Color meets creativity at new creative arts center

Mixed-media classes open to the public, Promise in Brevard residents

By Brittany Mulligan
 bmulligan@hometownnewsol.com

WEST MELBOURNE — Some people look at arts and crafts as a special skillset, and it's not until the first project has been completed that they realize how much fun they had while doing it.

Now with Promise in Brevard's recently opened Promise Creative Arts Center, its "Promisers" (what Promise calls its residents) are learning a new skill that, at first, may seem intimidating.

After participating in their first mixed-media art class, it didn't take long for residents to realize they had a knack for it and were excited to come back for more, said Julie Kessler, a local mixed-media artist and manager of the Promise Creative Arts Center.

"A lot of our Promisers didn't feel like they had any art skills, and it was hard to get them to come to a class," Ms. Kessler said. "Once they allow themselves to become creative, they are instantly hooked and an overall sense of pride shines through."

The Promise Creative Arts Center opened its doors over the summer and has since offered twice-daily classes for the residents of Promise in Brevard, an independent living community for young adults with special needs.

In addition to providing classes for residents, the Promise Creative Arts Center in West Melbourne offers community adult art classes throughout the month, covering a wide range of art mediums.

"Our goal is to be able to call this the only Mixed-Media Art Studio on the east coast of Florida," said Diane Marra, a local artist and volunteer at the Promise Creative Arts Center. "When you take a class with us, you not only get to make a beautiful, original piece to take home, but you're also supporting our art program and the young adults who live here at Promise."

Contact center shows growth, now hiring

By Brittany Mulligan

bmulligan@hometownnewsol.com

MELBOURNE — When it comes to looking for employment in the Space Coast, Brevard County has a multitude of businesses hiring while looking for a range of skillsets.

Enhanced Resource Centers (ERC), a contact center that takes on outsourcing for various companies, is currently looking to offer jobs to residents more than 18 years of age with a high school diploma. ERC is currently offering a $1,500 sign on bonus for new applicants to the technical support representative position.

The company, which is based in Melbourne, will celebrate its one-year anniversary this October with a community event aimed to inform and recruit community members into the ERC family.

“Something that makes us different from every other call center is that we offer a permanent position,” said Oscar Rivera, talent management team leader for ERC. “You have a career with ERC, it’s not just seasonal or that you’re here for five months, it’s a partnership with our client so you can actually grow within the company.”

ERC is a full service provider, which can offer employees the opportunity to work with the cable industry in positions such as customer service representatives, quality analysts, leadership roles, trainers, recruiters and more.

“We’ve got an exciting opportunity for someone to join this new, growing company here in Melbourne,” said Nader Jomaa, director of operations for ERC. “We’re looking for employees who are looking for a family environment, where they’re going to feel supported from the day that they start training all the way through their career with us.”

Mr. Jomaa added that a family environment is what made ERC stand out as a unique business to work for after he first joined the business in June.

“I love working with ERC because it’s one of the few places where I’ve been able to work where I really feel like it’s a family,” he said. “We don’t just say that we care, we show that we care.”

Community outreach is an important finalists include Malak Hammad from Marine Bank & Trust, Maria Dockery from Femme Fatale Arms & Training, and Kathy Hamilton-Brown from Endeavor Elementary Magnet School.

The last categories finalists from the Woman to Watch Award include Annette O. Burkett from Rockwell Collins, Kristen Klein from LEAD Brevard, Inc., and Natasha Duran from Candlelighters of Brevard.

The evening's judges are professional women who work outside of Brevard County, added Mrs. Richey.

Each finalist was nominated for a specific category through a nomination form from the Melbourne Regional Chamber. Officials were looking for women who have demonstrated leadership and growth, have contributed significantly to their community and industry, have addressed complex issues and worked to solve them, and have made impacts on the lives around them.

"We made special in-person deliveries to each of the 12 finalists with a bottle of Rose and a pink rose," Mrs. Richey said. "It was very rewarding, they are just so beyond thrilled to be nominated and their employers are excited. I think it's an overall wonderful event."

When guests enter the event venue, they will have the opportunity to learn more about each finalist by viewing posters made by the Chamber on each nominee.

Sponsorships are still available through the Chamber's website, and tickets are on track to sell out by the time the event begins.

Tickets are $80 for non-members, and $55 per Chamber member registered before Oct. 9. Ticket prices will rise to $70 standard member price after Oct. 9

Kangaroo court or Senate?

I am very upset about how the Kavanaugh hearing is being conducted by Senator Grassley.

I cannot believe that the FBI has not been asked to reopen their background check.

I cannot believe that no other witnesses have been called.

We know that Kavanaugh is lying about his drinking. There are too many, men and women, who say he was a party boy. So what else is he lying about?

