Boutique offers solution to pesky problem

By Anna-Marie Menhenott
news@hometownnewsol.com

TREASURE COAST — They are words any parents would rather not hear, "Your child has lice."

The pesky problem can not only be embarrassing for a child in school, it can cause itching and discomfort, and if left untreated, can spread throughout a household, leaving all members itching their scalp.

However, there is a new option in Port St. Lucie that can alleviate the problem of lice and their eggs, commonly referred to as nits.

"Lice and nits is the number one reason for absenteeism in schools," said The Lice Boutique's owner and certified lice remover, Cac Stiner. "The only way to completely remove lice from a head is to go strand by strand. That's what we do. We practice the Shepard Method, which is a certified way to remove the lice. There are so many wives tales out there and people really don't know the facts about lice. We want to educate the public and let them know what they can do to prevent the spread of lice and how to remove them safely."

Ms. Stiner found herself facing the problem of lice when her daughter came back from college.

"My daughter came home with lice," Ms. Stiner said. "The only place that helped with the problem was the Commission debates grant funding

By Donald Rodrigue
For Hometown News

FORT PIERCE — The Fort Pierce City Commission held the first of two public hearings on July 21 to get the public's input on the proposed 2014-15 Annual Action Plan for the city's Community Development Block Grant program.

Libby Woodruff, city grants administrator, told commissioners she compiled the draft of the $680,661 plan after getting input from surveys completed by city residents and community service organizations. Nine organizations and 33 city residents responded to the survey, with their top concerns being job creation and economic development, youth activities, code enforcement and policing efforts.

College ranked one of state's most affordable

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

TREASURE COAST — For the second consecutive year, Indian River State College has been rated as the fourth most affordable college in the country and most affordable of Florida colleges according to the U.S. Department of Education's College Affordability and Transparency Report released June 30. In addition, IRSC recently reinforced its long-standing commitment to affordability with no increase in tuition and fees for the 2014-2015 school year, maintaining the College's low tuition rate for the third school year in a row. Due to careful financial planning throughout the College, the IRSC District Board of Trustees has been able to approve college budgets with no tuition increase for the past two years.

"Thousands of Treasure Coast residents attending IRSC will have more money in their pockets when the Fall Semester begins, thanks to the College's very efficient operation," said Dr. Edwin R. Massey, IRSC President. "IRSC is committed to maintaining quality at reasonable cost, while helping students avoid a heavy burden of student loan debt. It's so important to keep the doors of higher education open for all students. Affordable higher education is the gateway to good career prospects and a skilled workforce for our community."

IRSC has been able to hold down operational costs by implementing cost efficiencies in energy usage, including LEED Gold Certification for the two newest buildings, and savings in administration to ensure that funds are directed into the classroom to the greatest extent possible. Administrative costs at IRSC are historically the lowest of all 28 state and community colleges in Florida, with IRSC ranking the highest in percent of funds going toward instruction. The emphasis on teaching and student success has resulted in IRSC's ranking as Lice Solutions in West Palm Beach. The clinic is run by Katie Shepard and that chance meeting changed my life."

Ms. Stiner found out while at the clinic in West Palm Beach that she too had lice. While undergoing treatment, she spoke with Ms. Shepard and decided that she also wanted to open a lice removal clinic.

"I came home and told my husband that I was going to open a clinic and that's what I did," Ms. Stiner said.

Ms. Stiner's clinic is the only one between West Palm Beach and Orlando. They have treated patients from across the Treasure Coast and Ms. Stiner gives informative speeches to schools and groups.

"I want the public to be aware of the issue," Ms. Stiner said. "I've seen people putting kerosene onto a child's head, thinking it may get rid of the lice. It didn't and the child's head was burned. There are solutions out there, but not knowing and the stigmas around lice are a big part of the problem."

Some of the advice Ms. Stiner gives is to avoid head-to-head (or hair-to-hair) contact with other people to the best of your ability. This includes contact during play or other activities at school, home, camp, sports activities etc. It is impossible to stop a child from interacting with other children, so simply educate them on why head-to-head contact may bring a lice infestation.

Do not share hair brushes, combs, clothing, hair ties, hats, scarves, or towels. Disinfect brushes and combs by soaking them in hot water (130 degrees or hotter) for five to ten minutes. In the case of clothing, washing in hot water is best and dry on hot for about 30 minutes. There is no need to go crazy cleaning your house, just think of your life in the last 24 hours and clean the clothing, bedding, and hair accessories accordingly.

Keep longer hair tied back tight in a ponytail, braid, bun, or pigtails. It won't completely stop lice from going to the child's head, but lice can only travel from hair-to-hair. With less flyaway hairs to grab onto, there is less of a chance for an infestation. It takes one live bug transfer to successfully start a new infestation.

Lice does not discriminate and can infect any hair type. One of the tell-tale signs of lice is an itchy scalp, however not all of those with lice have that issue. The "itch" is from an allergic reaction to the saliva that the bugs secrete, so if the person is not allergic to the saliva, then there is no itching.

