Seat 3 candidates speak out on Ponce Inlet issues

By Bil Borden
 For Hometown News

Editor's Note: In preparation for the upcoming Town Council election in Ponce Inlet, Hometown News asked the seven candidates vying for three seats to answer questions concerning the future of the town. Below are the questions and the responses to those questions from the three Seat 3 candidates Bill Milano, Tom Rutledge and Dennis Raposa.

Q. What is your vision for Ponce Inlet?

Mr. Milano

A. I would like to maintain our small town lifestyle, preserve the residential character of our neighborhoods and listen to all homeowners about their concerns. The town developed a Town Visioning Statement that as a town council member I will work to preserve for all residents.

Mr. Rutledge

A. My vision is the town's vision that we should be:

A residential haven for those persons who value nature, quiet and privacy.

A community which offers a small-town lifestyle where people feel safe and have easy access to small-scale businesses serving their needs.

A community which is particularly distinguished by its natural beauty and its access to nature.

A community that ensures its built environment is of high quality and appropriate scale while protecting historic features.

A community recognized for the professionalism and integrity of its government and the high level of citizen involvement and participation in the life of the community.

Mr. Raposa

A. Ponce Inlet is a residential community. It is and should always be a quiet and safe place to live and raise a family or enjoy a robust retirement.

Q. List your priorities if elected.

Mr. Rutledge

A. Promote open and transparent government.

Promote financially responsible and responsive government.

Keep property taxes as low as possible while protecting high levels of service.

Protect and defend town's vision

B-CU to get its own police

By Andreas Butler
 For Hometown News

DAYTONA BEACH — After several recent criminal incidents on the Bethune-Cookman University campus, officials there have decided it is time for the school to have its own police force.

The decision is supported by Daytona Beach Police Chief Mike Chitwood.

"This is something that I recommended to Dr. Reed in the past," Chief Chitwood said, referring to B-CU's president Trudie Kibbe Reed. "I just did not know how it would be done or if the school had the finances."

The announcement came at a press conference during which Dr. Reed and Chief Chitwood "kissed and made up" after publicly arguing over the most recent incident on campus, which resulted in one student being charged with inciting a riot and the firing of two deans.

"We will operate our own campus security — a sworn police force," Dr. Reed said. "We have hired a local police major as Security Chief. We will not say who yet. He is already in place. He will hire additional officers."

In a phone interview, Chief Chitwood said he knows who it is B-CU is hiring to run the police force.

"He is a 'Class A' guy," the chief said. "A true law enforcement officer."

It isn't clear how large the force will be.

B-CU officials said the security chief will be introduced next week and will give additional information.

B-CU had made cuts to security personnel in the past.

"We have adequate security but in a sense we do not because we did not have those adequately trained to handle such an incident," Dr. Reed said.

Police statistics show 21 incidents so far in 2009 that occurred on or around the campus. In the past three months, five criminal incidents occurred, including narcotics, larceny, assault and sexual assault.

Many universities similar in size to B-CU have their own police force, but one official said there are many factors to consider in determining if that is the best way to go.

"It is hard to say because it depends on the layout of the school," said George Wilhelm, Director of Campus Safety at Barry University in Miami. "That can be anything from whether the school has fences all around or not. It also depends on how accessible the school is and how much crime is in the surrounding area."

Chief Chitwood said the most important thing B-CU officials can do is to make sure the security force is "part of campus life." He suggested the title of the head security officer be dean of public safety and that person should teach classes in addition to his or her security duties.

"If students don't respect the security people, you've got a problem," he said. "And they're not going to respect a seven-dollar security guard. It has to be a professional."

The chief also suggested the force be a mix of sworn law enforcement officers who are armed and have arrest powers and security guards who can more easily fit in with students.

"They (security guards) can become ingrained in the culture, build trust and get more informa-

The Volusia County Bicycling Map for the Experienced Cyclist helps local riders plan trips through towns or scenic areas.

Map helps bicyclists find best routes in the county

By Wayne Grant
 wgrant@hometownnewsol.com

VOLUSIA COUNTY — The old saying "It's like riding a bicycle," makes cycling sound simple.

Riding a bike may be easy, but locating the best and safest places to ride, whether you want to tour the countryside or find the best route to work, takes some research.

Fortunately, a tool is available for local bicycle riders, the "Volusia County Bicycling Map for the Experienced Cyclist."

The guide, produced by the Volusia County Bicycle/Pedestrian Advisory Committee, shows bicycle facilities, suggested routes and even bicycle repair shops.

The coordinator for the advisory committee, Stephan Harris, said the map is for both recreational bikers and commuters who want to get across town.

Mr. Harris said "experienced cyclist," in the title of the guide refers to anyone already riding on roadways or trails, as opposed to peddling around the neighborhood on sidewalks.

The group was recently named "advisory committee of the year" by the Florida Bicycle Association for producing the map and conducting several other activities during the past year that benefited the community.

Linda Hallam, executive director of Florida Bicycle Association, said the map is "fabulous."

"This is something people always ask for and not all counties have one," she said.

Mr. Harris said the idea for the map came from biking enthusiasts who wanted a countywide map.

"We solicited information from the general public, bicycle clubs and bike shops to get the preferred routes," he said.

Children can help children by participating in Trick or Treat for UNICEF

For Hometown News
Volnews@hometownnewsol.com

The Sunset Civitan Club, in support of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, is promoting children helping children this Halloween with "Trick or Treat for UNICEF," in South Daytona.

Started in 1950, Trick or Treat for UNICEF has served to help less fortunate children worldwide for almost 60 years, saving lives and giving hope for their future.

It is a great teaching and character building opportunity in learning how good we have it being in American. There are many other children in the world who don't have the basic life necessities that we take for granted. This activity shows how children here could do something to improve the lives of other children from around the world.

"Civitan stands for good citizenship and this tradition of services and giving to help others is a great way to promote it," said Gary Wandelt, President of the Sunset Civitan Club.

The club is registering participants and handing out a limited number of official "Trick or Treat for UNICEF" coin boxes from 6 to 8 p.m., Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 22 to 24, at the South Daytona's Enchanted Forest at Reed Canal Park and from 6 to 8 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 31, at Light the Night at South Daytona Christian and First Baptist Churches, located at Kenilworth

Avenue and Elizabeth Place.

Local girl hosts community radio program

By Joyce Borda
For Hometown News

PORT ORANGE — Pavlina's Kid'z Place is on the air. Turn on, tune in and make a difference.

