Schools seek more funding

By Patrick McCallister

VOLUSIA SCHOOLS — Voters will decide on Nov. 6 whether Volusia students get a few more dollars. At its June 26 meeting, the Volusia County School Board approved a ballot referendum that could annually add about $25 million to $26 million to the district's operating budget for the next four years.

"Nobody likes to do the taxing, but we have no choice," Dr. Al Williams, school board chair, said in a telephone interview after the meeting.

Mr. Williams said that he expects Volusia County voters will support the proposed temporary property surtax, $1 per $1,000 of taxable property value. Dr. Robert Moll, deputy superintendent for finance and business, told the school board that the average Volusia property taxpayer would see about an $80 increase if voters approve the referendum.

Although state funding to the district will increase slightly for the 2012-2013 year, the Volusia County Schools is facing a projected $19 million budget gap. The district has been considering cutting about 225 to 250 instructional positions to reduce the projected deficit by about $10 million.

Since 2007, the district has lost funding from numerous sources. The housing crash siphoned off students — from about 64,000 to about 61,630 — which reduced the amount the district receives from the state. Volusia also loses state funding to other districts with higher average median prices and wages through the District Cost Differential. Volusia is approaching a $100 million loss from its Base Student Allocation since 2004 due to that state funding formula.

The Base Student Allocation is what the state gives districts according to their student counts. This fiscal year, that allocation was $3,479 a student. However, the District Cost Differential formula increases or decreases VOLUSIA COUNTY — Among those vying for the County Council District 3 seat, southeast Volusia, is Deborah "Deb" Denys. She's represented the area before — on the Volusia County School Board, 1994 to 1998.

"I've been involved in our community for years," she said. "I've served on multiple boards. I know our community inside and out. I understand accountability and finance."

Ms. Denys has also served as the chair of the Early Learning Coalition of Volusia & Flagler. She was appointed to that board by Governor Jeb Bush, and later by Governor Charlie Crist. My Denys was also the vice chair of the Volusia County Children and Families Advisory Board, and a member on others. The 58-year-old used to sell insurance and financial products locally.

She said that Volusia County is uniquely positioned to take advantage of growing opportunities in aviation and aeronautics, and it's time to separate those industries from

Ted Doran

VOLUSIA COUNTY — Ted Doran is a familiar name to many Volusians, and one of three candidates bidding for the County Chair. Mr. Doran said that a few unduly bend the Volusia County Council's ear, and it needs to open up to hearing more opinions.

"I think there has been an established hierarchy of influence that has diminished the voice of those who are not a part of (that hierarchy)," he said. "I will change that."

He added, "I realized the county was reflecting the influential members of the East side, and their agenda was, and is, one of stagnation.

They don't want any change. They have us in a state of paralysis. I kept coming up against it, coming up against it."

While Mr. Doran hasn't held elected offices, he's served in several appointed ones. For example, he was the inaugural chair of Team Volusia, one of the county's economic-development efforts. Mr. Doran was also the chair of the Halifax Area Advertising

Justin Kennedy

VOLUSIA COUNTY — Justin Kennedy was elected to the Edgewater City Council in 2010, and he wants to represent Southeast Volusia on the County Council.

"I like the Edgewater council," he said. "I enjoy being on it. (Running for the County Council) seems like the right thing to do. The city is in as good a shape as the city can be in with our current economic climate. There are some good candidates willing to run to serve in my place."

Mr. Kennedy was born in Orlando, but moved to Edgewater when in the first grade. He graduated from New Smyrna Beach High in 1988, and went to Daytona Beach Community College, then Radford University, Virginia, where he studied accounting.

Mr. Kennedy said Volusia needs to better use its most valuable physical asset — the beach.

"I think we're missing beach revenue," he said. "We're still charging $5 a person to get on the beach. I'd keep (Volusia) residents at $5 (for beach-parking passes). What we're missing is people who

Trail named after County Council member Pat Northey

By Patrick McCallister
For Hometown News

HOLLY HILL — The Pat Northey Holly Hill Greenway Trail. The name came as a pleasant surprise for the Deltona-area Volusia County Council member.

"It's kind of exciting," she said. "I've never had anything named after me."

At its June 26 meeting, the Holly Hill City Commission unanimously voted to name the recently-completed multi-use trail running the length of the city limits along Riverside Drive after the District 5 council member. Although two members of the public urged the city commission to consider naming the trail after Holly Hill residents, Mayor Roy Johnson said that would have missed the point.

"(The naming) was mainly because she spearheaded the trails," he said. "She did so much for them. She's been the caretaker for them, and got the funding for them."

Jim McCroskey, city manager, said the sidewalk trail was started about three years ago. He suggested the name to the city commission.

"I've been dealing with Pat (Northey) for 20 years," he said. "I know how dedicated she is to trails."

Mr. McCroskey said the trail cost about $300,000, and was done with city funds.

Ms. Northey said Holly Hill's trail is part of a growing network of state, county, and city trails that'll be connected and form part of a 250-mile, five-county trail system that'll connect the St. Johns River and Atlantic Ocean for hikers and bikers.

"We have about 76 miles (of connected trails) on ground now," she said. "That includes those segments that are funded and will be coming out of the ground this year."

Ms. Northey has 17 years on the Volusia County Council. During much of that time she's strongly advocated for trail systems and eco-tourism. Ms. Northey said even a few years ago, she felt like a voice in the lonely wilderness calling for more multi-use trails. She said in the last few years many seem to have taken a sudden interest in eco-tourism and trails.

"It's nice that they're recognizing my work on trails," she said.

The harsh reality of bad television

If you and I are of a like mind, you may be fed up with the so-called reality programming that permeates television these days.

