Wawa is on the way in 2015

By Kelli Jo Hull
For Hometown News

Port Orange will be home to Volusia County's first Wawa convenience retail stores in 2015.

Dunlawton Avenue will be the site for both store locations. The first, just west of Nova Road, is in the site preparation stage as the former occupant, a Chinese restaurant, gets demolished. The second store will be constructed on the southeast corner of Yorktowne Boulevard. Both stores will be about 6,000 square feet with 16 gas pumps.

According to Port Orange Senior Planner Tim Burman, the first store has been issued a permit to allow the building demolition along with the site development plan allowing for utilities and parking lot improvements to begin. Wawa projects the store opening in March, he said.

The Yorktowne location is in the site planning stage. Project engineers went through the city's Staff Development Review Committee process on June 11 and willaddress staff comments for a follow up review, he said.

The two locations are being handled by separate development companies as well as separate Wawa representatives. All parties have been "excellent to work with," Mr. Burman said.

Wawa originated in Folsom, Pa., in 1964 as a way to sell and distribute dairy products from the founding family's farm when home delivered milk became outdated. A chain of more than 600 convenience stores, the company continues to be privately owned, with no franchises. Stores are in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and Central Florida.

According to Colleen Labik, Wawa's public relations coordinator, "It's hard to believe that almost two years ago, Wawa celebrated a historic milestone in our company's history — the grand opening of our first store in the state of Florida — located in Orlando across from Sea-World. We couldn't be more thankful to our new Florida friends and neighbors for the warm reception we've received," Ms. Labik said.

Wawa has been aggressively expanding in the Central Florida area over a short time frame.

Legend of auto racing dies

By Susan Wright
swright@hometownnewsol.com

Ray Fox was, in many ways, a lucky man.

The iconic NASCAR regular, who drove a little but became known as a mechanic and owner during the free-wheeling early days of stock-car racing, died June 16 at 98, with his very large, extended family by his side.

He'd become one of the legends of his sport decades ago as the guy who worked on the winning cars for such NASCAR stars as Junior Johnson, David Pearson and Buck Baker.

Ray Fox

Some of the more well known included working on the cars that won the 1960 Daytona 500 with Junior Johnson at the wheel and Mr. Pearson's win in the 1961 Coca Cola

Cup fever infecting fans

By Susan Wright
swright@hometownnewsol.com

(Editor's Note: The U.S. team was 1-0-1 in the World Cup and was scheduled to play Germany Thursday.)

In little coffee bars in Bahrain or pubs in Islington, sports bars in Boulder, simple shacks and impressive embassies, auditoriums and homes, hyper-enthusiastic groups of fans have been gathering for almost two weeks, in varying degrees of World Cup fever.

One newspaper in Great Britain reported 1 million England supporters were expected to pack into 32,000 pubs across the U.K. for the 11 p.m. start of the first England game World Cup clash and roughly 17.5 million pints of good British beer would be served.

A couple of days later, at 6 p.m. EST, crowds of fans gathered around the Daytona Beach area — and throughout Volusia County — brimming with excitement and intense, adrenalin-fueled energized spirits to watch as the U.S. team faced Ghana (a team that had beaten the U.S. four years ago in the last World Cup.)

No one was counting the number of public gatherings or sports bars or the pints of beer being consumed in the area, but there were plenty and the mood was boisterous.

If the fans were excited before the game started, a U.S. goal in the first 30 seconds brought them all to their feet, in one surge of energy — and a loud, stunned cheer — from the campus of Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University to the bars and sports pubs from Ormond Beach to Port Orange.

One of those gatherings was in the modern, airy Henderson Welcome Center at ERAU where about 160 students, faculty, staff and a sprinkling of outsiders from the community were surprised by the sumptuous buffet dinner with actual round dinner tables and sit down seating. What had been announced as appetizers and snacks, with everyone invited to bring a dish from their own country, had turned into a generous dinner hosted by ERAU's president and his wife, John and Maurie Johnson.

But everyone's eyes were glued to the two movie screen-sized TVs suspended on the far wall, big enough so everyone in the room had a clear, unrestricted view of the action.

The crowd included a

Citizens search for plant

By Erika Webb
ewebb@hometownnewsol.com

Citizen scientists conducted surveys throughout Volusia County last month to determine where the rare — only found in this county — "Volusia Pawpaw" is growing.

Also known as Yellow Squirrel Banana or Rugel's Pawpaw, it is a member of the Annonaceae or Custard family.

There are two species in this genus of "false pawpaws" and both are listed as endangered, have limited ranges and are found only in Florida. A specific arrangement of soil type, moisture and fire regimen limit the range of these species, according to the Florida Native Plant Society's Pawpaw Chapter website.

About two dozen volunteers spread out across eastern and northern Volusia on May 10 to locate, count and

The Orlando vicinity has 23 locations already. "(As) we continue our expansion in the state of Florida; we currently have 43 stores opening and will end the year with 60 — most between Orlando and Tampa," Ms. Labik said.

Expansion in Volusia County also is planned, Ms. Labik said. A new store in Orange City at Enterprise Road and Harley Strickland Boulevard is also scheduled to open in 2015.

According to the company website, Wawa is a Native American word for Canadian Geese that were found in the Delaware Valley area of Pennsylvania where the company originated.

The stores have become successful because of their large inventory, specialized private brands, including coffee, and made to order fresh foods, such as hoagies, sandwiches and smoothies. Touch screens are used in the stores for customers to place their food orders.

"During this, our 50th anniversary year in retail, we are very excited about our continued expansion plans and more committed than ever to providing our new neighbors with our fresh, built-to-order food line and our services, including fuel and surcharge-free ATM's," Ms. Labik said.

"I can't wait for Wawa to open closer to our area," Osteen resident Mari Coyle said. "I love them! They have the absolute best coffee. Their food is great. Every store I've ever been in has been clean and the service is always courteous. The gas prices are the best and they have a huge selection of merchandise. You can get everything you could possibly need in one stop."

Fox

He became one of those legends of the sport people tell stories about long after they've retired and was officially a Living Legend, and president of the Living Legends Museum of Auto Racing until the day he died.

