Some criminal cases are unusual, humorous or just outright odd. And there's no shortage of them on the Treasure Coast. This column will highlight cases that often leave observers shaking their heads.

You never know who may be listening

When a truck dumped commercial waste behind a business, witnesses gave Martin County deputies information about the vehicle.

But when deputies stopped the vehicle, the occupants denied dumping the waste.

When the two suspects were placed in a patrol vehicle, however, a different story emerged. Apparently they were unaware the sound in the vehicle was being recorded.

On the recording, one suspect tells the other he will bond him out if he takes the blame for the incident. Several times, one man told the other man that he will take care of the finances if the other man will take the blame.

When questioned, the man did take the blame. The other man also blamed the builder, saying they were doing what he told them to do.

In the end, both men were arrested.

It just doesn't seem likely that if someone is innocent, will ask another person to take the blame for something they didn't do.

Failing to do the right thing

A Stuart man who reported losing his cell phone told the Martin County Sheriff's Office that he called his number and a man answered demanding $50 for the return of his phone.

The man who lost the phone contacted the

Alabama fugitives nabbed in PSL

They claimed to be 'sovereign citizens'

By Jay Meisel
jmeisel@hometownnewsol.com

PORT ST. LUCIE — A man and a woman from Alabama claimed to be "sovereign" citizens, who don't recognize the authority of the local judicial system.

But about four months after they fled Alabama, their claims didn't stop them from being arrested last week by Port St. Lucie Police.

Arrested on July 2 were:

• Travis Lee Lambert, 62, 135 N.E. Lobster Road, Port St. Lucie, who was

Deadline looms to vote in primary

By Dawn Krebs

ST. LUCIE COUNTY — For registered voters in the county who need to update their information or are thinking about changing parties, the deadline to do so in time for the Aug. 14 primary is Monday, July 16.

This is important if voters are registered as Independents and want to vote in the county commissioner races in Districts 1 and 5.

Attorney: Human trafficking common

By Jay Meisel
jmeisel@hometownnewsol.com

PORT ST. LUCIE — Human trafficking, a form of slavery, may seem like a distant problem to many, but it could be occurring down the street from them, an attorney said last week.

Julia Luyster, a Palm Beach County attorney who frequently speaks about the topic, told members of the Port St. Lucie Sunset Rotary Club last week that many have misconceptions about human trafficking.

Some think it only occurs in distant countries or that it mainly involves forced prostitution, but that's not the case, she

Democrats vie for commission seat

By Dawn Krebs
dkrebs@hometownnewsol.com

ST. LUCIE COUNTY — With St. Lucie County Commissioner Chris Craft running for tax collector this year, seven residents — Al Rivett, Bobby Hopkins, Charles Grande, Cushman 'Chip' Radebaugh III, John Culverhouse, Kim Johnson and Patrick Campion — have stepped forward to run for the soon-to-empty seat.

All the candidates will be in the primary election on Aug. 14. The three Republicans: Mr. Rivett, Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Radebaugh, will run against each other, as will the four Democrats: Mr. Grande, Mr. Culverhouse, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Campion. The two men who receive the most votes in their party's race will face off against each other in the Nov. 6 election.

This article focuses on the Democrat candidates for the seat. Last week, the Republican interviews were published. Those can now be found online.

Hometown News asked the candidates the same questions about their campaigns. Their answers are below in alphabetical order, and can also be found online at www.myhometownnews.net.

Clerk's office cuts hours, staff

By Jay Meisel
jmeisel@hometownnewsol.com

ST. LUCIE COUNTY — Despite laying off employees and cutting public hours, the St. Lucie County Clerk of Courts Office will continue providing good service, an official said.

Joe Smith, St. Lucie County clerk of the courts, said a $640,000 reduction in state funding to his office resulted in the layoff of 10 employees as of July 1.

The office also, as of July 1, reduced its hours open to the public from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. to 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Mr. Smith said.

Mr. Smith said he felt that approach to cutting the budget would have the least impact on the public.

"I remain committed to fulfilling the mission of the clerk's office, which is to provide amazing customer experiences and operational excellence by caring and knowledgeable professionals who are financially responsible," he said.

FAU closes Port St. Lucie campus

Classes move to Harbor Branch campus

By Dawn Krebs
dkrebs@hometownnewsol.com

ST. LUCIE COUNTY — It is said that when one door closes, another opens.

In this case, as the doors to the Treasure Coast campus of Florida Atlantic University in Port St. Lucie close, other doors are opening for students at the Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institute campus in Fort Pierce.

The state dealt the college a financial blow when it cut approximately $24 million.

Florida Atlantic University has had a presence in St. Lucie County since 1994 when it first opened its doors to students. Less than a decade later, the institution partnered with Indian River State College to offer a joint-use facility where students could attend all the way through getting their graduate degrees.

But with 247 students attending courses there, the campus was serving fewer than 1 percent of enrolled students.

Group to provide school supplies

By Samantha Joseph
sjoseph@hometownnewsol.com

TREASURE COAST — An Indiantown organization is planning to give free backpacks loaded with school supplies to children across the Treasure Coast.

Last year, Indiantown Community Outreach donated 460 bags in one day to families from Martin, St. Lucie, Okeechobee and Indian River counties, administrators said.

This year, the nonprofit aims to double that number when it holds its fifth annual back-to-school bash on Aug. 11.

"We're hoping we can do more and invite many more people to participate," said Niambi Emanuel, spokeswoman for the Indiantown Community Outreach, which is co-hosting the event with Florida Health Centers.

Jackie Clarke, CEO of Indiantown Community Outreach, works with nonprofits around the region to spread word of the event.

The groups, in turn, help with community outreach to tell residents about the availability of

Trafficking

Cases have been found where businesses forced people to work and domestic employees were enslaved, Ms. Luyster said.

It involves "anyone who accepts a position and then is trapped in that position," she said.

There's been many cases where people, sometimes from foreign counties, accepted work as domestic servants and then were forced to stay, she said.

Sometimes they've been forced to live in a closet or under stairs, Ms. Luyster said.

In one case in Jacksonville, every time a woman got mad at her servant she pulled on the young woman's ears to where eventually she pretty much pulled off the ears, Ms. Luyster said.

The woman would never let her servant out of her sight and would take her to food pantries to get food, she said.

In other cases, workers have been imprisoned in houses with bars on the windows, she said.

Some cases have involved people being kept as forced labor and then required to work in motels, she said.