With most of us receiving more than 100 channels, we can see at least 50 of these fake TV shows at any hour. The remainder are infomercials, old sitcom reruns and a sprinkling of 24-hour news programs — so much for the joys of cable or satellite television.

I will admit that I do tune in to a few reality shows, but I do try to avoid those that obviously feed lines to non-actors.

Surely, the producers must know that amateur actors can't come close to believability when reading from a script. At the very least most of the reality programs are story-boarded. That is to say they are given an outline from which to draw their "spontaneous" moments.

Some of the worst seem to be those awful tow truck series. The "stars" of those shows probably couldn't read a bedtime story to a child, much less act out a script. By the way, just how many tow truck shows do we need?

Hollywood has always taken the easy way out and as soon as one of these reality things draws a bit of an audience, a half dozen more just like it pops up. How many "Real Housewives of—" programs are there now? Can the "Real Housewives of Bunnell" be far off?

LAND LINES

DAN SMITH

Pawnshop shows are all the rage right now, but TV's version of pawn is more like Antiques Roadshow. They are always dealing for something valuable. If it was a true reality show, it would feature people so down on their luck that they are willing to hock their last item of value so they might eat.

Of course, that wouldn't draw ratings and make no mistake that is what this is all about — ratings and profit.

Most reality programs cost very little to make, with no real actors to pay. Some of the stars of these shows look as though they would work for a gift certificate to Subway. There is also no need for talented directors.

How did we come to this? you may ask. I can't say, but I remember a day back in the '80s when my wife Lana and I were watching the news in Chicago. Bill Kurtis was the anchor and he was doing an editorial on something he called "reality TV." Neither of us had ever heard the term. He said that by the year 2000, 80 percent of programming would be reality-based. Lana and I got a good laugh from that prediction. Later when I looked back at that moment I realized that right then Cops, The People's Court and America's Most Wanted were some of our favorites.

We never knew that Judge Wapner was the reality that Kurtis was speaking of. Actually, I would wager that when Bill Kurtis did that piece, he had no idea that his own career would take him in that direction. These days he can be found narrating several of the countless crime shows that populate the airwaves.

The real question is, when will it all end? The short answer is that it won't. The TV networks are mostly devoid of the original ideas that come from good writing and directing. Quality people are not going to sign on to direct and storyboard for a show about people who make fish tanks or a bunch of obnoxious young people who are forced to live together.

Unless we stage a revolt, we will be forever stuck with cameras following around the wives of Hip-Hop stars, athletes, mobsters, the Kardashians, Gene Simmons or Paris Hilton. No doubt the profit margin for those gems is through the roof, so we are bound to get more of the same. As I am writing this, I am hearing that Jessica Simpson will soon be back. Maybe she will reprise her bit about chicken or tuna. So far that's about as good as reality TV has had to offer.

Not 'Finding the gay community'

Your recent article headlined "Finding the Gay Community" unfortunately lacks a truly in-depth picture of the complete local LGBT picture. Beyond only the lesbian point of view, there are other aspects of the male gay community in our area that warrant equal recognition.

For example, the Greater Daytona Beach Business Guild, founded in 1993, promotes businesses, tourism, and non-profit organizations supportive of LGBT lifestyle and causes. In the past, the 100 plus membership Guild established in Daytona the Beachfest, Gay Spring Break, Gay Film Fest, the annual Christmas party, and ongoing monthly dinners. From that has grown sponsorship of the HIV/AIDS Coalition of Volusia/Flagler Counties, OneDaytona Scholarship Funds, Gay Pride Picnic, world-wide/national/state/city advertising on behalf of Central Florida as a gay friendly site for vacationers as well as residents and businesses.

Business name has meaning

I was very disturbed about Cecil Brumley's comment about Mel's Diner in Port Orange not having a Mel, Flo or Alice. He should get his facts straight. The diner is named for the owners' daughter Melissa. That was a bit negative. The diner has been done in a lovely setting and it doing very well.

Brochures are misleading

I don't know what offends me more, the fact that a political committee is handing out brochures that deliberately mislead the public about the electric system referendum in South Daytona, or the fact that the city itself is distributing these brochures on the committee's behalf.

Recently two "off duty" firefighters visited my house to hand me the brochure and tell me why I should oppose the referendum. I was told my support for the referendum could trigger a huge fee payable by the citizens. The problem is that this claim has already been shown as false. There can and will be no fee triggered by the referendum, because there is no contract calling for such a fee, there will be no contract prior to the vote, and if we vote Yes on 1, there may never even be the need for a contract. It's these kinds of misleading tactics that lead me and others to support the Take Back Our Power effort. If we can't trust our city to be honest with us, how can we trust them with such a huge and expensive decision? I urge you to vote Yes on 1. Give citizens the opportunity to decide for themselves who should provide electricity in South Daytona.

Response from Jeanne Willard, city of South Daytona public information official:

The City is not distributing brochures on behalf of any political action committee. City employees enjoy the same First Amendment and freedom of speech rights of any American citizen, including the person who wrote this rant. Election laws do not prevent an employee of a local government from expressing an opinion on any issue at any time. The Firefighters Union endorsed the acquisition of the electrical utility and is taking the initiative to educate residents. While on duty, employees may educate residents on the merits of an issue, such as the benefits of a citizen-owned electrical distribution system. While off-duty, employees are free to distribute political information, join political groups and advocate for an issue without fear of reprisal or harassment.