Contrary to popular belief, lice do not jump, or fly, from person to person. They crawl.

"The best defense against lice is education," Ms. Stiner said. "Although they are troublesome, they are not the end of the world."

The Lice Boutique is located in Lexington Plaza, 6839 South U.S. 1, in Port St. Lucie. For more information regarding lice, nits and lice removal, visit www.certifiedliceremoval.com or call (844) END-LICE (363-5423).

Learn some of the options available when you print

COMPUTE THIS
SEAN MCCARTHY

If there is one basic function that everyone is familiar with and yet shrouded in mystery I would have to say that would be the "print" command.

Again, everybody is familiar with the print command – click the print button and your printer spits out a hard copy. But the reason it's shrouded in mystery is there are a ton of options and controls available, most of which no one takes the time to learn, that give the user a lot more control over the printer output than many people are aware they have.

Let's take a look at some of these functions and see if we can figure out what some of them are good for and why we would want to use them.

Using the print button in the toolbar of many applications (or the "Quick Print" option in Word) will do just that – quickly send whatever is onscreen to the printer using the "default" settings. What that means is that the computer has a series of preset settings that it will use "by default" if you don't tell it to do something different.

For instance, if you have more than one printer set up (perhaps your "real" printer and maybe a fax program listed as a printer) then the computer will have one printer set up as its default - If you don't tell it to print to another device then that's the one it's going to print to. Other defaults include paper size, whether or not you want to print in color or grayscale and print quality. Clicking the print button on the tool bar will send the print job to the printer using these default settings.

But what about if you want to change something? Suppose you want to print to a different printer or maybe you want to print using the low quality settings (draft) to save some ink, how can you adjust these settings if the print job sends straight to the printer when you click print?

To get to the print menu that gives you full control look for the "File" pull-down menu at the top left hand corner of whatever program you are trying to print from. Now, be aware that not all programs have the "File, Edit, View…" pull down menus that we've grown fond of over the years. You may or may not see the file pull-down menu if you are running Vista or 7 but that doesn't mean we can't get to where we want to go. If you have a "File" pull-down menu, click it. You should fine the print command listed and clicking that will pull up the print window. If you don't have the File pull-down then on your keyboard press and hold the CTRL button and then click P. That will open the print command the same as clicking File then Print.

Now, I know what some of you are thinking – "why go through all that business with the File pull-down menu when CTRL + P does the same thing?" Well, the reason I try to steer people in the direction of the pull-down menus is simply because there are other commands in there right next to Print that may not be available with the keyboard shortcut. For instance you may notice a command called "Print Preview" when you click the file pull down menu. Print Preview is a great command that saves paper by actually showing you a preview of what's about to come out of the printer should you commit and click print. The preview saves paper by letting you decide what adjustments you want to make before sending the print job to the printer.

Now, back to our print command, clicking Print in the File pull-down or pressing CTRL+P will open the print dialogue box and the first thing it will show is what printer it's going to send to. This is where you can tell the computer to send to a device other than the default. Clicking the Properties button lets you change things like paper size, quality and color. The properties menu will change from printer to printer but the core is the same. It's the place where fine changes can be made on the printer.

Further down the print dialogue box you can tell the computer what pages to print and how many copies and after making any changes here, clicking print will then send the job to the printer with the changes that you selected.

Sean McCarthy fixes computers. He can be reached at (888) 752-9049 or help@ComputeThisOnline.com.

Jewelry store combines low prices, great service

Staff Report

ST. LUCIE COUNTY — Known for its low prices, and specials such as 99 cent watch batteries, Miracle Jewelry Exchange boasts in-house expertise and sets itself apart from competitors.

On board is a jeweler with more than three decades of experience. There's also a diamond setter on premises.

"It's definitely an advantage to be able to do clients' work as they wait," said Frank Bianco, who owns the store with his wife, Christina. "Our business has really taken off this year."

When one customer wanted a ring with the yin-yang symbol on its outer edges and a solitaire in the center, staff did the work in-house. Another who wanted a piece inspired by a traditional Irish design didn't have to go further than the local store.

"We can take their idea and turn it into whatever their imagination can conceive," Mr. Bianco said.

"We've done more custom work this year than we did the previous four years, and we make it affordable whereas most places don't."

With the store's diverse customer base, orders range from engagement and wedding rings, charms, anniversary presents and an array of handmade pieces that complement the store's line of watches, gems and brand-name jewelry.

"We try to cherry pick so we always have special pieces," said Mrs. Bianco.

Miracle Jewelry Exchange is also building its purchasing business, developing a reputation for paying high prices for gold and silver.

"People aren't selling their jewelry as an investment windfall. They're doing it because they've had some sort of hardship," Mr. Bianco said. "To take advantage of that would be a terrible thing to do."

But Miracle Jewelry Exchange excels at maintaining low overhead expenditures, and paying close attention to its pricing structure.