Victims are frequently afraid, even if they have the opportunity, to report what's happened to them because they've been told their families will be harmed if they alert authorities, she said.

In many of the cases, the business owners take advantage of people who are not legal residents of the United States, Ms. Luyster said.

She said her introduction to illegal immigration came when she visited a slum in India and got the opportunity to enter a brothel, where women and girls, some younger than 15, are forced to live 24 hours a day.

While some organizations have tried to help the victims, the police seem to do nothing about it, possibly because of corruption, she said.

Ms. Luyster said she hopes that by writing articles and books and speaking, she will help spur action to deal with trafficking in the United States.

California has passed a law that companies doing business must show that the manufacture of their products or components doesn't involve slave labor, she said.

Other steps that could be taken include providing training for local law enforcement officers so they know the signs of forced labor, she said.

Residents can be vigilant and look for possible signs in their neighborhoods, such as bars on windows or people who are being kept isolated from others, she said.

Cataracts

A cataract is clouding of the eye's lens. The cloudy lens blocks the passage of light through the eye. As a result, the image that reaches the retina, and which is sent to the brain, is cloudy and vision is poor.

Cataracts are the leading cause of poor vision in adults. However, the development of cataracts does not mean a loss of sight. Treatment of cataracts is over 98% successful in restoring good vision painlessly.

Symptoms of Cataracts

• Dimming or Blurring of Vision • Halos or glare around lights • Double vision • Colors appear less brilliant • Feeling of "film" over the eyes • Frequent changing or cleaning of glasses • Difficulty driving or reading free backpacks, paper, books, pens, rulers, notepads and other supplies from sponsors such as Indiantown Nonprofit Housing, Rines IGA Market, Indiantown ITS Telecom, Martin County Health Department, Burger King and Family Drugs of Indiantown.

Organizers of the back-to-school giveaway say families continue to show up seeking assistance long after the drive is over. About 650 people attended last year's event, but the count reached about 800 when visitors came to Indiantown Community Outreach that week, leading staff to create makeshift bags for many of the visitors, Ms. Emanuel said.

"We want to be able to help them all and make it easy for parents to get the school supplies they need for their kids," she said.

The group is making a party of the event, offering free food, drinks, door prizes and other giveaways. It will include music and entertainment, such as bounce houses and face painting.

Officials from the Martin County Health Department and Florida Community Health Centers will also be onsite to conduct immunization clinics.

The bash is set to take place at the outreach center's headquarters, located at 15161 Southwest 169th Ave., in Indiantown.

Organizers said the nonprofit welcomes donations of school supplies.

Cuts

This year's budget was reduced from almost $7.8 million to just over $7.1 million, an 8.7 percent reduction, said Kara Hilson Odom, deputy director.

Currently, the office has 157 employees which is down by 66 from 2009.

Some of those reductions came as a result of not filling vacant positions, Mr. Smith said.

With fewer employees, Mr. Smith said, the office needs more time to process filings.

During the two hours the office is closed to the public — from 8 to 9 a.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. — employees will work on processing, Mr. Smith said.

Mr. Smith said legally, criminal cases get first priority because of deadlines as to how they proceed in court.

Family, probate and other civil cases, such as foreclosures, may be delayed because of the priority for criminal cases, he said.

The office is working to make sure all civil cases will be processed in two days and is making process in regard, he said.

"The goal is to provide the public the information as quickly as possible," he said.

Ms. Odom said 99 percent of the civil cases are processed within two days.

The office also is apparently being helped by a reduced number of filings during the last couple of years.

In 2009, during a period when foreclosures spiked, the number of civil cases was 10,135. That dropped to 3,683 last year.

Additionally, criminal cases have dropped from 16,478 in 2009 to 13,313 last year.

However, the number of filings doesn't represent the full workload of the office, Ms. Hilson said.

Mr. Smith said although the public hours for his office have been reduced, he's worked to enhance what's available on the office's website.

For example, he said, people can pay their traffic fines through the website.

"The primary election for these races are closed," said Gertrude Walker, the supervisor of elections for St. Lucie County. "If they're not registered as a Republican or Democrat, they will not be able to vote in the Aug. 14 primary in those races."

Ms. Walker said Independents will still be able to vote in all the other races taking place that day.

"They can vote in the tax collector and city races," she said.

The tax collector candidates are all Democrats, which keeps the voting open for everyone. The city races are non-partisan, which means everyone can vote in them.

Voters who miss the deadline to update their information can still do it so it will be valid for the general election in November.

Currently, the county has 168,997 voters. According to the supervisor of elections website, there are 72,827 Democrats; 54,586 Republicans and 34,844 Independents or no party affiliation.

Campus

"All students are being accommodated, and no programs have been discontinued," said Lisa Metcalf, FAU spokeswoman. "The buildings in Port St. Lucie are not open to the public, and the assessment of the facilities is ongoing. Seventeen employees received layoff notices. Of those, seven obtained new positions."

The savings from suspending classes are estimated to be $1.7 million.

The decision to close the campus came as a unanimous vote by the college's board of trustees as part of the university's budget for the upcoming school year.

No staff or administrators were relocated to the Harbor Branch campus. Instead, nursing faculty and a librarian are now setting up in the Fort Pierce location.

"The move of the nursing and library faculty to Harbor Branch was completed last week, and faculty are preparing offices, labs and conference areas in preparation for the arrival of students in August," said Ms. Metcalf.

"Marine-related books from the Treasure Coast campus and books that support the nursing programs are in the process of being reassigned to the Harbor branch site."

The move is a positive one among the faculty and students.

"The Harbor Branch facility, students and staff are excited about having a second library and about the move of the nursing programs to the research site," she said. "The nursing faculty has offered to hold health screenings for Harbor Branch employees, and Harbor Branch will be giving tours of the campus to allow nursing students to have a behind-the-scenes look at marine research on the campus.

As far as scholarships that were being used on the Port St. Lucie campus, Ms. Metcalf said they will be used as is appropriate, "in consultation with the donors and FAU protocols," she said.

"FAU is committed to continuing its longtime research with the Treasure Coast as a partner in higher education and research innovation," said Mary Jane Saunders, FAU president.

"The university has recently invested more than $44 million in improvements to the education and research facilities at Harbor Branch, which ranks as one of the world's foremost centers of marine-related studies."

Ms. Saunders said the university will continue to meet the needs of undergraduate students.

