COMPUTE THIS

SEAN MCCARTHY

One of the things that I've noticed over the years is that it's real easy to forget to pay attention to what the mouse is doing.

With everything else that happens on a typical computer it's easy to get distracted by all the other "stuff" that's going around the pointer and you end up missing clues that your mouse is trying to tell you.

A lot of people don't realize just how precise and instrument the mouse really is. The very tip of the pointer, when pointed at objects just so, will often reveal clues that can be used to help you do whatever it is that you are trying to do. The secret is to pause at an object and see if something happens.

Many times objects on computer screens, like

Stuart cements its Bahamian ties with new bond

By Donald Rodrigue
For Hometown News

STUART — The city of Stuart officially confirmed its ties to the Bahamas by becoming sister city to the Bahamian city of Hope Town.

Stuart Mayor Troy McDonald visited the Bahamian city on Elbow Key the weekend of July 26, where he and his Hope Town counterpart signed the agreement forever uniting the two cities.

Bahamians have emigrated to Stuart and Martin County for decades, most of them coming to work in the orange groves or to help build Henry Flagler's railroad. Many decided to remain afterward, infusing the region with bits and pieces of their tropical island culture.

Mayor McDonald said the primary goal of the pact is to promote economic opportunities between the two towns.

"Some of my goals for the sister-city relationship are to foster an environment that promotes cultural understanding, cultivate a climate that identifies potential economic partnerships and discuss ways to further strengthen tourism ties," he said.

The two communities have already decided to begin distributing each other's travel brochures, and soon Stuart residents will be able to find Hope Town information in area welcome centers.

Palm City youth aids Salvadoran school

By Donald Rodrigue
For Hometown News

PALM CITY — Amid hugs, laughter and tears, 16-year-old Evan Farrara of Palm City saw the fulfillment of his promise to a new-found friend to help buy furniture for a poorly equipped school in El Salvador.

Evan visited the San Mauricio public school in San Salvador on July 18 to watch the culmination of his vision, known as Daniel's Dream. Named after Daniel Valle, a young Salvadoran who Evan met in 2013 while attending the Young Global Scholars Program at Yale University, the project raised more than $5,000 for new desks and chairs for the school. What overwhelmed the young man was the incredible reception school staff had planned for his visit to show their gratitude.

Sales tax-free holiday helps families save money

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

TREASURE COAST — With the new school year approaching, parents and students can save money on their back to school shopping with the sales tax-free holiday from Aug. 1-3.

“During this sales-tax holiday families will be able to save money on school supplies and other back-to-school items that will set students up for success in the upcoming school year,” said Governor Rick Scott. “We are proud to offer this sales-tax holiday as it will result in direct savings for Florida families as they prepare for the school year.”

Governor Scott signed legislation to approve a three-day back to school sales tax-free holiday to support Florida parents purchasing school supplies and clothing. The holiday exempts families from paying sales taxes on numerous back to school items including clothing and footwear of $100 or less per item and on certain school supplies of less than $15 per item.

“The sales tax-free holiday is an excellent opportunity for families to stock up on the supplies their children need for the coming school year,” said Commissioner of Education Pam Stewart. “I appreciate Governor Scott’s dedication to ensuring families have this much-deserved break.”

Another tax break for families took effect July 1, 2014. Youth bicycle helmets, child restraint systems and booster seats are now tax-exempt and will provide additional relief for families purchasing these child safety items.

For more information and to view the list of items that are tax-exempt visit the Department of Revenue’s website at www.myflorida.com.

Parents reminded to immunize children for the new school year

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

TREASURE COAST — March of Dimes, the leading organization for mom and baby health, urges parents to immunize their children against infectious diseases before the beginning of the 2014-15 school year. Influenza, pertussis (whooping cough), and measles are just a few of the serious vaccine-preventable diseases that still affect children and adults in the United States today.

“Immunizations are as important today as they were in the age of polio in the 1950s, when the March of Dimes funded the pioneering work that resulted in the vaccine that still is used today against this deadly disease,” said Dr. Karen Harris, chairwoman of the Program Services Committee for the March of Dimes Florida Chapter. “Back-to-school season is the time of the year when we especially encourage kids to get their shots to protect their health.”

Even small groups of unimmunized people can quickly spread disease, Dr. Harris says. In the U.S., both measles and whooping cough are at epidemic rates.