Grassley & McConnell intend to push Kavanaugh's nomination through, no matter what.

This is NOT fair.

It is not fair for Grassley to bring in a prosecutor to question Ford instead of questioning her directly by Republicans on the committee. This is like a kangaroo court instead of a Senate hearing.

Justice by voting your feelings

We see in Washington, D.C., that judging people by the Senate does not require knowledge or proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

This body has members that have already sensed their feelings, from which their pronouncements of guilt, innocence and worthiness are determined.

Progress in this sense can extend to everyday justice. There are many instances where similar decisions may be made.

Polls are used now to assess and "vote" for the best restaurant or the worst actor or the most heinous villain by sampling a small group to proclaim the belief of the whole country or even the entire world!

Little thought is given to how random this sample might be or if it possibly yields the correct answer.

For the truly "evil-doer," when the poll favors killing the bad person, the death penalty would be carried out immediately, perhaps with 95 percent required for death (2 percent against and 3 percent undecided). The prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment (of the English tradition) would be ignored.

Some might object that nothing is known about the proof of guilt or validity of the evidence. Others might say that one should get in touch with your sensitive feelings to know what must be done.

The nation is ready for this change, as we learn from the evening (and round the clock) news. Life is too short for lengthy decisions by a bunch of legal scholars. Let us look to our future, when decision efficiency is judged by how fast it occurs.

Thank you, Good Samaritan

I lost my purse while shopping at WalMart.

When I got home I had to call my credit card company to cancel my card.

I called the police to ask about my license, the policeman was very helpful.

The next day I went out my front door and found my purse, with everything in it, on a chair in my entrance way. I want to thank the person who put it there, it saved me a lot of work and expense.

A big THANK YOU to you.

A legitimate, peaceful election

May our election be legitimate and peaceful.

we all have a very special Duty that is upon us.

I implore all of the citizens of Brevard and Florida to independently research all of the candidates and all of the Amendments that are on the ballots, independently and personally, confidentially, without any influence of media, other people, candidates or any other type of distraction. Then, confidently cast your vote, you have done the very best you can!

May our election be legitimate and peaceful.

Read history, it's interesting

In response to last weeks New socialism misunderstood . . . you mean it's actually like the Democratic Socialists of Nazi Germany?

How is socialism working in Venezuela? The USA is a Democratic Republic which is different from a democracy.

How many people flee to socialist countries?

Be careful what you advocate it could be very dangerous as it has proven to be in many socialist countries.

Read history, its very interesting.

Adoptable Pet is not a crime

Why are the adoptable pets listed under the "Crime" link on your Hometown News website? I feel that makes them harder to find and less adoptable. No one would consider looking under crime for adopting a pet.

Please consider moving that coverage to another section such as announcements or classifieds.

Either would be more applicable and appropriate.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Feel free to contact me with any feedback or questions.

Editor's note: Hometown News initially put the Adoptable Pet there because the Brevard County Sheriff's office sponsors it. Moving the picture is being considered.

The fall listing of mixed-media public art classes at the Promise Creative Arts Center ranges from art journaling and gelli monoprinting to mixed-media canvas art and painting classes. Ms. Kessler and her staff provide detailed instruction, and not everyone creates the same design – it's up to each participant to decide what they want to make.

"We have a lot of fun in here, if you can't tell!" said Ms. Marra, holding up some of the unique pieces past students have made.

The construction build-out for the Promise Creative Arts Center was completed with the help of a $100,000 "A Community Thrives" grant that Promise won from an online video contest funded by The Gannett Foundation.

Before exploring the Art Zone Studio, which is where the art magic happens, guests of the Creative Arts Center enter through the vibrant Killian Stark Art Gallery, which was named in honor of the grandmothers of one Promise resident. The gallery features work made by local and consignment artists, as well as collaborative pieces made by Promise residents, all of which is for sale.

The studio and the art porch, which was sponsored by Cocoa & Coastal Hyundai, are also available to rent out for private painting parties, events and team-building classes, such as one had by the Melbourne Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors last month.

Attendees of the community adult art classes may bring their own drinks and snacks to a class, as well as alcohol, for classes marked 21 and up.

All classes are first-come, first-served, and participants must pre-register via the Promise Creative Arts Center Facebook page.

All of the money generated from art classes, private events and pieces sold in the gallery filters back into the Promise art program, so the idea is for the center to eventually become a self-sustaining operation.

That is actually the goal for all 10 business-social enterprises that Promise in Brevard has planned, which began with the Promise Treasures Thrift Shoppe, which opened in October 2014 and employs 10 Promise residents.