"Our planned expansion of the academic programs (at Harbor Branch) will produce great benefits for students while enhancing research and community outreach activities," she said. "We will continue to work with our partners at Indian River State College while expanding FAU's research and educational initiatives at Harbor Branch."

Students who are affected by the closing will receive a phone message on who to contact next month when they dial a Treasure Coast campus number. There will also be contact information posted on the Internet. Phone numbers for staff moving to the Harbor Branch campus can be found by calling Harbor Branch's main number at (772) 242-2400.

Don't panic if your PC gets overwhelmed

COMPUTE THIS
SEAN MCCARTHY

Computers can get overwhelmed from time to time. I'm not saying that computers can be overwhelming, they can, but that's not what this week's column is about.

What I'm referring to are the times when, for no apparent reason, the computer just stops functioning and you can't seem to do anything.

What most people don't realize is just how much stuff is going on in the background at any given time. Every part of the computer, from the keyboard to the mouse to the monitor, has a little program running in the background that is in charge of how that particular part functions.

And they all have to run together harmoniously.

I'm not talking about just a few little programs or drivers, there are literally thousands of things going on in the background at any given second and sometimes the operating system can get overwhelmed.

Frankly, I'm surprised computers even run at all without crashing after five minutes of up time.

I always have to smile whenever I hear anyone say, "I wasn't even doing anything and it just locked up."

Sure, you weren't doing anything, but the computer is still as busy as a one-armed paperhanger.

Consider this: even if you are just sitting there, hands completely off the mouse and keyboard, the computer is constantly (and I do mean constantly) looking at the keyboard and mouse for any change. It's also repainting whatever's on the screen 60 to 70 times a second, checking to see if it's time to start the screen saver, listening to network or modems connections for incoming calls and more.

So even if you are not doing anything, the computer is still very busy just waiting for you to do something. And that's not even considering the hundreds of other things it has to do just to keep the desktop alive and stable. That's why your computer can sometimes become overwhelmed and freeze up.

So, what do you do about it when it happens? Let's go through a common scenario.

Let's say you are surfing the Internet and you click a link, the page loads and you start reading. You get to the bottom of the page and go to click somewhere else, but the pointer is just an hourglass and you can't click anything. Or, maybe the pointer looks fine (no hour glass) but still, nothing happens when you click.

What do you do then?

First, don't panic.

It usually doesn't mean the computer is messed up. It usually means that it got bogged down somewhere and needs a "little nudge" to get it back on track.

I usually try to get the computer's attention by trying a couple of different keyboard commands. I'll hit the escape key (usually at the top left-hand side of the keyboard) to divert the machine's attention from whatever it's stuck on. Sometimes this is all it takes, and sometimes not.

If the escape key doesn't change anything I'll try the old standard: CTRL +ALT + DEL (aka the "three finger salute") and see if I can access the task manager.

But, what if that doesn't work?

Another thing to try would be to reboot the machine. Just press and hold the power button until the computer shuts down, wait 10 to 20 seconds and turn it back on. After the machine restarts, things should be back to normal and you should have control of your mouse again.

I know powering off the computer is not the "proper" way to shut it down but sometimes it's the only way. If you can't click anything, how are you going to initiate a proper shutdown?

Occasional lock ups and other similar issues have given Windows a bad name, but I take it with a grain of

PORT ST. LUCIE

Gearing up for school

Staff and management at the Vaccine & Gene Therapy Institute in Port St. Lucie recently collected enough school supplies to ensure that students from two St. Lucie County Schools will begin the school year with backpacks filled with all the important materials needed to succeed academically. Teams of VGTI staff members competed with one another to collect, sort and pack supplies for the United Way of St. Lucie County's School Supplies for Students program, which has served more than 43,000 students since its inception in 1997.

Not a good time for fireworks

Colorado is still burning, and we have people shooting off fireworks in Sebastian, showing no regard for their own safety or that of their neighbor.

Aren't fireworks against the law? I enjoy a good time too, but with the tragedy in Colorado, I think several people showed a complete lack of common sense.

Editor's note: States set fireworks policies. To see a map of which states permit fireworks, to go http://www.americanpyro.com/pdf/2012StateLawsFireworkMap.pdf.

Big brother

Big Brother refuses to go away. In New York City, Mayor Michael Bloomberg requires fast-food eateries to post calorie counts. He wants to substitute today's French fries with fries without transfats (and without taste).

Now, he is trying to ban large-size soft drinks, all efforts to tackle obesity.

All of these are efforts to demonstrate that Big Brother knows best.

This is a classic battle between the forces of the Nanny State and those who treasure individual freedom.

The United States of America

With it being around July 4th I thought I'd pose the question "Why is America the greatest country on Earth?"

Well sorry to disappoint you, but it isn't. Here's a few facts for you to think about this holiday, Americans are seventh in literacy, 27th in math, 22nd in science, 49th in life expectancy, 178th in infant mortality, third in median household income, fourth in exports and fourth in labor force. The only categories the good old USA leads the world in are number of incarcerated citizens per capita, number of adults who actually believe angels are real and No. 1 in defense spending, where we spend more than the next 26 countries combined and 25 of whom are allies. And you wonder why there is a deficit.

Yet, once again, I read a couple of rants blaming teachers for all society's ills. Well, maybe some of these Americans need to take a long hard look in the mirror: basically the apple doesn't fall far from the tree. Stupid people breed stupid kids.

We have a generation of zombies whose idea of enjoyment is to spend hours watching race cars go round and round and round again, or being enthralled by the latest trash reality show, but ask any of them the directions to the local library and look at the blank stare you get. Most wouldn't know how to open a book to save their lives.

Add to that the garbage opinion that passes for news on TV, the corrupt cronyism in Washington, D.C., and every state house across the nation, and it's both parties who are guilty not one or the other but both. Is there any wonder this country is failing?

Once, this country was a beacon of hope for the rest of the world. Now, we undermine and other throw democratically elected governments, prop up dictators as long as it benefits corporate interests, wage war again for corporate greed all in the name of "freedom." Think about that when you're heading to Wal-Mart this holiday to buy a new TV or other stuff all on sale, all made in China by little more than slave labor, instead of being "Made in the USA" by our neighbors and family and friends.

America used to wage war on poverty, not poor people. We sacrificed, we cared about our neighbors, we didn't allow ourselves to live in fear, and we strived for greatness but didn't beat our chests. We aimed for the stars and reached the moon, we valued and aspired intelligence, we didn't belittle it. We debated and disagreed, but respected the others right to their opinions, and we used to care.

