City Council gives farmers' market a financial boost

By Kelli Jo Hull
For Hometown News

The Port Orange City Council authorized a deep discount Sept. 2 to the rental rate for the owner of City Center Market which operates near the city's amphitheater from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. each Thursday.

The market began May 22 with a three month contract at an hourly rate of $62.50. Owner Kellianne Marks said the nearly $450 charge for each six and a half hour event was too high in comparison to other venues. "My proposed amount of $125 a week is still on the high end of all the other markets," she said.

However, with that rate she felt she would be able to cover her costs, reinvest in promotion of the market to increase traffic and continue the market for the duration of a year's contract, Ms. Marks said.

Averaging 30 vendors per week, Ms. Marks expects to increase vendor count as the cooler season approaches. "It's really slow in the summer in all of the markets," she said.

The market features produce; specialty and gourmet food, including homemade bread and bakery items; local honey; vegan selections; hot sauces; dips and organic products. A wide variety of artisan crafts, jewelry and clothing also are available.

Council members had positive comments about the market and its contribution to the community except for Mayor Allen Green who criticized the lack of local produce vendors in the market's offerings. "It's supposed to be a local farmers' market and a lot of these people aren't local. Most of those people are resellers," he said.

Having reached out to locals, Ms. Mark said she was unable to garner interest due to the time of year. "Once it gets cooler out and they have more product, then I can get more (local) farmers in," she said.

Challenge raised buckets of money for ALS Association

By Erika Webb
ewebb@hometownnewsol.com

If you feel the need to dump icy water over your head, summer — especially in Florida — is a good time to do it.

As with any "gone viral" trend, stunt and cause, or trendy stunt for a cause, opinions on the ALS Ice Bucket Challenge ranged from gung ho to no go.

Many enthused over the awareness building while others naysaid any chance of real effectiveness.

Cynics groused that challengers and accepting nominees just sought another online ego bolstering opportunity.

At least one went so far as to declare the effort was wasting a natural resource. In fairness, that person may have seen only living-room dousings and missed the ones undertaken outside where the water made it safely to the soil.

Regardless, it was among the biggest viral hits in Facebook's history, with 2.4 million ice bucket challenge related videos shared on the social network, and more than 28 million people have posted, commented or liked a post relating to the challenge, according to the company.

By Aug. 29, as the month-long hoopla began to subside, the ALS Association announced more than $100 million in donations from participants worldwide.

"(The) association has received $100.9 million in donations compared to $2.8 million during the same time period last year (July 29 to Aug. 29)," according to alsa.org.

WORC strives to create a home

By Susan Wright
swright@hometownnewsol.com

The first thing Joey Burnside wants to tell visitors about the house he moved into about two months ago, just in time for the Fourth of July, is "this isn't just a house, it's a home."

To one recent visitor, he made sure to tell her that again before she left.

Until that July 3 moving day, Mr. Burnside lived in Dove Villas, the residential facility that is home to several of the clients at the Work Oriented Rehabilitation Center, the non-profit agency that provides training, work opportunities and independent living facilities for the disabled.

At Dove Villas, he had his own room and a life on his own, away from family, but it was more of an institution with someone else making the decisions about daily routines.

Chief operating officer for WORC Kelly Johanessen, left, stands with Nichole Melillo and Joey Burnside in the front yard of their new home in Port Orange on Thursday, Sept. 4.

At the house in the Willow Run area of Port Orange, the three people who live there make their own decisions and live more like a family. There is a fourth resident, the dog Oreo, a black fuzz ball who greets visitors enthusiastically.

Mr. Burnside and Nichole Melillo are both clients of WORC, who have been assessed as ready for life out in the world where they'll get to know their neighbors, learn to deal with the everyday responsibilities of keep-

Votran's 3-million mile man honored

By Erika Webb
ewebb@hometownnewsol.com

It takes a Votran fixed route bus driver about 12 years to drive one million miles.

Since Evett "Doc" Wilson has ferried Volusia passengers for 37 of the county's public transit service's nearly 40 years, he has driven three times that distance.

He's done it without a single, non-preventable accident, according to a Votran news release.

"Votran boasts 10 drivers who have each driven not one but two million accident free miles," the release stated. "Another 32 drivers working for the public transit agency have reached the one million safety milestone. These drivers show-

Market

In the meantime her goal is to make sure all product lines are available to the market's customers, hence her reliance on using a reseller, she said.

Councilman Bob Ford, in favor of the "ambiance" the market provides to City Center, expressed concern about the city's financial risk. "I would like to get a good sense of how much it really costs the city," he said.

Parks and Recreation Director Susan Lovallo told the council the market was self-sufficient, taking care of trash collection and the barricades used to segregate the market without city staff assistance. "(Also), because the market happens during regular business hours, there really is no added cost to the city," she said.

Mayor Green cast the only no vote to the rate reduction for City Center Market.

"The vendors and I were very pleased (with the council's decision)," Ms. Marks said in a follow up telephone interview. "The location is amazing. We absolutely love it. The City Circle is shaded, with wonderful facilities for our customers. It's perfectly set up for this kind of event," she said.

Ms. Marks said she is pleased with the market's results, but is now focusing on the future. "Every week traffic has increased. I hope to fill out the quarter circle (with more vendors) and when we really get jammin' keep on going around it," she said.

Recently Ms. Marks was named manager of the Port Orange Flea and Farmers' Market on South Ridgewood Avenue. "The owner, Mr. (Andy) Clark, read about City Center Market and checked it out. He called me and asked me to help reinvent his market," she said.

Plans for that market include paving to eliminate the dirt walkways and dirt parking lot, roof repairs, renovations of the pavilion and tables, and making the market more handicapped accessible. "We want it to be more inviting," Ms. Marks said.

"We are rebranding the market and changing the name to Sugarmill Market to tie it to the historic area of Port Orange that it's located in," she said. "We want it to be more family friendly."

In light of that goal, vendor rules will be changing. "We are eliminating guns and adult movies. The first thing I did was clean that up," she said.

Ms. Marks also is in negotiations with the county and Destination Daytona in Ormond Beach to start a Sunday market from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. each week. The market would take place in the front parking lot by Houligan's and, if approved, palns should be finalized in October.

Robert Link of Port Orange shops for vegetables at Ingrid's Fresh Produce during a visit to the Port Orange City Center Farmer's Market, Thursday, Aug. 28. The market is open every Thursday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Explaining her commitment to so many ventures Ms. Marks said, "I have a passion for this. I care about the vendors and I am a vendor myself."

The magical Cracker Creek of Port Orange

LAND LINES

DAN SMITH

You walk through a shaded leafy glade beneath the spreading limbs of large live oaks that are draped with gray Spanish moss.

Peacock and peahens roam freely near quaint cabins that blend perfectly with their surroundings. The path to the water is lined with stands of towering bamboo. At the boat launch you marvel at the water that is at once clear and yet stained as black as espresso. A current is moving so slowly eastward it is only visible to a trained eye. When a garfish boils to the surface it is momentarily startling but soon the calm returns and there is silence all around.

