Complaints continue for communications pole

By Jacob Cameron
For Hometown News

Residents packed the Port Orange City Council meeting Aug. 21 to voice their concerns over the location of a cell phone tower.

Some council members agreed with them that the site for the tower at Port Orange United Church of Christ at 651 Taylor Road would be inappropriate.

Vince Tarsitano, who lives in the adjacent Steeple Chase neighborhood, stated the proposed pole would be located within a quarter mile of his house.

"If this cell tower is approved, it would be completely out of character for Port Orange and city officials to approve such an erection within an entirely residential area," Mr. Tarsitano said.

Councilman Bob Ford echoed the sentiment of Mr. Tarsitano. "In my opinion, having looked at the site, it is totally inappropriate," he said.

Councilman Ford added, "The message I want to send to AT&T tonight is that I'm opposed to this because it is a violation to our land development code."

Fellow Councilman Drew Bastian added, "I don't see a need for it and I think that the property location is just totally inappropriate. There has to be other areas in the city that can provide a better location."

AT&T, which submitted the application to build the pole, sent a legal representative to the meeting. She assured the council the company would adhere to the Land Development Code; just as she did at last month's planning board meeting.

Eugene "Trip" Healy and Paul Kern presented their case to the council just as they had done the previous month. And the council seemed to be against the tower; even though they couldn't take any official action.

City Manager Jake Johansson stated, "The staff has the obligation to make sure that the staff has everything researched and right before we finally make this decision."

New school security in place; programs starting

By Gina McKee
gmckee@hometownnewsol.com

All Volusia County Schools have either a school guardian or a law enforcement officer, which is especially new for elementary school students this year, but there are a few differences between the two.

The chief difference between a law enforcement officer or a school guardian is that guardians do not have the authority to make an arrest and are employees of the school district.

"Guardians have undergone extensive background checks, drug testing, a psychological screening, 132 hours of training with the (Volusia County) Sheriff's Office, 12 hours of diversity training and another 12 hours of training on security in schools and strategies for dealing with students," Nancy Wait, VCS director of community information services, explained in a news release. "Guardians will carry a concealed weapon and wear a district polo that identifies him or her as a guardian."

Every middle and high school within the district are assigned VCSO deputies or police officers, and with the exception of Champion, Palm Terrace, South Daytona, Turie T. Small and Westside elementary schools, which have Daytona Beach Police Officers, all other elementary schools in the district either have, or will have School Guardians.

At present, Chisholm, Edgewater Public, Friendship, Holly Hill (K-8), Indian River, Sunrise, Volusia Pines

By Diane M. Carey

It's a part of Daytona State College many may not know about, but the Southeast Museum of Photography is celebrating 40 years of showcasing the art of photography.

On the main campus of DSC, the website states, "The museum exhibits, collects, preserves, and interprets photography to facilitate teaching and learning at Daytona State College, and enhances the community's understanding and appreciation of culture, history, art and photography."

Museum Director James Pearson, now in his third year, said it was born out of a commercial photography program at the community

Halifax Humane Society reaches funding goal

By Diane M. Carey
dcarey@hometownnewsol.com

After three years, the Halifax Humane Society's "Reimaging the Future" campaign has achieved its capital funding goal.

Thanks to donors throughout Volusia County, the $3.6 million capital campaign goal is now complete with the last of the contributions raised at the Neighbors Helping Neighbors Golf Tournament Aug. 18 at LPGA International.

"It was a long time coming," said Pam Clayton who is the society's chief financial development officer. "A capital campaign is a huge endeavor, especially for a not-for-profit. We are so grateful to all of our valued donors for helping us achieve our capital campaign goal. This effort has been a major accomplishment and we could have never achieved success without the support of the entire community."

The capital campaign got a big boost from Nancy and Lowell Lohman, who donated more than $1 million towards the Lohman Adoption and Pet Center, and from Patricia Culler, who donated more than $500,000 for the Lee C. and Patricia Culler Boarding, Grooming and Travel Center."

The first phase of the capital campaign was the addition of the dog park, funded in part by a Volusia County ECHO grant. There is a large dog and small dog play yard, along with a walking trail at the park, which is open daily.

The second phase of the capital campaign was the Culler Boarding, Grooming and Travel Center to help provide a regular revenue stream to support the shelter's services.

"The final phase of the campaign is to transform the main building to facilitate great beginnings to lifelong relationships and provide enhanced educational opportunities," Ms. Clayton said.

has been enlarged and redesigned to improve guest experiences with private, get acquainted rooms for potential adopters and animals. A new space for pet retail items will offer more pet products. A space also has been created to perform behavior assessments, which should expedite movement of animals to the adoption floor.

Ms. Clayton said the education room will be updated with improved technology to provide engaging summer camps, animal welfare training, animal obedience and volunteer training. Hospital grade tile will be installed throughout the animal movement areas in the building to prevent spread of disease.

"No funding will be spent to enhance administrative offices as they remain functional, though humble, spaces," she said.

The non-profit Halifax Humane Society has served the Greater Daytona Beach area since 1937. As one of the largest humane societies in Florida, it handles more than 25,000 animals each year.

HHS has a four-star rating on the Charity Navigator, thanks to its efficiency and transparency. Since 2012, intake is down 44 percent, which can be attributed to aggressive spay/neuter initiatives as well as programs to keep animals in homes. Euthanasia numbers continue to decline with a 14 percent decline from 2016 to 2017, the numbers are down 71 percent since 2012.

"We are not the same shelter many remember," Ms. Claytona said. "We have changed over time."

Executive Director Miguel Abi-hassan said in the past people might visit the shelter once every seven years to adopt a pet. "We want to be a regular stop in the life of a Volusia County resident, and a safe and informative stop for visitors to our community. We hope to achieve this by adding pet-centric recreational opportunities, support services and fun activities."

The society also hopes to bring the community together, Mr. Abi-hassan said. "Our vision to address the problem of pet overpopulation is only as strong as the community that pulls together to unite for it."

college. It started with three glass display cases requested by instructor Dan Biferie in the photography department. It kept getting larger and when collections of artworks started coming in, and were housed in a new building, that was the true beginning, Mr. Pearson said.

"From that one piece, 40 years ago, we are now sitting on 5,000 photographs and photographic ephemera," he said. "It was a grass roots campaign. What separates us from galleries is our collections."

The museum also has a community mission, providing workshops and classes.

Also, it is actually part of a community, Mr. Pearson said. "We call this partnership the Southeast Center for Photographic Studies. It is the museum, Daytona State College photography department and the University of Central Florida photography that is taught on this campus. The three of us combined, we have lots of offerings."

Both students and faculty have their work displayed as well as work from children that attend workshops. All museum programs are free.

Workshops can include topics such as preservation of family photographs, archiving and cataloging, basic digital camera operations and composition techniques, and even intermediate to advanced lighting and editing techniques.