FPL's proposed Separation and Transfer agreement clearly requires the City to pay a breakup fee of $11.5 million in liquidated damages if the City does not acquire FPL's assets and that language is tied to the Referendum. The wording is as follows: "If Buyer has breached its obligation to pay the Transfer Price or any of its other obligations under this Agreement or if the Referendum results in a Rejection and as a result Seller terminates this Agreement . . . then Buyer shall pay Seller, by wire transfer of immediately available funds within five (5) business days following the date of termination, as liquidated damages, an amount equal to $11,540,000 (the Breakup fee)." FPL has filed one document with the City and now wants its customers to believe something else. If FPL does not intend to impose a breakup fee why is it included in their proposed agreement? The City has not attempted to negotiate the wording of this fee, because it considers any breakup fee as inappropriate. FPL should retract or modify this request instead of trying to convince citizens that they will not do something they have demanded be included in the agreement.

For a full copy of the Separation and Transfer agreement go to the City website at www.southdaytona.org and click on the Electric Negotiations light bulb icon on the home page. Then select Separation and Transfer Agreement from the Frequently Requested Documents box. Go to section 8.3 on page 22.

Who is in charge of lighting?

Just wanted everyone to know that the new boardwalk and restrooms on Flagler Avenue in New Smyrna Beach look really great from my seventh floor view.

My question is who pays for the lights being left on all night long in the restrooms, and wonder why they did not use sensor lights?

Also, they removed a streetlight in front of the beach patrol station next to the restrooms. Women and children walk this every night, and they just disappear into the darkness. The Wild Dolphin Motel just added some lights, which helps a little bit.

City needs sweeping

Guess we no longer have the street sweepers in South Daytona, and it is beginning to show, as the residents or some of them are not cleaning the area (gutter) in front of their homes. Some of the grass and the weeds are in need of attention as it is a real eye-sore.

Another thing is those who have moved their furniture (chairs/tables etc.) out in front of their garage or on the side of their home. What's up with that?

South Daytona is a very good city and it does not take much to keep your area clean. If help is needed, call the city as they have avenues to help those who really need it, or I have been told.

C'mon South Daytona, get with the program and clean up your area in front of your home

Response from Jeanne Willard, city of South Daytona public information official:

While our code enforcement officers do regular checks throughout the city, they cannot catch everything and we encourage residents to report code violations through a number of easy methods. On the city website at www.southdaytona.org, citizens can select the Mayor's Action Center icon on the home page to submit an anonymous complaint that includes a method to track the status of the complaint. Residents may also call the Community Development Department directly at (386) 322-3030 or send an email to cadd@southdaytona.org or drop by the department in person or send a letter at City Hall, PO Box 214960, South Daytona, FL 32121. Whatever method is chosen, residents can always request that their complaint be kept anonymous. The Public Works Department does street sweeping on an "as-needed" basis and before and after storms. It takes all of us to help keep South Daytona a beautiful, clean and safe City and we appreciate our residents support in being good caretakers of their property.

Ads let us know about services offered

We read the rant by one of your readers in the July 6 edition who was complaining about the number of advertisements in your paper.

We completely disagree with his comments. We believe these ads are the best way to alert us to local providers of goods and services. Ads not only support the paper, but also help the local economy by encouraging us to purchase within our community.

Also, a healthy ad revenue means your paper will have a better chance of surviving in this age of electronic media. The paper has improved so much in the past year and we look forward to reading each issue.

Thank you for providing our small community with quality journalism.

How can a church endorse gay rights?

Just wondering, how a church can endorse gay rights. In doing so, they may as well stomp on the 10 Commandments because by endorsing one sin, you are endorsing them all.

PORT ORANGE

The good, the bad and the ugly

Volusia County's employment report for June looked like a "spaghetti western" – good, bad and ugly.

The good is the number of Volusia workers employed is up by about 2,700 from June 2011. The bad is there are still about 23,000 county workers unemployed. The ugly is the non-agricultural jobs report that shows the number of jobs in Volusia is down 1,300 from last year.

Obviously, most of the jobs Volusia workers are finding are outside the county. Fortunately the big metro areas of Jacksonville and Orlando are adding jobs. Orlando, which includes Lake, Orange, Osceola and Seminole counties, was up 9,800 jobs in June from a year ago. Jacksonville, which includes Baker, Clay, Duval, Nassau and St. Johns counties, was up 3,200 jobs.

There is some hope for Volusia with manufacturing jobs up 100 from last year. Construction jobs were still down 400 jobs, but with home building continuing to pick up that is bound to change. Retail, which was down 700 jobs from last year, probably will remain down until some big stores open. So far, the only one in sight is the BJ's Wholesale in Port Orange, though. The professional and business services sector, which was down 900 jobs, will continue to be a problem area until there is significant improvement in the economy.

VOLUSIA BUSINESS

Another bank is joining Chase Bank and PNC Bank in expanding in Volusia County. Chase recently opened its Port Orange branch at 3825 S. Nova Road and earlier this year opened in Ormond Beach. It also has plans to open an office in New Smyrna Beach. It already had offices in DeLand and Orange City. PNC Bank recently opened a new office at 1661 Taylor Road in Port Orange. It also picked up some new offices in acquiring RBC Bank.

Now Tavares-based Reunion Bank is getting in on the action, expanding its Port Orange office by 2,000 square feet. While Reunion Bank, or builder Sun Glow Construction, would not respond to requests for comment, it's a good guess that Reunion is planning a big new office at 785 W. Granada Blvd. in Ormond Beach. In its summer newsletter, Reunion said it would be adding an Ormond Beach office. Sun Glow, which is doing the Port Orange work for Reunion, has submitted plans to the city of Ormond Beach for a two-story bank building.