In its official statement after his death, NASCAR said, "Ray Fox is one of the individuals who helped form the foundation of our sport, with a personality that was every bit as important as his on-track accomplishments, His place in our record book is secure, but no one should ever view Ray Fox solely in terms of statistics."

Unlike many of those who become legends during their lives, he was able to stay close and connected to the world he'd been part of creating, never forgotten or neglected.

After retiring in the 1970s, he returned to work with NASCAR as an engine inspector, until he retired finally from paid work in 1996 at the age of 80.

He continued to be involved in the world of racing as a founder and very active supporter of the Living Legends museum.

In its statement, Daytona International Speedway President Joie Chitwood said Mr. Fox had been a "legendary wrench man," and a frequent visitor to the Speedway even after his retirement.

Some would find it odd to think of him as a visitor when he seemed always to belong in a place where he helped make history.

And, unlike many who had such stellar careers and were lucky enough to work so long in a field they clearly loved as much as he did, he also managed to have a very extensive, close family with sons and grandsons who followed his footsteps.

After his death, the small, specialized museum that was part of the final decades of his life set up a memorial, including replicas of some of the cars from the most famous victories he'd been part of. Friends and fans gathered there to mourn and remember the day after his death, a Monday. The museum, usually closed on Mondays, stayed open.

On Thursday, June 19, the museum was closed.

Gary Smith, his friend and a co-founder of the Living Legends Museum, declined to make any personal comments, but said the memorials would remain through the Coke Zero 400 weekend and fans and friends are welcome to share their memories and respects at the museum.

Living Legends of Auto Racing Museum is in Sunshine Park Mall, 2400 S. Ridgewood Ave., South Daytona.

The story of a 1950s Ormond boy

LAND LINES

DAN SMITH

There have been many volumes written about the history of our area.

Books about the Native Americans who pre-dated the arrival of the Europeans, the Spanish explorers, auto racing and just about every facet of life in Central Florida. I even took a stab at it with my book on beach history.

One of the areas of local history that has been largely overlooked is that of the middle of the last century. To be honest I didn't realize there was such a void until I read Skip Lowery's new book "Ormond Boy." His is a simple narrative leading the reader through the trials and tribulations of growing up in Volusia County during the '50s and '60s. At first look you may think this book to be a typical ego-satisfying, vanity press attempt. I suppose it is, but as you go through it you begin to realize it is so much more.

To begin with Skip is a respected local historian with a long resume' of chronicling our past.

In Ormond Boy he takes us along on a journey that begins in the early '50s when his family moved their house trailer into a park on U.S. 1. At that time Ormond consisted of two distinctly different villages.

On the mainland side was a very functional little town with hardware, gas and grocery store connected by sand roads. Skip tells us he and his buddies played there on a big vacant lot and whiled away many hours at the soda fountain of The Village Store.

Across the wooden bridge was the resort area of Ormond. He captures perfectly the vista from the bridge heading east. On the north side was the huge Hotel Ormond and on the south side was The Casements, home of John D. Rockefeller. Lush gardens, sailboats and beautiful buildings lay before you as you crossed the bridge and Skip likens it to entering the Land of Oz.

He tells us that from his earliest days all of the magic happened on the beachside.

Skip describes life as a teenage lifeguard and tells of using that position to attract the young girls who came to Florida with their families. He describes the importance of the big Ellinor Village resort that brought so many northerners to the area. It was the site of all sorts of entertainment, including the annual Mrs. America pageant. He covers the onset of rock and roll music and the effect it had on the lives of the locals and gives a first hand account of how segregation and later integration effected the area.

Through it all Mr. Lowery shows us what fun a simple life in Central Florida was back then. No doubt anyone over 60 will love this revealing book just as I did.

Skip will be at the Anderson Price Memorial Building, 48 N. Beach St. in Ormond Beach on Saturday, June 28, to discuss his work. The fun will begin at 9:30 a.m. and members of The Ormond Beach Historical Society will be admitted free. All others will be asked for only a $2 donation to help defray expenses. This promises to be a nostalgic morning filled with recollections of a kinder, gentler past told by someone who lived it. Come on out and have some fun and I promise you need not be an Ormond Boy to enjoy it!

Dan Smith is on the board of directors for the Ormond Beach Historical Society and The Motor Racing Heritage Association and is the author of two books, "The World's Greatest Beach" and "I Swear the Snook Drowned." Email questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net or call (386) 441-7793.

Fire Department improves ranking

The Insurance Service Organization completed a comprehensive study of the Ponce Inlet Fire Department in March, ranking it as a Class 3 department.

The study evaluated many factors that contribute to the firefighting capability of the department, such as equipment, water supply, training, and staffing.

The lower the class of a department, the better the ranking. The previous ISO rating of the fire department was a Class 5, and in 2005 it was a Class 6.

The improved ISO fire rating benefits property owners in Ponce Inlet when insurance companies evaluate the community's firefighting capacity.

New (old) Veteran's Memorial

As they like to say in old Westerns, it was "Quiet…Too quiet."

That's what I felt standing in front of the time-worn, concrete structure off Orange Avenue in Daytona Beach. Once handsome with its six, Corinthian columns, it was now mottled with algae. Beside it, an American flag drooped on a pole. What was this thing located in what felt like a dumping ground just off the parking lot to Tuscawilla Park? There was no sign.

And why did it feel so out of place?

An article by Catherine L. Wharton in the Halifax Historical Society's Halifax Herald, Summer 2012 Issue, supplied the answers:

"It was known by several names: The American Legion Memorial, The Lillian Dana Fountain Memorial, The Riverfront Park Memorial. But it was most commonly called The Veterans Memorial. Whatever its 'official' name, this grand tribute to America's military heroes was meant as a lasting monument to those who fought to keep the peace. Its location would be in Riverfront Park at the east end of Magnolia Avenue in downtown Daytona Beach."