"One of my slogans is 'low overhead equals low prices,'" Mr. Bianco said. "Times are tough. You can't charge people what you used to charge in the 1990s. Jewelry is still a luxury item."

"I come from a background in the hospitality business, so I try to incorporate that into our business," said Mr. Bianco, who once operated two Stuart night clubs.

"It's in the way you treat the customer, treating them like your guest and offering them advice and service."

Miracle Jewelry Exchange is located at 1012 S.W. St. Lucie West Blvd., in Port St. Lucie. For more information, call (772) 343-9411.

Rants & Raves

Got something to say?

Email the Hometown Rants & Raves at

or call (772) 465-5504.

Commenters are asked to refrain from making slanderous statements. Statements of fact will be checked for accuracy.

Is there a double standard?

The law says that driving drunk can cause an arrest. Well, a police woman, while driving, drove off the road. When she was tested, her level was reported to be twice the limit. Was she arrested?

No! She is on paid leave, according to the news. Now, why is she treated differently?

Since she was drunk, then she should not be on paid leave, she should be in jail.

The police are not above the law. If they break the law, then they should face the same arrest as you or me.

What do you say? Will you raise your voice or stay silent? Will this statement even be printed?

It is time that what is against us as citizens, the same should be for those who are supposed to uphold the law, which are the police.

The law says that when we, the people, break the law, we are to be arrested. If I am driving drunk, then I am to be arrested.

Disgusted with the Teachers Union

I am totally, totally, totally disgusted with the Florida Teachers Union and the Florida teachers, I believe.

If it's very "union," why don't they speak up? I could not believe that they, the union, endorsed Charlie Crist, who left the state with (massive debt).

And these people, the teachers and their union, are backing him again. I will never, ever support any additional tax for education.

If the teachers can't control their union, how are we ever going to believe them about their spending?

I am really turned off, and I am going to spread the word, too. And I am going to tell everyone I know that it is really pathetic that they would endorse Charlie Crist.

More and shorter Rants & Raves, please

I've noticed, since you have improved your newspaper and made it nicer, that you have shrunk the Rants & Raves, leaving only a few of them.

And what Rants & Raves you do put in, some of them are so long that they take up a full page.

Why don't you put less long, stupid ones in and put the short, important ones in, so we have something to read that is interesting, when people want to rant their raves?

Like puzzles? Try this one.

The cheapest way to improve the lagoon:

I noticed, while sailing, a few miles from the Sebastian Inlet, a "wedge" of sea water moving under the brackish water. And it had stuff floating on it, but under the less dense water.

Good clam habitat I thought! And clams can breed at an astonishing rate, if we give them some breathing room.

So, the puzzle involves the transport of clam spores in heavy seawater and the precipitates (food) from the polluted brackish water on top.

A cheap, blue pipe through Patrick Air Force Base would provide one "inch mile" of seawater per day. (It's) not much, but just enough for clam habitats.

Further, if they opened the locks at the port at low tide, it, the pollution, would flow out.

What happened to the Rants and Raves?

The main reason I even read the Hometown News is for the Rants & Raves column.

Now, I don't know if you offended somebody, or whatever, but it seems you are getting squeezed out.

Every time you open the paper, you get less and less room – not even a decent way to present what people want to hear and what people want to say.

So, whoever is being offended and has any pull about you being squeezed out, I'd like to see them thrown off the cliff, because, let's face it. Most of us that read that paper, read it for the Rants & Raves.

The rest of it is OK. Nice news, but nothing exciting.

Don't leave your trashcans out all the time

This rant is directed at my three neighbors, who have left their recycling and garbage carts along the street 24-hours-a-day, seven-days-a-week, for the last three months.

Everybody has to drive past your houses to enter the neighborhood. Those carts give the impression that we live in a junkyard.

I have news for you: the trash is collected only one day a week, not every day! Your carts should be removed from the street by the end of the collection day.

I know you read this paper. So, the next time you pick this newspaper off your driveway, take your carts back to your house!

In appreciation

ON CARS
EARL STEWART

Some readers will say, “There Earl goes again, tarnishing the name of car dealers. Why doesn’t he just focus on his own dealership and not run down his competition?”

I’ll answer that. I’m 73 years old and have been a car dealer since 1968. I have three sons active in the business who will take it over one day. I also have five grandchildren who may decide to come into the business. My main purpose in what I do as a consumer advocate (aka “tarnishing the name of car dealers”) is to light a fire that will spread and, one day, raise the (very low) level of respect the public currently has for my lifelong profession.

My wife, Nancy, is my teammate in this quest. Our dealership’s stated company purpose is: To make the car buying and servicing experiences pleasurable ones for our customers. In doing so, and leading by example, we will bring integrity and respectability to the image of car dealers everywhere.”

Though some say so, I don’t believe all car dealers are evil or even unethical any more than I believe that all lawyers or all politicians are. These three professions have something in common. They are all ranked at the bottom of the annual Gallup poll on “Honesty and Ethics in Professions.”