Family Photo Fun Days, offered one to two times a year allow families to receive a free family portrait. Art in Action is an ongoing monthly program where veterans meet and learn from professional artists, to discover and cultivate their own talents, and to transform their experiences through the thoughtful and therapeutic form of self-expression.

The two-week digital photo academy each summer allows teens ages 14-17 to learn a wide range of photographic styles while creating their own portfolio in the process. Top photos are included for display in the Youth Gallery Space at the museum. There are also free teen photography outings.

Christina Katsolis is the museum's programming director and in charge of the Digital Photo Academy. "We had 15 participants," she said. "We have quite a few that continue year to year so when they graduate, they actually have a pretty professional photo portfolio. I have had certain students get full rides to our colleges by showing off that portfolio.

"I think it is important that people feel like this is their museum," Ms. Katsolis said. "There are a lot of programs we have that they can take advantage of, even early on. I see how talented these young kids are and they are eager to learn."

Art Speaks: Voices from the Community is a lecture series hosted by the museum, designed to engage the community by presenting a wide array of guest speakers and professional photographers.

The museum also houses a gift store and, during the fall and spring, the Cinematic Discussions film series is curated by Senior Professor of Photographic Studies Eric Breitenbach. Screenings take place on select Wednesdays at 2 and 6 p.m. in the Madorsky Theater at the museum, and admission is free.

Exhibits change every 6-8 weeks with 8-10 different exhibits a year and include work from faculty members, youth workshop attendees and internationally known photographers.

The museum is now one of only 13 facilities in the U.S. dedicated exclusively to photography, and one of only a handful of such institutions nationally that share a scope, reach, and depth of collection and activities in this specific field.

"Photography is a continuously changing field," Mr. Pearson said. "Photography is contingent on the type of technology that produces it. You are going from darkroom work and film to digital. Photography is an art form like no other that can bring people together."

He described one current exhibit by faculty member Jayanti Seiler as a gateway to a bigger idea. "All of these pictures point to the relationship between humans and animals and what that really means. Photos more than anything can change people's minds," Mr. Pearson said.

While admission is free, a funding cutback has prodded the museum to request a $5 donation at the door. Donors will receive a button to wear at future visits, so they won't be asked to donate again.

"I want to ensure that the museum is here another 40 years," Mr. Pearson said. " My goal is to raise and endow funding so that programs in the museum can remain." A Friends of the Museum group is also being formed.

The museum is in the Mori Hosseini Center at 1200 W. International Blvd. in Daytona Beach. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday and Friday; 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday; and 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday. It is closed Sunday and Monday.

The election preview in the Aug. 24 Hometown News should have noted Lorraine Geiger was the head of the Daytona Beach Shores Culture & Entertainment Board, not Michael Politis. Ms. Geiger was on the board for 10 years and was Volunteer of the Year in 2011.

Also, in an article about Mitchell the bird, Chris Wise should have been referred to as a she and not a he.

Racing history at the North Turn

LAND LINES
DAN SMITH

Not long ago I was a guest on The Legends of Racing pod cast and radio show at Racing's North Turn Restaurant in Ponce Inlet.

That program is normally hosted by the ultimate NASCAR historian Buz McKim, but on that day he was out of town and Roland Via took over as M/C. Many of you will know Roland as the long time morning talk show host on WELE radio and as former mayor of Holly Hill.

Buz's radio show airs each Friday at noon and can be heard live on the net as well as past episodes playing on Facebook video. Buz has so far presented guests like NASCAR Hall of Famer Bobbie Allison and his brother, Donnie, long time racing photographer Don Bok, and former NASCAR mechanic Olin Hopes. All racing royalty as is Buz himself who has spent a lifetime chronicling stock car history.

When I first met him about 20 years ago, he was head of the NASCAR archives, but was later sent to Charlotte to help with the opening of the NASCAR Hall Of Fame. After retiring from that facility, he returned to Daytona Beach, but it didn't take long for him to get his hand back in.

Each week, the show features interviews with drivers, mechanics, team owners and racing historians. That last category would include me and my longtime friend, Suzanne Heddy. She and I have worked together for years to make the public more aware of this area's fabulous racing history.

Beginning in 2003, Roland was a big part of the centennial events at Ormond Beach to commemorate the 100-year anniversary of the first beach races. Those events were staged by several groups, but at the forefront was The Motor Racing Heritage Association. Suzanne and I are both on that group's board and Roland is the president.

That day, as Roland, Suzanne and I sat before a large crowd, we enjoyed an easy rapport of the type that can only come from a long friendship. The three of us play off each other as easily as pups from the same litter.

Roland guided us through stories of early beach racing and of the fun we had staging the centennials. We spoke of the fantastic cars that had attended along with some of the characters who owned them. We talked of the racing celebrities who had come to the beach to be a part of it. People like drag racing king Big Daddy Don Garlits and NASCAR team owner Jack Rousch among them.

I told of the time just before the first centennial when my teen-aged son handed me the phone saying, "Dad, there is some nut on the phone saying he is Jay Leno!" Of course, it was Jay, a world famous "car guy," who couldn't resist getting in on the fun we were having on the beach. From the podium, we introduced motorcycle racing legend Doc Batsleer and Al Wanser, who owns a sleek 1930 Model A racer. Both of those fellows competed in the centennial beach races.

On that day, a lot of racing history was covered, but as always happens when the three of us get together, the hour passed too quickly. We barely chipped the surface of the beach racing stories we hoped to tell. Still, the crowd seemed to enjoy it and why not. There we were sitting on the beautiful deck at Racing's North Turn, enjoying great food with the famous beach only feet away.

That restaurant is actually a functioning museum with walls covered with NASCAR and land speed record memorabilia. If you are a racing fan, or just a fan of the beach, stop down to be in the live audience for Buz's next show. I guarantee you will be taken back to a time when daring drivers raced wild machines and right in that very spot.

Dan Smith is on the board of directors for the Ormond Beach Historical Society and The Motor Racing Heritage Association a*nd is the author of two books, "The World's Greatest Beach" and "I Swear the Snook Drowned." Email questions and comments to* fishwdan@att.net or call (386) 441-7793.

and Woodward Avenue elementary schools have sheriff's deputies. They will be replaced with School Guardians once additional ones are trained, according to information provided by the district.

"School guardians will be very visible, providing security and surveillance to school campuses, parking lots and grounds," Ms. Wait said. "Duties include responding to emergency situations, assisting administration and law enforcement with threat assessments, investigating suspicious activity, managing school access and assisting with traffic control. It is also very important that school guardians build relationships and trust with students, parents and staff, as well as communicate about and respond to security-related concerns and issues."

In addition to the resource officers, or Guardians, the Legislature allocated about $99 million for enhancing schools' physical security. It gave $28.1 million to the Department of Children and Families for more active community engagement and crisis prevention.

