Ormond Beach environmental center will get built, eventually

By Susan L. Wright
swright@hometownnewsol.com

Yes, Ormond Beach is going to build an environmental learning center.

After more than a decade of to-ing and fro-ing, selecting a site, applying for grants, etc., the city is ready to get started dealing with contractors and making it really happen.

No, the environmental learning center won't be open up right away or even soon, if your idea of soon is within a year.

With construction expected to start in April, the plan is to have it built and ready for visitors by the end of 2015 or early 2016.

From dream to reality, the center has taken a few detours and encountered a few obstacles along the way, but the city is now dealing with the nitty-gritty details of permitting and hiring the firms that will create the center. The final site choice is for the center to be built overlooking a lake in Central Park, where there are five lakes set in the 150-acre green space, with more than five miles of trails.

Commissioner Bill Partington, the commissioner for Zone 4, said the concept for the center came from his predecessor and he's been able to "pick up the torch and carry it forward."

Even when that concept seemed to be in jeopardy when it didn't initially get ECHO grant funding it needed, Mr. Partington said, "I always felt it was going to happen."

He's very pleased it is. A graduate of Ormond Beach public schools and Mainland High

Challenge raised buckets of money for ALS Association

By Erika Webb
ewebb@hometownnewsol.com

If you feel the need to dump icy water over your head, August — especially in Florida — is a good time to do it.

As with any "gone viral" trend, stunt and cause, or trendy stunt for a cause, opinions on the ALS Ice Bucket Challenge ranged from gung ho to no go.

Many enthused over the awareness building while others naysaid any chance of real effectiveness.

Cynics groused that challengers and accepting nominees just sought another online ego bolstering opportunity.

At least one went so far as to declare the effort was wasting a natural resource. In fairness, that person may have seen only living-room dousings and missed the ones undertaken outside where the water made it safely to the soil.

Regardless, it was among the biggest viral hits in Facebook's history, with 2.4 million ice bucket challenge related videos shared on the social network, and more than 28 million people have posted, commented or liked a post relating to the challenge, according to the company.

By Aug. 29, as the month-long hoopla began to subside, the ALS Association announced more than $100 million in donations from participants worldwide.

"(The) association has

Hotchkiss House redo continues

By Susan L. Wright
swright@hometownnewsol.com

The gracious old South Peninsula Drive home now named The Hotchkiss House has a new, welcoming terrace overlooking the Halifax River, it's getting an updated and ready for catering kitchen and handicapped accessible bathrooms.

Just a few years ago, the property had been rezoned from single residence to allow for condominiums on the site.

That's when a group of area residents, some of whom had known the previous owners of the home, galvanized into action.

Nancy Long, a teacher who became the president of the Heritage Preservation Trust of Volusia County, said when she first heard the property, then in a poor state as the owner was expecting foreclosure, was due to be rezoned she was horrified.

She wrote a letter to a newspaper and when it appeared, she said she was inundated with calls from friends and acquaintances who told her "we have to do something."

So, she called for a meeting and 65 people turned up. That led to forming a non-profit group, the Heritage Preservation Trust, and to applying for and getting an ECHO grant to fund the effort and, two years ago, a call for volunteers to turn out to start the work on repairing and renovating the home

They bought it from the owner, a widow, who hadn't been able to afford to keep it, and got assessments on what it would take to turn it into a historical site that they could use for tours, events and rent out to the public for everything from weddings to reunions.

In 2012, dozens of volunteers turned out on Labor Day weekend to weed, clean and get started on the mammoth task of dealing with all the negative things that can happen to a century old wooden structure over the years.

This Labor Day, the work was still going on, but the volunteers are concentrating on the last stage before the house can open. Ms. Long said they are still in the process of raising close to $30,000 needed to complete the project.

The graceful 1905 house at 1000 S. Peninsula Drive, next to Lillian Place, another historic home, will give area residents a sense of connection with the past as well as a community asset, an opportunity to explore the way our ancestors lived through tours and educational events, and a site for the commu-

Votran's 3 million mile man honored

By Erika Webb
ewebb@hometownnewsol.com

It takes a Votran fixed route bus driver about 12 years to drive one million miles.

Since Evett "Doc" Wilson has ferried Volusia passengers for 37 of the county's public transit service's nearly 40 years, he has driven three times that distance.

He's done it without a single, non-preventable accident, according to a Votran news release.

"Votran boasts 10 drivers who have each driven not one but two million accident free miles," the release stated. "Another 32 drivers working for the public transit agency have reached the one million safety milestone. These drivers showcase Votran's excellent safety record."

But, the agency reported, Mr. Wilson is the first Votran driver to achieve 3 million safe miles. He won

School, he always appreciated the opportunities he had as a young student to learn about the environment and he is determined area children will have the same or better opportunities.

The center's main function will be to "foster an awareness and appreciation of the natural environment by providing stimulating environmental education programs that inspire participants to be active stewards of their surrounding natural resources," according to the official city report.

While the commission looked at the area around Ames Park and other sites along the way, Mr. Partington felt Central Park is definitely the best choice.

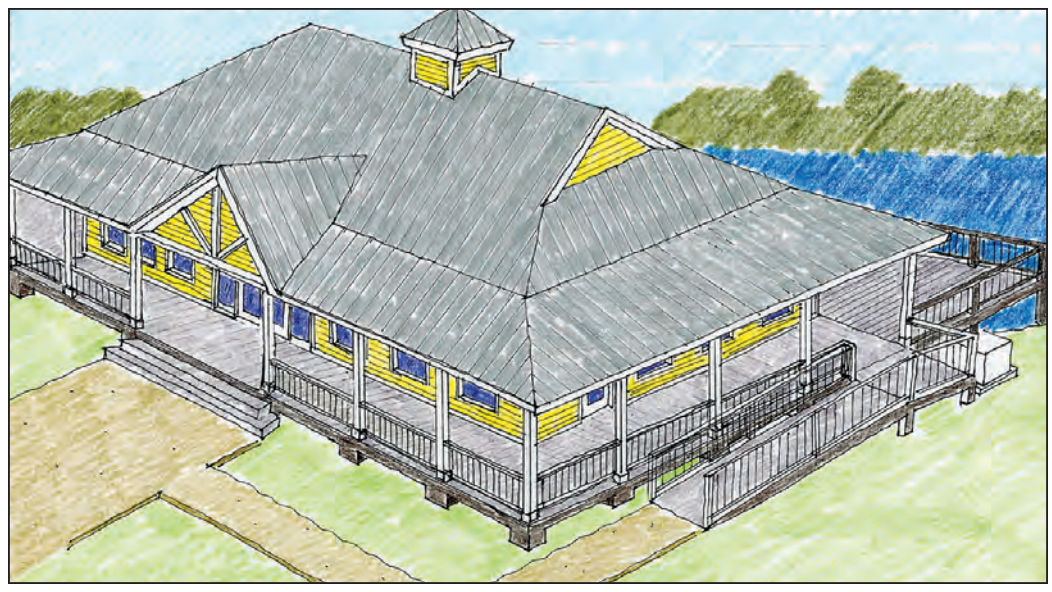
"All you do is take a few steps out away from the center and you're in the middle of it, the natural environment," he said.