Shame on all of us for allowing a bunch of corrupt politicians and corporations to ship good paying jobs overseas all in the name of "free trade," wage war on countries to steal their natural resources, and scare us into subservience, then pit us against each other while they play us for the puppets we are. Then they tell us we are no longer a manufacturing-based economy, we are a consumer-based economy. Well, hello, a consumer-based economy is doomed to fail when the consumers can't afford to consume.

Wake up America before it's too late!

Editor's note: The statistics quoted at the beginning of this rant are not facts. Rather, they were taken from the HBO-produced television show "Newsroom." During the opening scene of the pilot episode a news anchor is asked why America is the greatest country in the world. He goes on to quote those statistics. According to Aneki.com, a database that tracks world rankings, the United States is No. 33 in life expectancy, No. 157 in infant mortality, No. 10 in the highest employment rates, No. 2 in incarcerated citizens (Russia is No. 1) and No. 24 in military expenditure (based on percentage of gross domestic product).

Bike ordinance

Regarding the ordinance prohibiting bike riders from use of sidewalks, motorists do not want us on the roads and you do not want us on the sidewalks, what are we supposed to do get wings and fly in the air? I understand not wanting vehicles with motors on the sidewalks, but would you like to walk on the roads with all the traffic?

It would be nice to share the sidewalks with regular bike riders.

Murder

Twenty years ago, Wayne Smith killed a woman and was sentenced to death. This murder was not Smith's first run-in with the law. He had previously killed a man outside a bar using a machete. He had served only four years.

Using endless appeals, his attorneys have kept him alive. Law-abiding citizens should be outraged. Quietly and through political contributions, lawyers take advantage of the current legal system and use it as a cash cow.

Editor's note: We can't be certain, but we think the reader is referring to a Chester, Pa., man who murdered a 26-year-old woman in 1994. He was recently sentenced to death for his crime, as reported by the Delaware County Daily Times. For more, go to www.delcotimes.com.

Can't sing certain songs

The principal of a New York City school prohibited kindergarten pupils from singing Lee Greenwood's "God Bless the USA" at their graduation on the grounds that "we don't want to offend other cultures."

Many parents were angry. One said, "A lot of people fought to move to America to live freely, so that song should be sung with a whole lot of pride."

We agree.

The dead can't vote

At least 1.8 million people on the voter rolls will not be able to cast ballots in November. That's because they are dead. Their registrations are among a total of more than 24 million inaccurate or out-of-date U.S. voter records, according to the Pew Center on the States.

If we want honest and fair elections, states such as Florida, which are trying to clean up this mess, deserve credit for being on the right track.

Wild pitches

In today's society, everyone can sue almost everyone else for just about anything, or almost nothing.

A woman hit by a baseball at a Little League game is suing the 11 year old who threw it. The spectator wants the young man to pay her $150,000, alleging the errant throw was "reckless."

"The whole thing has almost been surreal," said the boy's father. The lawyers on both sides are laughing all the way to the bank. The real tragedy is that the general public does not realize that they are being stuck with all the bills.

Q: How long have you lived in St. Lucie County?
Campion: More than 12 years.
Culverhouse: Lifelong resident. I was born in Fort Pierce, where I grew up until leaving to attend college. After school, I moved back to St. Lucie County, and currently reside in Port St. Lucie.
Grande: Came to St. Lucie County in 1989.
Johnson: I have lived here for about 30 years.

Q: Why did you decide to run?
Campion: I love St. Lucie County. This is home for me and my family, and I want to have a hand in making it a safe, clean, prosperous and happy home. We have some amazing people here in the county and breathtaking natural resources like our beaches and the Indian River Lagoon. We also have our share of challenges that we face as a community.

When the economy and housing market crashed on the national level, locally we were extremely hard hit. But the counties north and south of us seemed to have weathered this economic storm better than we have. Their unemployment and poverty levels are lower, their foreclosure rates are lower and their real estate values are higher. The difference between those counties and St. Lucie County is obvious: leadership. We can't keep sending the same people back into office election after election and expect things to change. We need new leadership, fresh faces with new ideas.

Culverhouse: Because I want to serve the residents of St. Lucie County. I want to make the county a better place for current residents and future generation, by helping to create new and innovative job opportunities and helping to make the county a better community to live, work and enjoy. I grew up here, I have roots here and I have invested a lot of my time and energy in this community. I moved away to attend college, but I chose to come home because I realized how much the county has to offer and how lucky we are to call this great community our home. I will offer a new voice and a fresh perspective to move the county forward.

Grande: Because I am the best qualified candidate for a time when fiscal management is extremely important, attracting business is critical and land planning is going to set the tome for the future of our county. I have served four years as a county commissioner and have 10 years' experience on the planning and zoning board.

Johnson: Because I am tired of the resources we have not being used, and I'm also tired for seeing local jobs and local business contracts outsourced to people who don't live in the county.

Q: What are the top two issues you wish to see addressed?
Campion: The two issues I am going to address go hand in hand: jobs and the economy. We need to get people back to work here in the county. Past and current local leaders have done an admirable job of investing long term in an attempt to transform the Treasure Coast into the Research Coast with investments in companies like VGTI and Torrey Pines, and partnerships with institutions like Harbor Branch, IRSC, FAU and the University of Florida.

However, these are long-term investments. This is not going to get large numbers of people who are unemployed in St. Lucie County back to work immediately and that's what we need. We need jobs and we need them now.

We need to be investing locally in helping businesses expand and grow, and encouraging our local entrepreneurs to start their own businesses. Most job creation starts with small business. That is where I intend to focus my efforts.

If we get people back to work, they can afford one of the many vacant properties here in the county. And they can get it at rock-bottom prices and record low mortgage rates. We would get them back to earning, spending and owning a home. We would get the property back on the tax rolls. We would improve the value of our properties overall by decreasing the available inventory, and make our community safer and more appealing by eliminating vacant or abandoned homes.

Culverhouse: Job creation, and strengthening and enhancing local partnerships. I will work with business leaders and with county and city officials in Port St. Lucie, Fort Pierce and St. Lucie Village to help lower the county's unemployment rate by helping to create a friendlier atmosphere for local businesses and getting people back to work.

The county must also continue to develop and market the Treasure Coast Research Park, and should also continue its successful partnership with the Economic Development Council to attract high-paying biotech and research jobs like those being brought here by the Torrey Pines Institute for Molecular Studies and the Vaccine & Gene Therapy Institute.