I have many friends who are car dealers, lawyers, and politicians that I respect and trust greatly. They feel the same way about their profession as I, and many endeavor, as I, to raise the level of public trust for what they do for a living. The Florida Bar Association regularly fines, suspends, and disbars lawyers who violate their code of ethics or the law. Similarly, the U.S. Congress and Florida Legislature have internal codes of ethics which are enforced.

Unfortunately, the National Auto Dealers Association has a code of ethics, but with no enforcement. The Florida Auto Dealers Association has no code of ethics or internal enforcement of any kind. I’ve been asking and working with the leadership of FADA for years to change this, but they can’t get the approval of their dealers.

I believe time is running out for NADA, FADA, and all car dealers to accept the fact that we have too many rotten apples in our barrel. The consumer of the 21st Century’s intelligence, education, and awareness has exponentially increased in the past 20 years, largely due to the Internet as a source of knowledge and instantaneous, universal communication via the social medial.

Tesla has begun to sell cars directly, bypassing the dealer. My sons and I visited the Tesla showroom in Boca Raton on July 2 and what a refreshing and amazingly satisfying experience! The sales person was very well informed, pleasant, and there was absolutely no pressure to buy a car. We were given bottom-line prices on all the models. If ordered a car there was no deposit required and we could change our mind at any time before we took delivery.

The car dealers and their associations are vigorously fighting against the right of Tesla to sell their cars directly, bypassing the car dealer. The NADA and state dealer associations are very powerful and have been politically successful so far. Only a few states are allowing Tesla to sell directly to the public. But the public is overwhelmingly behind Elon Musk and Tesla and over 95 percent of Americans would rather buy their cars directly from the manufacturer. You would think that this would send a “message” to car dealers and car manufacturers. I’m not a big advocate of the Tesla product because I don’t think all electric cars will be the answer for long, long time. But I am an advocate of the way Tesla factory stores sell their cars with total courtesy, respect, honesty, and transparency.

I think it’s only a matter of time before GM, Ford, Toyota and all of the auto manufacturers start thinking about doing the same thing that Tesla is trying to do…eliminate the car dealer and go direct. This is what Apple has done so successfully and, in a fashion, so does Amazon. The only thing stopping this from happening today is the lobbying, political power of car dealers and their national and state associations. But this can only buy them time. Ultimately, it’s the American public that runs things in the USA. The politicians need the car dealers’ money to get elected, granted. But ultimately it’s the voters who elect them and allow them to stay in office. The voters are almost all car buyers and almost all of the car buyers would rather buy directly from a manufacturer in the Tesla way of doing business than from their local car dealer.

The car dealers still have time to get their act together…maybe even 10 or 15 years, but they better get started right away. They have a whole lot to change and way too many “rotten apples” in their barrel.

Ensure speedy waste pickup with these easy tips

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

PORT ST. LUCIE — The City of Port St. Lucie and Waste Pro are reminding residents to place all yard waste and vegetative debris in the right-of-way near their driveway and not in front of vacant lots. Waste Pro will pick up the trimmings on the regularly scheduled service day when placed in front of the home.

Placing yard waste in vacant lots is considered illegal dumping and against city ordinance. Code Compliance will investigate to determine if illegal dumping has occurred. If illegal dumping is evident, the property owner will be notified and asked to come into compliance. If the property owner fails to cooperate, the city will follow standard Code Compliance procedures such as issuing a citation and/or placing a lien on the property.

Follow these guidelines when preparing yard waste for collection:

•Don't mix garbage and yard waste

•Loose yard waste, i.e. grass clippings, leaves and small twigs must be containerized

•Neatly stack limbs, branches, palm fronds, etc. at the curb

•Limbs should not exceed four feet, except palm fronds. No piece to exceed 50 pounds

•Separate stumps from other yard waste. No single piece of a tree should exceed 50 pounds

•Box it or bag it - individual containers cannot weigh more than 50 pounds

•Stack yard waste in neat, manageable piles

Yard waste that exceeds the limits for collection requires a larger truck for pickup. Contact Waste Pro at (772) 595-9390 to schedule a special pick-up.

Grant

Ms. Woodruff's draft plan proposes to spend almost have of the budget on code enforcement, community-based development organizations and infrastructure ($100,000 each), with the rest divided among public services and amenities, micro business and economic development and commercial façade and owner-occupied housing rehab, among others. The plan also includes slightly more than $100,000 in grant administration costs.

District 1 Commissioner Rufus Alexander expressed surprise that almost a third of the federal money was planned for administration and code enforcement.

"Code enforcement has their own budget, and I think that money ought to be used for another purpose," Mr. Alexander said. "And $100,000 of it used for administration?

Deputy City Manager Nick Mimms explained that the city pays no salaries for the employees of the urban redevelopment department, which oversees the city's grants and must fund its own salaries.

"We previously had six employees and we now have two," he said.

Fort Pierce activist Rick Reed also opposed uses CDBG funds for city code enforcement.