According to the Florida Department of Health, the most recent school year (2013 – 14) immunization status reports for all 67 Florida counties indicate rates of:

Having More Retirement Accounts is Not the Same as Having More Money.

When it comes to the number of retirement accounts you have, the saying “more is better” is not necessarily true. In fact, if you hold multiple accounts with various brokers, it can be difficult to keep track of your investments and to see if you’re properly diversified.* At the very least, multiple accounts usually mean multiple fees.

Bringing your accounts to Edward Jones could help solve all that. Plus, one statement can make it easier to see if you’re moving toward your goals.

*Diversification does not guarantee a profit or protect against loss.

To learn why consolidating your retirement accounts to Edward Jones makes sense, call your local financial advisor today.

Insurance company has clients covered

Special for Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

MARTIN COUNTY — Anchor Insurance, a contracted general agency for Florida Blue offers affordable solutions for both corporate and individual clients. Gene Coletti, president, has one simple rule: The Client comes first. If you put the client first, everything else falls into place.

That's why his Stuart-based company serves as a resource to its clients.

As a Florida Blue contracted general agency, Anchor Insurance is able to draw upon the strengths of one of Florida's largest health care carriers, capitalizing on quality products at affordable premiums for policy holders. This ability, coupled with a large network of doctors, hospitals and medical professionals throughout the state and country, provides a winning solution for all.

The agency is also well-positioned to serve the individual health insurance markets, with policies that are compliant with the Affordable Health Care Act. They can also help an applicant determine if they are eligible for a subsidy which will lower their monthly premium.

The agency also offers Medicare solutions, such as Medicare supplements, RX D plans and Advantage Plans. The Advantage Plans offer a total package solution, an even some plans have a $0.00 premium.

Anchor Insurance also educates clients about the importance of life insurance.

"With the economy the way it is, it's important to maintain life insurance, because God forbid something happens to one (income earner). The financial burden would become more intense," Mr. Coletti said.

Claire Meshelany, who is the vice president of Anchor Insurance and a 16-year industry insider and licensed agent, specializes in health and life insurance.

For $20.25 a month, a 30-year-old man could purchase a $250,000 life insurance policy. Because women generally live longer than men, a woman of the same age would have a monthly payment of $17.02 for similar coverage.

What gives someone more satisfaction than knowing that their family is taken care of if something were to happen to them? For the cost of a movie, you can have a life insurance policy for your family.

Carmen Gomez, who has dealt with home, automobile and commercial coverage for more than 10 years, heads up the personal lines department. Ms. Gomez provides clients with policies from quality companies and with premiums that won't break the bank. Ms. Gomez shops all the top-rated compa-

Steps to work on to become a better investor

On Sept. 1, we observe Labor Day — a celebration of the American worker. Of course, you work hard at your own job, but, when you think of it, every worthwhile endeavor in life requires significant effort — and that's certainly the case with investing. The harder you work at it, the more likely you are to make progress toward your goals.

So as you think about investing, consider the following areas in which you will need to apply yourself:

FINANCIAL

CHAPOGAS

- Work to identify your goals. It's important that you know just why you're investing. Do you want to send your children (or grandchildren) to college? Do you want to retire early? What sort of retirement lifestyle do you envision? What kind of legacy do you want to leave? Identifying your financial goals is the necessary first step toward achieving them.

- Work to know your own risk tolerance. It's essential that you know your own investment personality — that is, how much risk you can comfortably handle. If you think you can handle a relatively high level of risk, but you find yourself worrying excessively over every drop in the market, you may need to re-evaluate your risk tolerance and adjust your investment habits. Conversely, if you believe yourself to be highly risk-avoidant, but you find yourself frustrated over the relatively low returns you get from conservative investments, you may need to revise your thinking — and your actions.

- Work to avoid bad habits. Many investors chase after “hot” stocks or try to “time” the market. However, hot stocks can cool off quickly, while efforts to predict market highs and lows are doomed to fail — because no one can accurately forecast those points. You will want to be especially diligent about learning to look past the headlines and beyond short-term price movements in the financial markets — because too many people overreact to these events. If you can avoid these bad investment habits, you'll be doing yourself a favor.