While making the site ready for building has cost more than commissioners expected — installing the infrastructure, including water and sewer pipes, turned out to be very expensive — Mr. Partington said they feel it is worth it.

So, at long last there is a definite plan, but it is not quite set in stone.

The commission will be listening to suggestions and opinions from the public, including the school children who will be the primary beneficiaries of the center.

The park is considered ideal because it offers a variety of natural habitats as well as the lakes, which provides an ideal location for enjoying and learning about the environment in Central Florida's coastal region.



The five lakes were interconnected recently, which offers the public opportunities to canoe or kayak throughout the park system. Other amenities already there include exercise equipment, boardwalks, multi-use trails, observation decks, viewing areas, playgrounds, basketball and tennis facilities, picnic facilities, a labyrinth and restrooms.

The center will overlook a lake and the commission has selected an old Florida Cracker-style design with open, wrap-around porches opening onto the natural setting.

The center is expected to include "an automated classroom area with site specific educational videos," according to a description provided by the city. Plans for inside the center also include a large exhibit area with permanent displays. The plans are based on building a green, environmentally friendly structure and maintaining environmentally appropriate site development. Other attractions will include interactive centers with information about animals and plants in the area.

The commission plans to complete the process of reviewing and approving the engineering design by October and to complete the bidding process by April.

The engineering consultants, Mark Dowst & Associates, will present the plans for the building, as well as the exhibits and other amenities that will be offered, at a public meeting within the next few weeks, and present the conceptual plans to area fifth graders to solicit their suggestions for refining the plans.

The total cost is expected to be $800,000, with the city paying half and the rest coming from an ECHO grant from the county.

The magical Cracker Creek of Port Orange

LAND LINES

DAN SMITH

You walk through a shaded leafy glade beneath the spreading limbs of large live oaks that are draped with gray Spanish moss.

Peacock and peahens roam freely near quaint cabins that blend perfectly with their surroundings. The path to the water is lined with stands of towering bamboo. At the boat launch you marvel at the water that is at once clear and yet stained as black as espresso. A current is moving so slowly eastward it is only visible to a trained eye. When a garfish boils to the surface it is momentarily startling but soon the calm returns and there is silence all around.

This is Cracker Creek, an amazing sanctuary tucked into the urban growth of East Volusia County. A little piece of old Florida that has somehow managed to remain mostly untouched by the population that surrounds it. Situated on the western end of Spruce Creek, it is truly a treasure.

On a recent visit, my talk with owner Jill Williams revealed the pride she and her family take in Cracker Creek. Rightfully so. At a time when our natural environment is constantly under attack, here is a place that remains as it was nearly 100 years ago when James Gamble of the Proctor and Gamble Co. bought the property.

The home he built for his wife and the cabin erected for his caretaker are still there. The famous Gamble house was built to resemble the Snow White cottage described in the novel. It is now owned by The Museum Of Arts and Sciences, but tours may be arranged through Cracker Creek.

Still, the star of the place is the creek itself. The canopied dark water stream looks as though it may have been created for a movie set. Aboard one of the big stable Eco Tour pontoon boats you might expect "The Creature From The Black Lagoon" to be around the next bend.

Along the way you will see plants and animals that are endangered and protected. Wading birds ply the shore as squirrels race overhead. At certain times you may encounter the flamingo look-a-like roseate spoonbills or soaring bald eagles. As the boat glides through the marsh grass you may see the resident alligators or perhaps a family of otters.

Whether you choose to go by tour boat, kayak or canoe you will be amazed by the sheer beauty.

One of my favorite trips is the Silver River that is formed by Silver Springs near Ocala. I have been boating there each summer for years and I can tell you Cracker Creek rivals that trip.

To me the most amazing part of the creek is it is right in town. After taking the tour, you will be only five minutes away from any number of fine restaurants. Before you go, take a look at the website at Cracker Creek.com and then call Jill at (386) 304-0778 for reservations. You may launch your own canoe or kayak for a nominal fee. This gorgeous piece of old Florida is west of Interstate 95 at 1795 Taylor Road.

If you think you have seen all that this area has to offer and have not visited Cracker Creek, you are missing out. This winter when company arrives from up north, you can thrill them with a Spruce Creek boat ride. Hats off to the Williams family for their work in preserving this pristine bit of nature.

nity to gather for special events. Along with the smaller Lillian Place, which they have already restored, the Hotchkiss House, described on the foundation's website as a "grand Victorian turreted mansion" will serve as a combined community resource, offering a connection to the past. Lillian Place will serve as a museum, furnished with period appropriate donated antiques and other items. The Hotchkiss House, which was built by the man who invented the Hotchkiss stapler, also will be furnished with donations, but will be available for private rental for parties and events.

Ms. Long said they are planning a series of fundraisers for the fall as they work to bring in the rest of the money needed to fund renovations that will enable them to obtain the required licenses and permits to use the kitchen for catering and open the house to the public for tours and special events.

The goal is to complete the work by the end of November so they can open it Dec. 1 in time for the holidays.

Ms. Long said they are planning a series of fundraisers as part of that effort, including a Treasure Sale set for Sept. 26-28. They will auction off items donated for the house that weren't suitable for use in the house or that were just donated for their value as items for sale to fund the work.

They already have enough items to justify the auction, she said, but the group will gladly accept other donations for the sale.

"Anything people can donate that will help raise money will really help us raise the money to complete the project," she said.