"Our main goal at Promise is not only to provide a safe, affordable place to live for our 126 young adults with special needs, but also to provide each and every one of them with a job – whether that is out on the community or at one of our business-social enterprises," said Betsy Farmer, co-founder of Promise in Brevard, alongside her son, Luke, 32, who has Down syndrome. "Our Arts Center is just one of those opportunities."

During their weekly art classes, Promise residents work independently, as well as collaboratively, which helps with their social skills and the development of a piece, according to Ms. Kessler.

"We came up with this blue jean project where Promisers painted their handprint on a pair of jeans and added the things they love most in their lives since moving here," said Ms. Kessler, pointing to an exhibit of hanging jeans in the gallery. "For some, this is their first time living away from home.

"One Promiser learned how to cut the wood we used to make some of our pieces and is now the best sander we have here," Ms. Kessler continued.

"It's all about providing our residents with as many opportunities as possible and giving them a chance to shine," Ms. Marra added.

"Through the 40-something Promisers I've known while volunteering here, I always like to ask what types of things they liked to do before moving to Promise. Many of them have said, 'Nothing,'" Ms. Marra said. "They have a brand-new life now and are experiencing opportunities never thought possible. While working in the art studio, I like to ask them, 'You have this whole new life, how are you going to express that?'"

The Promise Creative Arts Center is located at 4105 Norfolk Parkway, West Melbourne, just west of the Hammock Landing shopping plaza.

Organizations team up on pet rescue road trip

By Jamie Desena-McFarland
For Hometown News

BREVARD COUNTY — When Hurricane Florence made landfall last month, it threatened much worse than wind and rain for 24 dogs housed at two South Carolina shelters; it brought with it the ominous probability that most of them would be euthanized because of overcrowded shelters.

Instead of meeting a sad fate, the dogs now have the chance to live healthy, happy lives – all thanks to two local pet rescue organizations that recently teamed up to save them.

SPCA of Brevard and the Brevard Humane Society collaborated on a more than 400-mile road trip to pick up the animals, with SPCA going to Sumter to rescue 11 dogs and the society going to Manning to pick up 13 dogs.

The team departed Sept. 20 and returned the following day with the pets.

“The 11 dogs we took were scheduled to be euthanized to make room for new storm animals,” said SPCA of Brevard’s public relations coordinator, Susan Naylor. “They are all incredibly sweet and it breaks our heart to think that if we hadn’t been able to go get them, they wouldn’t be on this earth right now.”

Though the two organizations have collaborated on adoption events in the past, this is the first time they have come together on a trip to rescue animals, noted Brevard Humane Society’s executive director, Theresa Clifton.

“Angie [Friers], SPCA Director, contacted me to see if we had room for a few dogs as they were planning on driving to South Carolina to get some,” Ms. Clifton said. “I offered to go as well so we could each bring back as many as would fit in our vehicles.”

The group left from SPCA of Brevard’s shelter in Titusville, then formed a caravan to South Carolina. There, they stayed in the same hotel, then went on separate paths in the morning to pick up the pets, many of whom were found to have heartworm.

“One of the dogs, Poppy, had been used as a breeder dog,” Ms. Clifton said. “She is 4 years old and looks much older as she has eye and ear infections. She is also heartworm positive and missing hair on

New event to show police K-9s in action

By Jamie Desena-McFarland
For Hometown News

BREVARD COUNTY — Space Coast residents and visitors will soon have a new opportunity to take a closer look at how police K-9s and their teams work together to keep people safe.

The inaugural Space Coast Police K-9 Competition, hosted by the Cocoa Police Department and sponsored by Brevard Kennel Club, will run from 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 13 at the Cocoa High School stadium, 2001 Tiger Trail.

Admission will be free.

More than 20 police K-9 teams from around Florida that specialize in patrol work, drug detection, search and rescue, suspect apprehension and other areas will compete in a Hard and Fast Dog Competition and obstacle courses.

Alongside watching the competition, attendees can enjoy a noncompetitive K-9 demonstration, a vendor expo, raffles, and food and beverages for purchase.

“This is the first time a police K9 competition has been held in this area,” said Officer Chris Hattaway, who’s working to organize the competition in collaboration with the event’s partners. “We hope to give the public an opportunity to learn more about our police dogs, and the important resource they provide in

Computers change settings for many reasons

One concept that a lot of people have trouble wrapping their head around when it comes to computers is the idea that they can behave differently from one day to another.

Sure, I can see how it can be surprising to click a link that you've clicked a hundred times before only to have something else happens but the fact of the matter is things can and often do change. Operating a computer is more like driving a car than using something like a DVD player or a toaster — sometimes you have to take a detour when driving your car whereas operating a DVD player or toaster involves the same steps every time.