- Work to follow a consistent investment strategy. If you invest over the course of several decades, you are going to see a lot of ups and downs in the financial markets. And when the markets get choppy, you may be tempted to take a “time out” from investing. But if you do this repeatedly, you will certainly interrupt the progress you need to make toward your financial goals. If you can develop the discipline to follow a consistent investment strategy and to keep investing in all types of markets, you have a pretty good chance of “smoothing out” the effects of market volatility over time. And, as a bonus, you'll be far less likely to concern yourself over day-to-day price fluctuations.

- Work to review your progress. Along with your financial advisor, consistently review your progress toward your goals. Your investment professional should establish your portfolio review frequency and meet with you to discuss your investments at least once a year.

So, there you have it — some ideas on how you can work to be a better investor.

For more information or a free, no-obligation portfolio review, call Edward Jones Investment Representative Jamie Chapogas, (772) 463-7189.

Say 'goodbye' to all the appointed committees

I am writing the following questions to all of our legal representatives for the right to uphold our Constitution, as it is written.

My problem is that all of the representatives, after election, begin to work for self-enhancement.

They begin to represent us by appointing many committees to solve the problems of injustice leveled at us citizens of the U.S.A.

I want to point out the government of Florida, because I expect all of our Florida representatives are elected to give us the best opportunities, to execute all the laws to the benefit of our way of life, to safely work for the benefit of our community and our families.

The residents now have to comply with intrusive businesses and their management executives to comply with their problems by assigning them to committees, which make decisions to publicly improve the stature of our elected officials.

So, large companies and corporations put those appointed committee members on their payroll and convince our citizens that the elected officials are doing what is right for them (the people).

Example No. 1: Some time ago, our Florida representative elected or chose to appoint a committee for the purpose of keeping large corporations from abusing our citizens, personally and financially.

They caused us to believe they were protecting our laws by saying our elected officials are legally correct, but the illegal offences keep going on.

I say "goodbye" to all appointed committees.

Laws are there for reasons

I am sure you all would agree with me to say to those, who are in such a rush to get somewhere, slow down and be respectful to others.

I always drive what the speed limit is, but there comes a race driver, who gets mad at me, while I am doing what the law says to do.

This is a country of laws. Imagine if there were not any laws. Oh, my God! I don't want to even imagine what people would be doing to each other.

Please, if you go to church on Sundays (only), listen to the words and practice them; it will benefit you.

You are living in this great country, so please be nice to each other, and respect each other. Respect the laws and follow them.

Thank you.

No store card, no discounts

I was checking out of the grocery store, when I realized I didn't have the store loyalty card with me.

Puppy power

Zebadiah, a 6 month old American Bull Terrier puppy available for adoption, gets a bath from Sandi Smith of Palm City and Frank Valeate, President, CEO of the Treasure Coast Humane Society.

There was no way I was purchasing a single item without the discounts the card provides. I thought about walking out of the store and letting some poor clerk re-shelve all my items, until the cashier asked the customer behind me if she could use her card for my items.

I thanked the customer for using their card. But I couldn't shake my embarrassment.

Why does any store have these annoying cards at all? What's the purpose?

I gave up my personal information to obtain the card, but what benefit did I really receive in return? Wouldn't swiping my credit card give them all the personal information they need?

Why don't they just lower their prices for everybody with or without the card? Then I remembered that many other stores don't have loyalty cards, and their prices are almost always lower than similar stores that have the cards.

So, why do these have them?

I won't be embarrassed again. I've shredded all my loyalty cards. My wallet is much thinner now.

While I'm ranting about stores, why do some stores prevent anybody from entering their stores without a paid membership card?

What they're really doing is charging customers to enter their store.

In this awful economy, why would any for-profit business restrict the number of customers they let through their doors?

Helping the elderly in a storm

To the wonderful mom and her teenage son, who ran around Publix parking lot in a torrential storm running around with their umbrellas, just to help elderly people bring their groceries to their cars.

Then, they left and went to another store.

Way-to-go, Mom.

You give hope to all of us.

I've got one question for car dealers

Earl Stewart is the owner and general manager of Earl Stewart Toyota in North Palm Beach. The dealership is located at 1215 N. Federal Highway in Lake Park. Visit www.earlstewarttoyota.com, call (561) 358-1474, fax (561) 658-0746 or email earl@estoyota.com.

ON CARS
EARL STEWART

Why don't you include the profit you make on your dealer fee in the price of the car you quote to your customer? If you will answer this question truthfully then I pledge never to raise the issue of the dealer fee again.