This is Cracker Creek, an amazing sanctuary tucked into the urban growth of East Volusia County. A little piece of old Florida that has somehow managed to remain mostly untouched by the population that surrounds it. Situated on the western end of Spruce Creek, it is truly a treasure.

On a recent visit, my talk with owner Jill Williams revealed the pride she and her family take in Cracker Creek. Rightfully so. At a time when our natural environment is constantly under attack, here is a place that remains as it was nearly 100 years ago when James Gamble of the Proctor and Gamble Co. bought the property.

The home he built for his wife and the cabin erected for his caretaker are still there. The famous Gamble house was built to resemble the Snow White cottage described in the novel. It is now owned by The Museum Of Arts and Sciences, but tours may be arranged through Cracker Creek.

Still, the star of the place is the creek itself. The canopied dark water stream looks as though it may have been created for a movie set. Aboard one of the big stable Eco Tour pontoon boats you might expect "The Creature From The Black Lagoon" to be around the next bend.

Along the way you will see plants and animals that are endangered and protected. Wading birds ply the shore as squirrels race overhead. At certain times you may encounter the flamingo look-a-like roseate spoonbills or soaring bald eagles. As the boat glides through the marsh grass you may see the resident alligators or perhaps a family of otters.

Whether you choose to go by tour boat, kayak or canoe you will be amazed by the sheer beauty.

One of my favorite trips is the Silver River that is formed by Silver Springs near Ocala. I have been boating there each summer for years and I can tell you Cracker Creek rivals that trip.

To me the most amazing part of the creek is it is right in town. After taking the tour, you will be only five minutes away from any number of fine restaurants. Before you go, take a look at the website at Cracker Creek.com and then call Jill at (386) 304-0778 for reservations. You may launch your own canoe or kayak for a nominal fee. This gorgeous piece of old Florida is west of Interstate 95 at 1795 Taylor Road.

If you think you have seen all that this area has to offer and have not visited Cracker Creek, you are missing out. This winter when company arrives from up north, you can thrill them with a Spruce Creek boat ride. Hats off to the Williams family for their work in preserving this pristine bit of nature.

Learn about square-foot gardening

Kevin Bagwell of Full Moon Natives Nursery will describe square-foot gardening during a free program at 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 14, at the Port Orange Regional Library, 1005 City Center Circle.

According to Mr. Bagwell, this simplified method of backyard gardening produces 100 percent of the harvest in 20 percent of the space using 80 percent less water. It requires no tilling or weeding. Gardeners simply build a raised bed, divide the space into sections of one square foot each, and plant seeds in just the amount of space they need.

Reservations are not required. For more information, call the library at (386) 322-5152, option 4.

ALS

"The word gratitude doesn't do enough to express what we are feeling right now," said Barbara Newhouse, president and CEO in a statement on the website. "We recognize a profound sense of urgency and are engaged in discussions about how we're going to put this money to work in the short term and into the future."

The challenge videos tended to be as unique as the individuals in them. Some were shy but altruistically determined.

Others let their personalities loose.

Candyce Potter of New Smyrna Beach (called Candygram by her grandchildren and others) donned a robe and shower cap for the occasion. The former kindergarten teacher, her granddaughter Graysen Potter and her grandson and pourer Griffin Potter, garnered a lot of "likes." Ms. Potter's getup — including glasses — made their friends rotfl.

One viewer commented she hoped it would go viral.

"We wanted it to be funny," Ms. Potter responded.

Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, also known as Lou Gehrig's disease, is a progressive neurodegenerative disease that affects nerve cells in the brain and the spinal cord.

"Eventually people with ALS lose the ability to initiate and control muscle movement, which often leads to total paralysis and death within two to five years of diagnosis. There is no cure and only one drug approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration that modestly extends survival," according to alsa.org.

Most commonly, ALS strikes people between the ages of 40 and 70, and as many as 30,000 Americans have the disease at any given time.

Tricia Woodyard of Deltona said she welcomed the ice bucket challenge because, for her, it hits close to home.

"My stepdad, Ernie Dignan, has been battling this horrible disease for the last two years and I've seen the progression it has taken and the care that is needed. He has lost so much weight and does not have the strength or energy to easily accomplish most daily activities, such as getting dressed or to eat, walk, stand, etcetera," Mrs. Woodyard said.

She's watched her mom, Carol Dignan, who continues to work as a Realtor with Watson Realty Corp. in New Smyrna Beach, become his caregiver, learning to adapt to the daily tasks.

"They're a great team, my Mom and Ernie, and it amazes me the patience they have and how they stay upbeat and appreciate everything and just enjoy every day," Mrs. Woodyard said. "There's a lot involved such as finding the right medical and insurance services available to help and cover supplies and she has also found ways to help him keep his independence with finding the right tools so he could open containers, button a shirt, zip his pants, hold a fork."

The disease's progression has now eliminated Mr. Dignan's ability to dress, shower or brush his teeth, so a Halifax Hospice nurse and CNA visit the couple weekly to help.

Theirs is a story that could fill a book. It's one heck of a love story.

Mrs. Dignan has lost a son to diabetes, a son-in-law to cancer and watched her daughter battle cancer, all in the span of three years.

Her beloved husband of 33 years was diagnosed with ALS May 18, 2012, on the first anniversary of her son's death.

The couple did their ice bucket challenge in the memorial garden they created for her son. The entire family thought the challenge was "wonderful."

As for what the challenge has to do with the disease:

"That's the way every patient and their family feel when they get the diagnosis," Mrs. Dignan said.

Funds from the challenge will be used for new research, care and support to people living with the disease, Ms. Newhouse stated, adding the organization plans to reevaluate and revamp strategies using stakeholder, donor and chapter input in addition to feedback from ALS sufferers and their families.

"We want to move quickly but decisively as our ultimate goal is to use this incredible generosity in a way that has the biggest impact on fighting this disease," she explained.

The Dignans attend the Volusia County ALS Resource Support Group meeting the third Wednesday of each month at 575 N. Clyde Morris Blvd., Daytona Beach.

Facilitator Aimee Freedman is the ALS Association Florida Chapter liaison and her help has been tremendous, Mrs. Dignan said.

She was instrumental in helping Mr. Dignan get a $38,000 power chair through Medicare.

The Dignans go to counseling, laugh every day, enjoy the flowers planted in the yard and hanging in baskets by every window. They cherish their children, grandchildren and great grandchildren.

"My kids are my strength," Mrs. Dignan said.

They love mornings when Mr. Dignan is able to be awake and they are company for one another.

They are grateful to Hospice for furnishing and delivering medications, and have contributed to the hope for a cure by traveling to Mayo Clinic in Jacksonville numerous times for Mr. Dignan to participate in six clinical trials.

The ALS Association, which has the highest four-star rating from Charity Navigator, is "Top Rated" on Charity Watch, and is a Better Business Bureau accredited charity as well as a Guidestar Exchange gold participant, according to its website, has pledged continued transparency, promising to "communicate regularly with all audiences" as to how Ice Bucket Challenge funds will "impact the fight against ALS."

