Teen's legacy lives on to help other children in need

Agencies will 'ride' to raise funds for childhood illnesses

For Hometown News
Volnews@hometownnewsol.com

SOUTH DAYTONA — The legacy of a young girl's life cut short by cancer will "ride on" to help prevent other childhood illnesses.

The Second Annual Kailynne Quartier Memorial Ride will be held

Sept. 12. Money raised will benefit the South Daytona Lion's Club.

A $20 donation includes the 85-mile ride through Volusia County, a BBQ lunch and a chance to win dozens of door prizes. Last year, more than $3,000 was raised to purchase a digital camera which helps detect preventable childhood blindness.

Kenneth McMillen, a 20-year Lion's Club member and South Daytona City Councilman, said this is a great opportunity for the Volusia community to support the Club's mission to improve sight while enjoying a fun day. Early detection of eye problems is critical, he added.

"It's so important," Mr. McMillen said. "If problems aren't caught in the early stages, (children) can lose their eyesight."

The Memorial Ride is named in honor of Kailynne Quartier, 13, who lost her battle with cancer on July 16, 2007. She attended South Daytona Elementary and Campbell Middle School and was a member of Girl Scout Troop 1132. Kailynne was the daughter of Tammy

Local rescue team ready for any challenge

By Wayne Grant
wgrant@hometownnewsol.com

VOLUSIA COUNTY — After hours of searching for a missing Alzheimer's patient on a recent stifling afternoon, Lt. Karl Froling of Volusia County Fire Services came upon her lying by a tree in the woods.

"She opened her eyes and started talking to me," he said. "She was in pretty good condition for being away from home for 72 hours."

Marjorie Reynolds, 75, of DeLand was found by Task Force 9, a highly trained search and rescue team from Volusia County.

The team, of which Lt. Froling is a member, is ready to respond to natural disasters and accidents locally and throughout the state.

The group includes individuals from several fire departments: Volusia County, DeLand, Ormond Beach and Edgewater; and two other agencies: Volusia County Beach Services and Volusia County Corrections.

Scent dogs had led Lt. Froling, working with Capt. Scott Elsner, to the wooded area. The two men spotted a path and it led to Ms. Reynolds.

The leader of Task Force 9, Deputy Chief Kathy Weaver of Volusia County Fire Services, said being on the task force is rewarding and also fun.

"It's challenging to figure out how to rescue people in different situations," she said. "We build rope haul systems, pull people out of wrecked cars, stabilize collapsed buildings and crawl through small spaces using breathing apparatus. We get to use our training."

Before being hired in 1999 by Volusia County Fire Services to start the task force, Chief Weaver worked as a firefighter at Kennedy Space Center where she was involved in special operations such as

PO Police awarded for 'Wanderer's Assist' program

By Jeannine Gage
Gage@hometownnewsol.com

PORT ORANGE — Recently, one of the elderly residents of Epiphany Manor, an independent housing facility, passed out while waiting for a bus. A passerby called 911, and while waiting for emergency personnel to arrive, looked in the wallet of the resident to see if she could identify her. Before finding a driver's license or other I.D., however, she found a piece of jewelry which was of much more use to rescuers when they arrived.

The woman was one of more than 400 senior residents who have been registered as part of the Port Orange Police Department's Wanderer's Assist Program. The bracelet found by the Good Samaritan that hot day not only told officials who she was, but gave them instant access to her medical records.

"They could see that normally she was in good health, so something had to be amiss," said Joyce Conger, a service coordinator at Epiphany Manor. "It turned out she was dehydrated and needed to be treated for that."

The Wanderer's Assist program was recently recognized by the Florida Police Chief's Association with its Rocky Pomerance Award, given to police departments for "developing and implementing an innovative approach to policing."

"It's a wonderful program," Ms. Conger said. "I can't say enough about it."

Crime Prevention Officer David Miller started the program in 2006 when he

Florida Hospital makes patients' stays 'appetizing'

New hospital offers quality food, room service for all patients

By Wayne Grant
wgrant@hometownnewsol.com

DAYTONA BEACH — Kevin Jay Harris was enjoying his stay in the hospital.

Yes, he was comfortable in his private room, but the main reason for the Holly Hill man's contentment was — believe it or not — the food.

"Hospital food is usually kind of bland, but this food is absolutely excellent," he said. "You can pick and choose what you want. It tastes home cooked and it's very comforting. I don't want to go home."

The old days of serving patients the same food at the same time are gone at Florida Hospital Memorial Medical Center.

As in a nice hotel, patients can order room service from a menu any time from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at this new hospital.

Fresh, cooked-to-order meals, which include selections such as a three-cheese omelet, roast beef au jus and grilled salmon, are delivered in 45 minutes after ordering.

Todd Owens, manager of food and nutritional services, said the service may seem like a luxury but there are health benefits as well.

"Our patients have the opportunity to eat things they like most, when they are hungry, and eating well usually has a positive effect on recovery," he said.

Mr. Owens also said giving patients a choice enhances their experience at the hospital.

"Everyone is passionate about food. They know how they want it prepared, so we cook it the way they want it," he said. "But the biggest thing is they can get it when they want it."

Joanne Magley, marketing manager at the hospital, said they are using the food service in some innovative ways.

"Birth-care patients get a special meal for two to celebrate their new arrival," she said. "They get their choice of dishes such as filet mignon or trout along with a bottle of champagne in an ice bucket."

Upon admission, patients receive menus that reflect their dietary plan as directed by their physician. A nutrition assistant reviews each order to make sure it is consistent with their required diet.

Paul Duncan, a professor at the University of Florida in the health science department, said more and more hospitals are going to this type of food service as part of a larger trend to attract patients.

"There may be some nutritional benefits but this mainly has to do with patient satisfaction," he said. "Patients are often thought of as customers and consumers because they can often pick their health plan, hospital and doctor."

Mr. Owens said he and his staff wanted to start room service at the former hospital on Sterthaus Drive but it would have required a lot of remodeling.

When the new hospital was built, the number of staff was increased and cooks with restaurant experience were hired. The kitchen was designed specifically for restaurant-style service.

Serving three meals a day, cooked to order for each patient, requires a big operation, Mr. Owens said.

"We're the busiest restaurant in Volusia County," he said.

New drug rehab facility named for Vince Carter

By Suzanne Grille
For Hometown News

BUNNELL — More than 300 local, state, and national officials gathered here recently to dedicate and tour the new Vince Carter Sanctuary.