For more information about the Hotchkiss House project or Lillian Place, call: (386) 256-4810 or visit www.heritagepreservationtrust.org.

Honoring our Veterans

Part One

With athletes and reality TV stars being hailed as today's heroes, it's critical we remind ourselves what it really takes to be considered "a person who is admired for great or brave acts." Rick Rescorla (May 27, 1939 – September 11, 2001) is a hero I would like you to meet.

FROM THE RICK RESCORLA MEMORIAL WEBSITE:

"My husband, Rick Rescorla, was one of the 3,000 Americans murdered by terrorists on 9/11/01. Rick was Vice President of Security for Morgan-Stanley/Dean-Witter, the largest tenant in the World Trade Center. His heroic actions on the day of the attack, along with his extraordinary foresight and preparation, saved the lives of 2,700 people. His story has been told on television and radio – in newspapers and magazines – and in the book Heart Of A Soldier, by Pulitzer Prize winner James B. Stewart. Rick is also on the cover of another book, We Were Soldiers Once... And Young, written by General Hal Moore and Joseph Galloway. You see, 9-11 was not the first time Rick had distinguished himself. 9-11 was just the last heroic chapter of his heroic life."

--Susan Rescorla

Rick Rescorla retired from the United States Army in 1990, as a Colonel. Over the course of his career he had been awarded a Silver Star, the Bronze Star with oak-leaf cluster, a Purple Heart, and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry. It was in Vietnam that he had distinguished himself, specifically in the first major American battle there—la Drang Valley (that remote swath of the Central Highlands which became known as the Valley of Death.) And while many American men of that era had burned draft cards or moved out of the country to avoid being selected for service, Rescorla volunteered for combat.

And he was NOT an American citizen.

Cyril Richard Rescorla was British. Born in 1939 in Hayle, a cargo port in west Cornwall, England, he left school and home at sixteen and joined the British military. First a paratrooper, then an intelligence officer in violence-torn Cyprus, Rescorla later joined Her Majesty's colonial force in Northern Rhodesia as a commando. He returned to London to serve in Scotland Yard's elite "Flying Squad" of detectives, but the job and the paperwork bored him.

The fights against Communist-backed insurgencies in Cyprus and in Rhodesia made Rescorla a fierce anti-Communist. He moved to America in 1963 so he could enlist in the Army to combat the communists in Vietnam.

In April 1965, Rescorla graduated basic training at Fort Dix, New Jersey as a second lieutenant. He was assigned to lead a platoon in Bravo Company of the 2nd Battalion of the 7th Cavalry, once General Custer's outfit at Little Big Horn, now a new helicopter-based fighting concept designed for Southeast Asia. That fall, President Johnson shipped him to Vietnam.

Between now and next week's continuation of this column, find a copy of We were Soldiers Once... and Young (1992. Random House.) It is an unforgettable accounting of the battle of the la Drang Valley. Make special note of the wiry warrior on the cover.

That is a young Rick Rescorla.

Need cinemas

As the old movie theater in New Smyrna Beach, just south of the library, closed for supposed refurbishing before reopening as an inexpensive second-run venue, it was my understanding a new state-of-the-art complex was to be built and opened by 2014.

With neither so far even starting to happen, the word is that it will happen by the start of 2015.

With DVD streaming or rentals and trips to the Hollywood Theater in Port Orange, what are movie lovers such as me to do?

City refuses to grow

Like the person who wrote in the Rants and Raves last week, I too got excited when I saw construction near the Chick-fil-A on U.S. 1 in Edgewater.

Soon I realized that once again the City of Edgewater refuses to grow. Refuses to offer anything new to this community. Refuses to encourage new business, job creating business or anything that just might give hope to those who would actually like to see a different reaction when you say you live in Edgewater. I am truly one who is tired of the comments made about this city even though they prove to be true.

"Oh you live in Edgewater? that explains it" "Oh Edgewater, Just more trash" "Oh the people in Edgewater are even dumber than the people in Oak Hill." I don't tell people where I live anymore because the looks it generates are never nice. If you want to say you live in Edgewater, you have to claim you live on Riverside Drive to be able to get any kind of respect. I just keep waiting for the dueling banjos and everyone else just stop asking for improvements, there is no money after city pay raises.

The Theft of ECHO

In 2007, the citizens of Volusia County voted to approve the ECHO grant program, which designates a portion of taxpayer money for the sole purpose of supporting Environmental, Cultural, Historical and Outdoor Recreation projects and institutions.

Now it seems the County Council wants to steal the money from ECHO and use it to buy beachfront property for parking. This is not what the voters voted on and if somewhere in the language it says the council can use the money for other purposes I highly doubt the voters knew about it at the time they voted for ECHO.

Lest someone think this beachfront parking falls into the "Outdoor Recreation" category of the ECHO program, let me quote from the County's own website: "Outdoor Recreation: Outdoor recreation plays an important role in the quality of life of Volusia County residents and tourists. The final ECHO resolution, passed by our citizens, resulted from a grass roots initiative that viewed Volusia County as an extensive and vibrant park system. Our county's abundant natural resources enrich our lives through passive and active sports parks. Additionally, the countywide trail system meanders as a linear park throughout Volusia County."

CIRCULATION AUDIT BY CIRCULATION VERIFICATION COUNCIL

ORMOND BEACH

Ormond Beach resident Rachel Goodro checks out the farmers' market at Florida Hospital Memorial Medical Center. It was Ms. Goodro's first visit to the market in the hospital's Healing Garden.

I see nothing in here that references parking. Parking will not bring more tourism or new residents to our area. Parking will not enrich the lives of the citizens of Volusia as does community theatre, arts and science museums, cultural events and historical places. Parking on our oceanfront properties certainly will not beautify our area, which goodness knows needs some beautification. The ECHO money goes to things that improve our economy, our desirability as a destination for both tourists and residents. This is not a fund to be plundered for parking beachside or otherwise.

Think about it

In regard to religion, freedoms must be fair.

Yes, they should be fair, but the way you talk about them they are not fair.

Isn't it enough they took prayer out the schools and if you believe in most of Jesus' teachings as the Bible describes, I don't understand what your problem is. So, think about it.

Available for hire

Wow, paying some political hack $2,800 a week to run Port Orange. How much did they pay the other guy so he would mess up? They blew $400,000 on parts they didn't need and drove everyone so nuts they quit. Plus they had to bill the town for water they used. Is there any money going under the table I wonder?