The legislation approved this year mandates schools conduct regular active shooter drills; sets up and funds the Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School Public Safety Commission, a 16-member board that will offer ways to improve the school safety system; creates and funds the "marshal" program, which would train and arm certain school professionals who do not primarily teach; allows certain retired law enforcement officers to become school resource officers; and formally prohibits "a person from making, posting, or transmitting a threat to conduct a mass shooting" and sets criminal penalties for such actions.

In addition to the guardians and resource officers, schools also have new programs focusing on mental and emotional wellness.

New programs include Say Something, which teaches youth how to recognize warning signs and signals, especially in social media, from individuals who may be a threat to themselves or others, and "Say Something" to a trusted adult before it's too late.

Start With Hello teaches children, teens and young adults how to be more socially inclusive and connected to one another. Safety Assessment and Intervention teaches adults in schools how to identify, assess and respond to threats of violence or at-risk behavior before a tragedy takes place. SOS (Signs of Suicide) teaches youth and adults about the warning signs of depression and suicide, and action steps to get help when concerned about themselves or a friend before a tragedy occurs.

CRIME STOPPERS

(888) 277-TIPS

Spike in vehicle thefts

There has been a recent spike in motor vehicle thefts and vehicle break-ins in the driveways of private residences and shopping centers in Ormond Beach.

Victims are leaving valuables, such as purses, firearms, wallets, GPS devices, computers and cell phones in plain view in their cars and trucks. Vehicles often are unlocked. In three cases, the keys were left in unlocked vehicles, resulting in thefts in July and August.

The Ormond Beach Police Department asks everyone to always remove valuables from vehicles and lock the doors. Also, park in well-lit areas and immediately report suspicious activity when you see it.

For more information on how to prevent these and other types of crimes, contact OBPD Community Outreach at (386) 676-3526 or (386) 676-3553.

The Ormond Beach Police Department provides nightly reminders, called the "9PM Routine" on its' Facebook page, for people to lock their cars and remove their valuables.

In response to: Can't get with dress code

These are children not robots.

They are there to learn, not be stifled by a stupid policy dress code. They do not have to worry about jobs right now. Let them be kids.

In response to: 'There ought to be a law'

When did the individual right become more important than the rights of the general population?

In particular, regarding loud music emanating from a vehicle, or anywhere for that matter. Our courts decided it's unconstitutional to have noise limits? It's OK for an individual to play music in the car as loud as they like because it's their constitutional right?

What about my constitutional right to not have to listen to your music? What about the disturbing the peace law? What about the siren from an emergency vehicle I can't hear because of someone's right to play their music as loud as they want? What about the music playing in my car that I can no longer hear because some jerk thinks me and everyone else wants to hear the trunk rattling from the pounding bass coming from their car?

This seems like another case of more "rights" for the criminal, and to hell with the victims. How about to hell with the judge who ruled this way and fire him or her and get someone with more common sense.

In response to: 'Ticket the texters'

To the person who thinks most people can drive a lot better drunk than a texting sober person?

I have never been drunk. I wouldn't really want to be driving too close to either.

Special thanks to waste management

A week ago I made a bad mistake of putting paint out for garbage pick up, a accident happened and it was spilled on road in front of my driveway.

I called Waste Management on the phone and a sweet lady informed me of my dumbness, but said she would have a representative from company come out to look at it.

A Christian gentleman came out, and after telling me again of my mistake, he called another department in his company and asked them to see if they could clean up (my mess). The next day two fine young gentleman came out and totally cleaned all the paint up! After they were done, one of the gentleman came and got me to look at the job they had done. I couldn't believe how great they did. Both are an asset to their company.

They were like a football team. The lady I called was the coach, the representative from company was the quarterback and the two young men were receivers who caught the pass and scored a touchdown. You don't find many companies today that will go even the first mile to help someone, but Waste Management didn't just go first mile, they went second and third to help out a policy breaker like myself. Thanks again in "Christ."

A shameful act

To the person who stole a pair of black men's Nike shoes from a 71-year-old vendor at the flea market on Sunday: I buy everything I sell and sit out in 95 degree weather to try and make a dollar.

This is a shameful thing to do. God sees everything. Hope you are feeling shameful now.

Give bicyclists more room

Since there are improvements going on up and down U.S. 1, couldn't the bicycle lanes be widened to maybe six feet?

The law states motor vehicles need to give a bicycle three feet of clearance. The existing bike lane is barely three feet wide in most areas. This is not enough room when vehicles are doing 45 mph (or more often much faster). Factor in cell phone usage, navigation devices and any other number of distractions, and it makes for a dangerous ride, particularly north of Willmette where the posted speed limit is 55 mph.

I know as a motorist, if I am traveling in the right lane and I approach a bicyclist in the bicycle lane, in order for me to give the bicycle proper clearance, I need to be almost in the left lane. In fact, unless there is a vehicle next to me in the left lane, my wheels will be on or over the white dividing lines to safely pass a bicyclist.

As a frequent bicyclist on this road, I can tell you some motorists will do the same. Then there are the motorists who don't give an inch. This is why the lanes need to be widened where possible. The new trees are nice, how about making it safer.

Too big to succeed

Some political candidates are sending me a mailing each week.

This is really annoying when one votes early. Also, the postcards are gigantic. I guess it is to match their egos.

Could have been the Archangel

I would like to thank the very kind and considerate man who helped me a week ago Thursday at the 7-Eleven gas station on U.S. 1 in Holly Hill.

I had just filled my tank with gas and went in the store to get my register receipt. When I returned to my car, it would not start. It was noon time and about 100 degrees. I asked a stranger to help me and he was wonderful. He checked my car and finally determined it was the battery.

He jumped started my car and I was on my way. He told me his name was Michael, and he was a lifesaver. Thank you

In response to: 'Beach not up to code'

Another major issue that plagues Bethune Beach are the number of properties that have yet to be repaired since the last two hurricanes.

When driving through the neighborhoods, in some cases, it appears these homes are abandoned. Home owners who own property adjacent to such structures are disgusted due to the indifference on the part of these property owners.

Needed repairs include roof shingles, fascia, soffits, siding and even porches. County code enforcement officers must be aware of these properties yet there are few obvious signs that these properties are being rehabilitated or condemned.

As proposed by the Volusia County Property Appraiser, maybe these non-homestead property owners will do the right thing when and if unpaid fines and liens are recovered on tax bills. Since code enforcement is reactive and not proactive, to seek a remedy, the residents of Bethune Beach must file a complaint with Volusia County Code Enforcement.

Dangerous intersection

The Daytona Beach Police Department should put undercover police cars at Clyde Morris Boulevard and Beville Road near the Publix.

Drivers are aggressive. I have seen so many close calls. The police department could make a small fortune.