Grande: There will be pressure to return to the inflated budgets of the past. I know where the waste was and I will keep spending to a minimum while continuing to fight against any real estate tax rate increases.

Johnson: Resources and jobs.

Q: What are some of the other issues you feel are important to your campaign?
Campion: The long-term investment for the future of any civilized society is education. We need to continue to pursue partnerships between the schools here and groups like Digital Domain and Harbor Branch Oceanographic. We need to be investing in educating our future workforce in the skills they will need to succeed in the digital age and in the research and bio-salt. Knowing that there are so many other things going on in the background makes it easier to understand why your computer occasionally freezes.

Frankly, the same thing happens from time to time with Macs, too. I've seen it with my own eyes. The issue is really knowing what to do when the occasional lock up happens.

sheriff's office and a sting was set up.

He arranged to meet with the man who had the phone. When the second man showed up, deputies arrested him. They also discovered he had a crack pipe.

Besides possibly serving jail time, the man will likely end up paying more than $50 in court costs and fines.

Doing the right thing would have saved him all that.

Feline Hyperthyroidism

by Patrick Kelly, DVM

Hyperthyroidism (th yrotoxicosis) is the most commonly diagnosed endocrinological disorder in older cats . It usually aff ects cats o ver 10 y ears of age b ut can be seen in cats y ounger than that. The most common clinical sign is an older cat that is losing weight in spite of ha ving a r avenous appetite. The paired thyroid glands lie in the nec k on either side of the tr achea. They control the body's metabolism. An overactive gland produces too much thyroid hormone increasing the cat's metabolic rate as well as the hear t r ate. Vomiting, increase thirst and ur ination, and diarrhea are other common clinical signs of h yperthyroid cats.

Diagnosis is made with a thorough ph ysical e xam and bloodwork. Most Hyperhtroid cats ha ve at least one enlarged thyroid that can be palpated b y a v eterinarian dur ing a routine physical exam. We encourage complete blood panels and thyroid profiles in an y cat o ver 7 y ears of age . We ha ve diagnosed Hyperthyroidism in many cats with bloodwork results before they become clinically apparent. Hyperthyroidism can lead to a hear t condition called h ypertrophic cardiom yopathy, increased liv er enzymes, hypertension and kidney disease.

There are 4 treatment options f or cats diagnosed with hyperthyroidism.

- Medical: This treatment has been the most popular alternative because of the relativ ely low cost. The downside is cats do not like to be pilled and this option usually requires twice a day pilling for the rest of the cat's life, and at least biannual blood test monitor ing.
- Surgical: This option is a m uch less common choice with the availability of the third option. Mammals have 2 thyroid glands and only one can be remo ved at a time to a void serious post operative complications. The cost of bilateral thyroidectomies is comparable to the next and best option.
- (I 131) radioactive iodine treatment: This is the treatment modality that people get when diagnosed with hyperthyroidism or Grave's Disease. This treatment has to be done at special treatment centers. We use the Animal Emergency and Referral Center in F ort Pierce.Radioactive iodine is injected under the skin of an aff ected cat. The cat's thyroid gland needs iodine to produce th yroid hormone so it picks up the r adioactive iodine. The radioactive iodine b urns the overactive gland and cures the disease. There is only about a 5% recurrence r ate with this treatment and eliminates the necessity of twice a day pilling.
- Hill's Y/D® diet: Hill's Science diet has come out without an iodine free prescription diet food that can be given to hyperthyroid cats. Cats on this diet cannot get any other food or any treats, because they contain iodine. The thyroid gland cannot produce thyroid hormone without iodine so the disease is managed and controlled in that manner. The diet is extremely palatable, and if the client can comply with this diet only, it is a v ery reasonable, and cost effective way to control the disease tech fields that we have already invested so heavily in. We also need to continue to educate young and old on the environment, whether it's recycling, green energy or eating locally grown foods. People are aware that we have a beautiful community, but it is up to us and our children to keep it that way.

Cats that have concurrent kidney disease may do better with medical or dietar y management of the disease r ather than the permanent options of surgery of the (I 131) r adioactive treatment.

Culverhouse: I look forward to enhancing partnerships with Indian River State College, the St. Lucie County School Board, and business leaders to expand the educational, vocational and apprentice programs that will help St. Lucie County produce an educated and highly skilled work force that will attract "clean" and "green" jobs and businesses, which will bring smart growth to our county and help get our residents back to work.

Grande: I have known and worked with Larry Pelton of the Economic Development Council since well before he came to our county, and I will continue to work with him to attract new businesses and increase the non-residential component of our tax base. I will help guide these efforts, and economic recovery that has just gotten underway will start the employment recovery in out county and revive the housing market.

Johnson: Education and innovation.

Q: What makes you the most qualified candidate?

Campion: Because I have vast and varied experience as a leader in my personal and professional life. I have an extensive record of success in everything I have done, and I have the youth, energy and desire to put my leadership skills to work in successfully guiding St. Lucie County toward a better future. The county needs new leadership with new ideas, and I am a qualified and proven leader.

Culverhouse: My involvement as chairman of the St. Lucie County Citizen's Budget Committee has given me a thorough understanding of the budget process and the economic issues that our county faces. I have served on the committee since 2009, and I am currently the committee's chairman. I was elected to serve as the chairman by the committee members, who are both Democratic and Republican community leaders, which shows that I can work with members of both parties, as well as independents. Also, my involvement in community organizations such as the St. Lucie Historical Society, Main Street Fort Pierce and Lincoln Park Main Street has allowed me to experience and understand how our county's history and diversity makes us such a special and unique county.

Grande: Growth in the county has been relatively dormant for several years. We are seeing the beginnings of a much-needed recovery and I anticipate the land planning and regulatory decisions made over the next four years will be critical for growing our economy while maintaining our quality of life. I intend to position St. Lucie County as the most attractive place to relocate to, whether you are a business or you are considering a residential move.

Johnson: I believe I am a "change agent," someone who sees problems, seeks answers and takes the necessary actions for solving problems to present better change. This is evident from my duties as an award-winning classroom teacher and professional motivational speaker, who created an atmosphere for others to change themselves and their results for the better wherever I went.

charged with being a fugitive from Alabama on charges of unauthorized practice of law and failure to appear in court on a charge of unauthorized practice of law

• Janet Tharpe Hancock, 61, 135 N.E. Lobster St., Port St. Lucie, who was charged with being a fugitive from Alabama on charges of forgery, burglary and resisting arrest

A newspaper in Dothan, Ala., the Dothan Eagle, reported authorities arrested Mr. Lambert last year and charged him with unlawful practice of serving as a lawyer in Harrison County, Ala.