Having a computer spontaneously change a setting is actually pretty common and can usually be traced to an update or some other background task that has decided for whatever reason to change that setting. Perhaps an update caused whatever setting in question to revert to its defaults even if the defaults in question have never been seen before. The end result is the machine seems to act like it has a mind of its own.

Sometimes it doesn't even have anything to do with your computer. For instance, sites like Yahoo and the Yahoo web mail page are subject to change at a moment's notice. That's because the yahoo page is actually taking place on another computer altogether — everything you see on your screen is actually happening on Yahoo's servers somewhere out there in cyberspace.

That means sometimes you are going to open your email and they will have rolled out a new layout and things will look different. It happens from time to time and the reason it happens is the Yahoo mail system (along with others like AOL.com, Xfinity and gmail) all have a staff of people who sit in cubicles all week long maintaining the system and making changes.

These web based portals are super busy with sometimes millions of people accessing them simultaneously and that means there have to be people behind the scenes running things.

The people running things are making changes on a daily basis just to keep things running smoothly and most of the time those changes are transparent and you don't see them. But sometimes the engineers running things can make a change that is visible and when that happens that's when people get confused.

Maybe they logged into their email and now the print button is in a different place than it was yesterday or the layout of their mail box is different in some way.

COMPUTE THIS

When that happens it's no cause for panic — everything is fine! Sure it can be a bit confusing at first but keep in mind that if you're connected to any type of web based service (like AOL email or Yahoo mail) that none of what you are seeing is actually happening on your computer. All your computer is in charge of doing at this point is opening the web address and displaying the content in your browser (Internet Explorer, Chrome, Firefox, etc.) the way they've packaged it.

That covers things that are hosted on the web but what about "locally"? What's happening when a setting on your computer itself changes and things look different?

Not as common as changes on a web hosted service but occasionally you may turn your machine on and find your icons moved around or perhaps the resolution isn't what it was set at yesterday. Why do changes like that happen?

Well there can be any number of reasons why a setting will change on the local machine. Often when updates are applied for instance, the update overwrites its original code with updated code and reverts all the settings back to the defaults. Then you have to back in and adjust things back to the way you want them. Not very good programming there but not all programmers write quality code. And every update that gets applied was written by a different coder!

When something on your computer suddenly looks different from the way it did before it's important to keep these things in mind.

You, as the operator, have the controls to get things back on course when things look different just like you have to steer your car to get to your destination when your route changes.

It's up to you, the driver, to figure out how to get to where you're going when you run into a detour, it's just with the computer the signs are different.

MELBOURNE — On Nov. 25, Anthony "Tally" Mattesi, an Army Air Corps veteran and singer, will turn 100-years-old. The Melbourne resident is looking forward to celebrating his birthday with family and friends from Florida, other states and Canada during a private dinner party.

Tally has three children, two of whom call Brevard home, four grandchildren, two great-grandchildren and 12 nieces.

Tally's parents immigrated from Italy to the Bronx. All these years later, he can still remember their home address in a little Italian neighborhood. When they moved from that neighborhood to another, he was given the nickname that has stuck with him ever since. Everyone calls him Tally, which is short for Italian, except for his grandchildren. They call him Poppy.

Performing has always been a part of Tally's life. As a boy, he sang and danced on the bar in a speakeasy for money. He recalls making more money performing than he did shining shoes atop his shine box, even though he only knew one tune at the time.

When Tally was 17-years-old, he went to Manhattan looking for work. In the years that followed, he drove limos and trucks and delivered restaurant menus.

In September of 1942, Tally was drafted to serve in World War II. He spent the next three and a half years as a flight engineer in the Army Air Corps. He clocked 1,000 flight hours in B-17s and B-29s training pilots in the skies over New Mexico. Sometimes, his crew performed 50 takeoffs and landings a day.

After the service, Tally went back to his old job for a year and then worked for a hardware store. One day he ran into a man whose shoes he used to shine. He went to work for him driving grocery trucks and stayed for the next 33 years.

Over the years, Tally saw a few famous faces, including Miss America (circa 1975), Vice President Spiro Agnew, Mickey Mantle and John D. Rockefeller. Each meeting was unique and unplanned.

Tally met his wife, Carmela Mattesi, when they were teenagers. He remembers sharing a pizza with her during their first date. The couple got married in 1943 via a "football" wedding, during which homemade sandwiches were tossed to guests, just like one would throw a pigskin.

"She was a beautiful woman," Tally said.

Tally's family liked to travel. They visited the Catskills during yearly family vacations. Tally also visited Las Vegas, San Francisco, Hawaii, Naples, Rome, and Capri while on anniversary trips with his wife of 33 years.