Volunteers needed for beach and river cleanups

Volusia County residents can think globally and act locally during the International Coastal Cleanup and the Halifax/Indian River Cleanup from 8 to 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 15.

Volusia County's Environmental Management Division is looking for volunteers to remove trash from beaches, rivers and parks.

Last year, 1,082 Volusia County volunteers collected 4,545 pounds of trash.

Volunteers can register at volusia.org/cleanup through Aug. 31. Participants are asked to bring garden gloves, drinking water, and buckets for collecting trash. They should wear a hat, sunscreen, comfortable clothing and outdoor footwear.

Beach cleanup sites include:

•Frank Rendon Park, 2705 S. Atlantic Ave., Daytona Beach Shores

•Van Avenue Park, 3101 S. Atlantic Ave., Daytona Beach Shores

•Winter Haven Park, 4589 S. Atlantic Ave., Ponce Inlet

River cleanup sites include:

• Riverwalk Park, 3431 Ridgewood Ave., Port Orange

• Port Orange Causeway Park, 93 Dunlawton Ave., Port Orange

Some river locations have boat launches where participants can bring their kayaks, paddle boards, canoes or motor boats to access hard-to-reach coastlines.

Animal Control adds microchipping service

Residents of unincorporated areas of Volusia County and the cities of DeLand, South Daytona and Oak Hill can now have their cats and dogs microchipped when they undergo a spay or neuter surgery at the county's Animal Care Clinic, 1250 Indian Lake Road, Daytona Beach.

A microchip the size of a grain of rice is implanted under an animal's skin with a needle and syringe. It works by receiving a radio signal from a scanner and transmitting the encoded chip identification number back to the scanner.

The $10 fee is in addition to the cost of the spay or neuter surgery.

The clinic provides low-cost and reduced-fee animal sterilization to residents of unincorporated areas of Volusia County and the cities of DeLand, South Daytona and Oak Hill. Services are by appointment only. For more information, visit volusia.org/animalcontrol or call (386) 248-1790.

Sustainable gardening for climate change

Ginny Stibolt, Florida botanist and published author, will be the guest speaker for the Pawpaw Chapter of the Florida Native Plant Society meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 10, at the Piggotte Community Center, 504 Big Tree Road, South Daytona.

She will speak about climate change and how the home gardener can adopt a practical approach to sustainable native landscape gardening. The meeting is open to the public.

Housing market isn't cooling off, either

VOLUSIA BUSINESS
CECIL G. BRUMLEY

When we last dived into the housing market in May, it was a hot one and, as the summer winds down in East Central Florida, calendar-wise, the housing industry hasn't cooled any.

Realtors sold 1,049 houses in July in the Volusia/Flagler area, up just slightly at .6 percent from July 2017. The median price, with half selling for more and half for less, was at $206,050, up 6 percent. Realtors sold 272 condos in the two-county area in July, up 5 percent from last year. The median price was at $186,000, up 3 percent.

Permits were issued for 209 housing units (201 single-family) in July in the Volusia/Flagler area, according to the US. Census Bureau, compared to 164 (139 single-family) in July 2017. That was with less than 70 percent of the area reporting.

Realtors continue to struggle with a lack of inventory, but as the economy continues to grow, there is a market segment that might be able to help it – the move-up buyer. Judging by the numbers of larger homes that builders are putting up, there apparently are quite a few move-up buyers cashing in on their improved lot in life.

Of course, builders are focusing more on the $180,000 to $280,000 price range for houses on 50-foot lots, but there several builders adding houses in the $300,000 and up range, many of them move-in ready rather than custom built. My usual concern is still there, though, about the lack of lower-priced houses for sale. When all those two-bedroom cottages in Ormond-by-the-Sea went past $150,000, I knew it was getting expensive.

A report from Ormond Beach government shows the demolition/rebuild of the Publix at The Trails Shopping Center will happen and is targeted for summer 2019. It includes the former CVS Pharmacy space. There was some question about whether the new owner of the shopping center would go through with the plan.

Multi-unit housing projects are progressing with plans submitted to the St. Johns River Water Management District for the New Port Apartments, a 310-unit complex on the west side of Atlantic High School on Reed Canal Road. Also, plans were submitted for the Springs at Port Orange, a 292-unit apartment complex with two retail outparcels on Williamson Boulevard, across from The Pavilion. The complex would share storm water drainage with the adjacent Whitepalm apartments.

On the condo front, apparently the condo at 807 S. Atlantic Ave. in New Smyrna Beach has morphed into the TydeMark with half of the 19 units sold or reserved, including one nearly $2 million penthouse. Construction is bound to start soon.

Several large real estate transactions to report, including Malcolm Jones Real Estate of Jacksonville buying a large chunk of LPGA International land in Daytona Beach out of foreclosure for $2.5 million. Palm Coast investors bought the new Dollar General property on State Road 44 in Samsula for $2.026 million. Brown & Brown continues to buy property in downtown Daytona Beach as it prepares to build its new headquarters, paying $350,000 for a property at 213 First Ave.

Also, conglomerating property for a project was Ferber Cos. of Ponte Vedra Beach, which paid about $1.893 million for the Salzburg Animal Clinic property and others for the second phase of the Shoppes on Granada, which will include an Aldi store. Weather permitting, Ferber probably has already begun demolition of two buildings on the property.

On a final note, a few miscellaneous items include plan submitted to the St. Johns water district to demolish a bank building and build a 2,018-square-foot Dunkin Donuts and 1,008-square-foot adjacent tenant office space at northwest corner of Spring Garden and Forest avenues in DeLand. 7-Eleven has started remodeling convenience stores it got from Sunoco with the first one at Mason and Daytona avenues in Holly Hill. The former Honda store at 330 N. Nova Road in Daytona Beach may become Gary Yeomans Pre-owned Super Center. Bellair Plaza is getting another ice cream placed with Curly Cream rolled ice cream opening in the center on North Atlantic Avenue in Daytona Beach.

Business developer joins chamber staff

The Port Orange South Daytona Chamber of Commerce has named John Macaluso as business development manager.

Mr. Macaluso

Mr. Macaluso relocated to Port Orange 18 years ago from Northwest New Jersey. He retired from the Environmental Engineering field, where his career included technical and business development positions with Fortune 500 companies. Since then he has worked as executive vice president and chief development officer for a family chain of restaurants.

He served as mayor of Stillwater Township, N.J., and was on the recreation commission, a little league coach and certified New Jersey first responder for the volunteer rescue squad. He is chairman of the Port Orange Environmental Advisory Board.

He will work on expanding chamber membership and assist members in improving.

More money needed for your retirement?

PLAN STRONGER
DAVID D. HOLLAND

Hello, my name is Mike Peerless and I am the reverse mortgage loan director at Holland Mortgage Services, a subsidiary of Holland Financial.

David Holland has asked me to step in this week and share a strategy with you on reverse mortgage loans. So, here we go.