Constructed in the 1930s, "…the remarkable beauty of the Memorial drew interest from many corners. Its central location in Downtown Daytona Beach was a hallmark of the city's dedication to our military heroes. Over time, articles were written and thousands of pictures taken of this magnificent structure… Three decades later… there were rumblings as to the configuration of downtown Daytona. At the center of controversy was the future of Riverfront Park—and a proposal by the city planner to turn parts of this unique waterfront parcel into a parking lot. A similar idea was to turn City Island into a parking lot, replete with a shuttle for shoppers. Standing in the path of 'progress,' however, was the Veterans Memorial."

In 1962, the Veterans Memorial Riverfront Park was dismantled—the concrete structure moved, minus fountain and reflecting pond, to the entrance to Tuscawilla Park.

For more than fifty years, it has waited.

Daytona Beach will soon get a new bridge. A $43 million arch design bridge will be replacing the old Silver Beach / Orange Avenue drawbridge. The Tom Staed Veterans Memorial Bridge website states, "As part of the design for the Veterans Memorial Bridge, there is a memorial park/plaza that will be designed. In this park will be memorials honoring Veterans. In the Project Advisory Committee meetings it was suggested to bring the Veterans Memorial from the Tuscawilla Park off of Nova Road in Daytona Beach to this new park."

The architectural renderings are impressive. Tuscawilla Park's loss will soon be a gain for all.

Thank you, veterans, for your service to our great nation. I look forward to this visual reminder of our gratitude being returned to a prominent place in our community.

Do you know a veteran you would like to see honored in this column? Contact me!

Volusia's EOC Scores Released

The School District of Volusia County's End-of-Course results for Algebra 1, Biology, Geometry, U.S. History and Civics were released last week. Volusia exceeds the state in percentage of students passing in nearly every subject and grade level.

Algebra 1, Biology, Geometry and U.S. History results are reported using scale scores and achievement levels. The scale ranges from 325 - 475. Students receive a scale score and a corresponding achievement level. The achievement levels are similar to FCAT in that they range from level 1-5 with level 1 being the lowest and level 5 the highest.

The Civics results are reported using T-scores because this is the first Crime Stoppers of Northeast Florida is seeking information on the whereabouts of 29-year-old James Robert Schultz.

As a convicted sex offender, Schultz is required to maintain his address on record with law enforcement. Schultz last registered as a transient living in the Daytona Beach area, but with no permanent address. After missing the deadline for updating his registration, an arrest warrant was issued on June 17, charging Schultz with failure of a sex offender to properly register.

His whereabouts are unknown. Schultz is 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs about 175 pounds and has blond hair and blue eyes. If you see Schultz or know where he is, don't attempt to apprehend him. Anyone with information regarding Schultz' whereabouts is asked to call Crime Stoppers toll-free at (888) 277-TIPS. You can also Text your tip by texting "TIP231 plus your message" to CRIMES. Anyone who provides information to Crime Stoppers will remain anonymous and can qualify for a reward of up to $1,000.

Rants & raves

Got something to say?

Call the Hometown Rants & Raves line at

(386) 322-5902

or e-mail newsdy@hometownnewsol.com. Callers are asked to refrain from making slanderous statements. Statements of fact will be checked for accuracy.

Tell them where the flag should be

I have lived in DeLand for years and the Volusia County Courthouse is close to me. I don't understand why they have three flags outside. I was taught the American flag always flies in the center and a little higher than the other flags. The American flag here in Volusia is off to the far left facing the courthouse. That is not the way it supposed to be.

Edgewater: Love it or leave it

To the person who is writing about Edgewater, you should pack your bags and go elsewhere. You are continually cutting down the residents of Edgewater, who like the small town. Why don't you go to a larger city and leave this small town.

Not no kill, but low kill

The animal clinic of Edgewater is no longer no kill, but low kill. It was originally no kill. If you come to that time in your life when you have to euthanize your beloved dog, they charge too much.

High rises already here

To the guy who keeps complaining about the high-rise condos on the beach, these have been here since the '70s. If you moved here after then, you should have moved somewhere else. If you already lived here, you need to get a life.

Too many abusing handicap tags

I read the response to the rant on handicap tag abuse.

If you go anywhere and are observant enough, you see all kinds of abuse with handicap parking; whether it is someone using granny's handicap tag or someone faking it because they are just too lazy to walk. It's no wonder why 30 percent of the U.S. is overweight.

My question is why is there not enough oversight in use of these tags. People who truly need to park close are getting blocked by those gaming the system. I watched for over a year as this woman would pull into the lot of a local gym and park in the handicap space, hanging a tag in place on the mirror. She would then proceed into the gym and work out for nearly an hour with a trainer then do another half hour on the treadmill. It was obvious she was able to walk more than 100 feet.

Maybe these things need to be renewed like a vehicle registration so they are more need based. I don't know all the answers, but I know there is abuse in the system. It has nothing to do with being a "tattle-tale," since there seems to be no enforcement anyway

Sprinkling rules?

Have lawn sprinkling rules been changed? Lawns are being watered any day, every day. I just think the public should have updates.

Tri-wash

Randy Barber/staff photographer

Water hogs

I live in New Smyrna Beach near Riverside Drive and I believe the homes on Riverside Drive are watering their lawns illegally and cutting the federal and state protected mangroves.

They are not following the watering restrictions. It irritates me these homeowners in the big expensive houses on Riverside Drive think they are above the law.

Well done, Spikes

I would like to congratulate our boys on the Ormond Beach Golden Spikes youth baseball team who played in Cooperstown, N.Y., recently. I am very proud of my grandson for helping his team make it far as they did this season.

I was able to watch the game on my computer.

On that note, I feel city leaders should be ashamed for charging $5 per person for watching a little league baseball game. What happened to pass the hat? That was going on when I played.

Good median care and more care needed

I want to pass out kudos galore for the people who are taking care of the medians on Granada Boulevard. They are marvelous.

However, when you head south of Clyde Morris Boulevard they only cut the grass. Nobody edges or cleans up the debris. It would look so much nicer if they did.

Welcome to Florida, buy new license plate

A while back someone ranted about people who live in Florida, but don't buy a Florida license plate and tags .They live here and work here and they don't buy the Florida tags. Why is that? What can be done about it?