The ALS Association has committed more than $67 million to find effective treatments and a cure for Lou Gehrig's disease, according to the website.

That global research effort has helped increase the number of scientists working on ALS, advanced new discoveries and treatments, and has shed light on the complex genetic and environmental factors involved in ALS.

"ALS is an every-day life challenge for many and the 'ALS Ice Bucket Challenge' is such a small task for us but yet the outcome is very large as it generates much needed awareness and donations to fund research and hopefully a cure," Mrs. Woodyard said. "When you think about it, we have our voice, our strength, can stand, walk and eat so why not help those that cannot and struggle with this every day!"

So far, Mr. Dignan has not lost his voice, a blessing for him and for others. He has an amazing sense of humor and every word he speaks is positive and comforting.

He regularly tells people: "I love you anyway, no matter what and there's nothing you can do about it."

Mr. and Mrs. Dignan are self-proclaimed control freaks.

Soon after the diagnosis Mrs. Dignan told a friend who said, "Two people with OCD, this is not going to be pretty."

Mrs. Dignan laughed uproariously at the recollection.

Asked where he's derived his strength to face each day, Mr. Dignan said,

"I just woke up to the fact that I have complete faith in my Lord and I need to exercise that more."

Recently he told his wife: "All the years I've been with you and it's not enough. When I leave you it will be too soon."

Carol and Ernie Dignan of Edgewater shared a tender moment. Mr. Dignan was diagnosed with ALS two and a half years ago.

Honoring our Veterans

Part One

With athletes and reality TV stars being hailed as today's heroes, it's critical we remind ourselves what it really takes to be considered "a person who is admired for great or brave acts." Rick Rescorla (May 27, 1939 – September 11, 2001) is a hero I would like you to meet.

FROM THE RICK RESCORLA MEMORIAL WEBSITE:

"My husband, Rick Rescorla, was one of the 3,000 Americans murdered by terrorists on 9/11/01. Rick was Vice President of Security for Morgan-Stanley/Dean-Witter, the largest tenant in the World Trade Center. His heroic actions on the day of the attack, along with his extraordinary foresight and preparation, saved the lives of 2,700 people. His story has been told on television and radio – in newspapers and magazines – and in the book Heart Of A Soldier, by Pulitzer Prize winner James B. Stewart. Rick is also on the cover of another book, We Were Soldiers Once... And Young, written by General Hal Moore and Joseph Galloway. You see, 9-11 was not the first time Rick had distinguished himself. 9-11 was just the last heroic chapter of his heroic life."

--Susan Rescorla

Rick Rescorla retired from the United States Army in 1990, as a Colonel. Over the course of his career he had been awarded a Silver Star, the Bronze Star with oak-leaf cluster, a Purple Heart, and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry. It was in Vietnam that he had distinguished himself, specifically in the first major American battle there—la Drang Valley (that remote swath of the Central Highlands which became known as the Valley of Death.) And while many American men of that era had burned draft cards or moved out of the country to avoid being selected for service, Rescorla volunteered for combat.

And he was NOT an American citizen.

Cyril Richard Rescorla was British. Born in 1939 in Hayle, a cargo port in west Cornwall, England, he left school and home at sixteen and joined the British military. First a paratrooper, then an intelligence officer in violence-torn Cyprus, Rescorla later joined Her Majesty's colonial force in Northern Rhodesia as a commando. He returned to London to serve in Scotland Yard's elite "Flying Squad" of detectives, but the job and the paperwork bored him.

The fights against Communist-backed insurgencies in Cyprus and in Rhodesia made Rescorla a fierce anti-Communist. He moved to America in 1963 so he could enlist in the Army to combat the communists in Vietnam.

In April 1965, Rescorla graduated basic training at Fort Dix, New Jersey as a second lieutenant. He was assigned to lead a platoon in Bravo Company of the 2nd Battalion of the 7th Cavalry, once General Custer's outfit at Little Big Horn, now a new helicopter-based fighting concept designed for Southeast Asia. That fall, President Johnson shipped him to Vietnam.

Between now and next week's continuation of this column, find a copy of We were Soldiers Once... and Young (1992. Random House.) It is an unforgettable accounting of the battle of the la Drang Valley. Make special note of the wiry warrior on the cover.

That is a young Rick Rescorla.

Need cinemas

As the old movie theater in New Smyrna Beach, just south of the library, closed for supposed refurbishing before reopening as an inexpensive second-run venue, it was my understanding a new state-of-the-art complex was to be built and opened by 2014.

With neither so far even starting to happen, the word is that it will happen by the start of 2015.

With DVD streaming or rentals and trips to the Hollywood Theater in Port Orange, what are movie lovers such as me to do?

City refuses to grow

Like the person who wrote in the Rants and Raves last week, I too got excited when I saw construction near the Chick-fil-A on U.S. 1 in Edgewater.

Soon I realized that once again the City of Edgewater refuses to grow. Refuses to offer anything new to this community. Refuses to encourage new business, job creating business or anything that just might give hope to those who would actually like to see a different reaction when you say you live in Edgewater. I am truly one who is tired of the comments made about this city even though they prove to be true.

"Oh you live in Edgewater? that explains it" "Oh Edgewater, Just more trash" "Oh the people in Edgewater are even dumber than the people in Oak Hill." I don't tell people where I live anymore because the looks it generates are never nice. If you want to say you live in Edgewater, you have to claim you live on Riverside Drive to be able to get any kind of respect. I just keep waiting for the dueling banjos and everyone else just stop asking for improvements, there is no money after city pay raises.

The Theft of ECHO

In 2007, the citizens of Volusia County voted to approve the ECHO grant program, which designates a portion of taxpayer money for the sole purpose of supporting Environmental, Cultural, Historical and Outdoor Recreation projects and institutions.

Now it seems the County Council wants to steal the money from ECHO and use it to buy beachfront property for parking. This is not what the voters voted on and if somewhere in the language it says the council can use the money for other purposes I highly doubt the voters knew about it at the time they voted for ECHO.

Lest someone think this beachfront parking falls into the "Outdoor Recreation" category of the ECHO program, let me quote from the County's own website: "Outdoor Recreation: Outdoor recreation plays an important role in the quality of life of Volusia County residents and tourists. The final ECHO resolution, passed by our citizens, resulted from a grass roots initiative that viewed Volusia County as an extensive and vibrant park system. Our county's abundant natural resources enrich our lives through passive and active sports parks. Additionally, the countywide trail system meanders as a linear park throughout Volusia County."

Adrienne Cooper, left, of Port Orange and Nadine Heusner of Bethune-Cookman University celebrate finishing the Odessa Chambliss Center for Health Equity Ovarian Cancer Awareness Walk/Run at City Island Parkway in Daytona Beach, Saturday Sept. 6. The Bethune-Cookman Petrock College of Health Sciences presen;ted the event in honor of Ms. Chambliss.