Operated by Stewart-Marchman-Act Behavioral Healthcare, the spacious, serene and state-of-the-art substance abuse treatment and research facility currently provides 50 beds for paying clients. Officials hope to eventually serve low income and indigent clients as well.

Daytona Beach native, NBA champion, and new Orlando Magic player Vince Carter and his mother, Michelle Carter-Scott, were the guests of honor. Together, they donated $1.6 million to the substance abuse treatment facility that will serve both Volusia and Flagler counties.

Bill Janes, one of Florida's top authorities on substance abuse and mental health, deemed it "the best in the state," while Dr. Ernest Cantley, President of the Stewart-Marchman Foundation, said "What you are in today is without a doubt, the best of this type of treatment facility east of the Mississippi. I believe west of it, too. Everything about this facility is world-class." Bunnell Mayor Catherine Robinson said that treatment centers such as The Vince Carter Sanctuary help reduce crime and save the counties money, while providing jobs to area professionals. Currently 60 new positions have been filled, and that number is expected to increase to 100 by next year.

Volusia County Council Vice Chairwoman Joie Alexander said "It's a wonderful day to celebrate. This facility will have a tremendous impact."

Ms. Carter-Scott, introduced as the best kind of donor because of her hands-on approach, acknowledged the incredible turnout and "everything happening here today" as "blessings."

Her son, Vince Carter, made it clear that his reason for being involved was the need to provide a source for substance abuse treatment, rehabilitation, and change. Mr. Carter was visibly moved by attendance at the event, but said he was not there for the cameras, press, or praise.

"There are so many people in need," he said. "That is why I do it."

Mr. Carter said he has seen firsthand the damage drugs can do. "I've seen teammates, friends, and family fall victim to alcohol and drug abuse," he said. "I remember many talented guys — guys who play better than me — who fell victim to what we're trying to fix."

The Sanctuary is located at 301 Justice Lane in Bunnell. For more information, call (386) 453-4220 or visit www.vincecarter-sanctuary.org.

A combined team of swift-water experts from Volusia County Task Force 9 and Central Florida Task Force 8 provided six days of flood-rescue efforts in north Florida last April. The task force members responded to a variety of 911 calls from residents, secured hazards and searched buildings.

Rescue

In 2004, the State of Florida recognized the training and abilities of the task force and designated it an official urban search and rescue team, giving them the name Task Force 9.

They are often called on for assistance in natural disasters and to search for missing persons throughout the state.

Chief Weaver said Task Force 9 is one of only two teams in the state used to search for missing persons.

"Most teams are set up for disasters such as hurricanes, but we have a special level of training," she said. "We have a lot of area in Volusia County where people can get lost so we've conducted many searches."

There's a lot more to searching for a person than just walking through the woods, Chief Weaver said.

"Most people tend to keep on paths," she said. "We're trained to do line searches and go through heavy brush and look for clues."

Through experience, she said, searchers are better able to spot a bit of blue denim clothing in the all-green environment of the woods.

All personnel are trained in rescues techniques involving a confined space, trench, structural collapse, vehicle or machinery. Rope rescue techniques are also taught.

Also, because of having two rivers in the County, Task Force 9 is trained in swift water/flood rescue.

Training is paid for by grants from the Department of Homeland Security, Chief Weaver said.

Most of the members of Task Force 9 are either EMTs or paramedics.

Task Force 9 currently has 69 members with 22 on call 24 hours a day.

For an emergency, they must be ready immediately and for slow developing events like hurricanes they are placed on alert.

One of their most memorable tasks, Chief Weaver said, was when they rescued a worker from the top of a 425-foot smoke stack in DeBary in 2003.

"A worker got to the top but was too sick to come down by himself," she said. "Working with Seminole County Special Operations, we built a rope hauling system and lowered him down."

Chief Weaver said the job is an extension of their job as firefighters.

"It's all about what we do — save lives," she said.

I have been holding off writing this note in hopes I would see some results. It doesn't seem like it is going to happen.

A few years ago Volusia County levied a 5-cent tax per gallon on gasoline for the purpose of repairing the county roads.

Is it just me that sees the county roads in worst condition than before the tax was levied? I see a lot more pot holes that never happened before. I would always comment on how great the Florida roads are compared to New York where I originally came from 15 years ago, but it seems that maybe the nickel may be being used elsewhere.

Maybe this note will remind someone in authority that we are still paying 5 cents a gallon more for gasoline than other counties.

Examples of road problems can be seen everywhere. The approaches to the Port Orange bridge, and any of the paved roads, which were paved in the last five years or so, all show cracks. Obviously the paving used does not hold up in Florida weather.

Florida is a beautiful state. The roads are wonderful to drive on. Let's try to keep them that way, Department of Transportation.

Great job done at clean up

Marine Discovery Center, especially Stephanie and her volunteer helpers, did a tremendous job of clearing Brazilian Pepper trees from the canals at the end of Island Point Drive.

They are working very hard to keep our environment clear of invasive plants.

Let's support our Marine Discovery Center.

Why won't they take our yard waste

Considering that our garbage fees have escalated, plus our city tax, according to our utility bills, I would like an explanation why our yard waste is not being collected.

We cleaned a total of three palm trees, a few small branches of a Brazilian pepper tree, which we cannot get rid of and some vines.

It was not a big pile, absolutely normal according to what I have seen our neighbors put out and yet my pile still sits there.

There were no leaves, pine needles as claimed on the ticket, nor any grass clippings.

Nevertheless the ticket stated it would be picked up in the next two days. Of course, nothing happened, and so it will stay until the powers that be give us a definitive disclosure on how much is allowed, and how it should be "presented" in order to be acceptable for pick up.

I don't think it is too much to ask. Tell us what you want and how you want it. But keep in mind that some things

Ready in a heart beat

Members of the VFW Post 3282 in Port Orange took the hearts of their members into their own hands when they raised $1,135 towards an automatic external defibrillator for the post. With donations of $5 per member, the post was able to raise the funds in a week's time. Member Anette Saccone sold 90 percent of the tickets towards the purchase of the AED. Port Orange Fire Chief Thomas Weber and Division Chief of EMS Russell Rafferty installed a cabinet for the AED, provided window decals and supplies to accompany the AED. Port Orange Fire-Rescue will maintain the AED. cannot be put into a plastic, non-degradable garbage bag.

We try very hard to keep our yard clean and presentable for our benefit and our neighbors, I really think someone in New Smyrna Beach city hall needs to be aware that the contractors they are hiring are taking advantage and not doing what we are paying them for.