I would take a job for $1,000 a week. I couldn't mess up any worse than that.

School has rights

Chisholm Elementary School has a right to have a fundraising booth and I applaud the Krispy Kreme Co. for their help with fundraising. Apparently no other religious faith was interested in setting up a booth.

That said, you and your children had the right to not visit either booth. Please look at the letter beneath your rant. Kudos to the Jewish Federation for distributing 7,000 backpacks. Jesus still loves you, so have a doughnut.

Illegal accosting

I went with my boyfriend to vote at the New Smyrna Beach library. We pulled into a vacant handicapped parking spot, before we could turn off our car we were approached by a woman offering conservative ballots. When I mentioned I thought she wasn't suppose to confront or accost voters, she said that's all right, I am only handing out information.

Once inside I complained and the situation was taken care of. When we exited the building the campaigners had dispersed. Voters beware, do not let anyone accost you at the polls as it is illegal behavior.

Remains available

To the two young women from New Smyrna Beach Middle School: Sorry to disturb your bonfire the other night. I have collected the half burned remains of your school notebooks, schedules, plastic bottle, etc. if you would like to continue burning them, I have a fire pit in my back yard that I'd be glad to let you use. All you had to do was ask.

To New Smyrna Beach Middle School: If you would kindly provide adequate facilities for the burning of school-related items, your students would no longer be forced to hold their pagan fire rituals in the middle of the street next to my house or hide behind my neighbor's palm tree pretending they're invisible. They also would be at less risk of falling into the hands of our local neighborhood watch again. They carry machetes and do not mess around.

To the Jesus pencil evangelists from Chisholm Elementary School's orientation day: You might want to drop in on New Smyrna Beach Middle School.

Slogan offer

I hear the City of New Smyrna Beach is looking to change their slogan. I have one that is fabulous, I think.

New Smyrna Beach, the new and the old entwined. I have called all the people involved and no one has even had the courtesy to return my call. I have sent emails and no one is interested. I think New Smyrna Beach the old and new entwined is much better than what they have now.

Thanks, bank

Thank you to TD bank on State Road 44 for helping the community and supporting the helpless and needy and charities.

Stop blocking streets

We have all witnessed the package delivery trucks stopping wherever they want to. One company will stop on main roads, blocking other drivers without any regard. I recently saw one of that company's drivers take two and a half handicapped spaces. Was the driver handicapped?

The real question is why there are never any repercussions by law enforcement?

I can appreciate the hard work these people do, but laws should be applied for everyone. Let's see law enforcement take a stand for what is fair and right.

More roads need paving

I received my Hometown News, the first item that caught my eye today was the Edgewater bike trail segment will be done at a cost of $2.3 million.

I have a house in Edgewater. For 14 years we have been trying to get a road paved on Hamilton Road between Riverside Drive and Magnolia. I made my last call a month ago. I was told we were put on the scheduled for May 2016. If lucky I will be around then. If not, I tried.

Letters

Athletes also bridge walk

The only reason I have the Hometown News delivered to my west Ormond Beach home is because Dan Smith's attitude and consequent articles are interesting and pertinent to me.

I thank you for that, but you must pay better homage to the athletes that bridge walk . . . please. I personally know three women in their 60s, who do the entire bridge and underneath two times every day at an astonishing pace, with athletic clothing to maximize their performance level and comfort. I have used this, the only hill in town, to recover from surgeries and sports injuries, on foot and bicycle on numerous occasions.

Of course, I am wearing appropriate clothing, and maybe the occasional honk does help me know I am not alone in pain on the hill, but we girls are defying gravity, not looking for a date from traffic. Maybe if Mr. Smith tried the bridge watch one morning earlier you would see the activity on a more positive note? Maybe like fishing, we are more active when the day begins or with cooler temperatures?

See you there!

Don't demean Christians

This is in response to the writer who claimed to be "disgusted" that a booth was set up to offer Christian expressions during a recent social affair at Chisolm Elementary School.

Granted, in this day and age, with the misapplication of the concept of separation of church and state, it is a rarity for any religious expression in connection with a public institution. In this case, however, it merely represents the fervor of those believers seeking to express themselves. The writer further professes agreement with most of the teachings of Jesus, yet disclaims personal identification as a Christian. Is this a contradiction or is this individual just mixed up?

The writer adds it would be fairer if expressions from additional religions were also present but offers no suggestion that other sects sought similar access and were denied. Should Christians be demeaned because they are the only ones inspired to speak out? I say blessed are those who come in the name of the Lord!

In Volusia, a sports bar is never too far

VOLUSIA BUSINESS
CECIL G. BRUMLEY

I've been rather amiss in not writing about this sooner. But with football season well underway, it's time to look at the state of sports bars in Volusia County. You know we never have enough of them.

So, looking around the county, I'd say we're in pretty good shape, but not quite good enough for Dave & Busters . . . maybe with One Daytona. We have gotten a Buffalo Wild Wings in Daytona Beach, but there's still just one Hooter's. There are two Ker's WingHouses in Daytona Beach and Beef O'Brady's in DeLand, Deltona and New Smyrna Beach. It seems like West Volusia is a little underserved with sports bars, though.

What we do have is some of the best independent sports bars you'll find anywhere. The king, of course, is Houligan's with its original, somewhat small place in Ormond Beach as well as its much larger ones at Destination Daytona and Port Orange. The company also is looking at opening one at the old Olive Garden on West International Speedway Boulevard in Daytona Beach. McKenna's Place in New Smyrna Beach also has branched out, adding Port Orange with its unique seafood sports bar format.

There's no way you could name all of the sports bars in Volusia, but feel free to write us a note extolling the virtues of your favorite place. I live in Port Orange, so I'm a little spoiled when it comes to sports bar selections. Heck, I even venture into Giuseppe's for the pizza and wings, but never when the Steelers are playing. I'd get a little claustrophobic in that huge crowd.

Not a lot of new stuff business wise recently, but there are a few things to note. With William Square and WC Grand finally making some progress in Daytona Beach, White Challis Redevelopment is moving forward with permitting for The Tabby House in New Smyrna Beach. It will have 17 or 18 lots for townhouses, but the company is keeping the fire station building, New Smyrna Beach's original firehouse, in place. The company has struck out, so far, on projects in DeLand and Ocala, but it just shows how difficult it is to sell and get financing for its unique projects.