The article quoted authorities as saying Mr. Lambert attempted to represent his girlfriend, Ms. Hancock, who was convicted last year of burglary and was facing forgery charges.

District Attorney Doug Valeska told the newspaper Ms. Hancock, who was out on appeal bond, claimed to be a "sovereign citizen" and that the laws did not apply to her.

Then, sometime in March of this year, the couple fled Dothan, authorities said.

Rickey Stokes, owner of A-Advantage Bonding in Alabama, said his agents tracked the couple to Port St. Lucie last week.

Mr. Stokes said he believes the couple came to Port St. Lucie because a resident here has the same beliefs regarding the government.

At the time they fled, Mr. Lambert faced the unlawful practice of law charge and

TREASURE COAST — Florida loses more children under age 5 to drowning every year than any other state in the nation.

Hundreds more experience near-drowning tragedies that can cause permanent health problems and developmental delay.

The Department of Children and Families investigates accidental drownings to determine if neglect was a factor. In all cases, drowning is preventable. Children do not drown when someone is dedicated to watching them.

"Parents and caregivers should remember that nothing is more important than keeping your eyes on a child in the water," said David Wilkins, DCF secretary. "A child can drown in less than 5 minutes."

DCF and the Department of Health are partnering to prevent drownings and save children's lives. About 5,000 books that teach children how to be safe around water are being distributed to children at safety events this summer, and more than 20,000 brochures with tips on drowning prevention are being handed out to parents and other caregivers.

Unintentional drowning is the leading cause of death for children under age 4 in Florida. More than two-thirds of these deaths occurred in swimming pools. However, drownings also occur in canals, the ocean, bathtubs, toilets and buckets of water.

Young children can drown in less than 2 inches of water and in less than 5 minutes, the time it takes to use the restroom or answer a telephone. Many parents have only left their child alone for a few minutes before drowning.

"I urge Floridians and visitors to supervise children closely and keep toddlers within arms reach at swimming pools," said John Armstrong, Florida's surgeon general.

"Pool safety is everyone's responsibility across layers of protection, which include supervision, barriers (such as alarms on doors, pool fences and locking gates), and readiness to call 911 in case of emergency."

Follow the water safety tips below and never, ever leave a child unattended in or near any water.

• Install fencing and other barriers around pools and check regularly to make sure they are working properly.

• Make sure doors have alarms and child-proof locks.

• Adults should learn to swim and also teach their children how to swim. Children from non-swimming households are eight times more likely to be at risk of drowning.

• Remove toys, especially riding toys, away from the pool area. Children can fall off of riding tools like bicycles and into the water.

• Never allow a child to be around any water unsupervised. That includes bathtubs, buckets, ponds, ditches, canals, pools, rivers, oceans, hot tubs and more.

• If there are multiple adults watching children in the pool, designate one adult at a time as the official "water watcher," to keep a constant eye on the children.

• Never allow a child to supervise another child near or in water.

• Make sure children stay away from pool drains.

• Learn first aid and CPR for children to use in the case of an emergency.

Bring plenty of appetite for good food

PORT ST. LUCIE — If the smell of barbecuing meat isn't the main reason to turn off U.S. 1 in Port St. Lucie and head into Sonny's Real Pit Bar-B-Q, it has to be at least in the top three.

The delicious smell hit me as soon as I stepped out of my car a few days ago when I visited the restaurant. I grinned with anticipation and quickened my step to meet the staff and enjoy some lunch.

Sonny's has been a staple in Port St. Lucie for about 15 years, and judging by the crowd on a regular workday, it's going to be here for a while.

"There are some wonderful people here in Port St. Lucie," said Ginny Hagler, manager of the restaurant. "We appreciate their support."

The bulk of their diners were returning customers, and I'm sure the friendly service has a lot to do with it. I was greeted by at least four people before I was even seated.

ST. LUCIE COUNTY — Dust off the pirate speak, and set sail for the latest live murder mystery dinner theater show taking place at the Port St. Lucie Civic Center on July 25.

A local production company, Clapping Monkey, will present the mystery "Death Aboard the Infamous."

The mystery takes place on the sailing ship "Infamous," where the passengers are enjoying the voyage; at least, until someone shoots not only the first mate, but the ship's parrot.

The cast is made up of seven actors who are all suspects in the murders. As the mystery progresses, the audience helps solve it.

"Clues and details will be shown throughout the evening," said Charles Watson, owner of Clapping Monkey Productions. "The audience is part of the show."

This mystery is one of many new ones the production company has recently created to entertain residents of St. Lucie County.

"We have a writer, so all of our mysteries and scripts are original," said Mr. Watson. "The response from the community has been great. This is the busiest we've ever been."

The cast rehearses every day, including show days. The show itself is expected to take approximately two and a half to three hours.

The "dinner" part of the dinner theater is a dinner buffet including Caesar salad, Italian sausage and peppers, chicken parmesan, baked ziti, mixed vegetables and beverages.

During dinner, actors weave through the dining area and visit each table of 10.

For this performance, the diners are encouraged to dress in pirate-theme costumes. A prize will be awarded for best costume, and at the end of the show, the audience sleuths who correctly identify the murderer will be part of a trivia showdown to determine a winner of a prize package.

To keep it interesting, the cast does not know who the murderer is until that evening, only the director knows.

The production company performs mystery dinner shows at the civic center once a month, but also performs an improvisational show there, as well.

"We get together in a less-formal atmosphere and do a lot of skits, sketches and stand-up comedy based on the audience input," Mr. Watson said. "It's a lot of fun and always different."

In addition, the group performs for private parties and fundraisers all over the Treasure Coast.

The Port St. Lucie Civic Center is located at 9221 S.E. Civic Center Place in Port St. Lucie. Tickets are $40 per person and must be purchased in advance. No tickets will be sold at the door. To order tickets, call the civic center at (772) 807-4488. For more information on Clapping Monkey Productions, call Mr. Watson at (772) 204-4183 or go online to www.clappingmonkeyproductions.com.

Food

Looking over the menu, I saw what a person would find in a barbecue restaurant in the selection of meats. But that's where Sonny's breaks out on its own.