I see nothing in here that references parking. Parking will not bring more tourism or new residents to our area. Parking will not enrich the lives of the citizens of Volusia as does community theatre, arts and science museums, cultural events and historical places. Parking on our oceanfront properties certainly will not beautify our area, which goodness knows needs some beautification. The ECHO money goes to things that improve our economy, our desirability as a destination for both tourists and residents. This is not a fund to be plundered for parking beachside or otherwise.

Think about it

In regard to religion, freedoms must be fair.

Yes, they should be fair, but the way you talk about them they are not fair.

Isn't it enough they took prayer out the schools and if you believe in most of Jesus' teachings as the Bible describes, I don't understand what your problem is. So, think about it.

Available for hire

Wow, paying some political hack $2,800 a week to run Port Orange. How much did they pay the other guy so he would mess up? They blew $400,000 on parts they didn't need and drove everyone so nuts they quit. Plus they had to bill the town for water they used. Is there any money going under the table I wonder?

I would take a job for $1,000 a week. I couldn't mess up any worse than that.

School has rights

Chisholm Elementary School has a right to have a fundraising booth and I applaud the Krispy Kreme Co. for their help with fundraising. Apparently no other religious faith was interested in setting up a booth.

That said, you and your children had the right to not visit either booth. Please look at the letter beneath your rant. Kudos to the Jewish Federation for distributing 7,000 backpacks. Jesus still loves you, so have a doughnut.

Illegal accosting

I went with my boyfriend to vote at the New Smyrna Beach library. We pulled into a vacant handicapped parking spot, before we could turn off our car we were approached by a woman offering conservative ballots. When I mentioned I thought she wasn't suppose to confront or accost voters, she said that's all right, I am only handing out information.

Once inside I complained and the situation was taken care of. When we exited the building the campaigners had dispersed. Voters beware, do not let anyone accost you at the polls as it is illegal behavior.

Remains available

To the two young women from New Smyrna Beach Middle School: Sorry to disturb your bonfire the other night. I have collected the half burned remains of your school notebooks, schedules, plastic bottle, etc. if you would like to continue burning them, I have a fire pit in my back yard that I'd be glad to let you use. All you had to do was ask.

To New Smyrna Beach Middle School: If you would kindly provide adequate facilities for the burning of school-related items, your students would no longer be forced to hold their pagan fire rituals in the middle of the street next to my house or hide behind my neighbor's palm tree pretending they're invisible. They also would be at less risk of falling into the hands of our local neighborhood watch again. They carry machetes and do not mess around.

To the Jesus pencil evangelists from Chisholm Elementary School's orientation day: You might want to drop in on New Smyrna Beach Middle School.

Slogan offer

I hear the City of New Smyrna Beach is looking to change their slogan. I have one that is fabulous, I think.

New Smyrna Beach, the new and the old entwined. I have called all the people involved and no one has even had the courtesy to return my call. I have sent emails and no one is interested. I think New Smyrna Beach the old and new entwined is much better than what they have now.

Thanks, bank

Thank you to TD bank on State Road 44 for helping the community and supporting the helpless and needy and charities.

Stop blocking streets

We have all witnessed the package delivery trucks stopping wherever they want to. One company will stop on main roads, blocking other drivers without any regard. I recently saw one of that company's drivers take two and a half handicapped spaces. Was the driver handicapped?

The real question is why there are never any repercussions by law enforcement?

I can appreciate the hard work these people do, but laws should be applied for everyone. Let's see law enforcement take a stand for what is fair and right.

More roads need paving

I received my Hometown News, the first item that caught my eye today was the Edgewater bike trail segment will be done at a cost of $2.3 million.

I have a house in Edgewater. For 14 years we have been trying to get a road paved on Hamilton Road between Riverside Drive and Magnolia. I made my last call a month ago. I was told we were put on the scheduled for May 2016. If lucky I will be around then. If not, I tried.

Letters

Athletes also bridge walk

The only reason I have the Hometown News delivered to my west Ormond Beach home is because Dan Smith's attitude and consequent articles are interesting and pertinent to me.

I thank you for that, but you must pay better homage to the athletes that bridge walk . . . please. I personally know three women in their 60s, who do the entire bridge and underneath two times every day at an astonishing pace, with athletic clothing to maximize their performance level and comfort. I have used this, the only hill in town, to recover from surgeries and sports injuries, on foot and bicycle on numerous occasions.

Of course, I am wearing appropriate clothing, and maybe the occasional honk does help me know I am not alone in pain on the hill, but we girls are defying gravity, not looking for a date from traffic. Maybe if Mr. Smith tried the bridge watch one morning earlier you would see the activity on a more positive note? Maybe like fishing, we are more active when the day begins or with cooler temperatures?

See you there!

Don't demean Christians

This is in response to the writer who claimed to be "disgusted" that a booth was set up to offer Christian expressions during a recent social affair at Chisolm Elementary School.

Granted, in this day and age, with the misapplication of the concept of separation of church and state, it is a rarity for any religious expression in connection with a public institution. In this case, however, it merely represents the fervor of those believers seeking to express themselves. The writer further professes agreement with most of the teachings of Jesus, yet disclaims personal identification as a Christian. Is this a contradiction or is this individual just mixed up?

The writer adds it would be fairer if expressions from additional religions were also present but offers no suggestion that other sects sought similar access and were denied. Should Christians be demeaned because they are the only ones inspired to speak out? I say blessed are those who come in the name of the Lord!

In Volusia, a sports bar is never too far

VOLUSIA BUSINESS
CECIL G. BRUMLEY

I've been rather amiss in not writing about this sooner. But with football season well underway, it's time to look at the state of sports bars in Volusia County. You know we never have enough of them.

So, looking around the county, I'd say we're in pretty good shape, but not quite good enough for Dave & Busters . . . maybe with One Daytona. We have gotten a Buffalo Wild Wings in Daytona Beach, but there's still just one Hooter's. There are two Ker's WingHouses in Daytona Beach and Beef O'Brady's in DeLand, Deltona and New Smyrna Beach. It seems like West Volusia is a little underserved with sports bars, though.

What we do have is some of the best independent sports bars you'll find anywhere. The king, of course, is Houligan's with its original, somewhat small place in Ormond Beach as well as its much larger ones at Destination Daytona and Port Orange. The company also is looking at opening one at the old Olive Garden on West International Speedway Boulevard in Daytona Beach. McKenna's Place in New Smyrna Beach also has branched out, adding Port Orange with its unique seafood sports bar format.

There's no way you could name all of the sports bars in Volusia, but feel free to write us a note extolling the virtues of your favorite place. I live in Port Orange, so I'm a little spoiled when it comes to sports bar selections. Heck, I even venture into Giuseppe's for the pizza and wings, but never when the Steelers are playing. I'd get a little claustrophobic in that huge crowd.

Not a lot of new stuff business wise recently, but there are a few things to note. With William Square and WC Grand finally making some progress in Daytona Beach, White Challis Redevelopment is moving forward with permitting for The Tabby House in New Smyrna Beach. It will have 17 or 18 lots for townhouses, but the company is keeping the fire station building, New Smyrna Beach's original firehouse, in place. The company has struck out, so far, on projects in DeLand and Ocala, but it just shows how difficult it is to sell and get financing for its unique projects.