The reason that I do hear from car dealers and the Florida Auto Dealers Association, FADA, as to why most car dealers charge a dealer fee is that it's an "economic necessity." Dealer margins are so low, the economy is so bad, and the car buyers are so armed with information on dealers' costs and profit margins via the Internet that dealers need the extra profit they make from their dealer fees. OK, I'll give you the benefit of the doubt and stipulate that this is a fact. I won't even argue that I don't charge a dealer fee and have been profitable for many years and even through this Great Recession.

Now answer my question because you can still charge the extra profit you must have to "survive" economically if you simply include your dealer fee in the prices of the cars you sell. Don't add the dealer fee to the price if the car after the customer commits to buy at a lower price. Don't hide the amount of your dealer fee in the fine print. Don't tell the customer that the price is "plus tax, tag, and 'fees'" fooling her into believing "fees" are state, federal, or local taxes. Don't tell the customer that "all dealers charge a dealer fee" which you know to be untrue. Don't tell her that the law requires that you must charge her the dealer fee because you charge others, which you also know to be untrue. Don't tell the customer that the dealer fee is not a profit but expenses that you must recoup like doc fees, preparing the car for delivery, and administrative costs. When you went to school you should have learned in Economics 101 that the definition of profit is "the difference between the selling price of a cost or service and its total costs". Besides, you don't even pay to prepare your new cars for delivery because you are reimbursed by the manufacturer and you are not allowed by law to charge doc fees.

When I ask car dealers or FADA officials this question they always give me the same answer...Hamma, Hamma, Hamma, just like Ralph Kramden of the Honeymooners. You know what I mean..."the deer caught in the headlights" or the politician on "Meet the Press" when the moderator shows the video of something the politician said on camera two weeks ago that directly contradicts something he just said.

OK car dealers and FADA, if I'm wrong about this, here's your chance to shut me up about the dealer fee forever. All you have to do is give me a truthful answer to this question. Why don't you include the profit you make on your dealer fee in the price of the car you quote to your customers?

School

"The whole school took a holiday while I was there and they put on a huge show with dancing and music," Evan said. "During the performances, the new furniture was delivered."

Mr. Valle, for whom the project was named, also attended the celebration. During their time together last summer in Connecticut, he told Evan about the deplorable conditions of the furniture at the K-11 school in San Salvador where his mother worked as a teacher. While trying to sleep that night, Evan couldn't help thinking how blessed he was to be from a country with so much wealth and having the opportunity to be named a Young Global Scholar. Thinking back on his mother's recovery from a life-threatening operation in 2011, he felt his chance meeting of Mr. Valle at Yale might really have been what he terms "a Godin-cident" or a divine appointment.

"Daniel was telling me all about El Salvador, and I thought maybe that's why I was selected in the program and we had the opportunity to meet," Evan said.

Soon after their return to their respective hometowns, the two international friends began brainstorming on how to raise the funds. The young Salvadoran created a video of the school and its furnishings to promote the fundraising efforts and uploaded it to Youtube.

The pair debated the idea of a 5k run but realized there were a number of similar runs already planned around the same date they wanted. Evan's parents suggested the idea of a golf tournament, which eventually gave birth to the Daniel's Dream Charity Golf Tournament held at Eagle Marsh Golf Club on May 3. The tournament, which also included a luncheon and auction of items the two friends solicited from area businesses, raised a total of $5,540. Since Evan is the vice president of the Key Club at Jensen Beach High School where he'll be a senior this fall, he also had the backing of area Kiwanis Clubs.

The two long-distance friends wanted to find a way to introduce other youth in their respective countries to the same type of international friendship they enjoyed. Their brainstorming led to a novel idea for foreign language students in both nations.

"In early February, Daniel and I were going back and forth trying to discuss how to make more of an impact than just monetary funds," he said. "That's when we came up with the idea of a pen pal program in order to establish other friendships like ours in which each student could learn about the other's culture."

In order to get that idea off the ground, Evan first had to convince his school administration it would be a valid educational experience. His Spanish teacher loved the idea, and shared it in turn with the school's other Spanish teachers. Evan was invited to speak to the incoming Spanish students at the school, and this fall they'll be writing both English and Spanish letters to their new pen pals. "When Daniel came up, he brought up about 150 letters from students," Evan said. "I am going to present them to the students this year."

While in San Salvador, Evan visited another school known as the American-Salvadorian Cultural Center to enlist them in the pen pal program and convince them to form a Key Club.