"Why are we robbing Peter 100,000 to pay Paul?" Mr. Reed asked. "I am all for code enforcement if it's done properly and ethically, but as it's done in Fort Pierce, it's immoral. It's done in certain parts of town but not in others."

Ms. Woodruff presented a slideshow to the commission of city businesses helped recently by the commercial façade component of the plan, which provides matching funds up to $10,000 to businesses in need of a facelift.

"This is more in commercial revitalization, to improve streetscapes," Ms. Woodruff said. "It has to be commercial property, and you have to show you have funds to do some of the work."

Fort Pierce resident Cleaver Hayling said he represented the northwest Fort Pierce community and didn't see how improving facades in downtown Fort Pierce met the Department of Housing and Urban Development requirements of serving low to moderate income residents of the city.

"Tonight we are taking issue with the creative budgeting of the CDBG funds," Mr. Hayling said. "And as far as the facades, people in northwest Fort Pierce don't have money in the first place. What kind of programs do we have to help them get money in the first place to do their facades?

District 2 Commissioner Thomas Perone defended both the proposed HUD grant plan and the public hearing process.

"There are a specific set of guidelines that are required to be followed," he said. "This is community input and committee review."

Mr. Mimms defended the façade program but emphasized that the Fort Pierce Commission would have the final word on grant allocations.

"We think the façade program has been very successful," Mr. Mimms said. "You are the final say-so, however; if you would like to reallocate, within the guidelines, well then you can."

The next public hearing on this topic will be held Aug. 4.

Warm weather vegetables are easy to grow, maintain

GARDEN NOOK
JOE ZELENAK

As you already know, gardening offers you lots of benefits over and beyond the joy of picking your own veggies or looking at the glorious colors of your flower garden. Gardening offers you exercise, lots of fresh air, mental therapy and the savings you reap when you pick veggies from your own garden. This week, I am going to discuss some tips on getting your garden ready for planting and offer some tips on what to plant.

When planning a vegetable garden, it is important to choose a location that is well drained and near your structure. The location needs to be in an area where you have a readily available source of water. The garden should also be in an area where the plants will receive at least 5 hours of sunlight. Areas with too much shade or sun all day long will cause problems with the growth of your plants. Too little sun can lead to fungus diseases and low crop yields. Too much sun can cause burning of the plants and a reduced crop yield. Remember that you should not plant your garden in the same location year after year. The soil will get depleted of vital nutrients so it is best to rotate your locations each year.

In Florida, our soil is very sandy so it is essential to add organic nutrients to the soil. If you have a compost pile, use the organic matter from it and spread it throughout the area you plant to plant in. You can also buy pre-mixed topsoils that contain organic material to mix throughout your garden area.

It is always a good idea to test the ph value of your soil. These meters can be purchased at many home and garden centers. The ph value of your soil should lie somewhere between 5.6 and 7.0. If the ph of your soil is low, add some lime to your soil before planting. A ph that is too high is actually difficult to change but adding the organic matter will relax it a bit.

Once your garden is plowed, composted and checked for ph, it's time to get started. It is always a good idea to get some good quality vegetable fertilizer and all-purpose insect spray designed for vegetables and fruits. You will need both in the not too distant future.

Now that your plot is ready, it's time to populate it with seeds or liners. You might want to start with some of your old favorites such as tomatoes, carrots, radishes or peppers. These are some of the easier plants to grow, especially if you are going to start from seed. You might want to take the challenge, however, and try some more challenging choices such as squash, watermelon, southern peas or eggplant.

It is important to remember that if you live in a location that does not allow you to plant in the yard such as an apartment, you can always resort to planting your seeds in large containers with excellent results. This has the added benefit of being able to move your garden in the event of severe weather events.

Governor reminds residents to get a storm plan

Floridians warned not be complacent about storm preparedness

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

TREASURE COAST — Governor Rick Scott was joined today by state and local emergency management officials to remind Floridians that hurricane season has already started and now is the time to get a plan if they don't have one already. Hurricane season extends from June 1 through November 30 and covers the time frame when hurricanes are most likely to form in the Atlantic Ocean.

"With the 2014 hurricane season underway, I want to encourage every family to get a plan. So far this year, there has been one named storm—Hurricane Arthur—and Florida was lucky that we were not directly impacted by it," said Governor Scott.

"But, Hurricane Arthur should serve as a reminder for everyone to get a plan if they don't already have one. Preparing for the upcoming hurricane season should be a priority for every Florida family, and we must take action now before it's too late."

Floridians and visitors are advised to develop a plan centered on self-sustainability for the first 72 hours following a disaster. FloridaDisaster.org includes valuable information on building a plan for individuals, families and businesses, taking into account those with special needs, persons with pets, and the elderly.

"Hurricane Arthur was the first named storm of the season, and at its closest, it was less than 85, miles from our coast," said Bryan W. Koon, FDEM Director. "Hurricane Arthur didn't impact us significantly, but it did underscore the need for all Florida families, visitors and businesses to get a plan and to be prepared for when severe weather does strike us."