Some retirees, and those who are about to retire, worry their nest eggs won't last. They are concerned about the long-term viability of Social Security and Medicare, and/or they don't feel they've saved enough in their 401(k) plans. This leads many to ask, "Are there any other cash flow alternatives out there?" The answer is "yes," one of them could be a reverse mortgage loan.

If you are 62 or older, and own your home with a small or no mortgage, you could establish a reverse mortgage line of credit (REVLOC). Although there are closing costs, once established, the line of credit grows at a pre-determined rate, can't be arbitrarily frozen or canceled, and can be used, as needed, to meet cash flow needs. Once money is borrowed on the REVLOC (and this is a big distinction versus a regular home equity line of credit), the borrower is not required to make any monthly payments, as long as he/she lives in the residence, pays property taxes and homeowner's insurance, and maintains the property.

Here's a strategy that can keep interest and mortgage insurance expenses low.

Step 1: Establish the Reverse Mortgage Line of Credit;

Step 2: Pay the upfront costs associated with establishing the line by making payments (even though they are not required);

Step 3: Watch your REVLOC credit line increase each year (every month, the line of credit will grow at the same rate as you would be charged on any monies that are borrowed). This strategy reduces the overall cost, while providing the very important flexibility of having a line of credit you can draw on without having to make regular interest or principal payments.

Four Benefits:

1. A REVLOC can make more funds available for emergencies, as well as home improvements, travel and the grandkids' education.

2. The REVLOC, if desired, can be used to take monthly payments over your lifetime, and that of a spouse, if he/she is also on the loan.

3. If you rely on your investments for regular income, you can switch your withdrawals to a REVLOC during a stock market decline (thereby avoiding the liquidation of investments while they are down in value). Doing so could help sustain your income during difficult financial times.

4. Borrowing on a REVLOC can provide the funds needed for in-home care. Why not access some of your home's equity to pay for home care that lets you stay in your home as long as possible?

These are just a few examples of how a reverse mortgage loan may help those 62 and older maintain their financial independence and lifestyle!

Emergency grant funds available for nonprofits

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Volusia County has received Emergency Solutions Grant funds of $155,890 from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for the implementation of a program to help homeless individuals and families.

Eligible activities include:

•Street outreach: Essential services related to reaching out to unsheltered homeless individuals and families, connecting them with emergency shelter, housing or critical services, and providing them with urgent, non-facility-based care. The total amount cannot exceed 60 percent of the county's allocation.

•Emergency shelter: Costs of providing essential services to homeless families and individuals in emergency shelters, renovating buildings to be used as emergency shelter for homeless families and individuals, and operating emergency shelters. The total amount cannot exceed 60 percent of the county's allocation.

•Homelessness prevention: Housing relocation and stabilization services as necessary to prevent individuals or families from becoming homeless.

•Rapid re-housing: Housing relocation and stabilization services as necessary to help individuals or families living in shelters or in places not meant for human habitation move as quickly as possible into permanent housing and achieve stability in that housing.

•Data collection: Costs of participating in and contributing to the Homeless Management Information System designated by the continuum of care for the area.

Of the available funds, $11,691 may be used for administrative costs. Approved applicants will be required to provide a 100 percent match.

Not-for-profit organizations are eligible to submit applications. The deadline is noon Sept. 14.

All programs must serve the entire county and comply with the written standards of the Commission on Homelessness for Volusia and Flagler Counties.

Applications and the written standards are available at volusia.org/community_assistance/applications or by calling Brittany Louis at (386) 736-5955, ext. 12959.

Rain brings salt marsh mosquitoes to coastal areas

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

The almost daily afternoon and evening storms continue to create an ideal habitat for mosquitoes in Volusia County.

Most troublesome for coastal residents are the increased presence of pesky salt marsh mosquitoes. The affected areas primarily include Oak Hill, Edgewater and New Smyrna Beach.

Volusia County Mosquito Control is responding as quickly as possible by air and ground to resolve the situation. Staff is out in full force treating larval production sites in the marsh by helicopter and boat.

Trucks are spraying after sunset to treat adult populations. A fixed wing aerial mission was scheduled for Aug. 21, weather permitting.

Phone lines are at capacity. For prompt service, residents may submit requests for service and view scheduled areas for treatment at volusia.org/mosquito.

Residents of incorporated Deltona, DeBary, Orange City, Lake Helen, DeLand and Pierson should call their city to submit a request.

"Our team continues to treat the standing water on the ground during the day and adult mosquitoes at night," said Sue Bartlett, director of Volusia County Mosquito Control. "You can help by doing your part to protect yourself and your family."

Ms. Bartlett offers these suggestions:

•Use an EPA approved insect repellent.

•Cover up using long sleeved shirts and long pants.

•Keep mosquitoes outside. Cover windows and doors with screens.

For more tips, visit the Center for Disease Control at cdc.gov/features/stopmosquitoes/index.

Don't forget to check the yard for containers (pots, buckets, tires, toys, pools, pet dishes, etc.) that may be holding small amounts of water. Pockets of standing water are prime habitat for those pesky and sometimes disease-carrying mosquitoes. More information can also found by visiting volusia.org/mosquito and clicking on "Tips on mosquito protection."

Escape to great golf at Island Dunes

GOLF
JAMES STAMMER

With the busy schedule so many of us have these days, it's not always easy to get in a full round of golf.

Sometimes, nine holes is just right. Throw in beautiful views and a breeze off the ocean, and you have a perfect quick round of golf.

Where does one go to find just such a treat? My quest took me to Island Dunes Country Club on South Ocean Drive in Jensen Beach. About 3.5 miles north of the round-a-bout at Jensen Beach Boulevard and State Road A1A, this track offers a nice get-away from the normal.

Island Dunes plays to a par of 31 from four sets of tees and measures from 1,738 yards to 2,126 yards long. There are four par-4s and five par-3s. While there is no driving range at the course, there are a few sets of tees and nets for those wanting to get in a few full swings before heading to the first tee.

The first hole may the most difficult par-3 on the course. Playing anywhere from 113- to 170- yards and playing due east, you can find yourself hitting anything from a wedge to a middle iron or hybrid depending on how the wind is blowing. One of my buddies reports that when he plays a second nine, the wind sometimes picks up so much in just a couple hours he has to hit two to three clubs more just to get to the green.

The second hole is your first par-4. In addition to being the shortest of the par-4s, this hole also has the widest fairway. If you struggle to get the ball on the fairway here, you need to watch out for the mangroves and wetlands you will encounter over the rest of your round.

The third hole is a beautiful par-3. Measuring just 106 yards from the back, there is no excuse for missing the green here. If you do, you will find a challenging pitch or chip or bunker shot to a severely sloped green.