"I immediately had 25 students pledge to join and form their own Key club, as well as having teachers and administrators step up to be advisers and sponsors," Evan said. "This is now "Daniel's Dream": Salvadorians helping Salvadorians."

While in El Salvador, Evan also met with U.S. Embassy staff to discuss his vision for cultural exchange between the two nations.

“By far, the biggest economic factor is going to be tourism,” Mr. McDonald said. “That’s where the lion’s share of Hope Town’s economy comes from, and it’s a large share of our economy as well.”

Jeremy Sweeting, chief counselor, or mayor, of Hope Town, had his own Treasure Coast connection in the past when his sister-in-law lived in Fort Pierce for a time. He attributes Stuart’s Bahamian immigration to geographical proximity.

“Bahamians began migrating to the area in search of employment, as in those times the Bahamas did not enjoy high employment levels as we do today,” Mr. Sweeting said. “West Palm Beach and Stuart are almost directly west of Abaco, Grand Bahama and the Bahama Banks, so it made Stuart and the Martin County area a natural choice.”

Ricardo Treco, Bahamas Consul General to Miami, also traveled to Hope Town to sign the sister-city agreement. Mr. Treco says the idea for the sister-city relationship was birthed during his visit to Stuart for the city’s centennial celebration last May.

“The city of Stuart was an obvious choice for the city of Hope Town, primarily because of the geographical location of both cities,” he said. “The cities also share other similarities like, tourism, fishing and boatbuilding.”

Stuart Mayor Troy McDonald, second from right, and other Bahamian officials look on during a tour of the Albury Brothers boatbuilding facility in Hope Town, Bahamas.

While in Hope Town, which lies just east of Marsh Harbour on Great Abaco, Mayor McDonald admired the town’s charming architecture and visited a boatbuilding facility.

“One of the things that I want to do is focus on how the marine businesses in both cities can learn how to better work together,” he said.

Mr. McDonald also experienced the town’s Martin County connection first-hand.

“I probably met 12 or 13 people from Stuart, two of whom I already knew,” he said.

The sister-city agreement signed by all three officials designates both cities as official gateways to the other nation.

“We are listed as a gateway to the Bahamas from the states, and Hope Town is listed as a gateway to the United States from the Bahamas,” Mayor McDonald said.

Mr. Treco says he’s also aware of the significant Bahamian connection to the Port Salerno community of Martin County. Port Salerno hosts the annual Bahamian Connection Festival every October, during which non-Bahamians can get a taste of Bahamas cuisine and enjoy music by the archipelago’s famed Junkanoo musicians. “I intend to return and host a meet-and-greet for the Bahamian Diaspora in that specific area,” he said.

In order to continue fostering the new sisterhood and develop business partnerships, the mayor has planned a business roundtable in Stuart for Aug. 30 and invited business owners from both cities to participate. Mr. Sweeting says he never could get enough of the Treasure Coast while visiting in the past and is anxiously awaiting the business summit.

“I am looking forward to my upcoming visit with great anticipation of carrying this sister-city relationship further,” he said.

buttons icons and such, will respond not just when clicked, but often when the mouse just passes over. These "mouse-overs" can be the source of many a hint to help you on your way.

You may have noticed while browsing the Internet that some things on websites change as you move your mouse around. Sometimes a button will change color or a pictures title will appear if the mouse is held over it for long enough. If your mouse passes over a link, the pointer may change from an arrow to a pointing finger. In Windows programs, buttons, menus and controls often brighten as your mouse passes over them to give you a visual clue you are now pointing at a clickable control. There, again, the secret is to pass your mouse slowly over an object and pay attention in order to see anything.

The reason I keep harping on that is sometimes I work with someone who just can't resist the urge to wiggle that mouse. Every time something's loading or we're trying to work out how to do something, he's moving the mouse all over the screen. Many times we'll be trying to work out a procedure but with that mouse flying all over, we can't get any thinking done! But, as soon as the mouse stops, and we start pointing at things and pausing and start paying attention to our mouse, we start to make progress.

So, what are some of the clues to watch for when your pointer passes over something? Well, one of the things that you'll likely see is your pointer will turn into a double-sided arrow. If you will notice, when the very tip of your pointer moves over the very edge of certain objects (like the edge of a window), the pointer will sometimes turn into a double sided arrow. This is your computer's way of telling you that you can stretch whatever it is that you are currently pointing at. All you have to do is click and hold while it's a double arrow and you should be able to change the size that object just by dragging the mouse.