In response to 'Mail should be checked'

I feel your frustration with a mail problem that has been going on for two years.

One course of action that would help you would be to arrange for direct deposit of your check into your checking or savings account.

In that case, you would receive a monthly notice of the amount that has been deposited. And if that isn't delivered, you can check the amount over the phone.

As you are handicapped, this would make your life easier by saving you a trip to the bank.

I realize this doesn't help you correct the mail problem, but at least you would receive your monthly check on time.

In response to 'Dogs should not be on the beach'

I would like to address the push to have dogs on all of Volusia County Beaches. I have two very large dogs, I take them to Smyrna Dunes Park. I, for the most part enjoy it there. Things have improved greatly at this park during the past year. I do not want to see dogs on the main beaches.

Here is why.

Not all people follow the rules, which means there will still be dogs either off leash or they will have their leash attached to their collars with no human attached to the other end.

There are far too many cars on the beach.

There are a lot more children on the public beaches. Dogs don't always enjoy having children chasing them or hugging them.

Once again, people are expecting our beach patrol to take on more responsibility for the same pay.

Not everyone cleans up after his or her dog.

We have won the battle to be able to keep the dogs at Smyrna Dunes Park. Why isn't that enough?

In response to 'Dogs should not be on the beach'

I am tired of the rants and raves about dogs on the beach. I live across from the beach and have very well-behaved dogs.

Heck, when my dogs go in the river to swim, they come out to go potty behind the bushes, and I clean it up. They are better than kids. No way would they do their "duty" in the water. My dogs are water dogs, and I don't like to deprive them of swimming, so I take them where the fisherman launch their boats near the three bridges in Port Orange.

Dogs need to swim and have fun too and cool off. It's the owners that need the training, not the dogs.

President is working towards positive change

Each week, there are rants and raves about our President. I am one of those Republicans who voted for President Barack Obama.

I still stand by my choice. My questions are this: Are the people who are complaining about Obama upset because he is a Democrat? Or are they upset because he is black? Or are they upset because they fear change?

I ask these questions because President Obama does run things differently, and some people are afraid.

I still am reeling from the damage that was done by the previous president and a few before him. While President George W. Bush did play a heavy hand in our situation, he was not alone. He just drove the recession bus faster. People seem to want instant answers while forgetting that it took years for us to get in this spot.

Not everyone will be happy with President Obama, but at least he is trying to do something to turn this country around. When he took office he warned that this would not be an overnight fix, that it would take a long time.

I would suggest that the people who complain read the actual comments and factual articles instead of the interpretations by some scared Republican official.

Site gathers financial data into one place

Personal computers have always been good for keeping track of finances. There are plenty of programs, such as Quicken, Microsoft Money, Quickbooks and Turbo Tax out there to help with the task and most online banking systems do a pretty good job, too.

With all the different programs out there, it can be confusing just deciding where to start. Then (after shelling out hard-earned cash for the right software) setting up your program can be a challenging.

There has got to be a better way and I think I may have found it.

Fire up your Web browser, head over to www.Mint.com and take a look around. This free service is one of those rare sites that really delivers quality content without the spyware, annoying ads, viruses and other "gotchas" that often plague other free sites. After spending a week or so checking it out I have to admit I'm impressed.

So, what is it? Mint.com is a personal finance site that gathers all your financial information into one place so you can see exactly where all of your money is coming from and where it's going.

The operative phrase here is that "it gathers" the data. It works by itself immediately after signing up, and when you are done, all of your accounts are summarized and displayed in one place. No more logging into multiple sites to see where you stand.

Let me run through it real quick.

Once you connect to Mint.com and read up a bit, click the free "get started here" button. You will be asked for your e-mail, ZIP code and a password to use.

Click the next button and you will be asked for your first bank's URL or Web address. Enter your bank's online banking information and repeat the steps for all of your accounts.

You can enter your online banking information for your checking, savings, all of your different credit cards, your auto loan, mortgage, even your PayPal account.

Once all of your accounts are added, Mint will give you a summary of what the balances are, the interest rates and (most importantly) where all of your money is going from all accounts at the same time. There is even a free iPhone app that works with Mint, so you can have all of your information at your fingertips when you are out and about.

I know many of you are reluctant to use online banking for fear of identity theft, let alone giving one Web site all the information it needs to access all of your accounts.

In fact, I'm sure that right now people are reading this thinking I must be crazy to even suggest it. However, as you may or may not know, I am a certified identity theft risk management specialist, and I do know a thing or two about these matters.

And (after careful research and consideration) I can tell you that Mint.com is secure. The Web site has an enormous amount of information regarding security, but what it boils down to is this: when you create your account you are anonymous (all you enter is email, ZIP code and login information — you don't even enter your name), the site uses the same level of encryption the banks use, and all of the information is "read only," so even if a miscreant got hold of your login information, they may be able to see how much money you spent at Starbucks this month, but they can't do things such as move money around or even see any of the actual account information (such as names, pins or account numbers).

But why bother? I actually have known about Mint for a while now but put off checking it out because I didn't really see a need. I can see everything I need to see by logging into each of my accounts and looking, so why do I need a site like Mint?

Well, as soon as I set up my account, I realized I was looking at a winner. There is something to be said for having all of your information available summarized in one login screen and some of Mint's tools (such as the budgeting and analysis stuff) are really helpful to understand where the hell all the money goes every month.

Maybe, just maybe www.Mint.com can help even me get my financial act together.

Poles, holes make beach hazardous

By Wayne Grant
wgrant@hometownnewsol.com

VOLUSIA COUNTY — Anyone who walks on the beach in the morning has probably noticed leftovers from the previous day's activities: lonely tent poles missing their tents, and deep holes that look like craters.

Officials say these obstacles are presenting a hazard to both humans and wildlife and solutions are being sought for both problems.

Beach tents, consisting of fabric stretched across the tops of four poles, are becoming more and more popular.

The problem, said David Lamotte, chairman of the Beach Advisory Board, is that people are removing the fabric at night and leaving the poles either stacked by the sea wall or still anchored in the sand.

Board member Judith Craig said the stakes would present a hazard in a strong wind.

"Somebody's going to get hurt," she said.

Ormond Beach resident Terry Mercer said she walks on the beach every morning and has counted as many as 18 tent structures that were left up overnight.

"It's an ugly sight," she told the Board at their August meeting. "People should be educated about cleaning up the beach."

Mr. Lamotte said it's getting to be a problem especially in Ormond Beach and Ponce Inlet.