To all who live within the City of South Daytona. . .

When we first moved here in 1974, we were excited to find a small quaint little city after living in Jacksonville for most of our lives. We were impressed with the cleanliness of the streets and the well-kept yards in the city.

Over the years, there are some that have become relaxed in keeping up their properties. Certain areas are of concern, and they are:

No. 1. Grass growing in front of your property in the area between the drain area and roadway.

No. 2. Tall weeds growing around the property.

No 3. Worn or tattered U.S flags.

No. 4. Junk laying on side of the house.

No. 5. Autos that have been parked for a long period of time and not being used.

No. 6. Constant barking of dogs

No. 7. Blowing grass clippings into the street. Those clippings end up in our drains and clogs them.

A lot of citizens have yard maintenance and it would take the individual just a couple minutes to weed out the grass and weeds from the right-of-way next to the road.

Some of these might not pertain to some, but if the shoe fits, use them to take care of your share.

Let's return our city to its original beauty.

Watch out for trench

If you love to take walks along our sidewalks on Scenic A1A and gaze out and look at the ocean, walkers beware.

At the south corner of A1A and Bass Avenue, just across from the Ocean Plaza public walk over in Ormond-by-the-Sea, you could trip if you aren't careful. There is a Votran bus stop there and for months the bus has undermined what was once the grass curb and dug a trench of dirt up to the sidewalk where it has actually uprooted the cement. I know because I tripped over it and called Votran. Our wonderful bus service wasn't the least concerned since nothing was done and that was months ago.

Luckily I don't walk when it rains, because navigating it would be like passing a mud trench. I often wonder how passengers get on and off here? It's apparent. The bus just pulls up further and continues to destroy more.

Ill communication

Looking for information in "The Complete Phone Book" (2014) Volusia/Flagler, I noted on page 32 the AT&T headline "formally" Bellsouth. Duh?

More on the Nathan Cobb Cottage…

I certainly appreciated Dan Smith's article on the Nathan Cobb Cottage, 137 Orchard Lane, which I recently purchased, as I do all of Dan's articles on area history and happenings. But I would like to expand on a few points:

The "Kathy" pictured with me in front of the cottage is actually Kathy Fagen Jones, visiting from DeLand. Kathy is a great-granddaughter of Billy Fagen, builder of the cottage and one of Ormond Beach's founders. I met Kathy and other family members last year when the Fagens were having a family reunion. Kathy came to see the cottage — although she had seen it many times from the outside, she had never seen the inside, since Billy Fagen sold it in 1914, long before she was born.

One other thing — The marker honoring Freed Waterhouse was not lost; it was in storage at the Casa Del Mar Resort, 621 S. Atlantic Ave., near the site of the wreck. After some urging by local citizens, the plaque is now on the sea wall of the Casa Del Mar.

Thank you for your wonderful local newspaper.

Democrats introduce challenger for District 25

The Democratic Club of Northeast Volusia County has endorsed Noel Cheryl Bickford as a candidate for District 25 of the state House of Representatives.

Ms. Bickford is a mother of two Seabreeze High School graduates who attended Florida State University.

An Ormond Beach resident for more than 15 years, she is a retired healthcare administrator with a master's degree in business administration from Baruch College and the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine and a graduate of New College in Sarasota. Ms. Bickford also served as an adjunct faculty member in economics and marketing at St. Joseph's College of St. John's University.

She also volunteers with many local civic organizations including St. James Episcopal School, the Civic Ballet of Volusia County, Seaside Music Theater, Daytona Beach Symphony Society and the Ormond Beach Memorial Art Museum.

Hiring in Volusia County needs a boost

VOLUSIA BUSINESS
CECIL G. BRUMLEY

I got a little excited when I saw the latest number of claims for unemployment compensation in Volusia County.

In May, claims were at 871, nearly half the 1,691 in May 2013. Then I remembered there was glitch with a new computer system at the state labor department and just about every county in Florida showed a sharp drop in claims. Not a good thing for the unfortunate workers who just lost their jobs.

As for the latest estimates on the labor market in Volusia, they were still looking OK in May. The jobless rate was 6 percent, down from 7.4 percent in May 2013. Non-agricultural employment was at 160,300, up 2,300 from last year. There was some drop off from April for which the unemployment rate was revised down to 5.6 percent.

But there's reason to believe the unemployment rate is lower, although wages aren't looking so good. The fourth quarter Census of Employment and Wages was recently released showing Volusia was up 4,020 jobs. As you can expect from this area, many of those jobs were lower paying ones, so the average weekly wage dropped from $709 to $702. Yes, that does seem like a lot when you consider so many of the jobs are in low-paying retail and hospitality businesses. But it's skewed upward by the fact we have a significant number of folks making really high wages.

So looking ahead, what can we expect for the rest of the year? Well, Volusia employment could use a boost and it may just get one. If another big project or two starts up, construction jobs will go up sharply. When you look at incentives that have been handed out for various manufacturers, those jobs should go up, too. Retirees continue to pour into the area and they often need more healthcare and other services, so that could provide a boost. The spinoff from those three areas will create even more jobs, so by the end of the year, if the current trend continues, we could see unemployment dip below 5 percent.

Developers and builders are continuing to show confidence in Volusia. D.R. Horton just bought a big chunk of lots at LPGA International for about $1.5 million. Apartments developer Wood Partners of Atlanta bought a big chunk of land along Pioneer Trail, just west of Wallace Road on the north side of New Smyrna Beach. And Silvestri Investments picked up another possible condo site on Sickler Drive along the Halifax River at the border of Daytona Beach and Holly Hill. Yes, that's right smack dab in the middle of the Marina Village the two cities are trying to create.

A few other things worth mentioning: Protogroup apparently will abide by the wishes of the City of Daytona Beach and begin demolishing the old Seaside Inn immediately. The firm bought the old motel as part of its plan for a huge condo-hotel resort, but as the process to get to construction drags on, it had become an eyesore, not something you want tourists looking down at from their expensive hotel rooms. Construction to convert the old Wendy's between Ocean and Atlantic avenues in Daytona into a large Starbucks with a drive-through has started. Finally, construction is starting on converting the Bermuda House hotel at 2560 N. Atlantic Ave. in Daytona into a Hilton Garden Inn.