With demolition completed, Daytona Toyota is moving forward with its new facility at Nova Road and West ISB. It will include a used car showroom, body shop and service center.

Plans also are moving forward for Boulevard Shops, a six-unit strip center at 1301 W. Granada Blvd. in Ormond Beach.

A final note, yet another restaurant will give it a go at 180 N. Beach St. in Daytona Beach. Level 1 Café has been recommended by city staff for approval by the Downtown/Ballough Road Redevelopment Board.

Why Choose Vanacore – See what their customers say!
Building our home was a very positive experience. The Vanacore's were easy to work with, following through with changes we requested during the building process, and always courteous and professional.
Mr. and Mrs. Donald P
Everyone at Vanacore (is) so nice. They feel like family, willing to help with any little problem and to fix them quickly. I feel like my house is very well built and has very good insulation. My house is comfortable all of the time with low electric bills! It truly is my dream home!
John and Annie G
I have looked at all the brick manufacturers in the Volusia County area. Vanacore offers more standard features than any other. Some manufacturers may be cheaper in the front end but they charge you for every little add on. They charge extra for window sills. I spent five months talking and reviewing all brick home options and Vanacore is the best value and quality. Truly a great company to deal with.

South Daytona dental office offers relaxing atmosphere

Katie and Dr. Sean Bannan stand in the homey waiting room at Water's Edge Dental in South Daytona.

By J. M. Copeland
For Hometown News

Water's Edge Dental is a soothing name for an equally soothing dental practice.

Stepping into the waiting room may cause some to wonder if they have wandered into someone's home. The blue wash wooden floor, soft lighting, beach style furniture and comfortable chairs and couch are not the typical doctor's office décor.

"We are a fairly relaxed office and I want it to be that way the first time they step in the door," Dr. Sean Bannan said.

"I like the way it feels when you come in here. It's not stuffy," said his wife Katie Bannan.

A private consultation room is used for the doctor to meet with the patients to find out what their dental goals are.

"I get to know the patient and I want to know their goals. I tell them what I see going on and the prognosis," he said. "I say, 'I'll drive and you tell me where we are going and what route to take.'"

"So often the perception of the dentist is one of fear and pain," he said. "Most patients are not expecting what we are creating, a relaxed and caring environment.

The Bannans moved to the area with their sons Logan and Miles from Michigan.

"We were looking for a new adventure and of course there's the weather," Dr. Bannan said.

The son of a dentist, the dentistry field has always been an important part of Dr. Bannan's life. After earning a bachelor's degree in human physiology at Michigan State University, he attended the University of Michigan School of Dentistry and was awarded the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery.

Dr. Bannan opened the practice at 2644 S. Ridgewood Ave. in South Daytona in March 2014 after buying it from Dr. Dennis Kuack.

"I feel so fortunate and blessed that he chose me to pass this onto," Dr. Bannan said.

The equipment used in the office is designed to allow the patient to be an active part of the decision making process.

"We use digital X-ray to minimize their exposure to radiation and to show them on screen what I am seeing," Dr. Bannan said, referring to the TV screens at the end of the exam chairs. "It's one thing for me to tell them about a big crack in their tooth and another being able to show it to them on the screen."

The general practice office is a one-stop shop for the entire family and includes Invisalign orthodontics, implants and dentures.

"It's not one size fits all," he said. "Denture patients as a whole have been neglected. Dentures can be beautiful."

Replacing teeth, whether with implants or dentures, and restoring a patient's smile is something Dr. Bannan enjoys doing.

"I tell patients how important dental care is. It's life saving and not just about teeth anymore," he said. "It affects the rest of your body."

His wife Katie is wearing Invisalign to straighten her own teeth and to feel better about her smile.

Water's Edge Dental offers many financial options from prepayment discounts to monthly payments.

"We want to help you achieve your dental goals, hopes and dreams," Dr. Bannan said.

The dental office has a website, smiledaytona.com, that allows patients to see what services and options are offered before and after they have visited the dentist.

"My absolute favorite part of dentistry is the ability to form relationships with people of all walks of life, and to be able to have such a profound, positive impact is truly humbling and an honor. The trust that patients have in me when providing dental care is something I do not take lightly or for granted. I strive to treat each and every person I see in the same manner as if they were a family member of mine. Simply put, I love what I do," he states on his website.

case Votran's excellent safety record."

But, the agency reported, Mr. Wilson is the first Votran driver to achieve 3 million safe miles. He won Votran's first award for that accomplishment in 2013.

"The Votran team is very proud of Doc and we commend him for his outstanding achievement," said Votran General Manager Steven Sherrer in the release. "I believe that he is the first in the state to reach this level."

In July, Mr. Wilson was recognized by the National Safety Council with a special "Award of Honor" for his years of safe driving.

But that's not even the whole story.

Mr. Wilson's "achievement file is about an inch thick with many compliments of a job well done," according to Votran Assistant General Manager of Operations and Maintenance Elizabeth Suchsland.

Official accolades for Perfect Attendance, Safe Driver of the Year, Employee of the Month, and the Award of Honor for the South Atlantic Region in 2009 fill his personnel folder.

The eastside operator, who drives daily on Route 40 and Route 41, also has been commended for excellent customer service and has participated in numerous special events.

"One passenger commented that 'he answers passengers' questions with a smile,'" Ms. Suchsland noted in an emailed statement.

As part of his safety record recognition, Mr. Wilson was chosen to throw the ceremonial first pitch Aug. 29 at the Daytona Cubs game at Jackie Robinson Ballpark.

Going day by day and focusing on the job at hand has gotten Mr. Wilson through the decades, he said in a phone interview. So has the training he's received from Votran throughout each year.

In addition to their safety, he pays attention to passengers' other needs.

"Based on the economy we have going on right now, the majority of the people taking the bus are searching for jobs, for places to stay and going to doctors' offices," Mr. Wilson said. "Trying to keep the bus on time and get them to their destinations on time keeps me going to serve them."

But how does one deal with that many people, day in and day out and not get disgusted?

"Oh we get disgusted," Mr. Wilson said laughing heartily. "But at the same time, for the most part, the majority of passengers are very nice and when you get disgusted those people bring you down to earth and make you feel good about people and about your job. Some very nice people ride the bus."

Mr. Wilson and his "fellow million milers have driven an impressive 44 million safe miles," the release stated. "Enhanced technology on the buses adds to the safety."

Mr. Wilson credited the announcement system on the buses with enabling drivers to concentrate more on driving and said the announcements are clearer to the riders."

"Safety is a top concern," added Mr. Sherrer. "These drivers are evidence of the extreme quality of our service. But what makes it even better is these guys do it with a level of courtesy and professionalism that sets a benchmark for others to meet."

The Volusia County Council created the public transportation system, called Votran, in 1975 as a service of Volusia County Government. The agency provides transportation to all urban areas of the county with a fleet of 56 revenue-producing, fixed route buses, 44 para-transit vehicles and a commuter vanpool program.