In many Microsoft programs like Internet Explorer, XL and Word, holding your mouse over buttons and controls will often yield a small pop-up window with a short, two or three-word description of the control. The thing is, many times this little pop-up doesn't appear for a second or so, so if you're all over the place with the mouse, you just may miss it.

In things like word processors or email programs, you may notice the mouse turns into this oversized capital "I."

This pointer is called the "I Beam," and its shape is specifically designed to get right between the letters. When your pointer turns into an I Beam, that's your clue that the part of the screen you're pointing at is for typing.

Yeah, there sure is a lot on a computer that can serve to distract you. One of the best ways to stay on track is to pay attention to what your mouse is pointing at, take it easy and follow your mouse. Many times the answers that you are looking for are right under your pointer.

TREASURE COAST — Florida Fish and Wildlife conservation Commission researchers have begun using new approaches to more quickly detect and track harmful algal blooms in the Indian River Lagoon, which spans 156 miles and makes up 40 percent of Florida's east coast, supporting commercial and recreational clam and oyster farming.

To provide spatial snapshots of blooms (the big picture of where blooms may be occurring in the lagoon) the FWC established a flow-through monitoring program this year. The flow-through monitoring system analyzes water quality while the research vessel is in motion, traveling throughout the lagoon, as opposed to traditional methods of tracking blooms that require scientists to collect water and examine it back in the lab. The flow-through system pumps water from the surface through instruments that measure salinity, temperature and chlorophyll fluorescence, an indicator of algae.

This information is then integrated with GPS coordinates to create maps of surface waters that can show "hot spots" of blooms.

Monthly, between June and August (typical bloom season) the FWC maps surface waters in the Indian River Lagoon system, which includes Mosquito Lagoon and Banana River, to detect blooms and to put routine monitoring data into a spatial context. The equipment produces real-time data, which allow researchers to adaptively sample bloom patches as they are noticed in the field. At select stations, researchers also collect samples to be analyzed for the amount and diversity of algae; this is done in partnership with the St. Johns River Water Management District and the University of Florida.

The information will help in the short term to detect blooms and in the longer term to identify the causes of blooms, ultimately leading to better management strategies.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says diseases can spread when infected people cough, sneeze, or even talk. Children may spread the flu virus for up to three days before they show any symptoms and for longer than a week after getting sick, putting their classmates at risk of becoming sick, too.

The CDC, the March of Dimes, and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists all recommend that, in addition to children, all pregnant women and those planning to become pregnant should get an annual flu shot in the fall. The normal biological changes of pregnancy put pregnant women at increased risk of the harmful effects of flu. Recent research suggests that the flu vaccine may also lower a woman's risk of having a stillbirth or miscarriage. "The flu vaccine helps protect your body from infection, and this protection is in turn passed on to your baby during pregnancy," adds Dr. Harris, explaining that immunization during pregnancy helps keep the newborn safe during the first few months of life until he or she is ready for the first set of vaccinations.

Parents, grandparents, caregivers, and anyone in close contact with an infant should get an adult pertussis vaccine to help protect themselves and to help stop the spread of the disease to the newborns in their lives. Newborns are most at-risk for this highly contagious and often serious disease because they don't begin receiving their own vaccinations until they are two months old and may not be protected until they have received at least three doses of an infant pertussis vaccine. This year, the March of Dimes continues their work on the Sounds of Pertussis® Campaign, a national education campaign started in 2009 to help raise awareness about the potential dangers of pertussis and the importance of adult vaccination.

More information on baby vaccinations is available from www.marchofdimes.com/baby/wellbabycares\_vaccinations.html

Business Services Showcase A Great Success...

Thanks to All of Our Sponsors, Presenters & Exhibitors!

The Annual Business Services Showcase took place on Wednesday afternoon, July 16th at Indian River State College, despite torrential rain showers and thunder. The lobby and auditorium were filled with over 50 businesses, organizations and food vendors.

Chamber members and outside businesses perused the assorted exhibits and learned about services that can enhance their business and streamline their operations.