That's the message 12-year old Pavlina Osta communicates in her weekly radio program on WAPN 91.5 FM, 91.7 FM (Madison, FL) and simulcasted on the Internet, Saturday mornings at 11:30 a.m.

Multi-talented Pavlina, well known in Central Florida for her steel drum and dance performances, pioneered another frontier when she started either live in the studio or on location. Mr. Bennett said he was impressed with Pavlina from the first time he met her.

"I was amazed that someone so young was on a path of helping people," he said.

So taken by her maturity, he signed on to produce her radio show as well as design her Website, www.Pavlina.biz.

"She has a remarkable ability to ask the questions that need to be asked in her interviews," Mr. Bennett said. "Although she is only 12 years old, she has an uncanny ability to focus on important issues fac-cussing issues that are important to them and asking how her listeners can help.

Recently, she spoke with Kathy Blackman, founder of Sophie's Circle, a non-profit organization dedicated to helping animals in distress. "She asked interesting questions and conducted herself very well," Ms. Blackman said. "Pavlina wants to raise awareness of the plight of unwanted, homeless and abandoned pets. She is using her talents and resources to do just that." A dedicated youth, Pavlina's weekly schedule includes preparing for her weekly radio show, daily after-school ballet classes in Orlando, being a Girl Scout and practicing for upcoming performances on her steel drums.

After seeing her first Broadway Show in December 2007, Pavlina decided then and there that her goal was to perform on Broadway. This goal appears to be a natural fit for this busy Port Orange tween.

Why does she do it all? "It makes me happy," she said.

Of course, this will be expensive for the school. BCU spokeswoman Liz Postone said funding is being worked out.

Countywide census committee reaches out to residents

For Hometown News
Volnews@hometownnewsol.com

Cooperation, commitment and shared resources will help to ensure that all residents are counted in the 2010 Census. That message was echoed by members of Volusia County's Complete Count Committee, which met recently to discuss the progress of its countywide public awareness campaign.

Members of the volunteer committee represent local governments, colleges and universities, faith-based and community organizations, businesses, housing, farm workers, and marketing and communications professionals.

Chaired by Joie Alexander, Volusia County Council vice chair and at-large representative, the group's goal is to encourage all residents to complete and return their 2010 census questionnaire. Noting that Volusia County's population is estimated at 500,000, Alexander said it will take the efforts of dozens of community volunteers to ensure everyone is counted.

"The power is in this

"We need your help, if we don't all count, it could mean millions of dollars in lost revenues over a 10-year period."

Joie Alexander representative group," Alexander said. "It's through the efforts of all."

Representatives from each subcommittee discussed challenges faced in reaching out to the diverse population in the county. Acknowledging tight fiscal budgets, members shared low-cost ways of reaching the public including a speakers bureau, setting up booths at community events, encouraging the support of local business partners, using social media and e-mail communications, providing articles for agencies' newsletters, and pooling resources.

Volusia County officials have developed Web sites in English and Spanish at www.VolusiaCounts.org and www.VolusiaCuenta.org.

In early March, the U.S. Census Bureau will mail census questionnaires, which are to be completed and returned by April 1. Data collected will affect how more than $400 billion in annual federal funds will be distributed to state, local and tribal governments over the next decade.

It also will be used to forecast housing and transportation needs, drawing school boundaries, developing assistance programs, and planning for health care needs.

Volunteers are needed to make sure everyone is counted, Alexander said.

Opportunities exist to serve on subcommittees and the speakers' bureau and to staff information booths at community events.

"We need your help," she said. "If we don't all count, it could mean millions of dollars in lost revenues over a 10-year period."

HOMEOWNERS WITH 10+ YEAR OLD AIR CONDITIONERS!

"Only 70 Days left to choose what type of Air Conditioning System you can buy!"

October 23rd, 2009

On January 1st 2010 Freon (R-22) will no longer be available for purchase with new air conditioners and the alternative is more expensive. That's right. The alternative refrigerant (R-410A) that they are switching to is more expensive than the dependable Freon A/C units that you can buy now. There are $2000-$3000 worth of rebates and credits some of which expire next year as well*. I'm sure you have seen my ads in the paper all year long so quit delaying the inevitable and give us a call for your free estimate and complimentary home energy survey. Besides, your old A/C unit isn't going to last much longer and you don't want to miss financial benefits of doing it now do you? If you're worried about being able to afford it then don't be. You can buy a new system with $0 down and pay just $49 a month or you can make no payments and pay no interest for 6 months with approved credit.

Call now at 386-490-4989

The only regret that you could have is if you wait too long and you lose out on all the incentives.

P.S.

To the first 30 people that call I will include a FREE LIFETIME COMPRESSOR WARRANTY on your new unit. You will never have to worry about the most expensive repair as long as you own the home! Better hurry though; we average over 100 calls a day!

Thanks for In Season

Thank you so much for the In Season supplement in the Oct. 9 Hometown News, the listings of activities and events are terrific.

Show civic pride

Almost daily, sometimes twice a day, we walk or ride our bikes around the subdivision that we live in. Having lived in the same area for almost 38 years, we suddenly notice the change in our area.

The streets are littered with phone books, Avon catalogs, announcements from solicitors, lottery scratch-offs, cigarette packages, aluminum cans, plastic bottles and anything else these litterbugs can't wait to get home to dispose.

The most annoying thing is the small debris that is piled up on the sidewalk, which the property owner is just plain lazy and will not put in a container for the trash collectors.

Let's start thinking more about our civic pride and help clean up our areas.

Solicitors are not welcome

For anyone out there that believes that our school system works, I can guarantee it does not.

Try this simple test. Put a sign on your door, a no trespassing sign or a no soliciting sign.

After posting the sign, start counting the amount of people that will still ring your doorbell to offer their services while not understanding what the meaning of either sign could be.

If you are not invited to this home, you are either trespassing or soliciting.

It doesn't matter if you're offering your services to mow yards, clean windows, trim trees, push your religion or any other item. You are soliciting, so take note. Our schools are doing a very poor job of turning out educated people, if they cannot read or comprehend a simple word.

In response to 'Dogs on the beach'

My name is Lola, I'm a yellow Labrador retriever. The writer states that going to the beach is wonderful, unique, and relaxing. For me it is also exciting, fun and there are some great things to smell, not to mention jumping in and out of the waves.

The letter also mentions the animals and bird life along the shore, and that's part of why I enjoy the beach so much too.