Later in life, Tally moved to Kingston, New York where he would ski on Hunter Mountain. He called those six acres in the Catskills home until 1989.

Carmela passed in 2007. That same year, Tally moved to Melbourne to be near two of his children.

"All my friends, they said I'd be back in a year, but I'm still here," he said.

These days, Tally spends as much time with his children as he can. He may be celebrating a triple digit birthday, but he still keeps busy. Four times a month, he sings at the Grand Villa Senior Living Community. After he performs 10 songs, the audience usually joins him in a sing-a-long.

Tally knows far more songs than he did as a boy, but Frank Sinatra is his favorite artist.

"He was the tops," Tally said about the Chairman.

As he approaches his 100th birthday, Tally takes life day by day. Singing keeps the performer and his audiences in good spirits. Looking back, the soon-to-be cen-

'Meat Shoot' bingo helps Police Department

By Josh Whitener
For Hometown Heroes

BREVARD COUNTY — American Legion Riders Chapter 1 in Titusville, a program of the American Legion, donated $500 to the Titusville Police Department's Youth Program on Sept. 19. The money, which goes to help local youth in programs like the Explorers Program, was raised by the organizations monthly "Meat Shoot."

The game varies slightly from traditional bingo. Players only need to get three numbers in a row, instead of five, but with no free spaces. The traditional "BINGO!" call is replaced with "MEAT!" and players can then choose from an array of pieces of chicken, steak, hot dogs, fish, and more. There are 12 sets of games with three games within each set. With a usual 52 pieces of meat bought beforehand it allows for approximately 36 pieces to be won, although they generally find ways to give out the remainder of the meat.

Each set costs $1 per card and at the end of the game all proceeds beyond the cost of the meat go to a predetermined nonprofit chosen at the chapters monthly meeting.

The American Legion is widely known for its meat shoots, which often range from state to state depending on where they're held; often involving participants shooting at targets to win. The ALR in Titusville, however, uses a more universal, less skill set required game: bingo. Only instead of cash prizes or gifts, participants play for meat.

"Yes, it's a pretty crazy thing," Jay Pannier, Second Vice of the Legionaires and Secretary of the American Legion Riders in Titusville, said. "But, we have a lot of fun and are proud to be able to give back to the community. And, we hope to see more of the public now that we are a non-smoking facility."

"We are indebted to the members of American Legion [Riders] Post 1 for their generous donation to help our local kids," Titusville Police Chief John Lau said. "They are an amazing group who first served their country and now their community."

The ALR are active members of the American Legion. They also have two other programs, The Sons of The American Legion, made up of men whose relatives served in the military, and The American Legion Auxiliary, made up of women whose family has served. Both programs promote family-oriented motorcycling activities while honoring military and veterans at various ceremonies. They also support local charities of the community.

Their meat shoot, which has been going on for around five years, hosts as many as 30 people and is available to the public. It is held on the third Saturday of each month at 1 p.m. The post also hosts lunch five days a week and dinner three nights a week.

The American Legion Post 1 is located at 1281 US-1 near Parish Hospital and has recently become a non-smoking venue.

Police commander graduates from FBI Academy

By Christine Edwards
For Hometown Heroes

MELBOURNE — Melbourne Police Commander Marc Claycomb recently graduated from the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy Program at Quantico, Virginia. The veteran law enforcement officer gained a wealth of knowledge and developed international relationships through completing the program.

The FBI National Academy is a professional course of study for American and international law enforcement managers. Program attendees must be nominated by their agencies based on demonstrated leadership qualities.

"I commend Commander Marc Claycomb for his outstanding achievement," said Melbourne Chief of Police David Gillespie. "This training will assist him with his leadership skills as we lead the Melbourne Police Department into the future. I also want to thank the FBI for their continued partnership and for allowing Commander Claycomb this opportunity to train with some (of) our country's best leaders."

Commander Claycomb is one of only 220 persons to complete the program this year. His fellow graduates represent 48 states, the District of Columbia, 25 countries, four military organizations and five federal civilian organizations.

"The FBI National Academy is the industry standard in executive leadership and supervisory skills and management – I was honored to attend," Commander Claycomb said.

In 1930, a study by the Wickersham Commission recommended the standardization and professionalization of law enforcement departments across America through centralized training. This Prohibition era recommendation led to the creation of the FBI National Academy in 1935.

Today, the 10-week program provides coursework in intelligence theory, terrorism and terrorist mindsets, management science, law, behavioral science, law enforcement communication, and forensic science. The curriculum serves to improve the administration of justice in police departments and agencies at home and abroad and to raise law enforcement standards, knowledge and cooperation globally. Attendees lean on each other, share techniques and experiences and build partnerships that last long after the graduation cake is eaten.