After a couple more par-3s and a short par-4, you come to the most challenging par-4 on the course, the 360-yard seventh. Your tee shot here must hug the left side of the fairway or you will be blocked out and forced to hit a blind approach to a small green. Also, the longer your drive, the narrower the fairway becomes and the more likely you are to find a bunker or waste area. If you miss this green, you are better off if your ball lands left or short of the green.

The par-3 eighth is Island Dunes signature hole, and it is beautiful. In fact, the ride along the raised wooden bridge through the mangroves to the tee is soothing by itself.

Playing to 145- yards from the back tees, your tee shot must carry the mangroves and wetlands and land on a green that is only about 45- feet deep with the Indian River sitting behind. It's an intimidating shot, as you have to take in the wind, the carry over the hazard, and yet try not to hit the ball onto the beach beyond.

The finishing hole is a beautiful, but frightfully narrow, 353-yard par-4 that runs along the river. The more

Anglers find lots of ways to get in trouble

FISHING WITH DAN
DAN SMITH

We all know fishing can be a dangerous sport.

There are always sharp hooks flying about and, of course, we constantly face a chance of drowning, but recently I came upon a couple different ways to get into a jackpot while pursuing our favorite pastime.

I was driving south on Ridgewood Avenue in downtown Daytona Beach when I was stopped at a red light. As I waited, a nice 26- foot, off-shore boat pulled up beside me in the left turn lane. I admired the twin 200 horse Yamahas and how well the craft was appointed.

When the arrow came on, the boat began to move slowly forward. The car in front of me was a nice Porsche and the driver had his window down while smoking a cigarette. When the rear of the boat drew alongside the sports car, the automatic bilge pump decided to turn on. A large and steady blast of water shot into the car, hitting the driver in the head and dumping at least five gallons of water into the Porsche. My, oh my, the fellow was infuriated.

The persons in the boat tow vehicle continued on their way oblivious to what had just happened. I think they were going to find out, for the car pulled out of line to follow them. I considered going with them as well just to see what the consequences might be but I thought better of it.

Not long ago, I told you of my nice annual trip down to Sebastian Inlet just south of Melbourne. On my last day there, it happened to be opening day of the lobster mini-season and the state park and boat ramp were jumping. It was so busy, I decided not to launch and, as I headed out of the park, I noticed a family snorkeling along the south bank of the inlet. That rocky area could hold a few lobsters and I stopped to see how they were doing.

As I sat on a picnic table, I saw their floating dive flag get away and take off on the strong outgoing tide. I yelled to the father I would drive east and try to catch it at the fishing pier and I did just that. I had no luck and the flag was picking up speed as I watched from the shore. Just then the mother came running down the road and when she saw the flag leaving, she jumped right in with no hesitation.

Now everyone knows Sebastian Inlet is a treacherous place and no one would try to swim in such a raging current, but there she went. Pretty quickly the woman began to scream for help. I was the only one nearby. Now I must ask: If a person jumps into a raging stream, am I obliged to follow? I don't think so. Stupid is as stupid does.

Still, I knew I couldn't just stand there and watch the woman drown. I ran to my boat for a life vest, thinking maybe I could throw it to her or, in the worst case, I would have to put it on and try to swim out. Not a plan I relished. Thankfully, when I returned, the woman was crawling out and only needed a hand up from me.

So you see, anytime you are around water or boats or fishermen, trouble can find you. The fellow towing the boat in Daytona Beach probably found that out. You don't have to be fishing to get into trouble.

Golf

you hug the river side of the fairway, the better your angle will be for your approach. A quirky feature of this hole is a short "Green Monster" wall that runs along the mangroves down the right side as you near the green. If you hit your tee shot far enough, you can play the carom and find your ball back in the fairway with a short wedge to a well-protected green.

Island Dunes may not have monster yardage to intimidate the best players, but it does have undulating greens and some narrow areas that will penalize wayward shots. Best of all, it's an easy course to walk, and with the breeze off the ocean or the river, it's a pleasurable way to enjoy a round. There also is public beach access just a few hundred yards away, so you can drop off the non-golfers for some beach time while you get in a quick nine.

For more information, call Island Dunes Country Club at (772) 229-2739.

Pirates invade Main Street in Daytona

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Ahoy, pirates are planning to invade Main Street from 7 p.m. to midnight Saturday, Sept. 1.

Also known as Main Street's Island Rum Festival, the free event is presented by the Daytona Beach Main Street Merchants Association, Al Smith Productions and Politis & Matovina Law Firm.

Main Street will be closed to traffic from Atlantic Avenue to Peninsula Drive, transforming it into a Caribbean Island Experience with a pirate parade, pirate village, two pirate ships, fireworks and lots of pirates.

Loads of festival foods will be available at a food court from a wide variety of food trucks. Also, there will be five stages of live music, magic shows, a variety of rum drinks and sword fighting.

The Pirate Parade begins at the east end of Main Street at 7 p.m. and travels west with the Daytona Beach Pipes & Drums bagpipers and drummers followed by the Blue Lotus Belly Dance Group, Mermaid Delilah and Pirate Crews from St. Augustine, Palm Coast, Treasure Coast and Daytona Beach. Ancient City Pirates and the St. Augustine Crew and Ship will follow.

After the parade, festival attendees can stop by the Swashbucklers Ship at Main Street and Oleander for photo opportunities and see William Mayhem, St. Augustine Pirate Magician and emcee, The Anchors Sea Shanty Band, the Blue Lotus Belly Dance Group, Sword Fighting Expositions and Mermaid Delilah.

Adults also can participate in the Island Rum Festival Pub Crawl. Tickets are $15 in advance and $20 the day of the festival. For tickets, visit IslandRumFestivalPubCrawl.eventbrite.com. Pub Crawl participants will receive one 7 ounce rum specialty drink from each of six bars: Cruisin' Café, Froggy's Saloon, Dirty Harry's Pub, Neptune's Sports Pub & Café, Main Street Station and Boot Hill Saloon. A souvenir event cup is included. Participants must be 21 to participate and proper ID is required.

Exhibit features the faces of war

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

The American military in the 21st century is diverse and reflects the complexities of the country and the current times.

"100 Faces of War," a traveling exhibition from the Smithsonian presents the stories of those who served the U.S. in the Iraq and Afghanistan wars. The exhibition will be on view at the Museum of Arts & Sciences from Sept. 1 to Nov. 25 at 352 S. Nova Road, Daytona Beach.

The exhibit, organized in collaboration with artist Matt Mitchell, features 100 oil portraits of Americans, representing a cross-section of home states, military branches, jobs and backgrounds. Each painting includes a candid, unedited, firsthand account of war. The statements take many different forms, including emails and letters to loved ones and poems and words written specifically for the exhibit. The portraits symbolize 100 different and highly personal ways of looking at valor, sacrifice and the human experience of war.