All the food is made on site every day, from the cole-slaw to the cobbler dessert. Approximately 30 employees make it their goal to make sure customers enjoys their meals.

"The meat starts cooking at 7 a.m. every day," said Ms. Hagler. "People driving to work can smell it cooking."

Even though it was lunch, I was told I could order from the dinner side if I wanted. Knowing the large portions that come from the kitchen, I stuck with lunch and ordered the pulled-beef brisket with coleslaw, green beans and cornbread.

While waiting for my food, I took a sip of my huge drink and looked around at their recently renovated dining room. I noticed that no matter the person, there was something for everyone at the restaurant.

For those with large appetites, there's the all-you-can-eat menu, while those watching what they eat could put together a plate off a salad bar that had a not only fresh vegetables, but a variety of prepared salads such as pasta, macaroni, potato and carrot. There were even two soup choices and some puddings for dessert there.

For those watching their budgets instead of their waistlines, a variety of daily specials will have them leaving happily.

I was glad I ordered from the lunch menu and not the dinner menu when my meal arrived. The portions are large, but definitely not unwelcome.

My brisket came out juicy and flavorful, and I selected the "sweet" flavored sauce from the many choices on my table to complement it.

My sides came in separate dishes, and my green beans had a hint of spiciness to them that gave them a little extra kick. The coleslaw was cold and creamy, with bits of carrots and purple cabbage for color.

My meal also came with what I call dessert: a mini loaf of cornbread. It was warm and moist, but still broke apart in that wonderfully crumbly way that all cornbread does. I used cinnamon butter on mine, which melted right in.

The restaurant has a large assortment of barbecued meat to select from including: ribs, pork, brisket, turkey, chicken and catfish.

Combined with the many sides such as beans, macaroni and cheese, coleslaw, fries, corn on the cob, a baked potato or a sweet potato, and I could see myself coming back many times and not having the same meal twice.

I was too full for dessert, but I will have to make it a point to come back and try their cobbler with ice cream, or maybe even the banana pudding.

From the huge drinks to the even bigger plates of food, Sonny's is definitely in the business of serving delicious food. And they're very good at it.

Sonny's Real Pit Bar-B-Q is located at 10180 South U.S. 1 in Port St. Lucie. It is open from 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. seven days a week. For more information, call (772) 335-2983.

Biscuits made with oil, delicious sweet treats

Hello, smart shoppers! It's summer time! Do your kids know how to swim? I was 11 before I learned. My Uncle Vinnie and Aunt Margie lived on Long Island on a canal perfect for swimming. She had been a lifeguard and insisted it was time.

With a donut shaped life preserver around my chubby body she helped me into the canal. Close to the bulkhead the water was shallow.

"This is easy," I thought. "Walk out into the middle, kick your legs and swim!"

When the bottom dropped out I panicked. Have you ever heard of anyone flipping themselves over? The preserver held me up all right, feet up! She dove in, clothes and all and pulled me upright.

"How could anyone do what you just did?" she said.

The next day I was forced to do it again.

"This time, make sure it's heads up!" I learned. Did I have a choice? I never heard the end of the fact that I ruined her new sandals.

This column will answer a request for biscuits made with oil rather than shortening and then some sweet treats.

HOMEMADE BISCUITS (NIB)

Biscuits made with heart-healthy oil are easy to make and better for you.

2 cups sifted flour*
3 teaspoons baking powder
1/2-teaspoon salt
1/3-cup canola oil
2/3-cups milk

*Remember, first sift the flour then measure; do not shake down. Place flour, baking powder and salt into a bowl, mix well.

Blend milk and oil in a separate bowl stir well with a fork. Add to flour mixture all at once, stirring well with the fork to make soft dough. Place on waxed paper and knead with floured hands 10 to 12 times. Gently pat dough out into a 1/2-inch thickness and cut into rounds or squares. Place on an un-greased baking sheet and bake in a 450 degree preheated oven for 10 to 15 minutes until lightly browned.

MANDARIN ORANGE CAKE (NIB) From Adele Plofsky Regular or low fat

ROMANCING THE STOVE with the Grammy Guru ARLENE BORG

Adele sent me this recipe quite a while ago and asked if I could make it low fat. I did and if it tastes any better high fat I might eat the whole cake.

1 package yellow cake mix without pudding
11-ounce can mandarin oranges with juice
3 eggs, equivalent of egg substitute, or 4 egg whites
1/2-cup canola oil or substitute applesauce
1 tablespoon grated orange peel (optional)

FROSTING

8-ounce can crushed pineapple with juice
1 small (4 serving size) package vanilla instant pudding
8-ounce carton whipped topping, regular, low fat or fat free

Combine cake mix, mandarin orange juice (reserve oranges), grated orange peel, eggs or your alternative choice, and oil or applesauce. Beat 1-1/2 minutes at medium-high speed of electric mixer. Add mandarin oranges. Reduce speed to low and beat 1-1/2 minute longer. Pour batter into layer cake pans or a 9X13-inch pan treated with cooking spray.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in layer cake pans 10 minutes. (Leave in pan when using the rectangular size.)

FROSTING

Combine crushed pineapple, juice and pudding mix in a bowl. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer; let stand 5 minutes until mixture thickens. Thoroughly fold in whipped topping. Frost cake. Chill at least 2 hours. Freezes great.

COFFEE APPLE CAKE (NIB) Serves 14

1-1/2 cups sugar or 3/4-cup sugar and 3/4-cup Splenda
3/4-cup shortening or Smart Balance butter substitute
2 large eggs
1 teaspoon baking soda
2-1/2 cups sifted flour
3/4-teaspoon cinnamon
1/2-teaspoon salt
3/4-cup warm coffee
3 or 4 apples, peeled, cored and diced to measure 3 cups
1/2-cup chopped walnuts, optional
Flour to shake nuts in

TOPPING

1/2-cup light brown sugar
1/2-teaspoon cinnamon

Using an electric mixture cream sugar and shortening, add eggs and beat well. Sift dry ingredients. Add to creamed mixture alternately with the coffee.

Shake nuts in a bag mixed with a little flour (dusting dry fruits or nuts with flour will prevent them from sinking. Fold apples and nuts into batter.

Pour into a rectangle pan treated with cooking spray. Combine topping ingredients, sprinkle over batter.

Bake at 350 for 45 minutes or until a toothpick inserted into the center comes out clean.