I love chasing the birds and I'm sure they like it too, because I can hear them laughing at me trying to catch them, which never happens. I met a turtle once, and we played a game till I got bored, those turtles just don't move fast enough to keep a dogs' interest. As far as crabs go, I want nothing to do with them, after one bit my nose. Anyway I just want a chance to have some fun and enjoy life, and if you like the experience of the birds and other animals that live on the shore, maybe you would enjoy watching me run and play too.

Letters

Letter of appreciation to Secretary of Transportation

On the Jim Lehrer News Hour about two weeks ago, there was an interview with the Secretary of Transportation Ray La Hood regarding the serious safety problems of using cell phones while driving and in particular texting.

There is a serious rise in accidents on our highways. The secretary said he plans to ask Congress for a federal law prohibiting such dangerous behavior. The secretary also said that using a hand-held cell phone is of concern.

As a first responder for 10 years to the California Highway Patrol and San Diego Police Department, I am in full support of the statements he made on the television regarding drivers using cell phones while driving.

As owner and operator of a towing company, I have witnessed firsthand many injured and sometimes dead persons at the scene of accidents.

From my experience, I find most drivers simply do not have the experience and skills to avoid unforeseen problems that may occur directly in front of them. Such as debris falling in front of their vehicle or sudden lane changes of the other driver in front of their vehicle. Add to those dangerous problems, the visual interruptions of electronic devices, and we as a nation have some very serious conditions here on our roads.

When one click is not enough

One of the most basic moves one needs to master in order to get anything done on a PC is the "click."

Sounds simple and obvious, doesn't it? Well, it is, but as many new computer users find, it's not necessarily simple. There are a few serious issues that need to be kept in mind in order to master that one basic action.

A frequently asked question is: "How do I know whether to click or double-click?" My answer is: "Easy! Click once, and if nothing happens, then double-click."

If that seems self-explanatory, it is. Just think about it. If clicking twice gives you a different result than when you click once, and you aren't sure which is which, then start off with a single click first.

That's important, because double-clicking will often open a new window, launch a program or typically do something more drastic than a single click. In fact, the results of double-clicking will often cover the icon you really wanted.

COMPUTE THIS

The single click has its place. When you click once, you should notice that your target icon (whatever it is that you just clicked) will often turn blue (or whatever color your computer is set at).

This change in color indicates this particular icon is now highlighted or "selected." In other words, when you single click an icon and it turns a different color, you have focused the computer's attention at that particular icon.

Then, once an object is selected, the computer knows whatever you ask it to do next should be done to the object that's highlighted.

What kind of things can you do to a selected object? You can copy it by pressing the control (ctrl) key and the "c" key on the keyboard simultaneously. You could press the "enter" key (which gives you the same results as if you double-clicked). You could also delete the item. There are lots of uses for the single click; the important thing to remember is that's how you make sure the computer is "looking" at the same thing you are.

When you double-click an icon, it's absolutely essential that the mouse be kept completely still for both clicks. If you are trying to double-click an icon that's in close proximity to other icons, and you double-click while the mouse is still moving, you run the risk of dragging the target icon and dropping it into another location on the computer.

It can be a real puzzle to figure out where the icon went.

Many people who have trouble double-clicking hold the mouse with their wrist suspended in the air and a death-grip on the mouse. You don't have to grip it that tightly; just let it sit on the mouse pad. Rest the heel of your hand on the mouse pad and just push the mouse around with your fingertips.

Once you loosen your grip, you'll find the mouse will stay put.

If you still have problems with the pointer wandering around when you are trying to click, you may want to consider a trackball.

A trackball is like a mouse that's been flipped over on its back. You roll the ball around with your fingertips, and the base is stationary.

Unlike a mouse, where the buttons go along for the ride, the buttons of a trackball are built into the non-moving base. So, when you click a trackball, keep your fingers off the ball and click the button. That usually ends "wandering clicker syndrome."

doses arrived as health officials announced a fifth swine flu death in the county. A 58-year-old man, who became ill in September, died this month and health officials said he did not have an underlying health condition. While unusual, that is not unheard of and officials said that in 30 percent of swine flu deaths, the victims had no other known medical problem. Still, health officials agree they are seeing more of the swine flu and seeing it earlier and hope as vaccines become more available to the public, the numbers will begin to dwindle. We continue to see school populations impacted by flu in Volusia County. Recently, administrators at Horizon Elementary School in Port Orange reported half of the children in kindergarten and third grade out sick.

Radio station owner arrested on additional charges

The owner of an Ormond Beach radio station was arrested again on additional sex charges involving teenagers. Douglas Wilhite, owner of WELE radio, is now accused of encouraging teens between 14 and 16 to have sex with each other while he watched, showing them pornography and providing alcohol. Mr. Wilhite was first arrested in July, accused of repeatedly having sex with a then 15-year-old boy at Mr. Wilhite's home. He was set to go to trial on the first charge when investigators arrested him on more than a dozen new charges after identifying seven new victims who are apparently friends of the original victim. Mr. Wilhite was booked on $1.5 million bond, but at his first appearance on the new charges, the judge ordered Mr. Wilhite released on his own recognizance. Mr. Wilhite's defense attorney, David Damore, said the sudden arrest was an effort to deprive Mr. Wilhite an opportunity to prepare for trial and that prosecutors were aware of new warrants issued when they met with the defense in court to agree both sides were ready to go trial. The first appearance judge also found an anonymous report that Mr. Wilhite was readying a boat, perhaps in an effort to run, was frivolous. However, Mr. Wilhite remained in jail, after the bondsman in his first case pulled the bond, saying Mr. Wilhite's second arrest was a breach of the first bond contract.

Business offers heating/cooling service with 'Flair'

By Wayne Grant
wgrant@hometownnewsol.com

PORT ORANGE — One of the most important decisions a homeowner makes is what kind of heating and cooling system they should purchase and how they should have it maintained.

One of the local experts helping people make the right decisions is Tom McGuire of Flair Air Conditioning, a locally owned and operated business in Port Orange. He is part owner and president of the company, which was started in 1967 by his father and a couple of partners.

The company provides service and installation for both residential and commercial clients.

Mr. McGuire helps his customers keep up-to-date by publishing a newsletter. "I write it myself," he said. "It's on the Web site and I mail it to those with maintenance contracts."

Mr. McGuire said one thing people should know about is the savings available through the federal government's stimulus package.

He said if a customer buys a unit with a certain efficiency rating, they can qualify for a 30-percent tax credit, up to $1,500.

Also, he said high efficiency units can qualify for an FPL rebate where applicable.

"Ninety percent of what we're putting in is tax credit units," he said. "And sometimes a manufacturer's rebate is also available."