"In addition to completing master's level work in key academic areas, I also had the opportunity to network and build strong ties with law enforcement leaders in 48 states and 25 countries, as well as with our partners in the FBI," said Commander Claycomb. "This experience will help me help the MPD meet its goals to protect our community in the most efficient and effective way possible and will help ensure we are using the best techniques and are accessing all the available resources to meet –or exceed– those goals."

The FBI National Academy also places emphasis on fitness. By the time they graduate, attendees have logged significant time on the Yellow Brick Road, a 6.1-mile

Tobacco free policy creates worksite wellness

For Hometown News
newsml@hometownnewsol.com

The Florida Clean Indoor Air Act (FCIAA) was enacted in 1985 with the purpose of protecting people from the harmful effects of secondhand smoke (SHS). In 2002, 71 percent of Florida's citizens voted for a constitutional amendment to prohibit smoking in all enclosed indoor workplaces. The smoke free law became effective July 1, 2003. Fifteen years later, does your worksite have a Tobacco Free policy?

Secondhand smoke contains hundreds of chemicals known to be toxic or carcinogenic (to cause cancer). Research shows there is no safe level of SHS and even brief exposure can be harmful. Secondhand smoke causes more than 40,000 deaths in nonsmokers every year and the majority of those deaths, 82 percent, are from heart disease.

Employees are valuable assets. A written Tobacco Free worksite policy is one of the most supportive actions employers can take to create worksite wellness. It helps employees stay healthy and productive while restricting access and social pressures to use tobacco at work.

Do you know an employee that takes a smoke break more than twice a day? If so, that employee is being paid to satisfy their addiction to nicotine at a rate roughly equal to 8 percent of their salary. A Tobacco Free Worksite policy protects the employer from lost productivity, creates equity among employees and is good for smokers and non-smokers alike. A 2015 tobacco policy survey conducted with members of the Society for Human Resource Management found that only 30 percent of participants surveyed limited smoking breaks. This hurts productivity and employee morale.

A Tobacco Free policy is a compassionate act that supports employee wellness. It encourages smokers to cut back on their smoking and it may be the incentive they need to quit. Nearly 70 percent of smokers would like to quit; and many may quit multiple times before success is achieved.

A Tobacco Free Worksite Policy does not require employees to quit, but it should make employees aware of quit opportunities; like tobacco cessation class schedules and Tobacco Free Florida's Quit Your Way cessation program. Quit Your Way can be reached by calling 1-877-822-6669.

If you are an employer looking for guidance on developing a Tobacco Free Worksite Policy, here are some tips to consider:

Smokers usually congregate on breaks and socialize as well as smoke. Smokers should be granted the same number and length of breaks as other employees. Nonsmokers typically carry the workload for co-workers who are smoking on the clock.

Tobacco cessation counseling doubles a person's quit success rate. Quit Your Way is free! Employees may be eligible for free cessation aids like nicotine replacement patches or lozenges. Different types of counseling are available including text reminders, web-based, 24 hour phone access, and classes.

Quitting can take several attempts (the average is 8-11 times) and employees attempting to quit should be encouraged to keep trying.

Worksite policies should prohibit the use of all tobacco products, including E-Cigarettes, or Electronic Nicotine Delivery Systems (ENDS).

E-Cigarettes are not an FDA approved smoking cessation device; they are an alternative nicotine delivery system that will maintain or regenerate a person's addiction to nicotine.

Refillable Electronic Nicotine Delivery Systems can be used to vape other drugs, most commonly marijuana.

Employers can arrange an onsite Quit Class for employees by calling the Everglades Area Health Education Center at 1.877.819.2357. The Tools to Quit class is only 2 hours long and can help people who are on the fence about quitting or want to make a quit attempt.

Regularly post quit information for employees via all communication channels. It will remind them they are included in your effort to establish a culture of wellness.

A Tobacco Free Worksite Policy protects your employees, customers, vendors and visitors from exposure to secondhand smoke.

A Tobacco Free policy protects the employer's financial investment and their most valuable resource, the employee.

Creating a Tobacco Free worksite is not a one size fits all undertaking. Implementing a policy takes planning and intention spanning several months to a year for large organizations. It should be a process of building up to a predetermined start date that celebrates quitting like the Great American Smokeout or a New Year's Resolution. A Re-Opening, a New Management, a move, or a Grand Opening can also be the perfect time to implement a Tobacco Free Worksite policy. Call your local Tobacco Free Florida Tobacco Prevention Program for more information. In Indian River call 772-577-3701, or email info@tfp-indianriver.org.

Experts lined up for women's health event

By Brittany Mulligan

bmulligan@hometownnewsol.com

BREVARD COUNTY — Are you tired of trying the latest diet and not seeing results or having to check your favorite medical website to get quick answers about health issues?