Our major sponsors shared valuable information about their specialties and fielded questions from the crowd. Jeff Leslie, President of ITS Fiber LLC explained the A-Z about cloud services. Ron Walters of Advantage HR highlighted the significance of employee leasing. Eric Kiehn, President of C&W Technologies, described how small business can be tech savvy, regardless of their size. David Winters, President of The Back Office LLC, shared the top 10 to do list for business success with humor, valuable suggestions and facts. Also thanks to Ampersand Graphics for their sponsorship.

Special thanks to Southern Pig & Cattle, Anthony's Coal Fired Pizza, Mrs. Peters Food Co. Inc.

and Benihana for providing delicious food and Charlie's Bar & Grille for the evenings libations. Thank you to our media sponsors, Stuart News, TC Palm and Your Voice, News & Views.

Our chamber member exhibitors did a fantastic job educating the crowd and displaying their wares. The event was well attended and a good time was had by all.

Shrimper's: Picturesque locale, incredible food

By Anna-Marie Menhenott
news@hometownnewsol.com

STUART — Picture this: boats bobbing in the gorgeous turquoise waters, dolphins making a graceful appearance to catch a breath, paddle-boarders and fishermen and lazy days spent by the water in a tiny fishing village. Sounds amazing doesn't it... Now, add to that, incredible food like rock-lobster tails, stuffed portabella mushrooms, steaming clam chowder, mouth-watering burgers and Key lime pie that make you feel as though you are vacationing in Key West.... No, this isn't a dream, it's all located at Shrimper's Grill & Raw Bar located on Manatee Pocket just south of Stuart.

There are breathtaking views from almost every seat at Shrimper's, including the deck, which at night, is the spot to find schools of hungry fish waiting to be fed. Fishing lights illuminate the waters around the deck, attracting scores of fish. Children and parents alike are invited to participate in the feeding frenzy which takes place every night.

"It's really a neat thing to watch," said Paul Hines, managing partner.

ful waters with."

If feeding the fish isn't part of your plans, patrons can sometimes catch a live band performing, enjoy happy hour or one of the many specials at the restaurant.

When my guest and I arrived at Shrimper's mid-afternoon and it was easy to tell that seats fill up quickly at this waterfront hot spot.

Our waiter, Don, described some of the dishes on the menu with expertise, leaving us anticipating the wonders that were in store.

We started our meal with a steaming bowl of clam chowder that was creamy and full of incredible tasting clams. We took Don's advice and added a few dashes of Cholulu hot sauce which really brought out the flavors of the soup. We were served freshly baked bread with the soup that had an incredible crust and delicious, warm interior.

For an appetizer, we tried the conch fritters. They were simply amazing. The zesty dipping sauce that accompanied them made for a delicious pairing. I would definitely recommend trying them. The seafood stuffed portabella mushroom that we were served was topped with mozzarella cheese and a lobster cream sauce that was out of this world.

For my entrée, I again took Don's advice and tried the rock lobster. Four lobster tails are served with drawn butter and a choice of sides. The lobster was tender and cooked to perfection.

My dining companion chose the bacon cheeseburger. The incredible looking burger will give landlubbers something to look forward to.

As we were taking in the beautiful scenery, enjoying the amazing breeze and watching the paddle boarders navigate the waters, Don brought us two amazing desserts. The cheese-cake is served with strawberries and whipped cream and tasted incredible fresh and light. I was lucky enough to try the Key lime pie. The delectable dessert was served with a chocolate sauce that put the exclamation point on an absolutely incredible experience.

Shrimper's Grill & Raw Bar serves many other dishes, including many different types of pastas, seafood plates, oysters, salads, burgers and has different daily specials and happy hour deals.

A trip to north Florida and the beautiful Gerber Daisy

A couple weeks ago my wife and I had an opportunity to travel through several areas of our beautiful state. We decided to leave town for a couple of days and we headed to some uncharted areas of north Florida. We visited a very quaint town called Keystone Heights. Keystone Heights is located about 35 minutes north of Gainesville and is almost due west of St. Augustine. It's amazing how only a 4-hour drive can change the entire landscape.

I think the first thing I noticed as we drove north was that we saw fewer palm trees and more pine and oak. This is especially true in the small rural communities that dot the landscape. Along many of the rural roads that we had to travel to get to our destination, wildflowers were in full bloom and added a breathtaking touch of color to the landscape. We saw plenty of wild petunia, periwinkle and aster. In many of the landscapes of people's homes we observed dogwood trees and plenty of oaks. The many small ponds and creeks were brimming with water lilies and lotus lilies.