From 2005 to 2014, Mr. Mitchell, who did not have any connection to the military, felt compelled to connect with veterans in a meaningful way when he read an article in a local newspaper about an Iraq veteran coming home. He started painting the portraits of those who served and collecting their personal statements. Through this exhibition, visitors will come to know the veterans' courage, fears,

Horoscopes

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20

Aries, you may want to pull the covers over your head and stay in bed all week long, but that's just not possible. If you dust yourself off and get out there, you'll get back on track.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21

Don't lose your patience if you need to repeat yourself a few times before your point comes across to others, Taurus. Eventually, others will start to come around.

GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21

Gemini, do not worry even if your workload seems overwhelming. Relief is on the way. A hero will swoop in and take some of the responsibility off your shoulders.

CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22

Happy times in your life have you exhibiting good will toward others, Cancer. Maybe you'll give a coworker a break or cast some good vibes on a friend.

LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23

It is important to have goals, but not at the expense of friendships, Leo. If you have to put success over the needs of others, it may not be worth it. Wait until everything jibes.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Having a plan in place at all times is your saving grace, Virgo. When something unexpected happens this week, you will be able to handle it without breaking a sweat.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Two friends or family members may try to put you in the middle of their quarrel, Libra. This is an unenviable situation. Try to remain as neutral as possible.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Though it may be challenging, spend more time engaging in frivolous activities this week rather than more serious pursuits. Show others you can let loose, Scorpio.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Sagittarius, you may get an inkling that change is ahead, but you can't pinpoint which direction it's coming from. Just be at the ready for anything that seems unusual.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

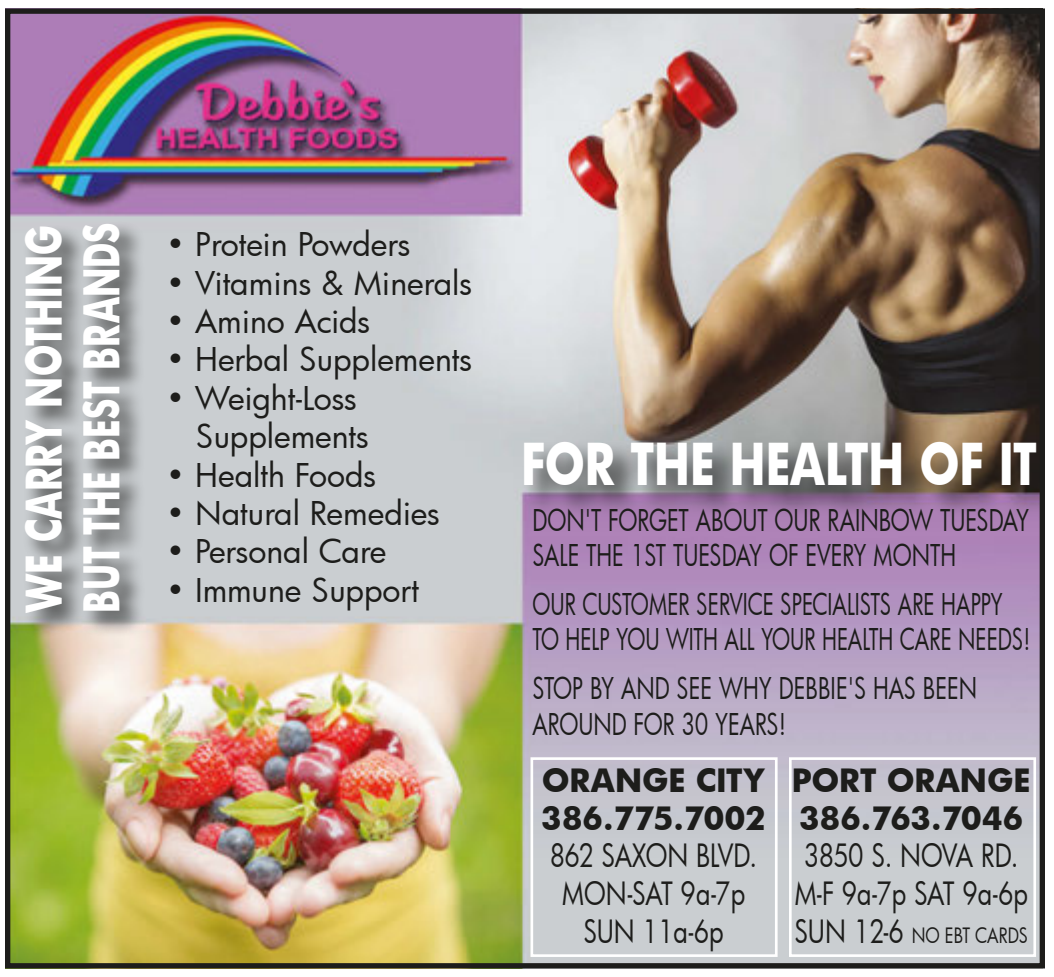
Capricorn, when someone challenges you, it's best to not get defensive. This may seem like you are admitting guilt. Instead, do not engage this person much.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Aquarius, when work pressures get to you, it's best to take a little time off on the weekend to think about anything but work. Immerse yourself in a hobby.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20

Travel plans may be slightly delayed, but they're not completely off the table, Pisces. Don't worry about having to unpack those bags just yet.



‘Workin’ For A Livin’ at the Bandshell

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

The City of Daytona Beach, Friends of the Bandshell and Sloppy Joe’s will blow up Labor Day weekend with free concerts and fireworks.

Originals of Michael Allman and hits of the Allman Brothers plus tributes to Elton John and Huey Lewis & The News will be presented for the family-friendly concerts.

The city presents the Michael Allman Band with original music plus Allman Brothers’ songs at 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31. Opening act Rick DeYampert will perform at 7 p.m.

Mr. Allman is the first-born son of Rock and Roll Hall of Famer Greg Allman. His bluesy soulful voice and look is reminiscent of his father in his prime.

He will perform songs from his album “Hard Labor Creek,” including “Running Alone Again,” “It Ain’t Me” and “Circus Full of Clowns.”

The concert also will feature Allman Brothers’ hits, including “Midnight Rider,” “Whipping Post,” “Dreams” and “Melissa.”

Friends of the Bandshell will present Rocket Man, an Elton John tribute at 7:15 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 1.

Scotsman Rus Anderson is Elton John’s official body double for his “Farewell Yellow Brick Road” world tour promo videos and photos, set to kick off in September.

Hand-picked by Elton John and David Furnish, it was Mr. Anderson’s own live tribute production, “The Rocket Man Show,” which got him noticed. In the show, Mr. Anderson recreates the magic and live persona of a young Elton like no other. His painstaking attention to detail includes wearing colorful and spectacular costumes (many actually worn by Elton), including his iconic boots, glasses and jumpsuits from 1973, as well as a sparkly Swarovski tuxedo from 1984.