Daytona Beach-based Brown & Brown Inc. reported another successful quarter, generating revenue of $290.9 million, up 17.9 percent from $246.8 million in the second quarter of 2011. The insurance brokerage network's net income was at $42.5 million, up 11.5 percent from $37.04 million last year. Yet, it didn't meet analysts' expectations. The company earned 29 cents per share of its stock, but the consensus of analysts who follow the company expected 31 cents per share. The company is on track to stay above $1 billion in revenue this year, but is a long way from its new goal of $2 billion in revenue.

The other public company based in Volusia – Consolidated-Tomoka Land Co. – also reported a successful quarter financially. The Daytona Beach company's revenue for the second quarter was $4.8 million, up 30 percent from $3.7 million in the second quarter of 2011. Net income was at $599,600, up from $318,800 last year.

After two or three months of little or no gains, Daytona Beach International Airport saw a 12 percent increase in passenger traffic in June at 49,860, compared to 44,687 in June 2011.

Builders are starting to go a little farther out on a limb, building more speculative housing. Henin Homes of Maitland is building a spec house at Rivera Bella in DeBary with 1,928 square feet of living space and priced at $218,900. Also there, the company is building a model home called the Turino that has 3,369 square feet of living space and is priced from $329,900. At Halifax Plantation in Ormond Beach, Vanacore Construction is starting to build a spec house at 3242 Tralee Drive.

On the restaurant beat, Tommy Johns Grill has opened at 1064 Ocean Shore Blvd. in Ormond-by-the-Sea. Now I know what you're thinking, but no, it's not named after the baseball player. The owner is John Georgopoulos and his father's name is Tommy and his son's name is Tommy. It's largely a Chicago-style restaurant with lots of hot dogs, sausage and beef, but also serves plenty of other items. On the other end of the dining spectrum, here's one I missed. Blau, a Mediterranean grill, has opened at 175 S. Nova Road in Ormond Beach. It serves a unique menu of fine cuisine. Blau is located in the space that was used for a Tijuana Flats, probably one of the few failures of the Orlando-based chain.

Quiet July so far, but so was the season of Andrew

Hi everybody. We are about two months into the Atlantic hurricane season.

The season had a very early start with four named storms before the end of June. Since then, the action has quieted down with no opportunities for a named storm on the immediate horizon.

At present, the conditions in the Atlantic and Caribbean are just not prime for tropical development.

It is important to note that July is normally not a very active month, with the conditions in the Atlantic really starting to come together around mid-August. This will usually happen when the waters start to heat up and the wind shear is at its lowest. Remember to keep this in mind, as the season progresses.

HURRICANE SEASON UPDATE

In 1992, the entire beginning of the season had no named storms. It looked as though it was going to be a quiet season, since nothing was forming in the Atlantic basin. But on Aug. 14, a tropical wave emerged off the coast of Africa. With a large pressure ridge in place, the wave quickly moved west toward the hurricane breeding grounds. On Aug. 18, the system began to create a rotation, and the beginning stages of a tropical system were emerging. As the system moved toward the north-west, it ran into an area of extreme wind shear that all but entirely tore the system apart. Hurricane hunters could no longer find a definitive center.

As the low moved toward the west, a high-pressure ridge built across the Southeastern United States at the same time that the wind shear relaxed over the Atlantic. The system began to spin, and on Aug. 22, Hurricane Andrew began his march toward the East Coast. The initial forecast called for a landfall near Jupiter, with winds of 100 mph. Little did we know, at the time, how far off this forecast was going to be.

As Andrew moved west, it started to become apparent that the ridge was much stronger than originally thought. The system was not going to re-curve at all, but maintain a westerly course instead.

On Aug. 23, Andrew became a Category 5 hurricane, with winds of 155 mph.

As Andrew made landfall near Homestead, the eye wall was smaller and convection had increased. Andrew hit with a vengeance, as the small eye devastated anything in its path. Winds were reported to gust as high as 200 mph.

This storm not only changed the landscape of South Florida, but it also changed the way insurance companies do business. Many insurers folded under the heavy load that Andrew caused. It was as if an atomic bomb went off.

As the above example shows, a slow July does not mean we should write the season off. Storms can form suddenly and are often unpredictable. Take advantage of this slow period to get your hurricane supplies and to make a plan in case another Andrew ever heads our way.

For the greater part of July, our weather pattern has been fairly dry, due in part to a high-pressure ridge that has built over the region. This has helped to suppress the precipitation and thunderstorms.

Some storms have been allowed to form, primarily where the sea breeze boundary forms during the afternoon hours. This is usually prevalent around the I-95 corridor, about 10 miles inland.

This could change as we get into the latter part of July and early August. We are approaching the heart of the rainy season and the peak season for African tropical waves. Be sure to keep your eye to the tropics!

broader economic-development efforts, such as Team Volusia.

"We might need to start talking about an airport authority," she said.

Ms. Denys said the combination of the Daytona Beach International Airport, Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University, Daytona State College's Advance Technology College, and several municipal airports, make Volusia an ideal location to tap the efforts of Space Florida to attract and keep high-tech aviation and aeronautical businesses along and near the Space Coast.

"We're right in the Space Florida corridor," she said. "We can do everything from design it to build it and export it."

She said a meeting with Danny Gaekwad, CEO of Space Florida, convinced her that Volusia needs to pursue aviation and aeronautical businesses.

"He looked me right in the eye and said, 'Deb, Volusia County is in the right place at the right time.'"

"The aviation industry will bring high-tech, high-paying jobs to our area," Ms. Denys said. "We have the runways to handle 747s, and we're an international free trade zone. We don't have to reinvent the wheel—it's already there."