To get tips on how you can protect your family, visit www.FloridaDisaster.org. This website will provide critical tips for supplies, including:

· Water – one gallon per person, per day, with a three day supply
· Batteries and flashlight for each person
· All Hazards Radio – in a disaster you will be able to receive important updates from the National Weather Service
·Battery or hand-powered radios – to receive valuable information from local radio stations
·First Aid kits
·Other important items to include are canned or non-perishable foods, clothing, blankets and pillows, extra set of house and car keys, and activities for children.

Man with 10,000 voices returns to area

By Anna-Marie Menhenott
news@hometownnewsol.com

FORT PIERCE -- Michael Winslow, the man of 10,000 sound effects from Police Academy, Spaceballs and "Geico" commercials, will be in town on July 26.

Since his big break as Sgt. Larvelle Jones in the Police Academy series, Mr. Winslow has been entertaining audiences with his stand-up comedy and of course, the special effects from his vast array of voices.

"The voices have taken on a life of their own," Mr. Winslow said. "I don't do traditional stand-up. I break lots of rules. My job is to help everyone forget about the rent for an hour. I want my audience to have a good time and forget about everything else."

His mom tells stories about when he was young he would imitate the airplanes, jet engines, basically anything that made a noise he copied with sounds that came out of his mouth.

If those who are curious about Mr. Winslow's "act," visit his Youtube channel or Google his name, and they will get a small dose of what his show is all about.

"Years ago I spoke with Bill Cosby about stand-up, and he told me that what I should do is tell stories and put sound to them. And, basically, that's what I do. There's music, it's kid-friendly, and there's lots to laugh at. The crowd interacts with me and there's never a sure plan as to where the evening may go. I'm learning new sounds all the time, and I change with the times. I spent a month in Scotland listening to bagpipes and fighter jets... and now they've become part of my show."

Spinning off the instant success of the Police Academy movies, Mr. Winslow's celebrity status was in place. He went on to play a part in Mel Brooks "Spaceballs." This film helped further his spotlight as a unique comedian. He has also been heard, but not seen, as the voice to Stripe, the evil little creature, in "Gremlins."

He has done voice-overs for Dis-

DINING & ENTERTAINMENT

Popular restaurant's pizza is top notch

By Anna-Marie Menhenott
news@hometownnewsol.com

LAKEWOOD PARK — For those who live and work in Lakewood Park, a subdivision in northern St. Lucie County, near the Vero Beach line, Loutina's Pizza is staple.

For those who may not frequent this area, Loutina's should be reason enough to do so.

The small pizzeria offers much more than just their delicious pies, their menu is full of subs, dinners, appetizers, salads and desserts.

My guest and I visited on a weekday afternoon, thinking we would avoid the lunchtime and dinnertime crowds, but we quickly learned that this spot is busy all of the time.

We started our early dinner with garlic bread sticks and a salad. The breadsticks were warm, with a crunchy crust and delicious, chewy center. They were covered in garlic and parmesan cheese and were a delightful way to start our meal.

The salad was made with fresh vegetables and came with a side of House dressing.

Owner, Lou Mejias, decided to whip up some of his favorites for us to try.

Mr. Mejias first sent out a cheese pizza that smelled absolutely incredible. The cheese was still bubbling as it say in front of us begging to be eaten. My guest and I each dug into the incredible pie, dragging cheese across our chins and wiping our mouths along the way. The pizza was out of this world. I would've eaten another piece, but before I got that far, Mr. Mejias delivered a gondola.

That's right, a gondola.

The hot sub is full of ham and salami, melted cheese and banana peppers. The sub is served on a toasted hoagie roll and is in the shape of, that's right, a gondola. It's tasty and definitely hits the spot if you're ready for a great sandwich.

Mr. Mejias wanted us to try one of the house specialties, the meat Stromboli. Full of different kinds of meat, cheese, and sauce and inside of a delicious pastry was a definite winner in my book.

Mr. Mejias soon sent out one of his dinner menu items, the chicken parmesan, served over spaghetti with red sauce. The chicken was so tender that it nearly melted in my mouth. The pasta was perfectly cooked and the sauce was delicious. I'd definitely come back for this meal.

The menu also offers items such as fried mushrooms, many different specialty pizzas, calzones, Panini's, wraps, burgers and many different dinners.

For a look at the full menu, visit www.loutinas-pizza.com, visit them at 4880 N. Kings Highway, in the Winn Dixie Plaza in Lakewood Park or call (772) 595-9773.

LIBRA - Sept. 23/Oct. 23

A small disappointment has you out of whack, Libra. Don't let it get to you for too long. Family members will help pull you out of a brief funk and get you on your feet.

SCORPIO - Oct. 24/Nov. 22

Scorpio, you may be ready to make some really big changes. Forge ahead with the plans you have created, and you will be glad for having done so.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov. 23/Dec. 21

Financial issues come to the forefront of a relationship, Sagittarius. Keep arguments from escalating by being open and honest about all purchases. Things can be worked out together.