With demolition completed, Daytona Toyota is moving forward with its new facility at Nova Road and West ISB. It will include a used car showroom, body shop and service center.

Plans also are moving forward for Boulevard Shops, a six-unit strip center at 1301 W. Granada Blvd. in Ormond Beach.

A final note, yet another restaurant will give it a go at 180 N. Beach St. in Daytona Beach. Level 1 Café has been recommended by city staff for approval by the Downtown/Ballough Road Redevelopment Board.

Why Choose Vanacore – See what their customers say!
Building our home was a very positive experience. The Vanacore's were easy to work with, following through with changes we requested during the building process, and always courteous and professional.
Mr. and Mrs. Donald P
Everyone at Vanacore (is) so nice. They feel like family, willing to help with any little problem and to fix them quickly. I feel like my house is very well built and has very good insulation. My house is comfortable all of the time with low electric bills! It truly is my dream home!
John and Annie G
I have looked at all the brick manufacturers in the Volusia County area. Vanacore offers more standard features than any other. Some manufacturers may be cheaper in the front end but they charge you for every little add on. They charge extra for window sills. I spent five months talking and reviewing all brick home options and Vanacore is the best value and quality. Truly a great company to deal with.

Family-owned business wants to protect your home

By Susan L. Wright
swright@hometownnewsol.com

Weather Guard Inc. is more than just a company that makes good strong shutters, the kind you want to protect your house in a storm or just keep out the glare of the sun.

It's a family-owned, 31-year old company that has more than earned its reputation for quality, reliability and the best looking shutters for your home — a reputation that founder and owner Doug Thomas is very proud of and one he expects to keep.

Mr. Thomas started in the shutter business shortly after he left the military in the early 1970s. He and his wife were staying with his parents, who were having shutters installed on their home and since he was looking for work, his mother asked if the company was hiring. They were and Mr. Thomas went to work selling shutters.

It wasn't long before he went into business with two partners. The problem was the business was in Orlando and after commuting for 10 years, Mr. Thomas decided that he'd be happier in business by himself closer to home.

So he opened Weather Guard in Ormond Beach in 1982 and the business has thrived ever since.

In fact, it has become the biggest shutter business in the area north of New Smyrna Beach. And he said they have developed shutters that are not just strong and reliable protection, but are uniquely designed to blend in with the style of any home.

Asked why someone looking to buy new shutters for their home, condominium or business would turn to Weather Guard instead of one of its competitors, Mr. Thomas responded with no hesitation. "For one, based on our stability. We're a company that's 32 years old. We must be doing something right. One of our Ormond Beach business neighbors, Jimmy Hull, said that we are the 'gold standard' of the shutter industry."

Also, his shutters add to the aesthetic appeal rather than detract from it, he said.

"We've innovated a way to make the shutter so that the track and the hood could match the structure it's attached to," Mr. Thomas said.

In one case, they installed shutters on a house when the owner wasn't in residence. When the owner did arrive, he said, the owner couldn't understand why the job hadn't been done. The shutters were so much a part of the décor of the outside of the home, they didn't realize they had been added.

They also install shutters for condominiums and businesses.

While they're best known for their installations in the area, their products have sold around the world, including at a U.S. military installation on Guam.

Mr. Thomas said a part of the company — and family — culture is to give back to the community.

"One of the things I'm proudest of is that we are very active in our community and we give back to our community in so many ways. My parents told me you should give more than you get and I try to follow that premise," he said.

Among the ways Weather Guard as a company has given back to the community under his leadership are contributions to area youth programs, including donations to enhance athletic fields. They've donated the scoreboard, goalposts and soccer nets for Ormond Beach's championship fields, and donated shutters for "close to every concession stand in the city of Ormond Beach," including the sports fields, the airport and other public sites.

They've donated to the schools' DARE program, to the Police Athletic League and to other police programs.

Mr. Thomas also is chairman of the Ormond Beach Planning Board and is the past president of the Leisure Services Advisory Board, as well as president of the Ormond Beach Police Athletic League's board of directors (and was named PAL volunteer of the year in Ormond Beach.)

He believes in doing everything he can to support the community, which is reflected in how customers view his business.

"If you see a company that is that involved and committed to the community, I think you know that that company is a pretty honest, straightforward business," he said.

ALS

received $100.9 million in donations compared to $2.8 million during the same time period last year (July 29 to Aug. 29)," according to alsa.org.

"The word gratitude doesn't do enough to express what we are feeling right now," said Barbara Newhouse, president and CEO in a statement on the website. "We recognize a profound sense of urgency and are engaged in discussions about how we're going to put this money to work in the short term and into the future."

The challenge videos tended to be as unique as the individuals in them. Some were shy but altruistically determined.

Others let their personalities loose.

Candyce Potter of New Smyrna Beach (called Candygram by her grandchildren and others) donned a robe and shower cap for the occasion. The former kindergarten teacher, her granddaughter Graysen Potter and her grandson and pourer Griffin Potter, garnered a lot of "likes." Ms. Potter's getup — including glasses — made their friends rotfl.

One viewer commented she hoped it would go viral.

"We wanted it to be funny," Ms. Potter responded.

Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, also known as Lou Gehrig's disease, is a progressive neurodegenerative disease that affects nerve cells in the brain and the spinal cord.

"Eventually people with ALS lose the ability to initiate and control muscle movement, which often leads to total paralysis and death within two to five years of diagnosis. There is no cure and only one drug approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration that modestly extends survival," according to alsa.org.

Most commonly, ALS strikes people between the ages of 40 and 70, and as many as 30,000 Americans have the disease at any given time.

Tricia Woodyard of Deltona said she welcomed the ice bucket challenge because, for her, it hits close to home.

"My stepdad, Ernie Dignan, has been battling this horrible disease for the last two years and I've seen the progression it has taken and the care that is needed. He has lost so much weight and does not have the strength or energy to easily accomplish most daily activities, such as getting dressed or to eat, walk, stand, etcetera," Mrs. Woodyard said.

She's watched her mom, Carol Dignan, who continues to work as a Realtor with Watson Realty Corp. in New Smyrna Beach, become his caregiver, learning to adapt to the daily tasks.