With all the classic young Elton antics, Mr. Anderson will perform “Rocket Man,” “Candle in the Wind,” “Tiny Dancer,” “Bennie & The Jets,” “Goodbye Yellow Brick Road,” “Don’t Let The Sun Go Down,” “Lucy in the Sky With Diamonds,” “Philadelphia Freedom” and “Don’t Go Breaking My Heart.”

Stick around for fireworks over the ocean after the concert.

Sloppy Joe’s presents “Back In Time,” a Tribute to Huey Lewis & The News and ‘80s Revue at 8 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 2.

Are you a “Soul Man?” Well, get ready to dance to the awesome high energy fun blues tunes of opening act The Blues Brothers Tribute at 7 p.m.

Then, as a tribute to Huey Lewis and The News, “Back in Time” works to recreate the energy and excitement of a live performance.

Back in Time is comprised of talented and seasoned musicians. Each member brings their own musical background to the band.

They’ll play hits like “Heart of Rock and Roll,” “Hip to Be Square,” “Workin for a Livin,” “Back in Time,” “Heart and Soul,” “Power of Love,” “Doin’ it All For My Baby,” “I Want a New Drug” and “Couple of Days Off.”

Then you will be transported onto the rock stage and feel the heat of your favorite hits from some of the ‘80s hottest bands, such as Van Halen, JUMP, Tommy TuTones and 867-5309.

While all three shows are free, for the Friday night Bandshell Live concert, VIP tickets are $10, which include a chair, plus applicable fees. Tickets are at Ticketmaster.com, the Peabody Box Office or at the Bandshell on show nights.

Parking is available at the Ocean Center garage and surface lots. Rental chairs, food and beverages by Sloppy Joe’s restaurant and adult libations are available. No blankets, coolers or backpacks are allowed.

May your Labor Day enjoyment never end

CHEF COSTA'S COOKING CORNER
COSTA MAGOULAS

I want to thank all the workers of America and Canada for giving us the national holiday of Labor Day.

Yes, it started in Canada. Labor Day can be traced back to a Canadian union strike parade in 1872. Unionization was considered a crime at the time, so the parade prompted Prime Minister John A. Macdonald to repeal the anti-union laws, and a celebration followed.

Soon afterward the United States adopted the holiday, celebrating it in September. The long Labor Day weekend of fun, picnics and food became a signal of the end of summer and going back to school.

Growing up in Florida, I can remember hating to see Labor Day weekend come, because it meant the end of summer fun and jobs. No more corn dogs, cotton candy and snow cones, or going swimming or fishing. It was time to get ready to go back to school — mature, learn and one day enter the work force. That was many years ago.

Today, like millions of Americans, I look forward to the mini-vacation from work, but it always brings back memories of my childhood growing up in Florida near the oceans and seeing it every day and enjoying its pleasures. One day when I retire, I can go back to my childhood pleasures and eat a corn dog anytime I want, watch the sunset over the ocean, and when Labor Day comes it will be more enjoyable because every day after it will still be Labor Day! Funny how life goes full circle.

Now let us talk about food. No, I am not giving you a corndog recipe. That would be too easy. Buy a buttermilk pancake mix and follow directions. Add a tablespoon of cornmeal. Pat dry the hot dogs and dip in batter and fry until golden brown. On the other hand, just buy them frozen. The real food on Labor Day has turned into a weekend of BBQ and everyone cooking their favorite foods over fire. Here is a recipe that is surprisingly good. Enjoy your Labor Day weekend. You have earned!

Grilled Cola Flank Steak

Ingredients
1½-2 pounds flank steak
2 cans cola
2 tablespoons Jamaica Jerk seasoning (or just salt and pepper before grilling)

Directions
Place flank steak, cola, and seasoning in zip bag and marinate 2 hours. Grill for 5 minutes on each side on medium heat or cook to desired temperature. Slice across the grain in thin slices.

Jerk Seasoning

Yield: 3 tablespoons

Ingredients
1 tablespoon onion flakes
1 tablespoon onion powder
2 teaspoons ground thyme
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon ground pimento (allspice)
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
1 teaspoon cayenne pepper
2 teaspoons dried chives or green onions

Peggy Campbell of South Daytona points to something interesting as Barbara Jones of Port Orange looks on during the eighth annual Fall Home & Garden Show at the Ocean Center in Daytona Beach on Saturday, Aug. 25.

Add some exotic tropical plants to your garden

GARDEN NOOK
JOE ZELENAK

With the quiet hurricane season so far, there is plenty of time to add some great plants to your garden.

How about adding some exotic tropical plants to your landscape? One of my favorites is a plant called the Travelers Palm. These graceful plants can add tropical splendor to just about any garden.

The plants boast huge leaves that resemble those of a banana tree. In fact, the Travelers Palm is not a palm at all but rather it is related to the banana family. The plant can grow upwards to 20 feet at a rapid pace. My plant has withstood three hurricanes and several freezes, but still always comes back hard and strong. I have to do some major trimming after a hurricane, but the plant has a remarkable ability to revive itself and comes back looking better and stronger then before. My Travelers Palm is nearing that 20-foot mark as we speak.

The Travelers Palm has some unique history in how it got its name. Many years ago back in the pioneer days, people traveling long distances on foot did not have any of the conveniences we have today. Finding water was not as simple as going to the corner grocery store. Since these magnificent plants store abundant amounts of water in the base of their trunks, pioneer travelers could tap that water in the trunks of the tree and use it for drinking. That is how the name Travelers Palm came about. If you have ever have the opportunity to trim one of these trees, you will get nothing short of an unexpected shower!

A lot of people want a plant that gives them a great tropical look, but they want something that will not grow really fast and stay small as long as possible. The Sago Palm may be the answer.

These plants are actually not palms at all, but are actually considered a cycad. The plant boasts a lacy appearance similar to a fern. These plants are slow growers and will grow to around 10 feet. If you find a larger plant at a nursery, they will be costly, mainly because of how long it takes to grow them. They are hardy and mine has survived three hurricanes and several freezes with flying colors. They will make a great addition to your exotic tropical landscape.

If you have a shady spot around your house and want a real treat, try a Bamboo Palm. The plant features a reed like appearance, hence the name Bamboo Palm. The plant gives the viewer the image of exotic bamboo with small palm leaves. The plant can grow from six to 10 feet and is hardy to just below freezing. I have one that has been in the ground for about 10 years and also has survived hurricanes and freezes with flying colors.

The next exotic tropical on the list is the Washingtonian Palm. This palm is a fast grower that can easily get to heights of 60 feet. This plant does great during periods of drought and extreme temperatures. It can easily tolerate dessert heat into the 100-degree range. The plant also will survive in an area where soil stays moist.

Joe Zelenak has more than 30 years experience in gardening and landscape. Send emails to hometowngarden@gmail.com or visit hometowngarden.com.