CAPRICORN - Dec. 22/Jan. 20

Few things can wipe away the smile on your face this week, Capricorn. You are in an eternally good mood, and your positivity is intoxicating to others around you.

AQUARIUS - Jan. 21/Feb. 18

Aquarius, you will have an enormous sense of accomplishment when you finish a task you thought above your skill level. Always believe in yourself.

PISCES - Feb. 19/March 20

There is little room for things other than work this week, Pisces. Now is not the time to take on new chores. Save them for later.

A trip to the Space Center is right around the corner

TRAVEL
JAMES STAMMER

Summer is the time for family vacations. Our family usually tries to travel somewhere close enough that we can drive there in less than half a day. This year, our family trip was out of this world. And, best of all, the drive was a short one!

Our summer quest took us to Kennedy Space Center on Merritt Island. The Visitor Complex is a mixture of history, the present, and the future. Kennedy Space Center is where some of the most monumental of all human explorations have begun. Just walking onto the property fills one with a sense of pride in what we can and have accomplished as a species and as a nation.

This isn't simply a place where we honor our heroes and remember past glories. This is a functional, working space port where we continue to make discoveries each and every day.

Delaware North Companies Parks & Resorts has operated the Visitor Complex since 1995. The complex is completely supported by those funds raised by paid admission into the complex.

There are several admission options, with discounts for seniors, active military and children. There is even an annual pass for those true space buffs. Admission includes Space Shuttle Atlantis, Shuttle Launch Experience, Angry Birds Space Encounter, General Bus Tour, IMAX Theater 3-D Films, special viewing for rocket launches, numerous shows and exhibits, Astronaut Encounter, where you meet a real live astronaut, and admission into the Astronaut Hall of Fame.

When you enter the Visitor Complex the first building you reach is Early Space Exploration. Here you learn about the Mercury and Gemini programs. There are artifacts from the first manned space flights and the original Mercury mission control consoles.

It was here that we had lunch with a real astronaut! As a child growing up during the Space Race, I dreamed of being an astronaut. To meet one in person was a special thrill. Wendy Lawrence, a veteran of four shuttle missions, who logged over 1,200 hours in space, was our astronaut. After a presentation about her role in the space program as well as her back-ground, she answered questions and posed for photographs with everyone there. I cannot think of any theme park that offers time with a true American hero as part of the day's activities.

To top it all off, lunch was pretty good as well. We enjoyed a buffet of chicken, fish, a variety of vegetables, starches and tasty desserts. My kids were glad that the ice cream was not the made-for-space variety.

The Rocket Garden features many of the rockets used in our space program. I was able to climb into the Gemini and Apollo capsules to get an idea how truly cramped it was for our space pioneers. It may have been my childhood dream to be in one of these, but my current body shape is not ideal for such a job.

We watched an IMAX 3-D film on the International Space Station. Seeing this incredible home in space on such a large screen is quite impressive and gives you a true idea just how amazing our current space program is.

The jewel of the Visitor Complex is Space Shuttle Atlantis. As you approach the building you are greeted by a Shuttle Stack, the external tank and solid rocket boosters needed to lift the shuttle into orbit. They stand 184-feet tall and give you an idea of the power needed to get a loaded space shuttle off the ground.

Inside, you begin your adventure learning how we came to design and then build a reusable spacecraft. From that point you watch a shuttle launch and mission from inside a large room with the video surrounding you. Then everything fades to black and you see her. Atlantis.

I could feel my heart in my chest as I walked up to her. She sits there, as if on a mission. Her payload doors open, sitting at a 43.21° angle, you get a full 360° view of her. She takes your breath away. I actually found myself emotional as I walked around her. Realizing that this ship went into space and returned 33 times over her career and that she shows just what wonders we can do can have that effect on you. I felt so proud at that moment.

There are over 60 interactive exhibits and high-tech simulators that bring Atlantis to life. You can create and run your own mission and even experience an actual launch. I could have spent my entire day just in this building.

From there we were off to the bus tour. From the air-conditioned comfort of our bus were shown the new 21st Century Launch Complex. This is where the new Orion Multi-Purpose Crew Vehicle will head into space carrying the next generation of explorers.

We drove past one of the massive crawlers that NASA uses to carry rockets and spacecraft from the Vehicle Assembly Building to the launch pad. Speaking of the massive VAB, it is one of the largest structures in volume on the planet. It stands 525 feet tall, covers eight acres of land, and would take 240 billion ping pong balls to fill.

We got to see the Shuttle Landing Facility as well as the buildings where the Orion, Dragon, CST-100 capsules and the Dream Chaser are being assembled and tested. We also saw the launch pads where we left to go to the moon and from where the shuttles took off.