Ms. Denys and her spouse, George, moved to the area from Indiana in 1988 for its growing business opportunities. The couple have four adult children — one in the area, the others away.

While the race is non-partisan, Ms. Denys is a lifelong Republican.

Authority. Florida's Chief Financial Officer appointed Mr. Doran to the Health Maintenance Organization Consumer Assistance Board.

Mr. Doran is an attorney practicing in Daytona Beach, a partner in Doran, Sims, Wolfe & Kundid. He's represented the Volusia County School Board since 2002. Additionally, Mr. Doran was Ponce Inlet's town attorney for more than six years. He's been a member of the Florida bar since 1982.

Born in Michigan, Mr. Doran moved to Central Florida as a child. He got his law degree from the University of Florida. He first moved to Volusia County in 1978, and was an officer on the Daytona Beach Police Department.

Mr. Doran said if elected, he'd set the county on the path of reduction.

"I'd reduce county control over non-core functions, such as the Ocean Center," he said. "(The county has) sprawled into controlling a number of government services that are not core government functions. I'd reduce county government."

The Ocean Center — 101

N. Atlantic Ave., Daytona Beach — is a 205,000-square foot convention center the county opened in 1985.

"No one else in the country, that I know of, is doing what we're doing: having the county run (the area's main convention center), and not doing a very good job of it," Mr. Doran said. The 56-year-old is single and has two adult sons living in the area.

Kennedy

come from Orlando for the day. They get their supplies in Orlando, or Seminole County, and come enjoy our beach for $5."

The 41-year-old said he'd like to increase the beach-parking fee for non-residents to $15 or $20 and borrow an idea from his children's schools: coupon books. Mr. Kennedy said the county could raise revenue by turning beach-parking passes into coupon books. Local businesses could advertise with coupons in the book and generate additional business for the area.

"We're watching dollars drive west every afternoon," he said.

Mr. Kennedy is a landscape contractor. His wife, Susan, and he have five minor children. While the county council races are non-partisan, Mr. Kennedy is a converted Democrat. He advocates reducing property taxes related to the general fund, and offset those reductions with increases or additional fees for services.

"The county brings in revenue other than tax revenue," he said. "We've got to narrow that down and look at it from a business mentality."

Additionally, he said he'd like to transfer running the county's Ocean Center, Daytona Beach, to a private company.

In addition to serving on the Edgewater City Council, Mr. Kennedy served on the city's planning and zoning board.

Wright

Master of Business Administration from Stetson University.

She is a business administration instructor and academic assessment coordinator at Bethune-Cookman University College of Business.

"Because of my position at BC, I am well connected with issues facing education. I work primarily with freshmen and I see first-hand many of the deficits students bring with them to college."

Paramount among those deficits, she said, is lack of critical thinking skills. She faults excessive standardized, or "high-stakes", testing. The New York Times Company's website, about.com, defines high-stakes testing as "a single assessment that is given with the knowledge that important decisions or consequences are riding on the result."

Important decisions like funding, and Ms. Wright said she feels strongly about this type of testing's impact on Volusia County schools.

She said freedom in teaching and in learning, as it pertains to creativity and critical thinking skills, has disappeared from today's classrooms due to the use of testing as a "punitive measure" which promotes "regimented thinking" for students and teachers.

"Standardized testing should tell you where you have deficits in curriculum. I am not in favor of testing unless the information from its assessment is used properly," she said. "The purpose of assessment is to determine how to allocate funds and human resources. It should not be used in a punitive manner toward children, teachers and schools; that is your budget driving your curriculum when the curriculum should drive the budget."

In the final analysis, Ms. Wright said, any standardized test should be used as a diagnostic tool to gauge where there is room for improvement.

Ms. Wright said she has found that even high school students who are "college-ready per our current standards" such as those in Advanced Placement and International Baccalaureate programs, do not have critical thinking skills necessary to move to the next level and beyond.

"We make sure they learn what they need to learn for the exam and then they dump the information," she said. "They have not been taught the skill of transferred learning. They need to have education as well as practical experience."

Ms. Wright said she'd like to see partnerships with community businesses for students who are not college-bound.

"I would ask them, 'What are some of the basic skills you see students lacking?' Then we may be able to implement apprenticeships so when they do leave high school they are ready, trained with an understanding of a particular industry and can make a decent living," she said.

As the parent of two sons, one who graduated high school in 2005 and one who is set to graduate in 2017, Ms. Wright said she's been involved as both parent—active in the Parent-Teacher-Student Association and Student Advisory Council—and educator long enough to understand the problems she sees are not just local. She said action must be taken at the local level first with the ultimate goal in mind: change at state and federal levels.

And the only way to bring about that change, she said, is to vote.

"You need a school board member who is well-rounded and versed, not just in policy," Ms. Wright said. "What type of citizens are we going to have in 10 or 15 years? If we don't fix education, it will impact our quality of life, and that concerns me."

Schools

what districts actually get from the student allocation depending on cost-of-living and average wages. In Volusia, $3,479 a student turned into about $3,356, because the county has comparatively low wages.

Additionally, the housing crash reduced Volusia's taxable value from more than $43 billion to an estimated $26.4 billion.

"We've dug a hole here over the last five years in Volusia County," Mr. Moll said in a previous interview. "We've lost $93 million in (state) funding since 2007."

The district has also lost about $86 million in federal funds since 2009, Mr. Moll said.

"We're treading water," Mr. Moll said to the school board. "If we stay where we are, we're treading water and are at risk for drowning."

If voters approve the referendum, the additional monies must go to the district's operating budget.

The speaker will be Hyatt Brown. He is a former Florida state representative. He came to South Daytona as a child and will speak on "Growing Up in South Daytona."