Flair Air Conditioning sells the "three major brands" of the industry: Carrier, Trane and Lennox.

"We look at the needs of the customer and determine the best fit," Mr.

Tom McGuire, president of Flair Air Conditioning.

McGuire said. "A lot has to do with the location and cooling load requirements needs replacement, it may be possible to install an R22 component.

"We do training, training and more training. We're not the biggest, we just want to be able to provide the best service available in a timely manner."

for the structure."

Another big topic in the air conditioning field right now is that the refrigerant that has been used for many years, R22, is being phased out for the more environmentally friendly R410.

The new systems installed by Flair today use R410. If only part of system

Mr. McGuire recommends buying an affordable maintenance contract, which covers inspections twice a year, in the spring and fall.

"People who maintain their units have better efficiency and fewer breakdowns," he said.

Quality installation and service are very important, and Mr. McGuire pointed out that all of his technicians are "100 percent NATE certified."

NATE is a national organization that tests the competency of air conditioning technicians.

"We do training, training and more training," Mr. McGuire said. "We're not the biggest, we just want to be able to provide the best service available in a timely manner."

Mr. McGuire said being locally owned is a benefit for the customer.

"It's a more personal relationship," he said. "And you're dealing with someone who lives in the community and is involved with the community."

Flair Air Conditioning is located at 935 Alexander Ave., Port Orange. For information, go to flairairconditioning.com or call 386-767-3900.

Biketoberfest gives economy a boost

Thousands of bikers roared out of town after last weekend's Biketoberfest event, created 17 years ago to cash in on the success of bike week in March, and boost business in the slower fall months. The crowd at various venues appeared to be healthy and locals will agree the traffic and noise indicated a significant impact. Tourism officials predicted 100,000 bikers would show up between Thursday and Sunday, having a better than $200 million economic impact in the area. It's hard to gauge the real impact, but some business leaders said they saw a real boost during those days and a number of hotels reported a sell out. Still, others said they had rooms available on Saturday and lowered prices to fill up. Any business during slower months is welcome business, but some told WESH 2 that the bikers were spending less, more than likely because of the economy. Business owner Paul Politis, who runs a gift shop on A1A just blocks from Main Street, said he sees almost no impact from Biketoberfest because the city allows temporary vendors to set up on Main Street for the event. Mr. Politis said those profits don't roll into the community, but rather ride out when the vendors leave town on Monday.

Man found guilty of indecent exposure

One of nine men arrested in late 2007 during a sex sting in the Volusia Mall Sears bathroom was found guilty of indecent exposure. A lower court originally tossed the charge against Kenneth Halpin, saying he had a reasonable expectancy of privacy in a bathroom stall, but an appeals court ruled Mr. Halpin could be prosecuted because the sex act was in clear view. Mr. Halpin will serve 30 days in jail and pay court costs.

Death threat made against chief

The Sears bathroom in the mall has been a trouble spot after the 2007 sting and more recently when a man allegedly propositioned a 13-year-old boy after exposing himself. It's also listed on a number of Internet sites as a hang out for men looking for hookups. Police have made no secret of efforts to clean things up there so Chief Mike Chitwood wasn't surprised to learn he was listed as a victim on a crime report after Sears security officers found threats against the chief written on several stall walls. The threats, written in marker, threatened to kill the chief and one threat said the writer knew where the chief lived. Chief Chitwood, not seemingly worried about the threats told WESH 2 he's glad he's making an impression and invited the writer to come over and bring his "A game." Investigators were reviewing store security cameras, one located outside the bathroom, to see if they could find anything suspicious.

Patient information may have been compromised

Officials with Halifax Health Medical Center in Daytona Beach have warned more than 30,000 patients their personal information could be compromised after the theft of a laptop computer. The computer was stolen from an employee's vehicle in Orange County in late August, and so far it hasn't been recovered. The patient information is password protected, and though there are no reports of any fraud yet, Halifax officials sent letters to 33,000 patients, advising them to protect themselves from fraud.

Hospital officials said they were advised by the Orange County Sheriff's Department to delay notification while they investigated, so as not to alert the thief.

Speedway CEO named one of most powerful women in sports

A big honor for International Speedway Corporation CEO Lesa France Kennedy after Forbes Magazine named her the most powerful woman in sports. Forbes said Ms. France Kennedy, in her career at ISC, has made decisions that impact NASCAR's growth beyond its traditional southern roots and notes her decisions on acquisitions and improvement projects.

Woman killed in golf cart accident

An Ormond Beach area woman was killed when she was ejected from a golf cart in the Plantation Bay community near the Volusia-Flagler County line. Florida Highway Patrol troopers say 58-year-old Carol Hollingsworth was on Plantation Bay Drive when for an unknown reason she drove up on the sidewalk and lost control. The cart tilted over, throwing Ms. Hollingsworth from the cart. Troopers said it's not clear if the golf cart ran over her.

Man killed in boating mishap

An Edgewater man was killed after a mishap on his boat on the Intercoastal waterway in New Smyrna Beach. The body of Harvey Beltz, 56, was found floating in the river just North of Riverside Park. According to witnesses, Mr. Beltz was fishing at Riverside Manatee Park and was seen driving his boat carelessly. Later, authorities got a call about a boat wedged against a dock. After finding no one aboard, rescuers searched on the water and from the air for Mr. Beltz. Fish and wildlife officers said they found bottles of liquor on board the boat.

Burglar caught red-handed

New Smyrna Beach police said they caught a burglar red-handed as he tried to break into a closed convenience store. A passing police officer noticed something suspicious and stopped to look closer at the BP Express Mart on Sugar Mill Drive. The officer saw 18-year-old Brandon Thomas on the roof removing shingles from the business in an apparent attempt to break in. Police said Mr. Thomas was also using a car that had been reported stolen from neighboring Edgewater.

Black bear chills in cooler

Spend any time surfing the Web and you are bound to find stories that are just too bizarre to be true. Here's a sampling, edited for length. And remember, just because it's online doesn't mean it's true!

From weau.com: Black bear chills in Wisconsin beer cooler.

Shoppers in a Wisconsin grocery store got an unexpected surprise when a 125-pound black bear wandered inside and headed straight for the beer cooler.

The bear stopped at Marketplace Foods in Hayward, about 140 miles northeast of Minneapolis, sauntering through the automatic doors and heading straight for the liquor department. It calmly climbed up 12 feet onto a shelf in the beer cooler where it sat for about an hour while employees helped evacuate customers and summoned wildlife officials.

Officials from the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources tranquilized the animal and took it out of the store. Store workers said the bear did not consume any alcohol.