"They're a great team, my Mom and Ernie, and it amazes me the patience they have and how they stay upbeat and appreciate everything and just enjoy every day," Mrs. Woodyard said. "There's a lot involved such as finding the right medical and insurance services available to help and cover supplies and she has also found ways to help him keep his independence with finding the right tools so he could open containers, button a shirt, zip his pants, hold a fork."

The disease's progression has now eliminated Mr. Dignan's ability to dress, shower or brush his teeth, so a Halifax Hospice nurse and a CNA visit the couple weekly to help.

Theirs is a story that could fill a book. It's one heck of a love story.

Mrs. Dignan has lost a son to diabetes, a son-in-law to cancer and watched her daughter battle cancer, all in the span of three years.

Her beloved husband of 33 years was diagnosed with ALS May 18, 2012, on the first anniversary of her son's death.

The couple did their ice bucket challenge in the memorial garden they created for her son. The entire family thought the challenge was "wonderful."

As for what the challenge has to do with the disease:

"That's the way every patient and their family feel when they get the diagnosis," Mrs. Dignan said.

Funds from the challenge will be used for new research, care and support to people living with the disease, Ms. Newhouse stated, adding the organization plans to reevaluate and revamp strategies using stakeholder, donor and chapter input in addition to feedback from ALS sufferers and their families.

"We want to move quickly but decisively as our ultimate goal is to use this incredible generosity in a way that has the biggest impact on fighting this disease," she explained.

The Dignans attend the Volusia County ALS Resource Support Group meeting the third Wednesday of each month at 575 N. Clyde Morris Blvd., Daytona Beach.

Facilitator Aimee Freedman is the ALS Association Florida Chapter liaison and her help has been tremendous, Mrs. Dignan said.

She was instrumental in helping Mr. Dignan get a $38,000 power chair through Medicare.

The Dignans go to counseling, laugh every day, enjoy the flowers planted in the yard and hanging in baskets by every window. They cherish their children, grandchildren and great grandchildren.

"My kids are my strength," Mrs. Dignan said.

They love mornings when Mr. Dignan is able to be awake and they are company for one another.

They are grateful to Hospice for furnishing and delivering medications, and have contributed to the hope for a cure by traveling to Mayo Clinic in Jacksonville numerous times for Mr. Dignan to participate in six clinical trials.

The ALS Association, which has the highest four-star rating from Charity Navigator, is "Top Rated" on Charity Watch, and is a Better Business Bureau accredited charity as well as a Guidestar Exchange gold participant, according to its website, has pledged continued transparency, promising to "communicate regularly with all audiences" as to how Ice Bucket Challenge funds will "impact the fight against ALS."

The ALS Association has committed more than $67 million to find effective treatments and a cure for Lou Gehrig's disease, according to the website.

That global research effort has helped increase the number of scientists working on ALS, advanced new discoveries and treatments, and has shed light on the complex genetic and environmental factors involved in ALS.

"ALS is an every-day life challenge for many and the 'ALS Ice Bucket Challenge' is such a small task for us but yet the outcome is very large as it generates much needed awareness and donations to fund research and hopefully a cure," Mrs. Woodyard said. So far, Mr. Dignan has not lost his voice, a blessing for him and for others. He has an amazing sense of humor and every word he speaks is positive and comforting.

He regularly tells people: "I love you anyway, no matter what and there's nothing you can do about it."

Mr. and Mrs. Dignan are self-proclaimed control freaks.

Soon after the diagnosis Mrs. Dignan told a friend who said, "Two people with OCD, this is not going to be pretty."

Mrs. Dignan laughed uproariously at the recollection.

Asked where he's derived his strength to face each day, Mr. Dignan said,

"I just woke up to the fact that I have complete faith in my Lord and I need to exercise that more."

Recently he told his wife: "All the years I've been with you and it's not enough. When I leave you it will be too soon."

Volusia County Sheriff's Office makes promotions

For Hometown News

He's known as one of the most skilled police motorcycle riders in the country, having won numerous law enforcement competitions.

He's also known as a well-rounded supervisor who consistently demonstrates effective decision-making, sound judgment, professionalism and an enthusiasm for the job.

Now, Eric Westfall also is known as the Volusia County Sheriff's Office's newest captain.

Sheriff Ben Johnson promoted Capt. Westfall earlier this week in a well-attended ceremony at the Deputy Stephen Saboda Training Center in Daytona Beach.

Capt. Westfall, 41, has been with the Sheriff's Office for 21 years, starting his career in September 1993. During those two decades of service, he has set the bar high in every assignment and has never failed to exceed expectations. "It's a great honor and a pleasure to be able to present you with your captain's badge," Sheriff Johnson told Capt. Westfall. "You've worked hard for it."

He has served in a variety of assignments, including patrol, motors, court security, civil and communications. He also served a stint as watch commander, with his last assignment as assistant district commander of the Sheriff's Office's Deltona headquarters. In his new role, Capt. Westfall will serve as the agency's court services supervisor.

He has an associate degree in criminal justice, an associate degree and a bachelor's degree in supervision and management, all from Daytona State College. He also is a graduate of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement's Leadership Academy.

Also promoted this week was David King, who was named a sergeant. An eight-year veteran with the Sheriff's Office, Sgt. King, 28, started with the agency in May 2006. He will serve as a patrol supervisor.

Votran

Votran's first award for that accomplishment in 2013.

"The Votran team is very proud of Doc and we commend him for his outstanding achievement," said Votran General Manager Steven Sherrer in the release. "I believe that he is the first in the state to reach this level."

In July, Mr. Wilson was recognized by the National Safety Council with a special "Award of Honor" for his years of safe driving.

But that's not even the whole story.

Mr. Wilson's "achievement file is about an inch thick with many compliments of a job well done," according to Votran Assistant General Manager of Operations and Maintenance Elizabeth Suchsland.

Official accolades for Perfect Attendance, Safe Driver of the Year, Employee of the Month, and the Award of Honor for the South Atlantic Region in 2009 fill his personnel folder.

The eastside operator, who drives daily on Route 40 and Route 41, also has been commended for excellent customer service and has participated in numerous special events.

"One passenger commented that 'he answers passengers' questions with a smile,'" Ms. Suchsland noted in an emailed statement.

As part of his safety record recognition, Mr. Wilson was chosen to throw the ceremonial first pitch Aug. 29 at the Daytona Cubs game at Jackie Robinson Ballpark.