CareerSource helps businesses with veteran services

CareerSource Flagler Volusia created two new positions to assist businesses with veteran services.

As local veterans employment representatives, they will reach out to employers in the area to connect them with local veteran talent; this service includes invitations to training seminars; and facilitating employment, training, and placement services to local veterans.

The representatives' services are available to the local business community at no cost and can be combined with other CareerSource incentives, such as funding to help pay for the first few weeks of employment of a new veteran hire.

Representatives will be available to businesses starting July 1. For more information, call (386) 323-7079.

Halifax Health names Employee of the Year

Tommy Bostick, business specialist for Halifax Health-Center for Oncology, has been named Halifax Health Employee of the Year.

Mr. Bostick received the honor during the 2014 Employee Recognition Banquet on June 6 at the Hilton Daytona Beach Oceanfront Resort.

Mr. Bostick, who was nominated for Employee of the Year through his selection as Employee of the Month for May 2013, has been a Halifax Health employee for more than 13 years. He is known by his co-workers for performing out-of-the-ordinary, patient-related tasks with a great spirit.

He received check presentations from Halifax Health-Auxiliary, Halifax Health-Office of the Medical Staff and Halifax Health-Associates.

Other Halifax Health employees honored during the luncheon banquet include:

•2014 Inpatient Quality Caregiver of the Year — Rebecca Acosta, RN, Oncology

•2014 Outpatient Quality Caregiver of the Year — Patricia Kurty, Physical Therapist

group from Ghana (Embry-Riddle serves a large contingent of foreign students from all over the world) all in happy, unabashedly buoyant spirits and participants from about 32 other countries, adding a global feel to the festive atmosphere. The entire ERAU women's soccer team, including coaches and their families were there.

Even after the U.S. got the game off with a bang with its early goal, Frederick Aryeetey, a junior from Ghana, was sure his team would still pull off a win. Perry Tommey, 24, a recent graduate from Ghana in aerospace engineering, was thrilled at the turnout to watch and beaming with joy at the sheer fun of being able to watch his home team with all his friends, the prospects of winning and the spirit of the gathering. And the food.

They'd all played soccer as children back home in Ghana, "it's just part of our culture,' said Edmund Odartey, an ERAU graduate from Ghana who is a director of alumni relations and was in charge of organizing the event.

On the other side of the room, the women's soccer team took over several tables and a row of coaches and staff had pulled out chairs in a line in the back. Samantha Bohon, who is the ERAU women's team coach but started her soccer career with the Ormond Beach recreational teams and played for Seabreeze High School, and went on to play for the national team, brought her family, including her two children. "This is great — the whole atmosphere, to see so many different people, from all over the world, such an international event. Several of the girls on the team are from other countries. Our assistant coach here, Liam, is from Scotland."

A few miles north, in the convivial, cheerfully crowded atmosphere at Houligan's Irish Sports Pub, several large groups and scattered smaller groups, mostly 20 and 30 somethings clustered around tables looking up at the televisions scattered throughout the restaurant — including a group at the stand-up bar outside. ("Millenials," defined as anyone between 18 and 35 years old, are the largest group of soccer fans across the country.)

One of the groups was organized by Roderigo Guillen of Ormond Beach, whose day job is as a social worker for the elderly, but who first was introduced to soccer as a player for Ormond Beach's recreational teams. He said he got hooked on the World Cup in 1994 — when he came to watch the U.S. play at Houligan's with his dad. So, as far as he's concerned the Granada Boulevard Houligan's is the only place to watch the World Cup.

Now, he's there with his girlfriend and about 30 of his friends — and he's leaving in two days for a vacation in Brazil where he'll stay for 10 days to enjoy the World Cup festive atmosphere and has tickets to two actual games. For now, he said when the U.S. made the goal in the first few seconds he was "ecstatic."

He's such a soccer fan, he also organizes a fan group out of Orlando named the Iron Lions — but for this game, he said he just called up some friends. They'll be meeting at Houligan's for games — at least until the U.S. is eliminated, but some of them will be there for the final round no matter what.

One of those friends, Kurt Schaeffer, another graduate of the city's recreational soccer leagues, said, "Four years ago we had 80 people by the end. This is a global phenomenon, that's here for everyone to enjoy. When you realize that people all over the world are getting together and there's this kind of excitement, the electricity in the air all over, it's really great."

Back in the center of Daytona Beach, on International Speedway Boulevard, about 40 members of an organized club of fans that included adults and children, families with soccer-playing kids explaining the intricacies of the game to their parents, gathered at Miller's Ale House.

Clayton Saxour of Port Orange is the spokesman for the group, which is listed as an "unofficial" branch of the nationwide network of soccer fan clubs, The American Outlaws (which has no connection with the biker club, simply named The Outlaws,) and he was there with his two boys, both of whom play for Port Orange teams. Mr. Saxour said his kids got him involved in the sport and now he's in love with the game.

He said the kids are the experts — they root for the U.S. but "they're realistic, they know it's a long shot."

"They know these international soccer players, they'll tell you who the top players are, what their strengths are, they'll follow the Dutch player or the English, as much as the team," he said. His 11-year-old son thinks Portugal will win in the end.

On that Monday, Mr. Saxour said the atmosphere was "full of energy, everybody was buzzing, it was just electric." Especially after the early goal, he added.

But near the end, he said, "We all knew that a win would give us three points going forward, but a tie just gives one. So when Ghana scored, we just . . . it was like someone let the air out of the place. "

"Literally within four minutes, John Brooke hit the header (and scored the winning goal) the roof went off the place — the place just erupted," he said.

World Cup 2014 ends July 14.

year results are available. Each T-score has a corresponding grade equivalent and is converted to 30 percent of the final course grade. Scale scores and achievement levels will be developed by the state and in place for next year's results.