From sfgate.com: Dad, 83, accused of opening fire on drumming son.

San Antonio Police are investigating the wounding of a man after his elderly father allegedly opened fire when the victim refused to stop drumming.

Police said the son, in his

HOW WEIRD IS THAT!
SEAN MCCARTHY

50s, suffered a non-life threatening head wound while at the home the men share. Police said his 83-year-old father was detained on an aggravated assault charge. Police said the son, who was grazed in the head, ran down the block to call for help.

From ap.org: German artist poses 1,250 Nazi garden gnomes.

A German artist posed 1,250 garden gnomes with their arms outstretched in the stiff-armed Hitler salute in an installation that he calls a protest of lingering fascist tendencies in German society.

Artist Ottmar Hoerl posed the gnomes in the historic central marketplace of Straubing, a town in southeastern Germany. The exhibit, "Dance with the devil," ran through Oct. 19. Displaying Nazi symbols is illegal in Germany but a court ruled earlier this year that Hoerl's gnomes were clearly satire and thus allowed.

From reuters.com: Train snags mooning man.

A German man mooning railway staff in a departing train got his trousers caught in a carriage door and ended up being dragged half naked along the platform, out of the station and onto the tracks.

The 22-year-old student shoved his backside against the window of a low-slung double-decker train when staff forced him off in Lauenbrueck for traveling without a ticket, a spokesman for police in the northern city of Bremen said.

Dangling by his trousers, the man got pulled along for about 200 meters, all the while managing to keep his legs away from the wheels of the train. The ordeal ended when a passenger pulled the emergency brake. Rescue services were called in, causing rail service between Bremen and Hamburg to be suspended for more than an hour, delaying 23 trains.

Map

The roads on the map either have a bike lane or an improved shoulder, Mr. Harris said.

Sidewalks are not shown, even though some people ride on them.

"You can ride on a sidewalk unless there is a local ordinance," he said. "But if you do you have to yield to pedestrians."

The committee encourages municipalities to construct bike trails whenever possible, Mr. Harris said.

Some communities are building sidewalks that are eight-feet wide to accommodate both walkers and cyclists.

Mr. Harris said he thinks that is a good idea, but eight feet is considered a "wide sidewalk" rather than a trail.

"A real bike trail starts at 12-foot wide," he said. "This gives room for both bicyclists and pedestrians. Some are even wider."

The Bicycle/Pedestrian Advisory Committee was also recognized for conducting "helmet fittings" throughout the year.

"We purchase helmets and have them at events like the recent Port Orange Family Days," Mr. Harris said. "If a helmet fits, the person gets to keep it free. We give away about 900 every year."

The group was also recognized for promoting safety with bumper stickers on city buses and school programs.

The committee is funded by grants from the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Mr. Harris said the future of bike riding in Volusia County looks promising because of projects that are in the works.

Sections of the Spring-to-Spring trail, which will go from Gemini Springs to Deleon Springs, have been completed, he said.

A 50-mile bike trail on abandoned railroad tracks is in the planning stages. The East Central Florida Regional Rail Trail will start near Enterprise and end up at Titusville with a connection to Edgewater, he said.

"It will be a big project," Mr. Harris said. "A lot of it will be through scenic rural land and it will connect several cities."

Ms. Hallam, of the Florida Bicycle Association, said she enjoys biking in Volusia County, especially on the west side because of less development.

"It's not all about having bike lanes," she said. "It's about having good smooth roads with low traffic volume. Development isn't progress when it comes to having good places to ride a bike."

The advisory committee, which advises the Metropolitan Planning Organization, meets the second Wednesday of each month at 2570 W. International Speedway Boulevard.

The public is welcome, Mr. Harris said.

"We set aside time on every agenda for public comment," he said.

An electronic version of the map is available on the Web site, volusiacountympo.com.

Promote historic preservation and find as much grant funding as possible.

Mr. Raposa

A. Hire a new Town Manager. I would like to see a Town Manager that is not only technically competent but capable of keeping their role outside of politics. I believe the Council-Manager form of government works best when the Council stays out of management and the manager stays out of politics.

Dennis Raposa

The practice of team building and community relations

Q. Where can budget cuts be made and not effect services?

Mr. Raposa

A. Budget oversight. Once our economy has healed, we must be vigilant and ensure that government does not grow beyond our means.

Mr. Rutledge

A. The current Town Council, working with management and staff, has done an admirable job finding efficiencies in the town's budget for the next fiscal year. The net result is a lower budget with the same quality of service the town's citizens expect. Next year's budget may be a bigger challenge with an anticipated continued reduction in ad valorem revenues available to the town.

Tom Rutledge

In my opinion, the council has reduced the budget as much as possible by engaging in a comprehensive line-by-line review for 2 months. Funding for police and fire equipment was available from reserve funds earmarked for police and fire. Because the Town ordinances provide that the maximum allowable in the reserve funds is nine months and the reserve funds are currently above that maximum, the Town Manager and the Council were able to transfer funds from the reserve to the general fund. This alleviated the tax burden for this year while balancing the funds in reserve. This is a good solution.

Mr. Milano

A. After attending the meetings scheduled for the council by the town manager to explain the 2009/2010 budget I feel further cuts would have adverse effects on our town's safety and security.

Q. What is good /bad with current council?

Mr. Milano

A. I feel the current council, by reducing expenses, is attempting to provide a balanced budget during these difficult economic times. The town needs to get this information out to all property owners. I feel the council must make a more concerted effort through the town manager to provide information to all property owners regarding our town issues. We must go beyond the minimum requirement of posting information on our Web site and the newspaper when 68 % of our property owners are not full time residents.

Mr. Rutledge

A. Good: The Council had the courage to lead the town through a very difficult budget process. This process led to a good result where taxes were kept reasonable and the town should remain attractive to current and future residents and businesses. Their task was so thorough the town's services remain at the high levels our citizens expect. Also, the current Council has been able to rectify two difficult situations they "inherited" from the prior Council. The sewer infrastructure situation and the fully-loaded fee schedule study. The current Council values citizen input and is responsive to their suggestions as indicated by both the sewer infrastructure and fee schedule issues.

Not so good: In my opinion, some Council members attend meetings far more prepared and knowledgeable on the issues than others. On the other hand, it seems certain members are more concerned with election cycle politics. An elected official should work as hard as is necessary prior to the meeting to enable him to make the best possible decisions for the citizens he represents. I feel the introduction of bad legislation for what seems to be the purpose of producing election season sound bites is a waste of the public's time as well as insulting their intelligence.