Complaints have reached the Volusia County Council, said Tony Sopot-nick, county staff liaison to the beach board.

"It's squarely on their radar. This is being discussed by staff at all levels," Mr. Sopotnick said.

There is no ordinance against leaving the items on the beach, said Ginger Adair, natural resources director for Volusia County.

She said County staff is trying an educational campaign on the beach from Granada Boulevard north to the County line.

The Beach Patrol is tagging the poles with notes saying "Please pick up your beach furniture at night for the enjoyment of all Volusia County beachgoers," Ms. Adair said.

Ms. Adair said they are also working on educational materials to give to the condos, because that's where the tents mostly appear.

If the program works, she told the Board, they will extend it to other areas of the beach and if not "we'll look for some other way to deal with the problem."

In a phone interview after the meeting, Kevin Sweat, director of beach services, said the educational campaign was not going well.

"We're not getting compliance," he said. "We leave a note and the next night the poles are still there."

Ms. Mercer also mentioned to the board that huge holes are being dug in the sand.

"There's a possibility that a turtle could fall in the holes, or a person walking at night," she said.

After reviewing photos of the holes, the advisory board agreed they are a problem.

Randy Barber/staff photographer

Beach watchers worry about the hazards to humans and creatures from tents such as the one shown above. The problem is when people either leave the poles in the ground or leave the holes they dug for the poles.

"Some of these holes are craters," said Board member David Rigsby. "It shouldn't be allowed. It's a hazard and a liability."

Bob Ernest of Ecological Associates, who advises the County on beach matters, also said the holes are hazards.

"From a human safety standpoint it's critical," he said. "It's also dangerous for the environment. We just had a case in Palm Beach County where a nesting loggerhead turtle fell in a hole, broke her neck and died."

Glenn Storch, vice-chairman of the Board, suggested a policy be created asking visitors to fill up the holes as a matter of etiquette.

The advisory board passed a motion asking County staff to conduct a public awareness campaign to try to get visitors to not leave huge holes in the sand.

Ms. Craig suggested a slogan.

"If you dig it, please fill it."

noticed the number of "wanderers" – usually seniors with Alzheimer's or dementia – was increasing as the city's population increased.

"The primary goal is to get them (wanderers) back to a safe environment as quickly as possible," Officer Miller said.

Registration for the program is free and voluntary. All information – which can include name, address, medical conditions and medications and family members or care givers -- is stored on the police department's database and is completely confidential, Officer Miller said.

Marjorie Meister, 79, another Epiphany Manor resident who wears a bracelet, said she knows her information is used by the police for emergencies only and calls frequently to update it. She said the program makes her feel safe.

"I have several medical conditions and if I needed help, I would need someone to react quickly," she said.

At least 70 people have been returned home safely through the program, Officer Miller said.

The program, which is paid for through the department's crime prevention fund, also saves the department money by keeping officers from having to "knock on doors" to try to find out where the lost person lives.

"It saves our officers an enormous amount of time and gets them back on the streets," Officer Miller said.

If imitation is really the sincerest form of flattery, Officer Miller should be proud of the Wanderer's Assist program. He said several police departments from around the state have contacted him on starting their own program. He's happy to tell them how to do it.

"I like to share information," he said. If it works somewhere, let's get it out to other agencies so we can help more people."

This is the second time the Port Orange Police Department has won the Rocky Pomerance award. In 2006, it was recognized for its S.O.A.P., or Sexual Offender Accountability Program, in which police officers are assigned specific sexual offenders to contact at least once a month.

and Doug Quartier. Lt. Quartier is a 29-year veteran with the South Daytona Police Department.

The close-knit South Daytona community rallied behind the family during her year of treatment by holding fundraisers and prayer services.

This year, the Memorial Ride is a collaboration between the South Daytona Lion's Club, the South Daytona Police Department and the South Daytona Citizen's Alert Council.

Traditionally the Citizen's Alert Council has held their annual fundraising BBQ separate from the Memorial Ride, said president Ralph Schoenherr. This year marks the 28th Annual BBQ, he said, and the agencies decided to pool their efforts, allowing both Memorial Ride participants and residents to enjoy the popular slow-cooked BBQ. "It makes sense," he said. "It's a win-win for everybody."

The Memorial Ride will begin at the South Daytona Police Department at 10 a.m., and end at the Piggotte Community Center, 504 Big Tree Road, where the Citizen's Alert Council will serve BBQ. All types of vehicles are welcome. There will be separate groups for motorcycles and cars. Early registration starts at 8 a.m.

For ride registration, please contact Officer George Rizzuto at 386-322-3044 or pick up registrations forms at the South Daytona Police Station lobby.

Tickets for the BBQ only, which benefits the Citizen's Alert Council, can be purchased for $9 until August 31, $10 thereafter at the Sunshine Park Mall Unit 15, the South Daytona Police Station lobby, the Piggotte Community Center or at the door, subject to availability. BBQ will be served from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. and includes a boxed BBQ platter with sauce, pork or chicken, baked beans, coleslaw, roll and beverage.

got to him and rushed to the hospital where he later died. Beach patrol officers said Rosa had been body surfing so it's still unclear if Rosa drowned or suffered neck or head injury because he may have been driven to the ocean floor by the waves. Folks who ride the waves flocked to the beach, but many quickly got in over their heads and lifeguards were busy pulling folks from the violent ocean. Even experienced surfers can be pushed around out there.

Boat capsizes near New Smyrna Beach

The seas proved rough for boaters as well. An 18-foot fishing boat, with three people aboard, capsized south of the jetty in New Smyrna Beach. The people on board made it safely to shore, but the boat fell apart when a crew tried to get it off the beach. The owner had only recently bought the boat. A day later, a large catamaran washed ashore in New Smyrna Beach. It had been anchored in Ponce Inlet, but apparently drifted out with the tide and broke up in the harsh surf. Debris scattered in the water and on the shoreline for about a mile. The boat's owner told WESH 2 he was fixing up the catamaran to sell it. No one was on board when the boat drifted away.

Sex offender arrested in Port Orange

A convicted sex offender from New York was recently arrested in Port Orange for failing to register as a sex offender in Volusia County. Authorities out of Goshen, New York contacted Port Orange law enforcement about a level three sex offender who had left the New York area and who could likely be headed for Port Orange to a girl friend's home. Police found Christian Mabee hiding in a bedroom at the girlfriend's home on Sagewood Drive. He was arrested and held in jail on $10,000 bond.