"These results indicate outstanding achievement in each of these subject areas for Volusia," said Superintendent Dr. Margaret Smith. "I am pleased to see an increase in the percentage of students scoring at a level 3 and above."

Health agency earns eight awards

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

The Florida Department of Health in Volusia County earned eight awards in 2014 Prudential Productivity Awards Program.

The awards recognize and reward state government employees for work that increases productivity, promotes innovation, improves the delivery of state services and saves money for Florida taxpayers and businesses.

"I am especially proud that DOH-Volusia received eight Prudential Productivity awards this year," said Dr. Bonnie J. Sorensen, director of the Department of Health in Volusia. "This shows we are dedicated to public health in Volusia County."

The Prudential Productivity Awards Program is a public-private partnership co-sponsored by Florida TaxWatch, the Florida Council of 100, and the State of Florida.

DOH-Volusia award winners received recognition at a ceremony on Tuesday, June 10, at the Lake Mary Westin.

Volusia winners were:

•HMS Reporting Dashboard Setup Tool: Kevin Billiot — Certificate

•Dental Brochure Team: Jo Ann Weatherwax, Karen Hodge — Certificate

•Hot Key Team: Shirley Wilson, Melody Reffit — Certificate

•Vehicle Fuel Efficiency: Ken Druding, Tracie Gear, Betsy Marx — Certificate

•Free Children's Book Program for Clinics Stefany Strong — Certificate

•Preventative Dental Program: Jo Ann Weatherwax, Mike Allen, Karen Hodge, Mary Rowe, Theresa Hunt — Plaque

•Drug Pricing Program: Patrick Forand, Latoya Bennett, Janet Bradstreet,

Shakeara McRae, Kristin Papp, Debra Elder, Ronald Rusiecki — $800

•Nurse Productivity with Local Value Unit Team:

Kathy Diaz, Susan Skinner, Livia Horne, Patricia Sturm, Shirley Wilson — $1,000.

Plant

photograph already known and new plants.

Engaging citizen scientists is an "up and coming" practice that helps immensely in biological assessments, according to Pawpaw chapter representative Sonya Guidry, who also serves as the volunteer coordinator.

"Each year we try to expand (to the areas) where we think the populations might be," Ms. Guidry said in a phone interview.

The effort requires cooperation from public and private landowners, she explained, so the rare plant may be growing undocumented in places where surveyors have not been given permission to venture.

Pawpaw chapter members would like to explore, but haven't gained access to, the Port Orange well fields, she said.

Typically the plants are difficult to spot unless they are in bloom — usually April through June.

Describing the blossoms as "shy little yellow, almost white flowers," Ms. Guidry said some of the plants yield a red bloom, "like a blush pink."

This year's teams scoured Tiger Bay State Forest, Deep Creek and Longleaf Pine preserves, the area surrounding Lake Ashby and areas along Interstate 95 off of Sugar Mill Road, she said.

Nearly 200 Rugels plants have been discovered in Deep Creek Preserve within the past year, following a Volusia County Land Management controlled burn, she said, explaining the plants benefit from that type of habitat disruption.

"Years ago, Florida had a lot of lightning fires but the Pawpaw managed to survive," Ms. Guidry said.

Citizen scientists include students, environmental professionals, teachers, college professors and many interested individuals who are regulars on Volusia County's eco-buggy tours.

Tour guide and naturalist Bonnie Cary's enthusiasm inspires many to volunteer, Ms. Guidry said.

Dr. Eliane Norman, a Stetson University biology professor, was on Ms. Guidry's team this year, helping to search the area across from Walmart on State Road 44.

"She was able to identify a plant just by the leaf," Ms. Guidry said.

Collected data is turned over to Danny Young, director of environmental services with Zev Cohen and Associates Inc. in Ormond Beach.

Danny Young, "Rugel's Round-up coordinator for te Florida Native Plant Society's Pawpaw Chapter, measures a Rugels plant from the Interstate 4 population that was moved to Osteen in 2012.

Mr. Young is a volunteer with the society's Pawpaw Chapter and is the society's Land Management committee chair, working with the Florida Division of State Lands on management reviews.

Zev Cohen donates Geographic Information Systems services to aid in the pawpaw searches, he said.

Mr. Young was instrumental in starting the Rugels Roundup.

"The Pawpaw chapter is named after this rare, endangered plant so I said 'if we're named after it our members ought to be proponents and stakeholders for the plant,'" Mr. Young said. "Sonya and I worked out the details. We came up with the idea to do this survey each May when it flowers and is easy to identify."

While Ms. Guidry leads the volunteer effort, Mr. Young has the scientific task of collecting the data and submitting it to the Florida Natural Areas Inventory.

"My job is to send these teams across Volusia County to different areas to map past/known populations and document new ones," Mr. Young said.

This year the teams found the plant population numbers to be about the same as they were last year, but two new growth locations were documented in Tiger Bay.

In 2012, the Interstate 4 widening project, between DeLand and Daytona Beach got underway, and crews carefully uprooted pawpaw plants along the roadside so they could be relocated to a pawpaw patch at the Lake Monroe Conservation Area in Osteen.

"We looked at it last year and it was doing fine," Mr. Young said.

He thoroughly enjoys the surveying process and studying the rare Rugels.

"My background is in botany," he said. "My job is related to environmental science so it's what I do for fun and what I do for work. This is a particularly interesting plant."

It's more where the pawpaw grows than what it features that makes it intriguing.

"It's a boring little green bush with a tiny yellow flower," Mr. Young said. "It makes little fruit with no medicinal purposes, and is just another part of an ecosystem."

However, he explained, the pawpaw's existence in certain locations is a "solid indicator" of ecosystem health.

When the pine forests where the Rugels grow experience an overgrowth of palmetto and gallberry shrubs, the habitat becomes less suitable for the Pawpaw.

"It thrives when there's a regular natural disturbance, most typically fire," Mr. Young said.

Explanations for the rare plant's existence here vary.

Ms. Guidry said one possible explanation is the Immokalee sand soil in which it grows.