Mr. Raposa

The Council allows abundant citizen input at meetings. In my opinion, the result has been a civil dialog at the meetings between Council and Citizens — even during issues with significant disagreement.

We are a small town and we live close to each other. It is important for us to listen to each other and to respect each other's opinions. I believe the result is government that is predictable and stable.

Being a leader has its ups and downs. The key to survival is to be open to change. Sometimes when unexpected events happen that shake your game plan, being flexible will, most of the time, bring positive results. Set short-, medium- and long-term goals, as well. This keeps you focused and on the cutting edge.

Taurus-April 20-May 20

You never give up. When things don't work out as planned, you take a step back, regroup and then continue moving forward. Your plans are sound. You know what you want. You are on the right track. Keep studying and learning. With all this, plus good timing and a second wind, you are bound for victory.

Gemini-May 21-June 21

Don't start any new projects until you finish some of the old ones. Keep your eye on the bigger picture. Do what you love. If you don't love some of your activities, either learn to love them or don't do them. Leave the small stuff for later. This is a winning plan and the way master communicators like yourself live.

Cancer-June 22-July 22

Be patient and go with the flow. You continue to grow in wisdom and confidence. It's because of your large heart. You never give up on your dreams and those you love. You are making progress. Take it one day at a time. Today is all we have. Make the most of it. True success all comes down to wise choices.

Leo-July 23-Aug. 22

You are feeling harmonious with yourself and family goals. You seldom make rash judgments or decisions. It's your clear vision and strong inner guidance that directs you. It is stronger than the lower will. Refuse to get sidetracked on unimportant things and you will continue to rise. Success is on the horizon.

Virgo-Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Continue your exciting adventures in life. You are earthy, grounded and conscientious. This is the success formula. Your life is full. You may out-grow present space and need to expand. Just be sure to let the growth come first. No reason to get top heavy at this point. You are young at heart and love new challenges.

Thai Taking Over

By Wayne Grant

wgrant@hometownnewsol.com

ORMOND BEACH - Even after many years of dining out, my wife Heidi and I had never eaten at a Thai restaurant. So when a Thai restaurant opened up close to our home, we were excited to try something new. We're sure glad we did.

Thai Erawan, located in Granada Plaza beside the Walgreens Drug store, has been offering their wide range of Thai selections at reasonable prices for a couple of months. When you enter the restaurant, you leave the busy, noisy world behind for a pleasant and tranquil dining experience. The first thing you see is a beautiful Buddha waterfall. As you walk to your table, you'll notice elephants throughout the attractive décor. In Thai lore, an erawan is a multi-headed elephant that brings good fortune. You'll find a peaceful ambience and friendly staff that make the meal very enjoyable.

The restaurant looks upscale, and someone passing by may think it appears pricey. But it's a wallet-friendly establishment, especially the lunch menu, where prices range from $8.50 to $9.50. The restaurant is owned by Kit and Amm Khongkhukul who moved to the U.S. from Thailand in 2000. Amm often greets customers at the door while Kit supervises the kitchen. The couple has owned a restaurant in Ocala, the Royal Orchid, for several years. When they were ready to open a second restaurant, they checked out several other Central Florida cities, decided on Ormond Beach and are glad they came. "We love it here," said Amm. "It's so close to the beach and we love the weather."

The dinner menu offers many choices for appetizers, soups and salads. Entrée choices are categorized by noodle dishes, fried rice, specialties, seafood and vegetarian dishes. With so much available, my wife and I agreed that we will need to return many times. You can let the server know how spicy you want the food. The choices are mild, medium, hot and Thai hot. Chili sauce and chili flakes are served with entrees so you can season according to taste. Some people think Thai food is very spicy and has strong curry, but that's really a misconception, said Kit. "We cook with herbs and don't use much oil," Kit said. "Thai food is getting more popular because people are trying it and finding they like it." Kit said the contractor who built the restaurant was scared to try Thai food at first, but gave it a try and has been back many times. Beer, wine and sake are available. Having heard of sake all my life, I had to try it. I ordered the sake flight for $5. It consists of three sakes of different flavors: raspberry, pear and gingjo. The verdict: delicious. Sake is a Japanese name, but the rice wine is also made in Thailand.

Appetizers range from spring rolls for $4.50 to Mussel Basils for $9.50. We chose the Thai Erawan sampler (for two) for $12.50, which included egg roll, spring roll, crab Rangoon, fried shrimp and fried wonton with two dipping sauces. My favorite was the fried shrimp. It's a must for shrimp lovers. Also offered are soups including wonton soup for $3.95 and crabmeat soup for $5.50. A wide range of salads are available and I chose the Thai Erawan salad for $7.95, consisting of vegetables, chicken and shrimp served with House peanut dressing. The salad, like the entrée, was garnished with an orchid for a lovely presentation. There are many entrees to choose from. Sweet and Sour Chicken is available for $11.95, Fancy Lobster for $24.95 and there are many choices in between. I chose the Pad Thai, one of the most popular noodle dishes. It's a dish of small rice noodles stir-fried with egg, bean sprouts, scallions and ground peanuts. It was a generous serving and quite delicious. My wife selected the Sweet and Sour Shrimp, a generous serving of shrimp, tomatoes, cucumber, onion, mushrooms, pineapple and bell pepper sautéed in sweet and sour sauce and accompanied by jasmine rice. Heidi said it was very flavorful and she enjoyed it very much. Dessert is available, with offerings such as mango cheesecake or coconut ice cream with fried banana.

Located at 219 E. Granada Blvd., the restaurant is open for lunch from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday and noon to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Dinner begins at 4:30 p.m. each day. Take-out is available.

Halloween dinner ideas and a peanut butter kid pleaser

Hello smart shoppers, I am available as a guest speaker. Please see the end of the column for details.

Let's have a kids' Halloween party and choose a kid pleaser: American Chop Suey or Chili Mac. Top off the meal with homemade candy; how good can it get?

Years ago, my mom tried a casserole in a restaurant in Westchester County, New York that she enjoyed so much she duplicated it at home and it became another family favorite.

Years later when we lived in Connecticut, my daughter Kim's girl scout troop had a pot luck supper. What better dish to bring than chopped meat and elbows? Well, you guessed it. There were eight similar casseroles.

Apparently the dish originated in New England and was called American Chop Suey. Shortly after that I invited a new friend who had just moved from New Jersey over for dinner, and served the same thing. "Oh, you made goulash!" There the only difference is the addition of cheese. Seems like this dish is a national favorite. I will give you the recipe with and without the cheese. Remember, by using fresh with the Grammy Guru ARLENE BORG

ground low-fat meat you will have a "good for you" meal. Have a great Halloween.