The meeting is open to the public. The historical society is seeking any and all photos, artifacts and information on South Daytona, formerly called Blake, as well as interested volunteers to help collect, organize and preserve the community's history.

For more information, call (386) 761-0463.

Give a haircut to a child in need

Children receiving a back-to-school haircut at Hair Cuttery salons in the Daytona metro area during the first two weeks of August will be giving one back to a disadvantaged child in the community.

Hair Cuttery will launch its 13th annual Share A Haircut event this year, donating one free haircut to a child in need in the community for every haircut purchased for a child 18 or younger from Aug. 1 to 15.

Through partnerships with state and local government and nonprofit social service organizations, vouchers are distributed to local children in need to obtain a free haircut in August.

Purple fabric needed

The Domestic Abuse Council of Volusia County is seeking donations of purple fabric and purple ribbon for National Domestic Violence Awareness month and National Bullying Prevention month.

Student volunteers from both DeLand High School's BETA club and University High School's Drama Club are trying to gather fabric to make ribbons.

The purpose of the ribbon is for businesses to display them in their storefront windows or on their doors to help raise awareness for these movements to create a more peaceful community.

If you want to make the ribbons or donate fabric, please drop off donations to the Domestic Abuse Council Thrift Shop's new location at 949A Beville Road, South Daytona.

To help in distributing the ribbons to businesses, call (386) 257-2297.

National Night Out Against Crime night slated

Villanella

day of the election, which claimed there was no association between Joseph Villanella and Xerox Corporation.

"It was dirty politics," he said, adding he posted his retirement certificate on his campaign website to deflect the criticism.

Currently, Mr. Villanella serves chairman of the town's code enforcement board and president of the Sea Gull Landing Homeowners Association.

One of Mr. Villanella's main reasons for running last year was the Pacetta litigation and how it would impact the taxpayers, an issue still relevant to the community today. He believes meaningful compromise, in which both parties arrive at logical and realistic decisions that are not emotionally driven, is the best way to resolve the litigation.

"Some folks said, 'Just settle it,' without knowing what settle means," he said. "When you ask the secondary question, 'How much are you willing to spend in taxes?' they (citizens) say, 'None.' So there's unrealistic expectations."

He believes town leaders should consider other alternatives besides settlement negotiations and appealing the judge's ruling. He said Volusia County leaders had an appraisal done on some of the parcels owned by Pacetta property owners Lyder and Simone Johnson and have an "above average interest" in buying those parcels.

He also supports conducting a roundtable education session to provide information to the public on the ongoing litigation.

On other issues, Mr. Villanella said he supports the city's services and believes they are a part of what makes Ponce Inlet unique.

"I don't think we're going to get any better than we are now," he said. "We're in excellent shape. We've got cooperation between all the services we offer."

He also supports maintaining a good relationship with city businesses on issues that surround them and added he wants to see them prosper.

"As long as we listen to each other's needs ... we can reach a satisfactory conclusion on both sides," he said. "We just have to be open-minded."

Seeing the town's existing businesses prosper is important, he said, because he doesn't see a lot of future development in the town due to limited build out.

Mr. Villanella said he hopes to help the town heal following the divisiveness of the Pacetta lawsuit, which he thinks will only be possible if future leaders do not have the outlook of the past.

"I know that in our town we need to have folks on the council that are of the mindset of getting past this whole issue and not dwelling on mistakes from the past," he said. "Let's look to the future to solve problems."

Peabody calls for sponsorship help

By Christina De Paris
For Hometown News

DAYTONA BEACH — Those intrigued by the arts can continue to patronize the creations that unfold at the Peabody Auditorium.

For the right price, though, they could find themselves or their business in the limelight too.

Helen Riger, the Peabody's executive director and the city of Daytona Beach's cultural services administrator, hired consultant Kevin Geddings in March to look for additional revenue sources for the Peabody — a self-sustaining enterprise managed by Daytona Beach's cultural services department. His mission: find sponsors.

"We want to make sure the Peabody's 62 years continues to go on," said Ms. Riger. "We just really need the support of the community to come forward and help us get there."

The venue has already caught a big fish. By June, Mr. Geddings managed to secure the Peabody's first substantial contract with Holland Financial Inc. of Ormond Beach. The pact involves a financial award of $35,000 in return for various marketing advantages.

"That was very exciting to us," Ms. Riger said, "to get one of this caliber and amount because the Peabody is really trying to break even, and in this economy it's been really tough to do that."

David Holland, CEO of Holland Financial, will receive a mix of marketing opportunities from the Peabody, such as face-to-face networking at each event for the year, having the company logo projected on the curtain and the ability to announce acts and present shows.

Exciting season ahead at Peabody

DAYTONA BEACH — Additional sponsorship for Peabody Auditorium means the city-owned facility will continue to provide a variety of entertainment for the area.

There's already a full schedule through the 2012-2013 season with shows announced by Broadway in Daytona Beach and the Daytona Beach Symphony Society.

The first show, "Elvis," begins the Broadway in Daytona Beach season Jan. 20, 2013, and the first classical concert is the National Symphony Orchestra of Cuba on Nov. 3.

Other entertainment starts even earlier. Tickets are already on sale for Jim Gaffigan: A Night of Stand-Up Comedy, at 7 p.m. Aug. 12.

Mr. Gaffigan's clever, quiet style has made him one of the top five most successful touring comedians

"Introducing the talent is the biggest thing that appeals to us and the presence that we could have with the community and getting our message out there as far and what we do here and the things we could offer people," said Ellen Edmonds, Holland Financial's vice president of marketing.

Mrs. Edmonds said the venue's lineup in the coming years is likely to attract the kind of people the company seeks to woo.