Found in pine flatwoods, Myakka-Smyrna-Immokalee are nearly level, poorly drained soils that have a dark, organic stained subsoil underlain by sandy material, according to a report written by Volusia County Extension Agent David Griffis.

Mr. Young said the Immokalee is not unique to Volusia. An unincorporated area called Immokalee — the center of the region's agriculture industry — is down near the Everglades and that the Immokalee soil there is found throughout the state. But the Rugels Pawpaw is not.

"I'm not sure why (Rugels) occurs only in this political boundary of Volusia County," he said. "Endemic means it only occurs in one specific area. Florida has a lot of endemic plants, but so far as I know Volusia County may be the only county to have an endemic plant."

Pie Five offers a new way to enjoy pizza

By J.M. Copeland
For Hometown News

Just when you think all pizza restaurants are all alike something new comes along.

Pie Five Pizza Co., a new venture for Gale Lemerand and the first in Florida, has been open a mere six months and already has a regular following.

"The number of repeat customers we have is really remarkable," said John Tinstman, vice president and chief operating officer.

The company loyalty program, "Circle of Crust," allows customers to earn points for future purchases, exclusive deals and freebies, plus a free pie for "half" birthdays.

Those who have successfully conquered all of the Pie Five specialty pizzas become a "Pie Athlete."

Mr. Tinstman said he had one fellow tell him he had already redeemed several free pies with the program.

When my husband and I dined at the restaurant at 1781 Dunlawton Ave. in Port Orange, we noticed the enthusiasm of the employees — not some, but all of them. They looked like they were having a good time, which puts the customers immediately in the same frame of mind.

The pies are excellent and I would say people come back because there is almost a limitless combination of toppings, as many as you want, included in the price of $6.79. Only if a gluten-free crust is requested does the price increase, and then only $2.

I have always had traditional white crust pizza pies, but since whole grain was recommended for my Farmer's Market pie, I decided it was time to try something new. My hus-

Week of 6-27-2014

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20

Be honest with yourself, Aries. Sometimes change can be a good thing, so take a few days to sort through all of your options. You will be glad you did.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21

Taurus, you may have to be clever to solve a particular problem this week. It will be challenging, but you are up to the task and your efforts will be their own reward.

GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21

Gemini, spend some time thinking about what you want rather than what others want for you. You may discover significant differences between the two, but do what makes you happy.

CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22

Cancer, it may take some time to get back on your feet after a stumble, but you will get there much faster if you ask a few friends for support. You know the people who have your back.

LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23

Leo, very little can disappoint you or affect your mood. Enjoy the responsibility-free week with a free spirit. This is a great time for a vacation.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Think through all of your options before you act, Virgo. While something may seem like a good idea at first, careful thought may reveal some bumps in the road.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Work hard to earn a promotion at work, Libra. While you may need to take on more responsibility and work longer hours, the payoff will be well worth it.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Scorpio, if you feel you are at a crossroads, take your time to make the best possible decision. This is a significant moment for you, and it requires focus and forethought.

Pie

band decided on the gluten free, not for dietary reasons, just to try something new for his Five Star signature pie. Both were delicious and 24 hours later he was still raving about how good the pie was.

The menu is divided into thirds, "Our Pie" the signature pies, "Your Pie" create your own and "Not Pie" salads. While we both selected signature pies, we were able to put our own personal touch on them.

Employees wearing "Pie lingual" orange T-shirts helped us in the cafeteria-style line, not unlike having a deli sandwich created. I opted to omit the onions and any hot peppers and added artichoke hearts and olives.

"Which olives? Black, green or Calamata?" I was asked and I chose them all.

My husband enhanced his Five Star signature pizza of cheddar, pork sausage, pepperoni, ham, beef, green olives, red and green peppers, black olives and red onions, with artichoke hearts, avocado and bacon. As with all of their gluten free crust orders his was served in a "to-go" box instead of a tray so there is no chance of dough with gluten coming in contact with it. Those on gluten free diets will appreciate this extra effort.

The number of combinations is mind-boggling and I believe you could eat a different pie every day and still leave pie combinations untried.

"Someone calculated that there are five million pie possibilities," said Kevin Ringueberg, director of training and development.

It wasn't until after I noticed the "Handcrafted pizzas in less than 5 minutes" on the side of my husband's pizza box that I realized our pizzas were done so quickly.

"We have a high efficiency convection oven that cooks at 600 degrees," Mr. Tinstman said.

For those who enjoy a salad with their pie, there are 38 toppings to choose from or you can start with one of the six signature salads. As with the pies, what goes on your plate is up to you.

Community involvement is an important part of Pie Five Co. and there are spirit nights for local high schools with a portion of the sales benefiting the schools.

Pie Five Co. is based outside of Dallas and the Port Orange restaurant is the first Florida franchise, but I am assured that more will be opened in the next couple of years, which is good news for us. Until then we will be driving from Ormond Beach to Port Orange to get our "Estes specialty pizza pies."

Pie Five is open 10:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. It's in Panera Plaza on Dunlawton near Interstate 95 in Port Orange.

Sen. Hukill's poet laureate bill signed into law

State Sen. Dorothy L. Hukill's bill to create a poet laureate was signed into law by Gov. Rick Scott, which officially creates the position and process for the nomination, selection and duties of the Florida State Poet Laureate.

The Florida Department of State along with the Florida Council on Arts and Culture will implement the new position. Florida's Poet Laureate is a volunteer who will promote reading, writing and the appreciation of poetry throughout the state and encourage students to express themselves through poetry and reading out loud.

"Poetry is a creative outlet that allows students to connect with others. It challenges them to use their words to express themselves through a variety of ways, be it through rhyme and meter, imagery or metaphors," said Sen. Hukill, R-Port Orange.

Allstate agent donates to Symphony Society

Allstate agent Nanette Rosevear presented the Daytona Beach Symphony Society with a donation of $1,000 on June 18.

The donation was a result of an annual grant program from Allstate Insurance awarded to each of its agents to support the charity of his or her choice. The grant from Ms. Rosevear was designated to be used to assist in funding the Symphony Society's YES! (Youth Experiencing Symphony) program.