AMERICAN CHOP SUEY serves 4 to 6

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1/2 small green pepper, chopped
- 1 tablespoon parsley flakes
- 8-ounce can tomato sauce
- Salt and pepper to taste
- A little less than 1/2-pound elbow macaroni plus 1/2-cup grated cheddar cheese, OR
- One 7-ounce package macaroni and cheese

Brown meat in a large non-stick skillet or pot. If you use virtually "fat-free" fresh ground beef you may have to treat the skillet with cooking spray since there will be no fat. If you used any other ground beef, drain the fat from the pan.

Add onions and green pepper and continue browning. Add tomato sauce, 1 can of water, salt, pepper and parsley. Cover and cook over low heat for about 20 minutes.

Meanwhile cook the macaroni in boiling water only until firm. Drain and add to cooked meat mixture. Cover and cook over low heat until macaroni is tender. Add more water if necessary.

If you're making goulash, add the cheese, mix thoroughly and serve.

NOTE: Be sure to check all brands of packaged macaroni and cheese, especially store brands. Check the fat and cholesterol content, you will be very surprised at the differences.

CHILI-MAC (NIB) serves 4 to 6

Chili powder and cayenne are hot, so a very little goes a long way. I will give you the minimal amount. Add more, to taste, as you wish.

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1/2-cup chopped onion
- 1 large clove garlic, chopped
- 1/2 small green pepper, chopped

- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/4-teaspoon chili powder
- Dash of ground cayenne (optional)
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon parsley flakes
- 8-ounce can tomato sauce
- 1 can water or beef broth
- One 14-1/2 ounce can pinto beans with liquid (optional)
- Salt to taste
- A little less than 1/2-pound elbow macaroni
- 1/2-cup grated cheddar cheese

Brown meat in a large non-stick skillet or pot. If you use virtually fat-free, fresh ground beef, add 2 tablespoons canola oil. If you used any other ground beef, drain the fat from the pan.

Add vegetables and continue browning. Add remaining ingredients except macaroni and cheese. Cover and cook over low heat for about 1 hour.

CHOCOLATE PEANUT BUTTER SQUARES

Imagine having a whole pan of peanut butter cups to feast on. This recipe cannot be made low-fat.

FILLING

- 1 stick butter (1/2-cup)
- 1/2-cup packed brown sugar
- 1 cup peanut butter, smooth or chunky
- 2-1/2 cups confectioner's sugar
- 1/2-teaspoon vanilla

TOPPING

- 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate bits
- 1/4-cup butter (half a stick)

Note: Margarine cannot be substituted in this recipe — it doesn't get hard enough.

For the filling, place butter and brown sugar in a microwave-safe container and microwave until butter is melted. Stir to completely dissolve sugar. Mix well with remaining ingredients. Press into a 9 X 12 pan.

For the topping, place the chocolate bits and the 1/4-cup butter in a microwave container and microwave until melted. Watch carefully; do not overcook.

Mix well and spread on top of peanut butter mixture. Chill.

Set the pan out for 20 minutes before cutting into squares.

Reader mail: more stockpile flack from you-know-who

If you've been following my column, you know that stockpiling groceries is an extremely effective way to beat the pricing game and stock up when items are inexpensive. It's true that this is an entirely different way to approach shopping, but when we learn to shop on a price-based basis versus a needs-based basis, we spend less and save more.

But what do you do when your significant other isn't entirely on board with the idea of having a large stash of groceries on hand at any given time? I've addressed the issue of spousal resistance in a previous column, when a wife asked for help explaining her stockpile strategy to her husband. This week, we hear from a husband.

Q: My wife and a few of her girlfriends really enjoy your column, but I don't appreciate that you don't give the full picture of this stockpiling and foolish spending.

You mention a 12-week cycle, but you should also point out that items that are on sale will be on sale again, and there is no need to stockpile those items beyond 12 weeks.

Just today, my wife was moving groceries around and found items in our closet with an expiration date of March 2005! This is due to stockpiling so much that one can become obsessed with the sale and not think clearly how often (an item) will be used. It's true that paper products and other items that move fast in a home are good to stock up on, but please address readers who don't rotate or use the old before the new and then have to throw things out since they are outdated.

A: I'm often asked how big my stockpile is and what kinds of things I stockpile the most.

It's true that almost every product does enjoy a price drop in a regular, predictable way and a good portion of the items I have in my stockpile are in quantities that our family can use during the next 12 weeks. During that time, we're eating and using those items and they're things we don't have to run back to the store to purchase. When we run low on a particular item, I'm already looking for the next sale on it to replenish the stockpile.

Shoppers definitely need to be conscious of expiration dates on food. It's a good rule of thumb not to buy more than you can eat or use before the expiration dates. But the other side of this issue is that sometimes you'll come across a fantastic sale on an item that's offered at an even lower price than the normal 12-week low. Knowing that you will likely not see that deal again any time soon, this can be a great opportunity to stock up on that item for the long-term.

Just this past week, I bought four bottles of name-brand laundry detergent for 79 cents each during a great sale. I already have five other bottles at home, but that's a low price that I will likely not see again soon, even 12 weeks from now. Detergent doesn't have an expiration date. And, with our family of five, it will certainly get used at some point.

Buying more than we need of this item because the price is incredibly low isn't "foolish spending," but paying $7.99 a bottle when we're out of detergent and we actually do need it would be foolish in my book. As long as I don't mind storing those bottles in the meantime, I've saved $28.80 on this item alone. I think that's smart shopping.

If you feel that your home stockpile is really getting out of control, here's another great way to prune it down to a manageable size.

Once a month, take a look through your items and see if anything will expire within the next month. If you find some and you don't think your household will use them in the next 30 days, consider donating them to a local food bank or food pantry. Your donations are usually tax-deductible and you'll also help people within your community, too.

I bring groceries to our local food pantry regularly, and I've seen first-hand how hard it has been hit in the current economy. Sharing your excess stockpile items is definitely a win-win.

Scopes

Libra-Sept. 23-Oct. 22
You have grown so much this year. Your understanding about the deeper mysteries of life is soaring. Everyone thinks you make it look so easy. If they only knew all the soul searching that came first. Maybe it's time for a little R&R. You have earned it. You have found true victory over life. No one is more deserving.

Scorpio-Oct. 23-Nov. 21
It's your turn at the wheel of the zodiac for the next four weeks. This is a time of harvest. You have done a lot to make the present productive. It is time to bring new visions up from spirit and make plans for next year. This is the way to keep the heart open and motivated. You are an action person with so much gratitude.

