself a retired teacher. "When you teach, you don't work for money, you just do it. So leaving it is hard. We try to give people some joy when they are leaving."

Circuit Judge Terence R. Perkins named chief judge

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Circuit Judge Terence R. Perkins will lead the Seventh Judicial Circuit as chief judge beginning July 1.

Elected by the 42 judges in Flagler, Putnam, St. Johns and Volusia counties, Judge Perkins will supervise the circuit during his two-year term. He also will continue his duties on the bench, where he hears civil cases in Daytona Beach.

On the bench since 2010, Judge Perkins succeeds Circuit Judge William A. Parsons whose second term as chief judge ends June 30. Following his chief judge term, Judge Parsons will continue to hear civil cases in Daytona Beach.

Judge Perkins earned both his undergraduate and juris doctor degrees from the University of Florida. He spent about 30 years in private practice with the Daytona Beach firm of Monaco, Smith, Hood, Perkins, Orfinger and Stout before his appointment to the bench.

"Judge Parsons led the circuit through a time of tremendous change," Judge Perkins said. "Due to elections and gubernatorial appointments, eight new judges have joined us in the past two years. We've also experienced changes in the way we do business with advances in technology, including electronic filing and a new criminal justice information system in Volusia County. Additionally, foreclosures continue to be a priority across the state as the economy is trying to rebound. Through all of this,

Judge Terence R. Perkins

Judge Parsons' vision and leadership has ensured the fair and efficient administration of justice in our local courts.

"I'm honored to be able to serve the circuit as chief judge and look forward to the challenges and opportunities that await us," he said.

Partners launch food drive

During the month of June, all Goodwill retail stores and attended donation centers in Central Florida will participate in the "Fill the Need" food drive with Second Harvest Food Bank.

Donations will support Second Harvest's "Fighting Hunger, Feeding Hope" campaign, which helps feed children while school is out during the summer months. Residents are encouraged to drop off non-perishable food items, along with their Goodwill donations.

"Many children who depend on their school's free or reduced lunches often go hungry during the summer months," said Dave Krepcho, president and CEO of Second Harvest Food Bank. "And as the need for food increases, so does the need for donations."

"Partnering with Second Harvest is a natural fit for Goodwill — especially for such an important cause," said Bill Oakley, president and CEO of Goodwill Industries of Central Florida. "We encourage residents to drop off non-perishable food items, along with their Goodwill donations."

Goodwill stores and attended donation centers in Volusia County are participating in the drive, which runs June 1-30. Goodwill stores are at DeLand, Edgewater, Holly Hill, Orange City and Port Orange.

The Black Sheep: Two years old and growing strong

The Black Sheep Pub & Eating House in Ormond Beach is celebrating its second anniversary. The owners are Sarah Lipman, from left, and her parents Jacquie and Eddie Lipman.

In 2011, a restaurant called The Black Sheep opened its doors and joined the long row of eating establishments along Atlantic Avenue in Ormond Beach.
Since then, this "new kid on the block" has earned its niche as one of the best.

For owners Eddie and Jacquie Lipman, The Black Sheep is their fourth restaurant in the Daytona Beach area. The couple owned the well-known Sly Fox Inn in South Daytona, which they operated for 10 years. Prior to that they owned Lawton's British Pub and the Union Jack Pub in Daytona Beach Shores.

Fast forward to spring 2013 and you'll find the same combination that first propelled the Black Sheep into the limelight — a comfortable and relaxing environment with both indoor and outdoor seating, great food, excellent service and, on weekends, live entertainment.

That tried and true formula is still going strong. Except for a tweak or two, little has changed since the English-Irish theme restaurant opened two years ago.

"There's been a slight variation in the food and drink menus," Mr. Lipman said, "but it's pretty much the same."

The restaurant's "claim to fame" is the "Pub Grub" section of the menu, which features British fare. The Black Sheep's award -winning Famous Fish and Chips, the "Sheep-herd's Pie", Belfast Bangers and Mash, Cockney Fried Steak, and liver, bacon and onions are just some of the notable selections.
Black Sheep also offers a daily lunch special — something different and delicious each day. The set price is $5.95 and includes a soft drink, coffee or tea.

Also featured daily are cocktail specials — and the Beer of the Day. With so many brands in house, and 36 on tap, the Black Sheep is the perfect place for just the right brew. For those seeking to quench their thirst a little earlier in the day, Happy Hour is from 3 to 7 p.m., then again from 9 p.m. to closing.
On Wednesdays, Local Night, Happy Hour begins at 3 p.m. and continues to closing.

In addition to the robust good food and generous libations, the Black Sheep provides plenty of entertainment to keep its customers coming back. Every Wednesday from 4 p.m. to close is Trivia Night. The event draws a lot of people who otherwise may not get out often. "It's a way of socializing," Mrs. Lipman said. "It's been extremely popular for locals, especially during the winter months." Every Friday and Saturday evening from 7 to 10 p.m., there's live music — no earplugs needed.

Coming soon to Black Sheep is Hospitality Night, a program designed to give back to those who work in the hospitality industry or restaurant business. Essentially, the program offers discounts on menu and drink items to other restaurant workers. A special ID card proving one's employment is required.
Cards are issued by The Black Sheep only and are accepted every night from 8 p.m. to closing.

For Eddie and Jacquie Lipman, success comes with long hours and hard work. "We haven't had a day off in over two years," Mr. Lipman said. But there are no regrets. "We have lots of faithful repeat customers, regulars, even from Canada (and other areas closer by)," Mrs. Lipman added. "They know the food is good, and they feel safe. We try our best."

To mark the second anniversary on June 13, the owners are planning a party — and you are invited. The weekend of June 15–16, the restaurant will offer a number of food and drink specials.
The Black Sheep is at 890 S. Atlantic Ave., Ormond Beach. Open daily from 11 a.m.