"The audience that frequents the Peabody," she said, "matches the demographic we're reaching out to and we felt like it would be really good fit. Plus it's a nice support to the city."

The Peabody maintains all costs without the help of tax dollars, which makes it necessary to have partnerships. Other partnerships, like those with Bright House Networks and Pepsi, have yielded $5,000 or less.

Mrs. Riger said the Peabody's sponsorship fund now totals $53,000 for 2012.

Jill Jaquet, the Peabody's theater manager, said landing these types of sponsorships could be a sign that community members understand the Peabody's impact.

"The Peabody is still remaining a bright shining star here in the community," said Ms. Jaquet. "(Individuals) benefit from our programs which provide more than entertainment. Cultural programming inspires creativity and enriches the life and hearts of people."

Mrs. Jaquet also noted attendance numbers have been remarkably high, with renowned acts like Leann Rimes and Cheech & Chong set to take the stage in November.

Mrs. Riger hopes to eventually bring to the Peabody a permanent development director with the goal of building a reserve and endowment to keep the institution running for decades to come.

The Y is 'Serving Up Summer' with the Walmart Foundation to fight child hunger

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

While summer should be a time of fun, exploration and relaxation, many children are left without the nutrition they need to learn, grow and thrive. More than 21 million children lose access to free or reduced-cost meals once the school year ends, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. To ensure that children in Volusia County have access to food year-round, the Y is offering free healthy meals and snacks through its summer food program, thanks to a $45,000 grant funded by the Walmart Foundation.

The Y has partnered with the Walmart Foundation to address child hunger in communities, with a focus on increasing participation in the USDA's Summer Food Service Program, which provides free meals to children aged 18 and younger while school is out. The Food Research and Action Center officials say, only in one in seven children who depends on free or reduced-cost meals during the school year received meals though the program last summer. This summer, more than 300 YMCAs nationwide will offer summer food programs with a collective goal to serve 5 million healthy meals and snacks to 100,000 children. Here in Volusia County, the Y plans to serve 31,000 meals and/or snacks to help 700 children stay well-nourished.

The sites at the following addresses are open to the community, and any child under 18 years old can participate in free lunch from 12:30-1 p.m.

•Ormond Beach Family YMCA, 500 Sterthaus Drive, Ormond Beach, (386) 673-9622

• DeLand Family YMCA, 761 E. U.S. Highway 92, DeLand, (386) 736-6000

•Port Orange Family YMCA, 4701 City Center Parkway, Port Orange, (386) 760-9622

•Four Townes Family YMCA, Pine Ridge Fellowship First Church Campus, 1045 E. Normandy Blvd., Deltona, (386) 532-9622

• Southeast Volusia Family YMCA, 148 W. Turgot Ave., Edgewater, (386) 409-9622

Local government fair slated

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

DAYTONA BEACH — The Young Professionals Group will host its fourth annual Local Government Fair on July 31, at the News-Journal Center in Daytona Beach.

The purpose of the fair is to show Young Professionals Group members and the community how they can become involved in local government, and the impact they can have on their area.

"The Local Government Fair has grown over the years," said Tim Stockman, 2012 Young Professionals Group president, "We have always had a strong turnout by Young Professionals Group members, and now we are seeing other community members, young and old, who come to the fair to learn about our area's local governments."

Daytona State College is sponsoring the event.

Daytona Beach Mayor Glenn Ritchey is no stranger to the Young Professionals Group or the local government fair. He is a former panelist and speaker. This year, Jacob Stuart, president of the Central Florida Partnership, will follow Mayor Ritchey.

The Fair will begin at 5 p.m. with an opportunity for guests to meet representatives from the cities of Daytona Beach, Ormond Beach, Volusia County, Port Orange, DeLand and other local governments. With this being an election year, many commissioners, council members and candidates have confirmed their attendance, as well. The program will begin with Mayor Ritchey's remarks at 5:30 p.m., followed by Mr. Stuart.

"This is an opportunity to meet the people who work in your government and to get involved," Mr. Stockman said, "If you have ever wanted to run for office, serve on an advisory board, or just learn more about local government, the Young Professionals Group has created an opportunity for the community."

More than a dozen Young Professionals Group members have been appointed to city and county boards since the Young Professionals Group began its local government committee. Three Young Professionals Group members are currently serving as city commissioners in Daytona Beach, DeLand and Ormond Beach.

The public is invited to attend.

Having fun with tarpon, the silver king of fishes

As I stepped out my front door into the predawn darkness the wall of heat hit me like the exhaust from a Greyhound. I stood for a minute taking in the stillness before shoving my kayak atop the Explorer. At the end of the street, I slid the Green Peanut into the Halifax and began my paddle across the boat channel. First light was just breaking behind me over the peninsula. It was breathlessly still and quiet. I knew that the Atlantic — just a bit over a quarter mile away — would be calm on this morning, but on the silent river, I could hear the sound of waves washing up onto the beach.

As I paddled the air was so hot and humid, I could feel the dampness in my lungs. Across the bay in the Tomoka State Park, campers had managed to keep their fire smoldering all night, probably to keep away the insects. The wispy smoke had traveled up the water's edge, stopping here and there to drape selected trees like the spun silk of catawba worms.

A dog sounded a warning that I was near.

Good dog. Overhead a flight of cormorants flew south in a reverse "V" formation. I wondered how they found their way without a leader. At my fishing destination the tide had stopped at dead low and nothing was moving. I made a cast with my jig and watched to see how far the rings would travel from the splash. No bait swimming; nothing feeding. I beached the kayak and began to wade the shore.