Man accused of having sex with girl

Holly Hill Police arrested a man who is accused of having sex with a 12-year-old girl. Police said Andrew Ridener, 21, admitted to having sex with the girl on several occasions and told investigators he was aware of her age. The girl's mother called police after finding her, in pajamas, with Ridener in Lake Hadley Park. Police said Ridener told them he counseled the girl at New Start, a youth outreach ministry for troubled kids in Daytona Beach, but officials at the ministry said Ridener is a client, not a counselor and has been at the program for six years, sent there when he was 15 years old. Chief Mark Barker said this isn't the first time Ridener was busted for acting inappropriately with young girls. He said the 21 year old was accused of making nasty comments to students at Holly Hill Middle School and allegedly contacted young girls on MySpace.

Man faces charges after firing gun

A 26-year-old Palm Coast man faces a host of charges including aggravated assault on a law enforcement officer, after Daytona Beach police said Corey Lynch fired a weapon outside a nightclub and attempted to pull his gun on a police officer. Investigators said Lynch was involved in an altercation outside the Aqua Night Club on Grandview Avenue and pulled a gun out. Lynch fired one shot into the ground toward a woman's feet and several more into the air, according to officers. Police said Sgt. Eric Ryan was in the front parking lot of the club and ran toward Lynch, giving him orders to stop. As the suspect ran East toward Atlantic Avenue, police said he turned toward the officer and appeared to draw his gun from his waistband. Sgt. Ryan fired several rounds toward the suspect as he chased him. The suspect wasn't hit and was arrested in a nearby parking lot. Sgt. Ryan is on administrative leave, which is standard procedure, whenever a police officer fires a weapon.

Man found murdered in home

Police in Daytona Beach continue to investigate the murder of a man found in his own home with his throat slashed. His brother found Sebastian Cross, 46, dead in his home on Reva Street. His brother went over to check on Cross, who was disabled and used crutches to get around. It's unclear how the killer got in to the home because the brother found the door locked and had to climb in through a window. Detectives said they are following up on several leads, but said they have no clear suspects in the murder of the father of six.

Cirque Dreams returns with 'Illumination'

For Hometown News
Volnews@hometownnewsol.com

The producers of Cirque Dreams "Jungle Fantasy" return to Daytona Beach after a sold-out performance in 2007 with their new production show "Illumination."

"Illumination" will ignite Daytona Beach when it opens for one show only, at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 24, at Peabody Auditorium.

Tickets will go on sale today.

Journey with fascination into the depths of a city that ignites with illumination when Cirque Dreams imagination, suspense and theatrical innovation turns everyday ordinary — into bright and extraordinary.

Audiences of all ages will marvel as city dwellers reinvent familiar objects, balance on wires, leap tall buildings and redefine the risks of flight in a story filled with astounding occurrences.

"The variety of talent and performances in this show are unlike any other musical theatre or Cirque style show to date," said Neil Goldberg, creator and director. "They include L.A. street performers and musicians, a nationally recognized dance "popper" from the TV show "So

You Think You Can Dance," ballroom dancing, magic, illusion and of course world-class acrobatics and feats of amazement. There is truly something in this show for everyone."

One of a kind artists populate the streets of this magical metropolis and breathe energy into its landscape with urban acrobatics.

Cirque Dreams costumes come alive to the sounds of jazz, ballroom, pop and more in this original score.

"Over 200 costumes and an amazing stage set and the value to seeing the "Illumination" stage spectacle is incomparable," Mr. Goldberg said. "Audiences have many choices when it comes to spending their disposable income on entertainment, so we remain very aware of the need to over deliver a memorable, once in a lifetime experience to remain the choice of many purchasers in today's economy."

To make this show happen takes the 26 performers and 12 crew members who travel with the production and 40 people locally who will help with the physical production, he said.

The first national tour will visit 90 cities, including Daytona Beach, during its 35-week run and will present more than 500 performances.

"There are few entertainment experiences today that merge generation gaps and are affordable and suitable for audiences of all ages," Mr. Goldberg said. "It continues to be Cirque Dreams goal to bring this type of quality entertainment extravagance to audiences throughout the country regardless of the size or geographical location of their city." Cirque Dreams "Illumination" tickets are priced from $45 to $55.

Tickets are available at the Peabody Auditorium Box Office, charge by phone at (800) 745-3000, or online at www.ticketmaster.com. Groups of 15 or more should call (386) 547-2000 or e-mail kgrooms@bellsouth.net.

•Illusionist: David DaVinci will attempt to break a world record this Saturday at Rockefeller Gardens in downtown Ormond Beach. In a true test of endurance and skill, he will attempt to beat a world record set on September 27, 2003 by James Peters of the United Kingdom who escaped from a straitjacket 193 times in eight hours at the YMCA in Chelmsford, Essex. In addition to performing the escape as many times as possible during the eight-hour period starting at 9 a.m., Mr. DaVinci will fight against the Florida heat and rain, as he presents the escapes live, outdoors at Rockefeller Gardens. Guinness World Records support Mr. DaVinci, hopefully breaking the world record. Ormond Beach Mayor Fred Costello will place the final straight jacket on DaVinci at 4:30 p.m. Join the fun from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. at Rockefeller Gardens this Saturday. Local restaurants will be serving specially prepared dishes and treats.

•Community food drive: Dance Express Productions and the Star Family Center will hold "Dance For Food," a community food drive from 2-4 p.m., Saturday, at the Chiles Academy, located at 868 George W. Engram Blvd. in Daytona Beach. Admission is a donation of a non-perishable food item, baby items (diapers, lotions, formula), or new bedding items (blankets, pillows, etc.). Participants may also go on the Web site for Star Family Center and check out the wish list at <http://www.homelessindaytona.org/index.htm>. The Mystique Dancers of Dance Express Productions will provide entertainment. There will be raffle drawings, refreshments and guest speakers. For more information, call (386) 679-4855.

Scorpio-Oct. 23-Nov. 21

You have an emotional edge this week. The planets are in positive alignment for you. This is like a booster rocket giving you extra thrust to send your dreams into orbit when you need the push. Now is a good time to take action on your greatest dream. It is so exciting to see a bumper crop coming your way.

A suggestion for organizing your coupons efficiently

This week, I'm happy to answer another question from a reader like you who is learning to super-coupon:

Q: In reading your column, I've not seen how to organize my coupons. In one of your early columns, you suggested keeping the entire booklet of coupons together, so I do. But then when I'm shopping, I don't know what I have. If we don't clip the coupons out and categorize them, how do we know what we have on hand?