Sagittarius-Nov. 22-Dec. 21
You have so many blessings. You were born with a strong mind, a wonderful heart and a great spirit. When the universe was created you were one of the role models. You are a loyal friend and companion. You always have a kind word for others with a need. You don't ask for much back. Your guardian angels love you.

Capricorn-Dec. 22-Jan. 19
Expect positive outcomes. Stay out of your own way and good things will always happen. Feel the joy. Look at the brighter side. You have an eager interest in life. You are important to your friends. You lead by example. You smile and love a lot. Prepare for much change ahead. You have made it happen. Enjoy.

Aquarius-Jan. 20-Feb. 18
Sometimes, the universe has a better plan in mind for us than our own. This why it is important to be flexible and have a backup if plan A doesn't work out. You might call this "growing pains." You are optimistic. Keep communicating. Listen as well as speak. Steady progress again is on the way.

Pisces-Feb. 19-March 20
Your natural passion for life is contagious to everyone. You are the spark that lights our fire many times. You are so highly evolved. You think with your heart and instincts, not your head. No one could have a better friend. Being so deeply in touch with these great values inspires us all to do better. Thanks for being there.

Have a starry week, everyone.

Skills challenge to be held in October

The ADT Golf Skills Challenge is all set for Oct. 26, at the Breakers in Palm Beach.

The 2009 edition is introducing another innovative format, adding a "Reverse Scramble" competition to the traditional situational shotmaking as eight PGA Tour pros compete for $800,000 in prize money.

Four teams, Kenny Perry/J.B. Holmes, Brandt Snedeker/Boo Weekley, Nick Price/Fred Funk and Hunter Mahan/Nick Watney, will square off for the 18th renewal of the PGA Tour's Challenge Season event. The ADT Skills Challenge is one of the longest-running post-Fed Ex Cup competitions. It will be telecast on NBC Saturday, Dec. 26 and Sunday, Dec. 27, as the only golf on network TV that final weekend of the year.

Perry and Holmes form a native Kentucky team with both hailing from the Bluegrass State. Price and Funk are the veterans entry, boasting 46 years of combined PGA Tour experience. Snedeker, Mahan and Watney join Holmes as top-flight players, still in their 20s, who are now challenging the biggest names in golf for stature and prize money. Those four, Weekley and Perry, will be playing in the ADT Skills Challenge for the first time.

The six mainstay skills, Long Drive, Mid-Iron, Bunker Shot, Chip Shot, Trouble Shot and Short Iron, will be followed by the "Reverse Scramble," representing the seventh and eighth skills. In the "Reverse Scramble," the four teams will be seeded according to prize money won in the first six skills. With 1 vs. 4 and 2 vs. 3, the teams will play the 14th hole at The Breakers' Ocean Course. The two surviving teams will then compete in another one-hole "Reverse Scramble" for the weighted sum of $200,000 in prize money, enabling most pairs to remain in contention to the end.

Contrary to the traditional scramble format, the rules of the "Reverse Scramble" call for the opposing team to select which shot its rival twosome must play, adding a new dimension to the competition. The format is especially conducive to the ADT Skills Challenge TV production approach, which showcases the personalities of the players, all of whom are equipped with microphones throughout.

"The ADT Skills Challenge has the flexibility to bring an innovative format like the 'Reverse Scramble' to the competition," said Jon Miller, executive vice president of NBC Sports said in a press release. "It adds an element of strategy to the pure shotmaking talents of these pros. The home TV audience will be in on all of the entertaining chatter among the players." "ADT has been the title sponsor of the ADT Golf Skills Challenge for the past eight years and we greatly value the relationship we've developed with NBC Sports over this time," said John Koch, president of ADT Security Services, North America. "We are excited to bring this first-class event back to Palm Beach County, where ADT's North American corporate headquarters is located."

The first six skills will also take place on the 14th hole at

A net is an important tool for any fisherman

Now is a great time to shake out your old cast net for the sporadic shrimp run that has been around for over a month and refuses to come to a complete halt.

FISHING WITH DAN
DAN SMITH

It hasn't been dependable, but if you hit it lucky a tasty shrimp boil could be your reward. As the Cajuns say: "You could pass some of dem old boys on dere too, yeah."

Take your net to the surf and watch for big, fat silver mullet in the waves. If you know when to throw, you might get a cooler full with one cast. Fried mullet for the block would make you a neighborhood hero.

Go to Ponce Inlet and wade out from the dog park and cast net flounder on the smooth sandy bottom. Heck, if you can throw a cast net, you will never go hungry. Aside from a hook, it can be your most important fishing tool.

If you don't know how, do yourself a favor and learn to throw one. Begin with a small net of say a four-foot radius. One that small is light and easy to manage. Once you get proficient with it you will have a constant supply of bait, at the very least.

If you ever had to survive in a hostile environment, a cast net could be your lifeline. A few years ago, I was watching the wildly popular CBS-TV program "Survivor." You know the concept. They drop a group of people in some remote spot to see how they cope. The episode I was watching was filmed on an island in the South Pacific. The people on the show were mostly starving and had been reduced to eating insects and even rats. One group won hooks, line and an eight-foot cast net in a contest, but no one knew what to do with any of them.

There they were camped on a beautiful lagoon full of fish and had the equipment to catch all they needed and yet were still eating lizards. It was hard to watch.

Finally, four of them each took a corner of the net and walked it out into the water and dropped it straight down around their feet. They succeeded in catching a few minnows for bait, but if one of them had known how to use the net he could have easily supplied the group with food and no one would have dared to vote him off.

Now, I'm pretty sure you won't need that skill to survive, but you will get a lot of satisfaction from using a net.

Several years ago, I met a fellow of Cuban descent who was throwing a large net up near where the old Ormond Pier once stood. He told me that each year during flounder season he would make the drive from Orlando and catch from six to 10 flounder with his net. He also said that the local hook and line guys were giving him a hard time about it. Here is a guy who is feeding his family in a means that is perfectly legal and having a lot of fun doing it.

I told him to ignore the rod and reel boys. I don't have any quarrel with that. There are lots of ways to fish and a cast net is one of the better ones. If you feel that you are too old for a net, buy one anyway. I would wager there is a kid right in your neighborhood that would love to throw it for you.

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for 40 years. When he's not fishing, the retired contractor is heavily involved with the Ormond Beach Historical Trust. For questions or comments send an e-mail to apes123@mybluelight.com