You can tell Votran is proud of its driver Doc Wilson and his 3 million miles without an accident. Mr. Wilson stands in front of a festooned bus with Melinda McCrae, Votran fixed route supervisor.

ing a house pleasant and clean, including the yard. And with learning how to budget and save for everyday things like vacations and outings.

The third resident is Kelly Johanessen, who also happens to be the chief operating officer for WORC, and who believes in the project so much she's moved in — with Oreo, who's her dog — and left her own home to be part of the family in the Willow Run house.

If the small group is a family, Ms. Johanessen is very much the parent, even though Ms. Melillo and Mr. Burnside are adults.

"I made the commitment to move in here because I wanted to foster a culture that would provide an actual engaged lifestyle for these individuals," she said.

She explained it's very important to show people like her housemates, both of whom have worked for several years at jobs in standard commercial businesses, that they can be responsible and reliable. She wants them also to be able to interact with the "normal" world — able to go shopping for their own groceries, walk the dog, go to movies and on outings spontaneously.

That doesn't mean they're totally on their own. She drives them to shopping and on their outings and is there for them day in and day out. Sometimes one of them might be in the house alone for a short time, she explained, if, for instance, Ms. Melillo is out with her mother and Ms. Johanessen and Mr. Burnside go shopping, it's OK for Nichole to return first and let herself in until the other two return.

They all go to work every day — Mr. Burnside works at the Steak n' Shake in Ormond Beach and Ms. Melillo works at the Publix at Dunlawton Avenue and Nova Road in Port Orange.

When they get home, they have dinner together. Mr. Burnside is delighted that he's learning to use the grill. And they plan the dinners together.

The two-story house on Edna Drive is expected to be home to a few more of WORC's clients soon — the plan is for a total of six residents to join, but they have to be carefully selected to be "a good fit," Ms. Johanessen said.

Getting the Willow Run house turned into a home for the WORC clients wasn't an easy process.

After WORC's board got behind the project, they had the usual process of house-hunting for a suitable large family home, getting a mortgage (the mortgage on the house is $200,000 and is paid out of WORC's operating expenses) and then the slightly less usual process of getting the appropriate permits from the city and the state authorities that have to approve group homes like this.

So, even though they'd found and bought the house in December, it took months until they could move in. In the meantime, Mr. Burnside was the first client chosen to move in and he then became one of those who had to vet and approve Ms. Melillo.

They also got to help choose everything that would go inside the house — from the paint on the walls to the televisions and the couches and chairs. Ms. Johanessen said it was important the couches and chair in the living room recline — and they both tried out several different styles before they decided on the set that was just right.

Mr. Burnside enthusiastically shares that he's very happy with the choice and calls Ms. Melillo his "sister" — though he knows their little family is one of choice, and said they really like hanging out and doing things together.

He's very excited they are planning a camping trip as a family — probably to Key West, though Ms. Johanessen said that's still not definite. They are saving their change and adding money to the jar that will add up to fund the trip.

She said she'd hoped some of Mr. Burnside's old housemates from Dove Villas would be moving in with them, but was very surprised and disappointed their families had decided to keep them in the "more restrictive" environment.

But once they do have things settled in, she said they'll get back to actively searching for more residents to expand their family.

"It's literally my mission to see that the culture of the house is cohesive. I will not compromise the integrity of the group," she said, explaining that every addition to the household has to be someone they all agree will be a good member of their team.

Mr. Burnside explained, "Me and Nichole have known each other for years. We're friends."

And they enjoy everything about having a home of their own, including taking care of it. He even expects to start pitching in mowing the lawn soon. Just like any other householder in the neighborhood.

Volusia County Sheriff's Office makes promotions

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

He's known as one of the most skilled police motorcycle riders in the country, having won numerous law enforcement competitions.

He's also known as a well-rounded supervisor who consistently demonstrates effective decision-making, sound judgment, professionalism and an enthusiasm for the job.

Now, Eric Westfall also is known as the Volusia County Sheriff's Office's newest captain.

Sheriff Ben Johnson promoted Capt. Westfall earlier this week in a well-attended ceremony at the Deputy Stephen Saboda Training Center in Daytona Beach.

Capt. Westfall, 41, has been with the Sheriff's Office for 21 years, starting his career in September 1993. During those two decades of service, he has set the bar high in every assignment and has never failed to exceed expectations. "It's a great honor and a pleasure to be able to present you with your captain's badge," Sheriff Johnson told Capt. Westfall. "You've worked hard for it."

He has served in a variety of assignments, including patrol, motors, court security, civil and communications. He also served a stint as watch commander, with his last assignment as assistant district commander of the Sheriff's Office's Deltona headquarters. In his new role, Capt. Westfall will serve as the agency's court services supervisor.

He has an associate degree in criminal justice, an associate degree and a bachelor's degree in supervision and management, all from Daytona State College. He also is a graduate of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement's Leadership Academy.

Also promoted this week to the rank of sergeant was David King. An eight-year veteran with the Sheriff's Office, Sgt. King, 28, started with the agency in May 2006. He will serve as a patrol supervisor.

State health report looks at frequent ER trips

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Five people used a Volusia County emergency department on 398 separate occasions in 2012, racking up $1.5 million in hospital charges, according to a report released by the Department of Health in Volusia County.

The report describes the frequency in which people use hospital emergency department services in Volusia and highlights the financial impact of over usage.

The three most common reasons "frequent" and "super users" visited area emergency departments in 2012 was for abdominal pain, urinary tract infections and headaches, the report shows.

"This is a hot issue that has been discussed in our community for years and now we have some of the data associated with excessive hospital emergency department usage," said Dr. Bonnie J. Sorensen, director of the Department of Health in Volusia, in a news release. "Once you understand the data you can begin to address the problem."

Other highlights of the report, which used data from 2012, include:

•Frequent or super users accounted for 10 percent (24,153) of all Volusia emergency department visits (240,776).

• Of all emergency department charges ($498.5 million), 10.1 percent ($50.3 million) are from frequent and super users in Volusia.

•75.8 percent of frequent and super users in Volusia are white.

•Females (65.5 percent) had almost twice as many frequent and super user emergency department visits as males (34.5 percent).

The Annals of Emergency Medicine describes frequent users as patients with 7 to 20 visits per year. Super users are described as patients with 21 or more visits per year.

For more information or to see the Public Health Data Brief, visit volusiahealth.com. The document is located under the Office of Informatics and Assessment.

Managers Mike Andrasco and Larry Braidlow relax at the bar of the San Diego Grill at the Pavilion at Port Orange.

Eatery offers a taste of California

By J.M. Copeland
For Hometown News

Tucked inside restaurant row at the Pavilion in Port Orange is some west coast influence. Not the west coast of Florida, the west coast of the country, California to be exact.

The San Diego Grill is one of three California-flavor restaurants operated by Jill and Sunny Smith. The other two are the Monterey Grill and Malibu Beach, and each has its own unique menu.