Local artist shows in Wales

Artist Beau Wild of Port Orange has been accepted into The International Society of Experimental Artists National Watercolor Society exhibition at the Wales International Exchange Art Center, Town Hall Barry, Vale of Glamorgan, Wales.

Juried by Linda Daly Baker, the show opens July 12 and runs through Aug. 30.

Ms. Wild's selected painting, "Spirals," is a mixed media piece with acrylic, graphite and ink on terraskin.

The use of acrylic inks added with wooden utensils such as spoons and spatulas along with paint moved around with a putty knife and a block of wood allowed the artist to create this experimental image.

The award-winning artist was born in Jacksonville and attended Seabreeze High School prior to attending Tufts University and The School of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

Ms. Wild was one of the original artists of the Hub on Canal when it opened in 2012. Her working studio is "Courtyard Studio 16" at the Hub, 132 Canal St. in New Smyrna Beach.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Sagittarius, supporting a family member who deserves it has you riding high this week. This support may be emotional in nature or even financial support if you can manage.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Capricorn, family activities are getting in the way of business prospects, and vice versa. You may need to make a difficult decision in the near future.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Aquarius, think through the pros and cons of speaking your mind at work. Your opinions are valid, but you run the risk of alienating certain people, and that should not be taken lightly.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20

Approach a problem that's been puzzling you from a different perspective, Pisces. This new way of looking at things makes all the difference.

The tale of the frantic catch of a Mosquito Lagoon redfish

FISHING WITH DAN

DAN SMITH

After making the long drive to Northern Mosquito Lagoon, I launched my kayak at the tennis courts just north of J.B.'s Fish Camp on A1A.

Dawn was breaking and a slight breeze had appeared. Heading north and then west, I began throwing my MirrOlure around the PVC stakes, but had no takers. Continuing on across the Government Cut, I zeroed in on a long shoreline that has provided me lots of sea trout action in the past. In fact it was the very same place where I caught the "two headed trout" that is a chapter in my book.

On that day I was with Capt. Leo, who witnessed a small trout I hooked get swallowed by a much larger one. When it came to the boat, the only part of the initial catch visible was its head sticking out from the mouth of the second fish. That memory always makes me smile.

On this day I began with the red and white MirrOlure as I usually do. On a recent telephone hookup, Leo had assured me that top water was working better in that area. Sure enough small trout were there, but the large ones I sought were not takers. Once the sun was full up, I decided to switch to my jig. Just as I snipped the mono with my nail clippers, a loud splash caused me to look south. Almost 200 yards away a big red had banged into something right on the shoreline.

As I watched, I could see it moving water and heading my way. Thirty feet along and it struck once more.

This thing was heading my way and in a big hurry. The large red drum was feeding so far into the mangroves I knew I wouldn't be able to throw a jig. I had to tie the MirrOlure back on.

Now it's a race against time. The fish was flying along the bank, but stopping to hit anything that moved. I'm watching it all the way and trying to tie on the plug at the same time. It was a pretty frantic scene. Just as the fish was on me, I managed a partial cast and a partial shove to get the lure over to the shore. The red was zooming past and as I began to twitch the bait it hit hard and never slowed down. It was a good hookup but now I had to worry about my knot. I was in such a hurry to tie it, I wasn't sure if I had done a good enough job.

Thankfully the fish veered into deeper water and away from the mangroves where it would have surely broken off. Just then a pontoon boat with four people aboard stopped to watch the action. The bull red was towing the Green Peanut out into the boat channel. Round and round I went until the both of us finally tired. As the big fish laid up alongside the kayak my audience gave me a round of applause.

There was no use in measuring it for it was well over the 27 inch maximum. When I released it, the good folks aboard the pontoon clapped once more. Most people think fishing is a relaxing and lazy sport. I can tell you there was nothing relaxing about that catch. Good fun, though. That made my morning for I never caught anything to bring home.

In all, I had 14 trout and the one red to turn back. The trout all hit the Grandslam Bait Lite Beer shrimp tail. A sort of brown and clear color.

The water in the Lagoon is still very cloudy, but the fish don't seem affected. If this continues, they will be, for the lack of sunlight will kill off the sea grasses that provide a hatchery for their food.

On this trip I did not encounter any floating dead grass so that's a good thing. If you are new to this area, you must fish the lagoon. But don't go there green, hire a guide for your first trip.

Mosquito Lagoon is the most treacherous place to boat in the state.

Speedway to host Red Bull Global Rallycross Aug. 22-23

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Daytona International Speedway annually hosts stock cars, sports cars, motorcycles and go-karts. The "World Center of Racing" is now adding a new form of motorsport to its event calendar — rallycross.

On Aug. 22-23, DIS will host the seventh round of the 2014 Red Bull Global Rallycross season. In its fourth year, Global Rallycross competes across the world with a 10-race schedule that also includes events in marquee locations like Barbados, New York, Seattle and Las Vegas.

"On a challenging course located inside the Speedway, this new event in our calendar will showcase talented athletes battling side-by-side in a unique combination of horsepower, sliding and flight," DIS President Joie Chitwood III said.

Red Bull Global Rallycross is coming to Daytona International Speedway on Aug. 22-23.

Among the rallying and action sports athletes that compete in Global Rallycross are Ken Block, Brian Deegan, Scott Speed, Nelson Piquet Jr. and Tanner Foust.

On a track that will include portions of Daytona's famed road course asphalt and a challenging dirt section, including an 8 foot jump, drivers will slide, bang and fly in manufacturer-backed entries from Ford, Hyundai, Subaru and Volkswagen. Global Rallycross Supercars produce 600 horsepower and accelerate from 0 to 60 miles per hour in less than two seconds.

Global Rallycross features an open paddock where fans are able to walk through the garages, engage the drivers and watch the mechanics wrench on the cars.

A detailed two-day event schedule will be released in the coming weeks.

Get tickets by calling 1-800-PITSHOP or visiting daytonainternationalspeedway.com.

The feature race is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 23, and will be broadcast live on NBC.