A: Thankfully, using coupons is easier than it's ever been. Much of that is due to the method that I use, which I call a "clipless" system because you clip less. I only cut the coupons that I need for each week's trip. All of the other coupons stay in the insert, where they are easy to find when I'm planning my next shopping trip.

In the past, in order to match coupons to sales, people would cut absolutely every coupon they received in their newspaper inserts and carry them all around, usually in a big binder or box.

This method, though, is the reason many people give up on using coupons. It's incredibly time-consuming and tedious. Most of us want to save money without investing hours in cutting and sorting little pieces of paper each week.

COUPON QUEEN

Here's how I organize and use my coupons: when my coupons arrive in the newspaper each week, I take all of the inserts and write the date on the front. Then I store them in an expandable file. These are inexpensive and can be found at any department or office-supply store. I use one pocket for each month and a typical accordion file can hold six months' worth of coupons or more.

When I'm ready to plan my shopping trips and cut the coupons I'll need, I head to the Internet. There are many coupon Web sites that help you match coupons to sales. On my Web site, www.supercouponing.com, I've got a free coupon lookup utility that's very easy to use. You type either the name of the product you'd like to find coupons for (such as Kellogg's) or a general category of product (dog food, for example) and the coupon lookup returns a list of all of the coupons currently in your inserts along with the values, purchase requirements and expiration dates.

This database also delivers information about exactly where to find your coupon. When your inserts arrive, perhaps you've noticed each one has a name at the top, such as Procter & Gamble or SmartSource. The database will tell you the name and date of the insert that contains the coupon you're looking for.

At that point, you simply pull that insert out of your file, cut the coupon you need and return the insert to the file for use another day.

This is a quick, easy system to use. You'll be surprised how quickly you can plan your shopping trips with it.

On an average trip, you might use 10 to 15 coupons. Wouldn't you rather just cut those few rather than the 40 or more that arrive in inserts each week?

Using the "clipless" method, you're only cutting what you need and if you don't need a coupon, you're not spending time or energy cutting it out or carrying it around.

Fun foods to enjoy, especially in the great outdoors

Hello smart shoppers. Gone camping yet? With the economy the way it is, you lucky people who have campers are just about the only ones who can take a vacation.

I've come up with a few recipes that are a cinch to make while camping. You can get pretty tired of the usual fare: burgers, hot dogs, chicken and steak. Kids love to be able to eat their dinner with a spoon.

What's for dessert? How about whoopie pies? Years ago, when we lived in Connecticut, we had them while visiting friends.

Whoopie pies are the best tasting cake/cookie on the planet. I got the recipe and it became a family favorite. I've seen different recipes in magazines, but none compare with the original. This is a great dessert; just make the cookies and filling at home, then assemble them at the camp site.

MEXICAN FIESTA (NIB) serves 4

This recipe is an original; and great for camping.

ROMANCING THE STOVE

with the Grammy Guru ARLENE BORG

Serve it as is, or topped with grated cheddar cheese, chopped tomatoes and lettuce and sour cream, if you choose. Roll it in a burrito or tuck it in taco shells.

- 1 pound ground beef, preferably fresh ground fat-free, or ground turkey
- 1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
- 1 medium onion, diced
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- 1/4-teaspoon pepper
- 1 can (14-1/2 to 16-ounce) tomatoes, smashed
- 1 can (14-1/2 to 16-ounce) corn with liquid
- 1 can (14-1/2 to 16-ounce) can black beans, drained and rinsed, optional
- 1-1/2 cups beef or chicken stock or bouillon
- 1 small green pepper, seeded, cut in thin strips
- 1/2-cup uncooked rice

Brown meat in oil in skillet, leaving in coarse chunks. Add onion, cook until translucent. Add seasonings, tomatoes, corn, beans and stock; bring to a boil. Cook 15 minutes. Add rice; cook 10 minutes more. Add green pepper and cook 10 minutes or until rice is tender, adding more stock or water if necessary.

HOBO STEW (NIB) serves 6-8

- 1 pound virtually fat-free fresh ground beef or ground turkey
- 1/2-pound hot dogs* (sliced)
- 1 envelope (1-ounce) onion gravy mix
- 1 can (8-ounce) tomato sauce
- 1 can (14-1/2 to 16-ounce) mixed vegetables or peas and carrots, drained, or 1 10-ounce package frozen mixed vegetables
- 1 cup broth, either beef or chicken
- Salt and pepper to taste

*Note: Use low-fat beef or turkey hotdogs.

If using frozen vegetables, cook until tender in part of the water; then add water to skillet. If using canned peas and carrots or frozen vegetables, add one 14-1/2 to 16-ounce can of potatoes, rinsed, drained and cubed. (NOTE: canned mixed vegetables contain potatoes.)

In a large skillet, brown meat while breaking up; brown hotdog slices. Stir in remaining ingredients; heat until hot and bubbly.

Serve in bowls with biscuits or bread and a butter substitute.

GIRL SCOUT'S CAMPFIRE STEW (NIB)

When my daughter was in Girl Scouts, this dinner in a bowl was everyone's favorite.

Brown 1 pound ground beef or ground turkey, stir in 1 can condensed vegetable alphabet soup, undiluted. You can also add canned potatoes, rinsed, drained and cubed.

Simmer for about 10 minutes.

HOT ONIONS (NIB)

Enough for a crowd and freezes great. Top your hot dogs or hamburgers with New York-style hot onions.

- 3 pounds onions, peeled, quartered and sliced thin

PSL is golfer's dream

But there's plenty more to do in city for all ages

By Jay Meisel
Meisel@hometownnewsol.com

PORT ST. LUCIE — Port St. Lucie offers a perfect venue for a vacation for golfers.

Others can visit the Treasure Coast's largest city and enjoy baseball, shopping and other activities.

Although Port St. Lucie doesn't have direct access to the beach, it's not a long drive to either Fort Pierce or Jensen Beach, where one can stretch out on the sand or take a dip in the ocean.

Have you always wanted to learn how to golf? Try the Professional Golfing Association complex.

The PGA Center for Golf Learning and Performance provides instruction and the chance to practice virtually every shot. There are simulations of various golf courses around the world, hitting stations and motion-analysis technology to analyze your swing.

For those who want to learn about the how the game developed, the PGA Historical Center traces golf's history from the 1500s, in what is believed to be the first mention of the game.

There's a 54-hole championship course open year round. During the last two years, it was renovated.

PGA Village also has a short course that's billed as a good venue for all members of the family to play golf together.