What immediately appealed to me were the comfy, high back booths providing more intimacy than the average restaurant booth. They complemented the décor of glass ribbon lamps, the polished bar and soothing colors.

"One of the most exciting things about the place is the atmosphere and the décor," said Larry Braidlow, one of the managers.

The relaxed atmosphere extends to a patio that wraps around one side of the restaurant.

We were welcomed by Jessica and offered the restaurant's signature drink: the Jalapeno Margarita, infused jalapeno tequila with Patron Citronge liqueur, lime, and fresh homemade sour mix garnished with, what else — a jalapeno pepper.

"It has a kick to it," Jessica told us.

We decided on Arnold Palmers — ice tea and lemonade — very refreshing and not too sweet.

The specials for this evening were prime rib with salad and a side dish and a fried seafood platter.

I ordered prime rib, which was cooked so perfectly it melted in my mouth while my hubby selected the fried seafood platter and raved about the lightly breaded fresh fish.

Appetizers were a must, but selecting one was not an easy task. Tempted by the quesadilla, fried pickles and red onion rings, we decided on the fried pickles, after we learned the red onion rings could be ordered as a side dish.

We were not disappointed; the Downtown Daytona Nights set for Sept 12

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Downtown Daytona Nights returns to Beach Street Friday, Sept 12.

The free street festival will be from 5 to 9 p.m. in the 100 block of North Beach Street and features live music from Young Sullivan and Summer of '69, a Bryan Adams Tribute Band; food courts; arts and craft vendors; kid's craft stations; face-painting; and plenty of giveaways.

This family-friendly block party offers friends and co-workers a place to gather after work and the opportunity to experience the restaurants and retail shops in the downtown district they might not have known about previously. Streets will be closed during the event and parking is plentiful in the downtown area, behind the stores and on side streets.

Nights is an event of the Downtown Development Authority and is presented by Southern Stone Events.

Week of 9-12-2014

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20

Aries, though you are usually up for a conversation with someone you don't know, this week you could be in a more conservative mood. You'll have future chances to chat.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21

You have been on a shopping binge of late, Taurus. If you have unlimited funds, this would not be so problematic. But finances are tight, and you should be more cautious.

GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21

Gemini, you are often an entertaining and fun person to have around. This is probably why you get so many invitations to parties and other social occasions. Enjoy your fanfare.

CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22

Surround yourself with children this week, Cancer. They'll provide the unedited, honest information you desire right now. It can certainly be eye opening.

LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23

Spend some quality time with a romantic partner this week, Leo. He or she can provide more of what you need, such as true affection and companionship, than what's offered by friends.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Virgo, you deserve credit at the office. If you're patient, some measure of recognition will come your way this week. It's a start to getting what you need.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Few people will accuse you of being uncommunicative, Libra. In fact, you're usually downright chatty. It's one of the traits people will admire most in you this week.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Scorpio, a new person comes into your life and your attraction to this person catches you off guard. It's okay to flirt, but if you're

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Sagittarius, you're often the one to take the lead in conversations in your group of friends, but this week someone else takes the lead. You're content to sit back and simply listen.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Capricorn, once you have gained enough confidence in a special interest, you may be able to turn it into a career instead of just a hobby. Keep working toward that goal.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

It's time to tie up some loose ends, Aquarius. Rustle up some energy to take care of all those little things that need to be wrapped up. You'll feel a weight lift afterward.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20

Pisces, increase your level of activity this week. Exercise can do you a world of good, especially if you've felt sluggish of late.

GARDEN NOOK
JOE ZELENAK

With all the negative talk about using insecticides and garden chemicals, it is more important than ever to use natural defenses as a first option and only use chemical methods if all other methods fail.

One of the methods I recommend is actually using beneficial bugs to eat other bugs you want to get rid of. In Florida, one of the most beneficial is the Lady Bug.

The lady bug, or lady beetle, is probably one of the most colorful and best-known insects you actually welcome to your garden. These delightful insects prey and eat such insects as scale, mealy bugs and mites along with other varieties of insect pests. In Ohio, the lady bug has become the official state insect.

Adult lady beetles are domed shaped and they often have a shiny appearance to their bodies. The most common color is the distinctive red with the black markings. They also can be seen with colorings anywhere from dark reddish orange to a pale yellow with black markings.

The life cycle of the lady beetle can vary depending on the time of year, but the average life cycle is around five weeks. Lady beetles can lay eggs on plants, often where aphids are present, and the larvae will begin to eat the insects as soon as they hatch. One larva can consume up to 400 aphids. They are amazing eaters.

Lady beetles can be bought in bulk on the Internet. They are inexpensive and can provide some beneficial results. Sometimes when the insects are purchased in this manner, they may fly away from the area you want them to flock to, especially if there is a lack of food. I often see lady beetles on plants I buy from local nurseries. Often, the nurseries themselves will use this method to help keep insects in check.

In short, this could be a fun way to experiment to see how well this method may actually work for you. It could also be a great science project for your kids at school.

Another great insect to have the garden is the praying mantis. These unique insects can blend in very well with their surroundings and are often not seen because of this reason. Like the lady beetle, they eat all types of insects and are very effective at controlling insects on your plants. These insects can grow very large, often more than two inches in length. I have on occasion seen them in my own gardens around the house. They are the state insect of Connecticut and they are protected in that state.

If you spot any of these beneficial insects in your yard or garden, take care not to kill or disturb them. Remember, they are your friends and will help to eat many of the insects that you normally have to kill with chemical pesticides.

If you want more information on natural ways to control insects in gardens, you can refer to my article about insecticides at hometowngarden.com. Simply log on and go to the "all about insecticides" link.

Eatery

fried pickles were battered in light layers and finished with a breaded panko, which gave it a decisive crunch with just a hint of tartness from the pickle. I am not a big fan of horseradish and tentatively dipped the tip of the pickle into the sauce and was pleasantly surprised with a flavorful, but not overwhelming sauce.

"All of our sauces are made from scratch on a daily basis," Mr. Braidlow explained.

The sauces were a preview of the rest of the meal. Every day the chefs, or kitchen managers as they are referred to, arrive before the restaurant opens to prep fresh food for the day.

"The chefs take the owner's recipes and make them daily, they come in hours before we open to prep fresh every day." Mr. Braidlow said. "We call them kitchen managers and we all work in harmony to make it work."

"We aren't afraid to season our food here with a blend of seasonings to bring out the true flavor of the food," Mr. Braidlow said. "If you want it hotter we can do that. We make it to order and adjust our cooking style to fit what the diner wants."

Change is good and even encouraged at the San Diego Grill.

"We have revamped our menu in the last month," said Mike Andrasco, another manager.

Pasta bowls have joined the rice bowls on the menu.

"The rice bowls have been very popular," Mr. Andrasco said.

Another change came about by popular request.

"Comments from our customers indicated they wanted brunch more than one day a week, so we started offering brunch daily from 11 to 3," Mr. Andrasco said.