The Cocoa Beach Regional Chamber of Commerce is hosting its second annual, free, "Homegrown Health and Wellness" event, with health specialists ready to answer your burning questions.

This unique women-focused event is scheduled from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 6 at the Avenue, 2261 Towne Center, Suite 103, Viera.

Events are scheduled to take place between the CBRCC's office and the Avenue courtyard.

The Cocoa Beach Regional Chamber of Commerce has partnered with Clevens Face & Body Specialists to bring attendees important information about women's health and wellness.

"Absolutely everything we do in life starts with our health," said Jennifer Sugarman, President and CEO of the CBRCC. "If we aren't healthy (in every aspect of that word), neither are the businesses we own, manage or work for."

"Employers lose money and time when employees aren't healthy," she continued, "and it's paramount as an organization that represents over 1,500 business partners (and the women in them) that we recognize this large industry sector of health and wellness, and celebrate our business partners that promote health."

The first 50 attendees of the Homegrown Health and Wellness event will receive a free, eco-friendly tote bag for collecting information and goodies from vendor tables throughout the day.

A free breakfast and lunch is available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The morning will begin with (free) registration at 8 a.m. in the Chamber's office, during which participants can receive a schedule of events and a "Passport to Health", which when completed, enters the participant in a grand prize drawing.

Then, by 9 a.m. yoga in the park kicks off events, followed by breakfast at 9:30 provided by Jason's Deli. Clevens Face & Body Specialist representatives will be the keynote speaker for the morning, followed by mingling in the courtyard where attendees can meet with health and wellness businesses from around the community.

Lunch will be provided by First Watch between the morning and afternoon sessions.

"We're really excited because the afternoon session is going to be done by panelists, so if you're familiar with the TEDx talks, that's what we're trying to accomplish with this event," Mrs. Sugarman said. "We're going to give attendees the opportunity to break up and go to whichever topic they'd like to know more about."

Panelists for the afternoon session will include: Marlene Winsten, stress management; Dr. Rachel Russell from Beachside Counseling & Wellness, "Stop the Negative Self-Talk"; Dr. Diahn Clark from Suntree Pharmacy, women & sexual health; Carolyn Tremblay, PT, DPT, CLT from Parrish Medical Center, "Stopping the Leak: Women & Incontinence"; and Debbie Hardcastle, Holistic Life Coach and Nutritional Cleansing Coach, "Cut the Noise - Nutrition".

The Homegrown Health and Wellness event will educate attendees about women-focused topics such at the Avenue on Saturday, Oct. 6.

Two more panelists have yet to be confirmed for topics on "Tune Into Your Body" (warning signs of heart attack, stroke, etc.) and "How to Create Healthy Habits".

Throughout the day, attendees can watch live demos on yoga, Pilates or power fitness in the courtyard.

"We want women from all walks of life to attend," Mrs. Sugarman said. "We want people to come and see us, and learn something and hear from our speakers."

A few of the shops located at the Avenue will offer special discounts throughout the day related to health and wellness in participation of the unique event.

British composers invade winds concert

By Brittany Mulligan

BMulligan@hometownnewsol.com

BREVARD COUNTY — While the saying “The British are coming!” may have struck fear in the hearts of American colonists, the Central Florida Winds are putting on a concert that is meant to strike a different kind of emotion.

In the premiere concert of its 19th season, Central Florida Winds will put on a free performance of “The British are Coming!” featuring classical through contemporary British composers.

The concert is scheduled for 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 7 at Suntree United Methodist Church, 7400 N. Wickham Road, Melbourne. A repeat performance with required tickets (although free) is scheduled at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 14 at Riverside Presbyterian Church, 3400 N. Atlantic Ave., Cocoa Beach.

The afternoon will feature selections from Malcolm Arnold, Edward Elgar, Haydn Wood and Vaughan Williams.

“The newest piece on the program is by Adam Gorb and it was composed in the late 1990s, a very modern piece for winds,” said Richard Sabino, conductor of Central Florida Winds. “So, we go from something that’s classical to things that were written for military band to modern contemporary wind ensemble music.”

Joining the wind ensemble is 16-year-old cellist Isaac Moorman.

“Isaac has played with the band for several years,” Mr. Sabino said. “Bands often have cellos and double basses in the instrumentation. He’s an exceptional cellist.”

“We’ve been doing some music transcriptions by a fellow named Douglas McLain,” he explained. “We were talking and we discovered that he did an arrangement for the cello concerto, the Elgar, for young students in Germany. I looked over at Isaac, I said, ‘Are you working on an Elgar cello concerto?’ and he said, ‘Yes I am.’ I said, ‘I think we need to do that.’ So it was perfect timing.”