Going day by day and focusing on the job at hand has gotten Mr. Wilson through the decades, he said in a phone interview. So has the training he's received from Votran throughout each year.

In addition to their safety, he pays attention to passengers' other needs.

"Based on the economy we have going on right now, the majority of the people taking the bus are searching for jobs, for places to stay and going to doctors' offices," Mr. Wilson said. "Trying to keep the bus on time and get them to their destinations on time keeps me going to serve them."

But how does one deal with that many people, day in and day out and not get disgusted?

"Oh we get disgusted," Mr. Wilson said laughing heartily. "But at the same time, for the most part, the majority of passengers are very nice and when you get disgusted those people bring you down to earth and make you feel good about people and about your job. Some very nice people ride the bus."

Mr. Wilson and his "fellow million milers have driven an impressive 44 million safe miles," the release stated. "Enhanced technology on the buses adds to the safety."

Mr. Wilson credited the announcement system on the buses with enabling drivers to concentrate more on driving and said the announcements are clearer to the riders."

"Safety is a top concern," added Mr. Sherrer. "These drivers are evidence of the extreme quality of our service."

Daytona Nights set for downtown

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Downtown Daytona Nights returns to Beach Street Friday, Sept 12.

The free street festival will be from 5 to 9 p.m. in the 100 block of North Beach Street and features live music from Young Sullivan and Summer of '69, a Bryan Adams Tribute Band; food courts; arts and craft vendors; kid's craft stations; face-painting; and plenty of giveaways.

This family-friendly block party offers friends and co-workers a place to gather after work and the opportunity to experience the restaurants and retail shops in the downtown district they might not have known about previously. Streets will be closed during the event and parking is plentiful in the downtown area, behind the stores and on side streets.

Daytona Nights is an event of the Downtown Development Authority and is presented by Southern Stone Events.

'Hello, Dolly!' at Shoestring Theatre

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Shoestring Theatre is getting ready to present the American Musical Theatre classic "Hello, Dolly!"

Performances begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 12, at the theatre at 380 S. Goodwin St., Lake Helen.

Performances continue Sept. 13, 19-20, 26-27 at 7:30 p.m. and at 2 p.m. on Sundays, Sept. 14, 21 and 28.

The widow Dolly Levi is in the business of putting couples together. She is a popular lady in several New York City circles, has a rather large clientele and a consistent success rate. Dolly has decided she is ready to re-marry and has the perfect husband in mind for herself. The only problem is he doesn't know it. Disguising her own intentions for Horace Vandergelder, the unbelievably wealthy and successful Feed Store owner from Yonkers, Dolly attempts to match him up with Irene Molloy, a milliner in New York City.

Mr. Vandergelder, known for his quick temper and lack of patience, has two abused feed store workers who have never left Yonkers and have been trying to figure out a way to bust out and have a day on the town in the big city. They wander into Mrs. Molloy's Hat Shop at the same time Dolly has arranged to meet with Mr. Vandergelder and Mrs. Molloy. The hilarious mayhem begins and doesn't stop until the end of the show.

Based on Thornton Wilder's play, "The Matchmaker," "Hello, Dolly!" opened on Broadway in 1964 with Carol Channing in the lead. The role of Dolly has been portrayed by several popular leading ladies from Pearl Bailey to Sally Struthers, to Barbara Streisand's stunning screen performance with Walter Matthau.

"Hello, Dolly!" has music direction by Ben Beck with three show-stopping numbers choreographed by Dianne Yates. The show is directed by Jenny Sejansky. For ticket information, call Shoestring Theatre at (386) 228-3777.

Week of 9-12-2014

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20

Aries, though you are usually up for a conversation with someone you don't know, this week you could be in a more conservative mood. You'll have future chances to chat.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21

You have been on a shopping binge of late, Taurus. If you have unlimited funds, this would not be so problematic. But finances are tight, and you should be more cautious.

GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21

Gemini, you are often an entertaining and fun person to have around. This is probably why you get so many invitations to parties and other social occasions. Enjoy your fanfare.

CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22

Surround yourself with children this week, Cancer. They'll provide the unedited, honest information you desire right now. It can certainly be eye opening.

LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23

Spend some quality time with a romantic partner this week, Leo. He or she can provide more of what you need, such as true affection and companionship, than what's offered by friends.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Virgo, you deserve credit at the office. If you're patient, some measure of recognition will come your way this week. It's a start to getting what you need.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Few people will accuse you of being uncommunicative, Libra. In fact, you're usually downright chatty. It's one of the traits people will admire most in you this week.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Scorpio, a new person comes into your life and your attraction to this person catches you off guard. It's okay to flirt, but if you're

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Sagittarius, you're often the one to take the lead in conversations in your group of friends, but this week someone else takes the lead. You're content to sit back and simply listen.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Capricorn, once you have gained enough confidence in a special interest, you may be able to turn it into a career instead of just a hobby. Keep working toward that goal.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

It's time to tie up some loose ends, Aquarius. Rustle up some energy to take care of all those little things that need to be wrapped up. You'll feel a weight lift afterward.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20

Pisces, increase your level of activity this week. Exercise can do you a world of good, especially if you've felt sluggish of late.

A nationwide event, Museum Day Live offers free admission to visitors presenting a Museum Day Live ticket at a participating museum or cultural institution. Visitors who present the Museum Day Live ticket will gain free entrance for two at participating venues for one day only.

One ticket is permitted per household, per email address.

The Museum Day Live ticket is available for download at smithsonianmag.com/museumday.

Photography exhibit opens

The Southeast Museum of Photography will open "Pure Photography," pictorial and modern photographs from the Syracuse University Art Collect and "The Growth of a Collection Part 1: 1981-2001" on Sept. 12 at 1200 W. International Speedway Blvd., Daytona Beach.

An opening reception for "Pure Photography" will be from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 12.

The photographers included in the exhibit have extensive histories that span thematic periods and artistic styles. For more information, visit smponline.org/ex_PurePhotography.

A reception for "The Growth of a Collection Part 1: 1981-2001" will be from 5 to 7 p.m. Oct. 20.

In celebration of the roots and early history of the permanent collection of the Southeast Museum of Photography, the exhibit highlights the first 20 years of collecting, beginning with acquisitions by what was then Daytona Beach Community College's Gallery of Fine Arts. The second chapter in the survey exhibit gathers selected images collected after the Southeast Museum of Photography was established in 1992.