Robotics students take third in challenge

Luis Zengotita, education associate at the Museum of Arts & Sciences, led a team of the museum's 13- to 15- year-old home school students to a third place victory in the rings competition of the National SeaPerch Challenge on Saturday, May 18, in Indianapolis.

The students were competing with an aquatic robot they made in the museum's weekly home school class that began in February.

Three of the students Abby Butka of Palm Coast, Nickolas Serle of Ormond Beach and Alexander Skoppe of DeLand competed at the National SeaPerch Challenge. SeaPerch is an underwater robotics program that provides teachers and students with resources to build underwater Remotely Operated Vehicles in in-school or out-of-school settings. The museum's team was among 88 teams from 27 states and Puerto Rico.

The project began with the submission of a grant to SeaPerch wherein the students requested an aquatic robot kit. Once the kit was received, the 15 students began learning about underwater robots, the tools needed and the best techniques for building the robot. The students created what they thought would work best for various underwater challenges. They designed the robot, soldered the pieces and put the entire machination together under the supervision of Mr. Zengotita.

"I am very proud of all my students who worked on this project! I cannot wait to try it again next year," he said.

Mr. Zengotita's home school classes are offered weekly at the museum for preschool, elementary and middle-school aged students and cover a wide variety of topics from science and physics to business, art and literature. Call (386) 255-0285 or visit moas.org for information.

Make Father's Day a fishing day

FISHING WITH DAN

DAN SMITH

My Dad was a fisherman. Not the aggressive, always looking for a bigger catch type that I am, but a fisherman none-the-less.

My old man was just as happy jerking perch with a cane pole as landing a five-pound largemouth on expensive tackle.

Actually, I believe he preferred blue gill fishing above all others.

When I was a little kid, I can't remember him going fishing without me. At the time I didn't think much about it, but by the time I was an adult I knew he had given me perhaps the greatest gift he could have. I have such happy memories of fishing the Louisiana swamp as a kid and in each of those memories my pop is right there. He was taken by cancer in 1986 at age 70. Much too young. I have missed him every day since.

In his later years, my mom was usually his fishing partner since I was too busy trying to raise a family a lot of the time. My mistake. The love for the outdoors he instilled in me has guided much of my life.

If you are lucky enough to still have your father this weekend why not take him fishing?

If you have children to bring along, so much the better. Most of the dads who are now a little too old to begin a fishing trip on their own still have the desire in their hearts. It need not be a big deal. Maybe a couple chairs on a nearby pier or sitting beneath a shade tree on the bank of a pond. Even if he catches nothing, he will enjoy the fresh air and the squeals of the children each time a bobber moves.

A good pace to begin your trip would be in your local tackle store. If your dad is up there in years, he may not have been inside a modern, fully stocked tackle shop in many years. The new lures, rods and reels, and boating electronics may be as foreign to your dad as it is to your kids. These days a good tackle shop carries equipment for the inshore, offshore and the fresh water. There are lots to see.

If you can get the old man and the kids into the boat, you are bound to have a great time. Let the kids and your dad take turns piloting as you rig the lines for trolling. Assign each of your crew a line and slow troll the river as you enjoy the sightseeing and the good company. That is a satisfying kind of fun.

Before my mom died in 1992, I had the good sense to take her and her sister trolling in Lake Monroe just east of the Interstate 4 bridge. I had found a school of small sunshine bass that were very aggressive. As the fish hit, the two ladies laughed together as they probably had not since they were young girls back in South Carolina. That was a good memory for me and I'm sure for them as well.

My dad would have been proud of me on that day.

My own son was only three when my dad passed away. I have always regretted he never had the chance to share a boat with my pop.

Don't miss the chance to get your own kids fishing with your dad. If he is already; gone look around, there is probably an older gentleman in your neighborhood who would love to do a little fishing. You can't lose by taking someone fishing. Our sport is so much more than meat on the table and the thrill of a hard pull on the line. It is being one with nature and at the same time sharing with the people you love. Each time I am out on the water on a beautiful morning my spirits soar. There is no feeling like it. Thank you dad.

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for more than 40 years. Email questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net. His book, "I Swear the Snook Drowned," is available for $10.95 at (386) 441-7793.

Mary Lloyd of Team Sea No Evil caught the biggest king fish at 30 pounds and the second largest at 27.4 pounds.

In other news, the club will host its second Family Dinner Meeting at 6 p.m. with a presentation on the sharks of Volusia County at 7 p.m. on Thursday, June 20, at the Riverside Pavilion, 3431 S. Ridgewood Ave., Port Orange.

Chad Macfie of the Marine Science Center in Ponce Inlet will give the presentation on sharks, including how to identify them, how to aid in their conservation, good stewardship and avoiding fisheries violations.

The deadline for reservations is Friday, June 14. For reservations, call Capt. Don Martin at (386) 871-5351 or email afm198@aol.com.

New Daytona Resident Receives Tennis Service Award

Jason Gilbert, who recently joined the U.S. Tennis Association Florida as director of competitive tennis, was presented with the Florida Division Service Award by the U.S. Professional Tennis Association and USTA.

"I was excited and honored to receive the award, especially with the names that are on that award before me," Gilbert said. "The fact that I am a USPTA Florida Board of Directors member and a USTA Florida staff member says it all about the synergy between our two organizations. It was a big surprise and honor for me."

Gilbert, who recently relocated to Daytona Beach from Miami, has served the Florida tennis community in many roles in his 20-year career. A USPTA P-1-rated Professional, he serves as vice president and a board member of USPTA Florida. He is a past USPTA District 16 president and was named the District 16 Pro of the Year in 2011.