GARDEN NOOK

Our trip home was just as exciting as we decided to stop at Silver Springs in Ocala. This was indeed a pleasurable experience. Silver Springs is now a State Park. Along with the glass bottom boats that it is most famous for, the park boasts lots of activities such as kayaking and more. The final leg of our journey took us through the picturesque Ocala National Forest. This is one of the most scenic drives in the state with native trees and wildflowers in full bloom along most of the drive. Did I mention the road has hills? Yes real hills, something we don't see much of in our area.

To get the Ocala National Forest take I-95 north into Brevard County and take highway 40 west towards Ocala. It will indeed be a pleasurable experience!

Getting back to home, I am going to talk about Gerber daisies. Unlike many of the other varieties of daisies, Gerber daisies can provide a summer full of color. They do in a sunny location but will require daily watering during the hotter summer months to prevent wilting. Gerber daisies also do very well in containers

Stuart offers luxurious excursion close to home

The Hutchinson Island Marriott Beach Resort & Marina in Stuart offers everything you need to recharge your batteries without making a long trip to do so.

Located on 200 acres between the Atlantic Ocean and the Indian River Lagoon, the resort offers 274 deluxe accommodations, unspoiled beaches, a marina, fine dining and bars, a BBQ and picnic area, babysitting services, fitness center, tennis courts, three swimming pools, wave runner and kayak rentals, bicycle rentals, and much more. There are even plenty of activities designed just for the kids so that you can truly "get away".

The Ocean Club Course, designed by Charles Ankrum and renovated by Dick Gray, is the jewel of the resort. This 18-hole track recently underwent renovations to all of its greens. Just over two years ago the greens complexes on the front-nine were completely torn up and rebuilt. This past winter, it was the back-nine's turn. The results are phenomenal and the course's friendly staff is rightfully proud.

GOLF
JAMES STAMMER

I was invited out last weekend to play the course and compare it to other resorts in the area. The work on the greens may have interrupted the busy winter season for the resort's members and guests, but it was well worth it. The new greens are as close to perfect as I've seen in some time. They hold and track well. In fact, my putts rolled as if on a pool table with just enough undulations to make things interesting.

There are three sets of tees on this par-61 track that measures just over 4,000 yards from the tips. The front nine plays out to the Indian River Lagoon, while the back-nine takes you out toward the Atlantic Ocean.

At The Ocean Club, 12 par-3s await you. There are five par-4s and the finishing hole is a wonderful 485-yard par-5.

While the shortest par-3 plays just 120 yards from the back, there are two long par-3s as well to test your game. Four of the par-4s play to the cardinal points on the compass. This means that where the wind may help you on one hole, the next it could be in your face, or coming from your right or left. This course has enough teeth to test better players, yet remains fun for the true recreational golfer.

If you play from the correct set of tees, Ocean Club will surely test your game. If you can play to your handicap around this track, you have had a solid round. There is a great variety of holes here. I hit eight different clubs off the tee on the par-3s.

Every hole is well framed and laid out. The villas surrounding the course do not come into play, but do make for tricky wind patterns that add to the difficulty of the course. Being so close to the ocean and river, means that there is nearly always a breeze, and it can change from hour to hour.

The 18th hole here is a great hole. It's not often that we recreational golfers get a chance to reach the green on a par-5 in two. Playing under 500 yards long, a solid tee shot will leave most of us with a fairway wood or hybrid second shot to the green. Of course, it's not an easy shot with water lurking in front and left of the green. Fortunately, the green is very deep and receptive to long shots. Then there is always the way I played it. Hit a poor tee shot to the left and have to layup and then hit a wedge into the green.

Garden

on a patio or sunny porch. Although they are perennials in Florida, they can be grown as annuals in other parts of the country and can even be grown indoors in a sunny window.

When you are shopping for your colorful treasures, don't pick the flowers with the most open blooms but rather choose the ones that have plenty of buds. This will ensure a longer bloom cycle. It is a good idea to pinch the spent flowers off the plant as this will help to promote new blooms.

You should plant your colorful gems in well-drained soil in a sunny location. As noted earlier, you will need to water your plants daily and sometimes twice a day during the hot summer months. You should also feed your plants once a week with a good all-purpose water-soluble fertilizer.

With a little care and TLC, this is one plant that will give you many weeks of rewarding color.