The water was murky, but with my flip flop-shod feet, I could feel indentations on the bottom where flounder had spent the night. Off to the east the sun was now coming up behind cotton candy clouds of pink and blue. Nothing hit my first 25 offerings and I began to think that perhaps the flounder tracks were old ones. Noticeably absent were my main competitors for the delicious flatties. No dolphin anywhere. Porpoises are the ultimate flounder hunters. They know that the flounder will be hidden in the sand and mud, so they swim along two at a time, their snouts just grazing the bottom. When they spook a flounder into bolting, the chase is over in seconds.

A flounder can swim surprisingly fast, but is no match for a dolphin. When the dolphin is actively floundering, I pay close attention to their path. Their path can tell you how far off the bank the flounder have moved, and thus where to cast. No dolphin on this day. I was on my own.

FISHING WITH DAN

As often happens, the flounder waited for full light to hit. Bam! Bam! Bam! Three quick hits and three quick misses. I knew that the fish had all hit the soft plastic without taking the hook.

Farther out in the river, a large school of baitfish was swimming by, and although I couldn't see anything, feeding I made a cast. Before my chartreuse jig could settle to the bottom, a good fish had it.

The fight was fun and since I was out in the river a ways, the trout shot by me and beat me to the beach.

A fat 17-inch spotted sea trout was my prize. I followed the bait pod down the river, but could muster no other hit. Now, the sun was full up, so I paddled over to the islands.

Right away, I began to get hits, but nothing was taking the jig until a 14-inch flounder came to the boat.

I was in about 4 feet of water when my jig shot into the air in the mouth of a 30-inch tarpon.

Wow! At the apex of its jump, the silver king shook its head and the jig was sent 20 feet in the opposite direction. I had no chance to do anything but watch. It then dawned on me that as low to the water as I was in the kayak I had been looking skyward to watch the flight of the tarpon. What power!

If God had not intended us to fish, there would be no such thing as a tarpon.

Road trip is just the ticket for relaxation

For me, nothing beats a road trip. Recently, I took my household on a family vacation. We had just spent weeks winding down the school year, handling a graduation, working too many hours and more. We needed some down time.

So we loaded up the van and headed across the state arriving in Naples and at the Naples Beach Hotel and Golf Club. Here we found our respite.

This resort has a long and rich history. Originally constructed in the 1880s, the hotel was built two blocks east of the Naples fishing pier in historic Olde Naples, a mile-and-a-half from what would become the current Naples Beach Club Hotel and Golf Club.

In 1930, Allen Joslin built the first 18-hole golf course in the area. In addition, he obtained the adjacent beachfront property and built the Naples Beach Club.

Prior to construction of the golf course, the only golf available to Naples' residents was a 9-hole city-owned facility with sand greens that doubled as an airport. Golfers were forced to use 3rd Street and 5th Avenue as fairways.

In late 1946, Henry Broadwell Watkins Sr. bought the original hotel. The 56-year-old was retiring from the toy manufacturing business in Ohio and wished to embark on a second career. He purchased the hotel and obtained the rights to use the course as long as he kept it mowed and playable.

Within a few years, Joslin sold him the club and the course. Watkins then created a new beach resort between the course and the refreshing waters of the Gulf.

The old hotel remained in service until it was demolished in the 1970s. From the time Watkins purchased the property until 1971, he added buildings and amenities as the resort's business grew.

GOLF
JAMES

Prior to his passing at age 91, he placed the resort in the capable hands of his son, Henry B. Watkins Jr., who continued renovations into the 1980s.

Grandsons Michael Watkins and Henry Watkins III built upon their family's passion, spending more than $50 million to bring the historic past of their grandfather's resort into the new millennium. The pair upgraded the course, added a spectacular new clubhouse and spa and renovated rooms and suites.

Today, families come to vacation at the same resort that past generations of their families enjoyed.

Once we checked in it was time to enjoy the resort. We walked into our room and immediately I felt the stress melting away as I grabbed a cold beverage and walked onto the balcony. The view of the Gulf was nothing short of spectacular. The lapping of the waves and the setting sun worked their magic.

Naples is full of small-town charm and its presence is felt at the resort. There are four great restaurants, a beach-side bar, swimming pool, tennis and golf.

Strolling around the resort with the cool breeze blowing from the Gulf is a great way to start your vacation. A short drive south is the old downtown area of Naples filled with quaint shops and restaurants.

The resort is very open and airy. No towering buildings blocking the breeze or the sunshine. Sailboats, peddle-operated boats and kayaks are the water crafts of choice.

After a good night's rest it was time to start our weekend. For my son and me, it was a round of golf. My daughter would enjoy a full day at the Kids Beach Klub. My wife was off to the spa for a facial and neck and shoulder massage.

The Kids Klub is fantastic for children and parents. It's held every day from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. The kids enjoy supervised arts and crafts, movies, lunch, playing on the beach and more. It gives the adults time to pamper themselves.

The Naples Beach Club's golf course has been tweaked and massaged over the past few decades. The most recent work was done by acclaimed architect, Ron Garl.

The course measures 6,488 yards from the tips, and features four sets of tees. Don't be fooled by the lack of length. The combination of wind, water, mature trees and fauna makes this track a test for golfers of all abilities. The course record of 63 was set nearly 40 years ago and has never been bettered.

In all, our weekend getaway was just what we needed. To enjoy a resort as a family is truly thrilling. With the history of the Naples Beach Hotel and Golf Club becoming a family destination for generations, I think a return visit is a must for us.

For information on the Naples Beach Club Hotel and Golf Club, visit the website at www.naplesbeachhotel.com or call them toll-free at (800) 455-1546.