Everyone should practice water safety

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

TREASURE COAST — Florida loses more children under age 5 to drowning every year than any other state in the nation.

Hundreds more experience near-drowning tragedies that can cause permanent health problems and developmental delay.

The Department of Children and Families investigates accidental drownings to determine if neglect was a factor. In all cases, drowning is preventable. Children do not drown when someone is dedicated to watching them.

"Parents and caregivers should remember that nothing is more important than keeping your eyes on a child in the water," said David Wilkins, DCF secretary. "A child can drown in less than 5 minutes."

DCF and the Department of Health are partnering to prevent drownings and save children's lives. About 5,000 books that teach children how to be safe around water are being distributed to children at safety events this summer, and more than 20,000 brochures with tips on drowning prevention are being handed out to parents and other caregivers.

Unintentional drowning is the leading cause of death for children under age 4 in Florida. More than two-thirds of these deaths occurred in swimming pools. However, drownings also occur in canals, the ocean, bathtubs, toilets and buckets of water.

Young children can drown in less than 2 inches of water and in less than 5 minutes, the time it takes to use the restroom or answer a telephone. Many parents have only left their child alone for a few minutes before drowning.

"I urge Floridians and visitors to supervise children closely and keep toddlers within arms reach at swimming pools," said John Armstrong, Florida's surgeon general.

"Pool safety is everyone's responsibility across layers of protection, which include supervision, barriers (such as alarms on doors, pool fences and locking gates), and readiness to call 911 in case of emergency."

Follow the water safety tips below and never, ever leave a child unattended in or near any water.

• Install fencing and other barriers around pools and check regularly to make sure they are working properly.

• Make sure doors have alarms and child-proof locks.

• Adults should learn to swim and also teach their children how to swim. Children from non-swimming households are eight times more likely to be at risk of drowning.

• Remove toys, especially riding toys, away from the pool area. Children can fall off of riding tools like bicycles and into the water.

• Never allow a child to be around any water unsupervised. That includes bathtubs, buckets, ponds, ditches, canals, pools, rivers, oceans, hot tubs and more.

• If there are multiple adults watching children in the pool, designate one adult at a time as the official "water watcher," to keep a constant eye on the children.

• Never allow a child to supervise another child near or in water.

• Make sure children stay away from pool drains.

• Learn first aid and CPR for children to use in the case of an emergency.

For more information on water safety and to print free "water watcher" tags, visit www.waterprooffl.com.

Vets take in Mets game

The vets at the Mets held a fundraiser on June 3 at Digital Domain Park in Port St. Lucie for the disabled veterans VA Hospital in West Palm Beach. More than 2,000 people were in attendance, raising more than $1,000 for the hospital. From left to right: Joe Anderson, vets at the Mets chairman Lou Truppa, Larry Williams, Army Sgt. Connie Jenkins and St. Lucie Mets player Hamilton Bennett. Sgt. Jenkins threw the first pitch of the game.

Keeping cool on the course

GOLF
JAMES STAMMER

Comparing our temperatures of late to those in the northeast and north Georgia, Tennessee and the Carolinas, we appear to be having a cool spell. Fortunately, we are blessed with a cooling breeze from the ocean, while those north of us are trapped with triple-digit temperatures and a hot wind. However, don't let our better fortune lull you into the idea that it isn't still terribly hot here.

Since golf is an outdoor sport, you should be properly prepared to take on the heat and avoid dehydration, heat exhaustion or stroke.

Sweating is the most significant way the body cools itself to maintain a safe and stable temperature. In humid climates our sweat doesn't evaporate easily and our bodies don't cool efficiently. We sweat more and need to consume more fluids to help our bodies stay cool and perform at its best.

It's important that you drink before you're thirsty. You'll even play better when you're not constantly looking for the next water cooler.

Sports drinks, such as Gatorade and the like, help replenish your body with the fluids and electrolytes that your body loses while perspiring. These drinks are also loaded with carbohydrates that provide energy your body needs.

Fruits are best for giving you a boost of long-lasting energy. Candy bars provide quick energy, but their effects diminish just as quickly. Bananas, apples or peaches are easy to carry and easy to eat. Bananas also help to prevent the buildup of cramp-causing lactic acid in the muscles, a frequent occurrence during exercise.

The most important concern should be avoiding heat exhaustion or, even worse, heat stroke. There are many ways to do that.

Always wear shorts, and light colored shirts. It may sound crazy, but wearing an undershirt will also help. The undershirt helps get perspiration away from your body where it can evaporate more quickly, assisting in the cooling process. If you feel too warm at the turn, stop by the clubhouse, grab a cold drink and soak up some air conditioning.

While hats are great for keeping the sun off your head and face, they will make you warmer. Your body discharges most of its heat through your head. Medical experts state that up to 70 percent of your blood is in your head at any given time. If your head is hot, so is the rest of your body. Therefore, if your head is cool, the rest of your body will be, as well. I like to take my cap off when I'm riding along in the cart. The sun isn't beating down on me and the breeze created by the moving cart helps to cool me.

Some people like to take along an extra towel or two. They dampen these towels at every water cooler and lay them across the back of their necks or over their heads when not hitting a shot, or wipe their face and arms with them to keep cool.

If you are taking medication, your body may need even more assistance to keep cool. Some medications interfere with sweating, putting you at a greater risk. Check with your doctor to see if your medication could be putting you at risk and what measures you should take to lesson your chances of heat-induced illness.

If you begin to feel the effects of extreme thirst, nausea, dizziness, headache, elevated temperature, if your skin looks pale, your pupils appear dilated or your muscles start to cramp, there is a good chance that you are suffering from heat exhaustion.

The best thing to do is immediately get to a cool place and rest. Replenish your body by drinking large amounts of fluids and eating generously salted foods to help your body return to its normal balance.

Heat stroke is much more serious and can quickly become deadly. Symptoms of heat stroke include hot, dry skin with a grayish tint, dilated pupils and a body temperature that may rise to more than 104 degrees.

Anyone suffering from heat stroke must be treated quickly. Immerse the victim in a cool water or ice bath and call 911 immediately.

Finally, a step many of us forget. Remember to put sunscreen on every exposed body part. The effects of sunlight on our skin can be deadly. Skin cancer is becoming more prevalent with the depletion of the Earth's protective ozone layer. A few minutes spent putting on sunscreen could save your life.

We all want to enjoy our round and play our best. If you're careful and follow a few of tips, you can make sure your next round isn't your last.