For information, visit smponline.org/ex_Growth-Collection.html

Series looks at 'Escape from Evil'

The Unitarian Universalist Society's Life Long Learning committee announces its first fall offering, a series of group discussions of a very important book, Pulitzer Prize winning author Ernest Becker's "Escape from Evil."

The discussion will be at the society's building at 56 N. Halifax Drive, Ormond Beach.

The discussions led by the society's pastor, Rev. Craig Roshaven, will meet from 4:30 to 6 p.m. on three consecutive Wednesdays, Sept. 17 and 24, and Oct. 1. The public is invited.

"Escape from Evil," published posthumously in 1975, contains Mr. Becker's final thoughts on the sources of evil in human nature. Mr. Becker's academic field was cultural anthropology, but he drew his ideas and observations from biology, psychology, sociology and religion.

Copies of the book, both new and used, can be purchased online.

For more information, email Joan Thate at jbthate@gamil.com or Rev. Roshaven at CRoshaven@uuma.org.

Seeking an undersized inshore grand slam

FISHING WITH DAN

DAN SMITH

Like you, when I leave the house to go fishing I always carry along a big load of high expectation.

No matter that my last two trips into the Halifax River yielded next to nothing. Striking out across the water in my Green Peanut always means I have a positive attitude on board.

It was right at dawn and I could see that something was feeding on the first point I approached. That was a place where I had not caught anything in a long time, but I began to make a few casts. The red and white MirrOlure splashed down right in the center of the disturbance and after a couple twitches I was hooked up to a small fish. After a couple strong runs I was thinking ladyfish, but it turned out to be a 14-inch snook. That was a nice surprise and the little snook conveniently released itself at the boat.

After a couple more throws I had another of the same size. This one made a good jump and slung the lure out. Always fun to catch snook no matter the size, but I had larger game in mind. Near the engine block, a nice sized red drum began following my plug. The water the fish was pushing told me it was probably over 20 inches and I held my breath waiting for the strike. I slowed the bait, then speeded it up and began to twitch it, but the hit never came. When the red saw the kayak it made an abrupt about face and sped away.

There is nothing more heart stopping for a fisherman than to watch a big fish stalk your bait. When the hit never happens you always second-guess yourself.

Poking around a little farther north, I encountered a school of small sea trout. The schoolers were holding near a submerged oyster bar. By then the sun was full up and I had switched to the Grandslam Bait Lite Beer shrimp tail. I had threaded it onto a 1/8 oz. white jig head. The feisty trout went at it hard and ate two tails before I caught the first fish. Soon I had another, but both were undersized and released.

After paddling to the western edge of the bay I hooked a flounder, but the flatfish was also too small to keep. Now I was beginning to see a pattern. With the morning getting away from me, I began to think inshore grand slam. I had already caught and released a redfish, two trout and a flounder that I could count as a nice slam, but I had nearly caught a pair of snook to make it the ultimate inshore grand slam.

With the realization I probably would not be taking home dinner, I now had a new goal and re-visited my first stop where the baby snook had been so active. It came as no surprise the snook now had lockjaw. I knew the same ones feeding at dawn still lurked nearby, but nothing I had would tempt them now. Still I flailed about for a good half hour, determined to complete my undersized grand slam, but a small jack was all that hit. Does that count? Is a jack, trout, red and flounder any type of slam? Will you give it to me that the snook that came off at the boat was an actual catch? No, I didn't really think so. Oh well, tomorrow is another day. Next time for sure!

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for more than 40 years. Email questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net. His book, "I Swear the Snook Drowned," is available for $10.95 at (386) 441-7793.

Road to the LPGA leads to Daytona

The Symetra Tour's "Road to the LPGA" got a little longer this year.

In its 34th year, the tour added five tournaments to its schedule, making it 20 stops in total.

Players are competing for the largest total purse in tour history this year at $2.25 million.

With 144 players, each tournament stop nets a player between $100,000 and $150,000 in prizes. The tour began in February and concludes Sept. 18-21 at LPGA International in Daytona Beach.

The Symetra Tour has partnered with the Boys & Girls Clubs as the tournament beneficiary. The goal is to grow the magnitude of the event by making it the season-ending championship event, building out a week-long schedule of supporting events while raising awareness for the tournament and the Boys & Girls Clubs.

Cost to attend the event is $10, but is free to Volusia County residents with proper ID on Saturday, Sept. 20. Kids are always free.

The Symetra Tour Championship boasts a purse of $150,000 and the event is set to donate more than $125,000 to the Boys & Girls Clubs of Volusia and Flagler Counties.

Other events include:

•Brown & Brown 5K & 10K run

•Cobb Cole Charity Texas Hold 'em Tournament presented by Cobb Cole

•Symetra Tour Championship presented by Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University

•Michelob Ultra "Swing for Success" charity golf tournament.

Fisher brother earns Inshore Classic slam

The Halifax Sport Fishing Club's 13th Annual Inshore Classic Saturday, Sept 6, couldn't ask for more appropriately named winners.

The Fisher brothers, Bill, Bob and John, all finished in the money. Bill, who's from Port Orange, won the overall slam payout of $500 with 21.1 pounds of fish.

When pressed on some of his secrets, he said he caught them "down south east of the west channel," which would put you on dry land. After he had a good laugh, he said Pig Fish were the bait for the day. He got the his 8.5 pound Jack in the river, his 6.5 pound Red in the back water on an oyster pile and his 5.1 pound Trout was the result of putting the rod in a rod holder to get a drink. When he picked up the rod the Trout was there.

Results for the tourney:

Slam: Bill Fisher, 21.1 lbs.

Trout: Bill Allen Jr., first, 7.4 lbs.; Bob Fisher, second, 5.3 lbs.; Bill Fisher, third, 5.1 Lbs.

Red Fish: Bill Fisher, first 6.5 lbs.; Bob Fisher, second, 5.9 lbs.; Gail Nelson, third, 5.6 lbs.

Jack: Bill Fisher, first, 8.5 lbs.; Bill Allen Jr., second 7.0 lbs.; Bob Fisher, third 6.3 lbs.

Flounder: William Hallums, first, 1 lb.

Black Drum: William Hallums, first, 5.7 lbs.

Red Fish Spots: John Fisher, 11 Spots.