Our final stop was at the Apollo/Saturn V Center. Here you walk under and around, and even touch the largest rocket ever flown. This launch vehicle and capsule, that would have been Apollo 19, overwhelms you with its staggering 363-foot length.

The Saturn V transported 27 astronauts to the moon and back, fulfilling the dreams and imagination of a nation and a world. To think what it took to get this beast off the ground, all the way to our moon some 238,900 miles away and back, should cause one to pause and think how smart and wonderfully constructive we can be.

Inside this mammoth building are many displays. You can see a lunar lander as well as a moon buggy. There is even a display with a piece of moon rock that you can actually touch. Now, that's out of this world!

When our day ended, everyone was thrilled with what they had experienced. My daughter wondered why I was a bit emotional and I explained to her that my day's experiences made me very proud of my nation and us as humans. We can do such great and wonderful things, especially when challenged.

I hope that I live long enough to see us again set foot on the moon or travel to Mars and back. Who knows, maybe it will be one of my children that I see step foot on Mars.

The history of the British Open

GOLF
JAMES STAMMER

When you win The Open Championship, you become "Champion Golfer of the Year" and your name is engraved on The Golf Champion Trophy, or as it is more commonly known, The Claret Jug.

The Open Championship, or as we Yanks call it, The British Open, is our sport's oldest championship. The Claret Jug is probably our most recognizable and desired trophy. However, when the first Championship took place in 1860 at Prestwick, this wonderful trophy wasn't even in the back of anyone's mind.

The original prize was the Challenge Belt. Made of Moroccan leather and embellished with a silver buckle and emblems, it looked very much like something you would see worn by a huge, muscle-bound guy on a televised wrestling match instead of a golf championship.

The Earl of Eglinton, who was key in setting up The Open Championship, came up with the idea of a belt to christen the winner of golf's championship. Since he had a keen interest in medieval pageantry, the belt made perfect sense to him. He sold the original Challenge Belt to the members of Prestwick Golf Club, hosts of the first Open.

The very first rule of the new competition was, "The party winning the belt shall always leave the belt with the treasurer of the club until he produces a guarantee to the satisfaction of the above committee that the belt shall be safely kept and laid on the table at the next meeting to compete for it until it becomes the property of the winner by being won three times in succession."

Apparently the club thought that the likelihood of anyone winning three successive championships and keeping the belt, thus leaving them with no real trophy for the winner, were pretty slim.

It didn't take long for them to realize their folly. In 1870, just 10 years after The Open Championship began, Tom Morris Junior won his third consecutive Open and became owner of the belt.

In 1871, St. Andrews, Musselburgh and other clubs wished to join in hosting The Open and it was discussed that they should all chip in for the purchase of a new belt. No final decision was made and with four or more clubs planning to host The Open it was decided by the members of Prestwick that it was not expedient for them to provide a belt to be played for solely at their club. The resulting debate meant that there was no Open Championship in 1871.

The following year The Royal and Ancient Golf Club's green committee decided to get together with the other clubs and revive the Championship with a view on also reviving the Championship Belt. They were authorized to contribute a sum not exceeding £15 toward the belt.

On Sept. 11, 1872, an agreement was finally reached between the three clubs that were to host The Open – Prestwick, the Honourable Company of Edinburgh Golfers and The Royal and Ancient Golf Club. They decided that the winner would receive a medal and that each of the three clubs would contribute £10 toward the cost of a new trophy, which would be a silver claret jug. Instead of another belt, The Open Champion would now hoist proper trophy. Its name was to be "The Golf Champion Trophy."

Unfortunately these decisions came too late for the trophy to be presented to the 1872 Open Champion, who was once again Tom Morris Junior. Instead, he was awarded the first Gold Medal with the inscription "The Golf Champion Trophy."

What is now commonly referred to as the Claret Jug was made by MacKay Cunningham & Company of Edinburgh and was hallmarked 1873. The first Open Champion to hoist the new trophy was the 1873 winner, Tom Kidd. However, Tm Morris Junior's name was the first to be engraved on it as the 1872 winner.

In 1920 all responsibility for The Open Championship was handed over to the Royal and Ancient Golf Club. Following the 1927 Open, which was won at St. Andrews by Bobby Jones, the club's Championship Committee made the decision to retain the Claret Jug and in future years present the winner with a replica.

Unlike the Claret Jug, which must be returned in time for the next Championship, the Gold Medal is kept by the winner. The early medals were in fact silver gilt with an oval design showing crossed clubs and a shield with "Golf Champion Trophy" inscribed around the edge.

During the late 1880s and 1890s the medal underwent several changes. In 1893 the basic size and shape became the circular design we see to this day. Up until 1929, the value of the medal, £10 until 1919 and £25 thereafter, was deducted from the winner's purse. Since 1930, no winner has had to "pay" for his medal. Somehow, I doubt today's winner would mind.

James Stammer has been an avid golfer and golf enthusiast for nearly 40 years. He hosts the Thursday Night Golf Show on WSTU 1450-AM. Contact him at stammergolf@yahoo.com.