Michael Abramowitz, who handles public relations for PGA, said the facility gets a lot of vacationers who come to play golf.

For more information about PGA Village, go to www.pgavillage.com.

Baseball is also a big attraction in Port St. Lucie. The New York Mets hold their spring training at Tradition Stadium. And although the boys of summer only inhabit the stadium in February and March, the St. Lucie Mets, the minor league team for the New York Mets, are housed there, as well and play all summer long.

You can also take a tour of the St. Lucie River. River Lilly Cruises offers regular tours along the river, during which people typically see alligators, a large variety of birds and other animals.

For more information, go to www.riverlilycruises.com.

Nature loves can visit the Oxbow Eco-Center, which has walking trails and various events, including guided hikes and lectures.

The city has a large variety of restaurants and businesses.

The Town of Tradition includes a number of small shops and some larger retailers, including Target, Office Max and Pier One.

Every third Friday of the month, Tradition hosts

Mitch Kloorfain/chief photographer

Port St. Lucie is a haven for celebrating a wedding or playing golf on one of its many courses. Newlyweds Jon and Tabitha Farmer found a way to combine both following their nuptials at Tradition.

Westfest, a get together featuring a free evening concert.

Visitors may also want to take a trip to the Civic Center, which opened this past year. Besides offering various athletic activities, it has an art gallery, is host to a farmer's market (every Tuesday from October through May) and offers various classes. In the near future, vacationers will be able to visit the Port St. Lucie Botanical Garden, which is expected to open next year.

Preparing in advance for hurricane cleanup

The past couple of weeks I have been talking a lot about getting your yard ready for a storm. This week, I want to talk a little about the cleanup process after a storm. I want to share some of the tips I found useful while cleaning up after past hurricanes. If you are like me, one look at the yard and it makes you wonder where you should even start when planning your cleanup effort.

The first tool you will need is a good quality chain saw. Gas is preferred over electric because gas chain saws have more power and also if your power is out, you will not be able to use an electric chain saw unless you have a generator.

Before you start cutting your trees, be sure to take a full survey of your yard. Confirm there are no power lines entangled in your work area and that there are no large, dangling limbs that could fall and hit you once you start working.

If a large tree needs to be

GARDEN NOOK

cut down, it is probably best to leave that to an expert tree service. Most of my tree debris was already on the ground and simply had to be cut up and taken to the curb.

Once you have all the large debris removed and cut up at your curb, re-survey your yard for other damage that may have been hidden with the larger tree branches.

When trying to clean up small twigs and leaves from an area that has stepping stones or gravel, a great tool to use for cleanup is a gas blower.

I had a large garden area that is covered with lava rock and trying to use a rake to get the debris was also picking up all the lava rock. I brought out the trusty gas blower and about 97 percent of the debris was magically whisked away.

In fact, as a preliminary task before raking, I successfully removed a good deal of debris from the lawn area with the blower. This made the next pass with a regular garden rake much easier.

Once you are done with that, a pass with a mulching lawn mower will really put the finishing touches on your yard.

Once you finish getting your yard back to some kind of normalcy, you can start planning your fall garden, the second time around for some of us.

If you want to add a tropical flair to your indoor or shaded outdoor garden, why not try peace lilies, also known as spathiphyllum? These delicate-looking plants can add life to almost any garden décor. They boast lush green leaves and delicate white flower spikes.

Peace lilies are relatively easy to take care of under normal home conditions. They will tolerate a wide range of light levels however, they do best in moderate- to high-light conditions. If the lighting is too low, yellowing of the leaves can occur.

Peace lilies enjoy an evenly moist soil that does not get completely dry however, they do not like it real soggy. You may want to occasionally fertilize your plants with a water-soluble fertilizer such as Miracle Gro to help them maintain their healthy appearance.

If the plant seems to stop responding when you add water and starts to look droopy, it will need to be transplanted to a larger pot. Find a pot that is one size larger and carefully transplant the peace lily to its new home. Use a good-quality potting mix that has a loose consistency for best results.

Get the durn plunger, Halifax River won't flush

The water in the Halifax is still in disgraceful condition from the big May rain run-off.

That was over three months ago, and there is no relief in sight.

It is a crime that the contractors who built the new high-rise bridges were allowed to dam up the river in order to save a few bucks, a crime that will affect us for many years unless something major is done.

Wade fishing buddy Frank Moore of Ormond Beach described the Halifax as a big toilet that will not flush.

I can't add anything to that. Thankfully, a few fish have returned.

Not long ago, I was out early and looking for flounder up Tomoka State Park way. Just at dawn, I hooked a really big one. This thing was a monster, and so large that I thought I was winning in a surfboard.

I never did land it, but managed to get it close enough for a good look. The flattie was so big it was actually kind of scary. What a creature.

I don't know how to guess its weight, maybe 15

FISHING WITH DAN

pounds. I know I'm running on, but it looked like a big brown throw rug.

I did land a couple nice keepers that morning.

Right now, Ponce Inlet has quite a few flounders, but they are mostly small. Remember flounder don't care much for current. Fish calm waters or just off the current where it eddies. I caught five fishing near the beach and just off Disappearing Island.

At this time of year, you will find mangrove snapper at their maximum inshore size, fish fresh shrimp or small jigs in deep water around any structure or seawall.

A tenacious two-pound mango on light tackle equals a lot of fun and some pretty good eats to boot.

I had a good trout morning near High Bridge recently. Between dawn and 9 a.m., I had three fat keepers all near 18 inches and several throwbacks. Two 17-inch reds rounded out my trip.

On a still morning, most of those fish hit top water. On the beach, the fall mullet run could begin any day depending on the weather north of here.

Fat silver mullet could fill the waves anytime between now and the end of October.

Cast net a cooler full for great smokers or a family fish fry. Never discount mullet as a food fish, especially ones from the ocean. Clean and fat, if you prepare them correctly you may tell your guests that they are bass or trout and they will never know. The main secret to cooking good mullet is a fryer with very hot peanut oil and a coarse corn meal coating. If you want to try something really tasty, dredge your fillets in egg and then pound up some Fritos Corn Chips while still in the bag for a crunchy and tasty coating.

Oh man! You had better make plenty.

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for 40 years. When he's not fishing, the retired contractor is heavily involved with the Ormond Beach Historical Trust. For questions or comments send an e-mail to apes123@mybluelight.com

Daytona Beach is the perfect golfing destination

The "World's Most Famous Beach" now has a lot more to offer than sand and sea.