Isaac is a senior at Satellite High School, and has a passion of music from the time he started playing piano at the age of four.

At 9 years old, Isaac started playing cello with Joan Markstein, and has participated in the Florida All State Orchestras from 2014 through 2018.

Isaac is currently the principal cellist for the Brevard All County Orchestras since 2014 and is a member of Space

Celebration to feature Bernstein's assistant

The 100th anniversary of composer Leonard Bernstein's birth is currently being celebrated around the world. As part of that initiative, the Brevard Symphony Orchestra will open its 65th season with "A Bernstein Celebration" the evening of Oct. 6 at the King Center.

By Jamie Desena-McFarland
For Hometown News

MELBOURNE — The Brevard Symphony Orchestra will open its 65th season with a concert that commemorates another major milestone: the 100th anniversary of composer Leonard Bernstein's birth.

The concert, "A Bernstein Celebration," is set for 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 6, at the King Center for the Performing Arts, 3865 N. Wickham Road, Melbourne.

The event will feature a special guest, Charlie Harmon, who worked as the highly regarded composer's personal assistant for four years in the 1980s and published a book about that experience in May.

"It's very exciting to be opening our 65th Season with a program honoring the 100th Anniversary of the birth of America's greatest musician, Leonard Bernstein," said the orchestra's music director and principal conductor, Christopher Confessore. "Our program includes some of Bernstein's most familiar and accessible compositions, focusing largely on his work for the theatre (Broadway and ballet)."

The program will include excerpts from the musical theater works "Candide," "On the Town," "West Side Story" and "Mass," along with excerpts from the ballet "Fancy Free."

Mr. Harmon will give a talk about the music and life of Leonard Bernstein in the lobby before the concert begins.

During the concert, Mr. Harmon will share stories about his work with Bernstein in relation to some of the musical selections on the evening's set list, Mr. Confessore noted.

"Having Charlie Harmon with us for this celebration is wonderful, because we'll have someone who brings firsthand knowledge of working with Bernstein and his music," Mr. Confessore said. "Charlie can tell us about Bernstein the composer, Bernstein the conductor, as well as Bernstein the person. It will be wonderful to hear his commentary."

A separate ticketed component of the event, an Opening Night Soiree, will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the Studio Theatre of the King Center.

Soiree tickets are $60 for subscribers and $75 for nonsubscribers, although anyone who has purchased a Premier package with their season ticket can attend at no additional cost. No soiree tickets will be sold at the door, but they can be purchased in advance by calling the BSO box office at (321) 242-2024.

Inspiration Awards to recognize local leaders

By Jamie Desena-McFarland
For Hometown News

BREVARD COUNTY — An upcoming event in Cocoa Village will emphasize inspiration as the way to make things happen in a community.

The inaugural Space Coast Inspiration Awards, presented by the St. Mark's Episcopal Community — which includes the St. Mark's Episcopal Academy and Church — will be held from 6-9 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 13 at the Cocoa Civic Center, 430 Delanoy Ave.

Singer and motivational speaker Kechi Okwuchi is slated to perform at the event.

The performer endured multiple surgeries after surviving a plane crash in 2005 that killed 107 of 109 passengers, then went on to achieve her educational goals and also become a top finalist on "America's Got Talent" in 2017.

Brevard County Sheriff Wayne Ivey will be the master of ceremonies as 17 awards are presented to nominees.

"We want people to realize that by inspiring one another we have created Florida's Space Coast community, one of the most forward-looking regions on earth," said Joi Robertson, head of school at St. Mark's Episcopal Academy. "We also want them to realize that St. Mark's Episcopal Community has been inspiring community leadership since 1878."

Among those to receive awards will be Lynda Weatherman, president and CEO of the Economic Development Commission of Florida's Space Coast; Ben Brotmarkle, executive director of the Florida Historical Society and producer of the "Florida Frontiers" radio show; Lester Bullock, CEO of Victory Casino Cruises; Jim McKnight, city manager of Cocoa Beach and retired city manager of Rockledge; and Al Trafford of Trafford Realty Company (posthumously).

The awards are one component of the St. Mark's CAN! "Community Action Network," an initiative launched in June to "inspire the world" while bringing recognition to St. Mark's as an institution.

The event's multiple sponsors include presenting sponsors Space Coast Living and Historic Cocoa Village Association.

General admission tickets are $50; VIP tickets are $75. Both include a catered reception.

For tickets, call (321) 639-5773 or visit www.stmarksan.org.

Anastacia Hawkins-Smith, CEO and artistic director of the Historic Cocoa Village Playhouse, will be receiving one of 17 Space Coast Inspiration Awards.