Not everyone comes in for lunch or dinner, some just want to enjoy a drink with friends and the bar is the perfect place. Happy Hour is 4 to 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. to close. Televisions are mounted in the bar area, but they are not intrusive to other diners and, according to Mr. Braidlow, there are times when diners join those at the bar for special events.

"During the (Kentucky) Derby, everyone came from their tables and watched the race . . . and then there was the World Cup," he said.

We made sure there was room for dessert, also freshly made on site. We ordered the Ghiradelli brownie sundae with vanilla bean ice cream and Key Lime pie. The sizes were so generous we could have shared one. I plan to make another trip just for another Ghiradelli brownie sundae.

Too tired to eat out? Call ahead and pick up your order on the way home, or if you work in the Pavilion, the restaurant will deliver.

The San Diego Grill is open 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday; and 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Sunday. Contact it at (386) 256-3521 or visit sandiegogrill.net.

Road to the LPGA leads to Daytona Beach

The Symetra Tour's "Road to the LPGA" got a little longer this year.

In its 34th year, the tour added five tournaments to its schedule, making it 20 stops in total.

Players are competing for the largest total purse in tour history this year at $2.25 million.

With 144 players, each tournament stop nets a player between $100,000 and $150,000 in prizes. The tour began in February and concludes Sept. 18-21 at LPGA International in Daytona Beach.

The Symetra Tour has partnered with the Boys & Girls Clubs as the tournament beneficiary. The goal is to grow the magnitude of the event by making it the season-ending championship event, building out a week-long schedule of supporting events while raising awareness for the tournament and the Boys & Girls Clubs.

Cost to attend the event is $10, but is free to Volusia County residents with proper ID on Saturday, Sept. 20. Kids are always free.

The Symetra Tour Championship boasts a purse of $150,000 and the event is set to donate more than $125,000 to the Boys & Girls Clubs of Volusia and Flagler Counties.

Other planned events include:

•Brown & Brown 5K & 10K run

•Cobb Cole Charity Texas Hold 'em Tournament presented by Cobb Cole

•Symetra Tour Championship presented by Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University

•Michelob Ultra "Swing for Success" charity golf tournament.

Fisher brother earns Inshore Classic slam

The Halifax Sport Fishing Club's 13th Annual Inshore Classic Saturday, Sept 6, couldn't ask for more appropriately named winners.

The Fisher brothers, Bill, Bob and John, all finished in the money. Bill, who's from Port Orange, won the overall slam payout of $500 with 21.1 pounds of fish.

When pressed on some of his secrets, he said he caught them "down south east of the west channel," which would put you on dry land. After he had a good laugh, he said Pig Fish were the bait for the day. He got the his 8.5 pound Jack in the river, his 6.5 pound Red in the back water on an oyster pile and his 5.1 pound Trout was the result of putting the rod in a rod holder to get a drink. When he picked up the rod the Trout was there.

Results for the tourney:

Hatters honored for play

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Several Stetson Hatters were recognized for their performances in the 35-16 victory over Warner.

Defensive back Donald Payne was selected as Pioneer Football League Defensive Player of the Week for the third time in his career. Against Warner, he scooped up a blocked punt and returned it 25 yards for a touchdown and also recorded his third career interception. He also was named PFL Defensive Player of the Week by collegesportsmadness.com.

Kicker Grant Amick was named PFL Special Teams Player of the Week. Against Warner, he connected on a pair of field goals, including one from a school record 48 yards. He also averaged 54 yards on five kickoffs and connected on both of his PAT kicks.

Stetson coaches recognized six players for their contributions.

Receiver Chris Crawford was named offensive player of the week following his five-reception performance against Warner. He totaled 72 yards through the air and scored the Hatters' first offensive touchdown on a high-flying 19-yard pass from Ryan Tentler.

Defensive end Davion Belk was selected as defensive player of the week. He was credited with five total tackles, had a share of a tackle for loss and had three quarterback hurries.

Safety Ryan Powers was special teams player of the week. Powers finished with four tackles overall, blocked a punt and forced another bad punt, both of which led to Stetson scores.

Defensive back Jeb Boudreaux was given the Big Hit Award for a block he delivered on a punt return late in the game.

Two players were recognized as Scout Team players of the week for their efforts in helping the team prepare for the game with Warner — freshman running back Devin Gillotte and sophomore linebacker Dylan Wydronkowski.

Stetson plays Mercer at Spec Martin Stadium in DeLand at 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 13.

For ticket information, call (386) 738-4287, email hattertickets@stetson.edu or visit GoHatters.com/tix.

Seeking an undersized inshore grand slam

FISHING WITH DAN

DAN SMITH

Like you, when I leave the house to go fishing I always carry along a big load of high expectation.

No matter that my last two trips into the Halifax River yielded next to nothing. Striking out across the water in my Green Peanut always means I have a positive attitude on board.

It was right at dawn and I could see that something was feeding on the first point I approached. That was a place where I had not caught anything in a long time, but I began to make a few casts. The red and white MirrOlure splashed down right in the center of the disturbance and after a couple twitches I was hooked up to a small fish. After a couple strong runs I was thinking ladyfish, but it turned out to be a 14-inch snook. That was a nice surprise and the little snook conveniently released itself at the boat.

After a couple more throws I had another of the same size. This one made a good jump and slung the lure out. Always fun to catch snook no matter the size, but I had larger game in mind. Near the engine block, a nice sized red drum began following my plug. The water the fish was pushing told me it was probably over 20 inches and I held my breath waiting for the strike. I slowed the bait, then speeded it up and began to twitch it, but the hit never came. When the red saw the kayak it made an abrupt about face and sped away.

There is nothing more heart stopping for a fisherman than to watch a big fish stalk your bait. When the hit never happens you always second-guess yourself.

Poking around a little farther north, I encountered a school of small sea trout. The schoolers were holding near a submerged oyster bar. By then the sun was full up and I had switched to the Grandslam Bait Lite Beer shrimp tail. I had threaded it onto a 1/8 oz. white jig head. The feisty trout went at it hard and ate two tails before I caught the first fish. Soon I had another, but both were undersized and released.

After paddling to the western edge of the bay I hooked a flounder, but the flatfish was also too small to keep. Now I was beginning to see a pattern. With the morning getting away from me, I began to think inshore grand slam. I had already caught and released a redfish, two trout and a flounder that I could count as a nice slam, but I had nearly caught a pair of snook to make it the ultimate inshore grand slam.

With the realization I probably would not be taking home dinner, I now had a new goal and revisited my first stop where the baby snook had been so active. It came as no surprise the snook now had lockjaw. I knew the same ones feeding at dawn still lurked nearby, but nothing I had would tempt them now. Still I flailed about for a good half hour, determined to complete my undersized grand slam, but a small jack was all that hit. Does that count? Is a jack, trout, red and flounder any type of slam? Will you give it to me that the snook that came off at the boat was an actual catch? No, I didn't really think so. Oh well, tomorrow is another day. Next time for sure!

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for more than 40 years. Email questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net. His book, "I Swear the Snook Drowned," is available for $10.95 at (386) 441-7793.