Daytona Beach, once a sure destination for beach lovers, spring breakers, families and race enthusiasts has added some of the best golf along the east coast to its resumé.

In my mind, Daytona has become a perfect destination. Here you will find something for everyone in the family, all without the over-crowded highways you find in other Florida destinations.

My family spent the last days of the summer relaxing in Daytona Beach just a week or so ago.

For my son and I, there was golf to be had, along with motorsports attractions.

For my wife and daughters, there was a gorgeous beach to kick back and relax on, waves to play in and shops to explore.

For the entire family we had museums, historic sites, aquatic adventures, art galleries and more to choose from.

Golf enthusiasts can plan their golf getaway through www.golfdaytonabeach.com — a program coordinated by the Daytona Beach Area Convention and Visitors Bureau that packages golf and accommodations for added value and convenience.

More than a dozen hotels and 16 courses have teamed up to participate to make Daytona Beach Florida's fastest golf destination.

Many of the packages offered by participating hotels include pre-arranged tee times, cart and greens fees, and breakfast. Golf Daytona Beach will customize packages to fit any budget or interest.

Golfers may choose

between the quaint solitude of a small inn with full kitchens, to the luxury of a full-service hotel, complete with upscale dining and a spa.

We stayed at the Hilton Daytona Beach Oceanfront Resort (www.daytonahilton.com) right on Atlantic Avenue. The Hilton is likely the jewel of the hotels offering golf packages.

A word of advice to the savvy traveler: parking at the hotel is an absolute mess.

Depending on when you arrive, you may wait as long as 30 minutes to valet or unload your car and then just as long to check in. I also found that housekeeping has a bad habit of simply walking into your room unannounced without even a knock on the door.

Our room was nice and comfortable, with a beautiful view of the Atlantic Ocean. The hotel has a full-service spa, a refreshing pool and a fitness room for your enjoyment.

Just a few steps away are the sparkling water of the Atlantic and a beautiful beach. We rented beach chairs and an umbrella and spent the day soaking up the sand and surf.

When it was time for golf, we teed it up at LPGA International (www.LPGAInternational.com), home of the Ladies Professional Golf Association. Located just west of Interstate-95, the complex features two distinctly different styles of course design.

The Champions Course is an award-winning design by Rees Jones and home course of the LPGA Tour. It is here every fall that the final stage of the LPGA qualifying school is held to determine which ladies will play on tour the following year.

At nearly 7,100 yards from the back tees, the course features strategic mounding, tranquil marshes, native preserves, numerous lakes and pesky bunkers to navigate. The links-style layout has five sets of tees to allow the golfer to determine just how much challenge the round will provide.

The second course at LPGA International is the Legend Course. Designed by Arthur Hills, this spectacular layout provides the perfect balance of power, finesse and fun. With tight, well-bunkered greens, undulating fairways and an abundance of hazards, this 7,000 yard layout requires strategy on every shot on all 18 holes.

After playing golf, enjoying the beach and hitting the shops, we were all famished. Just down the street right on Sun Glow Pier on the south end of Daytona Beach, where you can still drive your car on the beach, is Crabby Joes Deck and Grill (visit www.sunglowpier.com or call (386) 788-3364).

Serving breakfast, lunch and dinner, Crabby Joe's offers the best-tasting view in Daytona Beach. The restaurant sits atop the pier out over the Atlantic. If the view or the wonderful atmosphere isn't enough to get you to drop by, the food certainly is. The menu features fresh fish, crab, mussels, shrimp, burgers, wings and more to scintillate the palate.

When you notice the large number of locals dining and drinking at Crabby Joe's you know the place must be good. We loved it so much, we went back before heading home.

Now that Daytona Beach has even more to offer, you can see why it's a perfect place to take the entire family, golfers or not, for a vacation.

Head for the slammer

Spend any time surfing the Web and you are bound to find stories that are just too bizarre to be true. Here's a sampling, edited for length. And remember, just because it's online doesn't mean it's true!

From www.enquirer.com: Cincinnati man arrested 146 times since 1998.

Authorities said Bennie Crabtree is the most-arrested man in the county. Records show he has been arrested 146 times since 1998, when Hamilton County's record-keeping system was updated.

Veteran police officers said he was arrested many more times in the decades before that.

Crabtree's record includes: criminal trespassing, disorderly conduct and theft. Police say he steals food and intrudes in places such as the University of Cincinnati, hospitals and businesses.

He's never done anything serious enough to be sent to prison. Because of jail overcrowding, he's now often released hours after arrest.

Police say the 61-year-old man has lived mostly on the streets and has some mental problems. A social worker says Crabtree is lonely.

From sfgate.com: Pizza shop worker, 72, foils robbers with beer can.

Police said a 72-year-

HOW WEIRD IS THAT!
SEAN MCCARTHY

old pizza shop employee foiled a shotgun-point robbery, by throwing a can of beer at the perpetrators.

Lancaster Police Lt. Todd Umstead said two men with bandanas over their faces attempted to rob Six Packs on Vine at closing time. One of the men pointed a shotgun at the employee, who was stocking a cooler.

Umstead said the man threw a 12-ounce can of beer at the robber and both assailants fled the store. Police said the employee could not tell if the beer struck either of the men but it was enough to chase them off.

From Livescience.com: Giant plant eats rodents.

A giant plant that can gobble up bugs and even rodents has been discovered in Southeast Asia.

The carnivorous plant (nepenthes attenboroughii) was found by researchers atop Mount Victoria, a remote mountain in Palawan, Philippines.

The research team, led by Stewart McPherson of Red Fern Natural History Productions, learned of the plant in 2000 after a group of Christian missionaries stumbled on it while trekking up a remote mountain and reported it to a local newspaper.

The pitcher plant is the world's second largest and can grow to more than 4 feet tall, with a pitcher-shaped structure filled with liquid. The plant secretes nectar around the pitcher's mouth to lure rats, insects and other prey into its trap. Once an animal has fallen in, enzymes and acids in the fluid break down the carcass of the drowned victim.

From News.Yahoo.com: "Putpockets" give a little extra cash.

Visitors to London always have to be on the lookout for pickpockets, but now there's another, more positive phenomenon on the loose: putpockets.

Aware that people are suffering in the economic crisis, 20 former pickpockets have turned over a new leaf and are now trawling London's tourist sites, slipping money back into unsuspecting pockets.

Anything from 5 pounds ($8) to 20 pound notes are being surreptitiously deposited in unguarded pockets or open handbags in Trafalgar Square, Covent Garden and other busy spots.
