INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — Motivated adults looking to achieve self-sufficiency could get a hand-up from a local nonprofit this summer.

The Economic Opportunities Council of Indian River County is opening up the Rewarding Education through Action in Community and Home, or REACH program, to qualified individuals. Signups must be made in person at the nonprofit's office, representatives said.

Applications will be accepted on June 20, June 23 and June 24 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., said Wendy Grow, education specialist at the Economic Opportunities Council.

The REACH program provides financial assistance for participants toward vocational skills and/or education, such as a commercial driver's license program or completing a GED course, through funding from a state community service block grant and the United Way of Indian

Local graduate invited to play Ultimate Frisbee in Italy for national team

By Jessica Creagan
jcreagan@hometownnewsol.com

VERO BEACH — A newly minted Vero Beach High School graduate isn't taking the summer off to rest on his laurels before starting college, but he is planning a bit of traveling.

USA Ultimate, the national governing body for the sport of Ultimate Frisbee in the U.S. recently announced the athletes selected to represent the country at the World Flying Disc Federation's World Junior Ultimate Championships, and Vero Beach's Ryan Hiser made the cut.

The games will take place in Lecco, Italy next month and Team USA is looking to win its sixth straight gold medal in the event, a press release said.

Ryan was chosen after submitting an intensive application with letter of recommendation and going through two days of tryouts. He is one of 24 athletes to represent the U.S. in the 19-year-old and younger division of the championship.

"Everyone at Ultimate Frisbee in Vero Beach is very proud of Ryan's achievements," said Mark Ohlrich,

Frisbee

Ultimate Frisbee in Vero Beach organizer.

The casual club that plays pick-up games in local parks three days a week is how Ryan first got started playing Ultimate Frisbee on a regular basis, and is what led him to help form a competitive high school club team, Verocious, in 2013. The team's first season was fruitful, producing a state championship win. This past year, his senior year, he was elected captain.

Ultimate Frisbee is a fast-paced sport that has grown in popularity during the past 20 years and is a favorite on college campuses in the U.S. and abroad, Ryan said.

"Some people hear about the sport and may think of hippies standing around throwing the Frisbee, or people tossing it to their dogs, but that's not what Ultimate Frisbee is," Ryan said.

The game is played with two teams of seven players. The objective of the team playing offense is to move the disc down the field toward the goal area, similar to a football end zone, by passing the disc from player to player.

The defending team can intercept the disc and the teams immediately must switch from offense to defense or vice versa as the game continues without stopping.

"There is a lot of running and a lot of passing. The way I play, I never give up on the Frisbee. I run, I lay out, I dive, because with Ultimate Frisbee as long as you catch the disc, even if it's an inch off the ground, you can still play it," Ryan said.

Mr. Ohlrich described Ryan as a "class act, on and off the field, and praised him for his accomplishments in Ultimate but also for maintaining a high academic rate of success in school all while playing high school football and playing in the school band.

"Regarding Ultimate, Hiser is a beast. When making a catch he literally attacks the disc and is nearly impossible to defend against. He is a decent handler and has a wicked hammer," Mr. Ohlrich said.

A "hammer" is a type of throwing style where the disc is launched high into the air to fly above an approaching defense, but lands accurately in front of a teammate.

"We are extremely excited that he won a spot to represent the U.S. in Italy this summer and we are also looking forward to seeing him at the University of Florida this fall and next spring," Mr. Ohlrich said.

Ryan has enjoyed introducing people to Ultimate Frisbee over the years and is excited about playing the sport he has grown up loving while attending college in Gainesville.

"One thing I like about the game is the spirit of the game. It's basically self-officiated, we don't have any referees. Everyone works on an honor system, and although it can get competitive, it's never malicious," he said.

It is quite common to hear opposing team members praise each other for good plays on the field, Ryan said.

"The people I've met playing Ultimate have been really nice and interesting people. To be competitive and stay friendly between players is what I really like about the sport," he said.

Florida has not yet made Ultimate Frisbee a sanctioned high school sport, so within the state there are clubs, similar to travel baseball teams, which meet together and play tournaments, Ryan sad.

Vero Beach's high school team, Verocious, has started a fundraising campaign to help their teammate pay for expenses related to his trip to Italy in July.

The fundraising goal is $3,500 and will help cover travel costs to a pre-trip practice and to travel to the championship game.

On the donation page, team members wrote that Ryan has been a valuable leader to them on and off the field.

"His commitment to high academics and volunteering in the community provide an example for our teammates to follow off the field. On the field he is a great captain that keeps us together. He always keeps our morale high and makes sure we stay motivate to perform at our highest," the team wrote.

Donations can be made at various levels, including the purchase of a $20 raffle ticket that comes with a chance to win an iPad Air, a $150 or a $50 Best Buy gift card.

River County, Ms. Grow said.

Applicants must be Indian River County residents, head of their household or an individual 18 or older, be no more than 125 percent of the Federal Poverty Income Guidelines and be motivated to obtain employment.

In addition to tuition, supplies and books for the education goals of participants, the REACH program may also provide assistance with other living expenses.

The year-long program includes meeting with a case manager for ongoing vocational and financial counseling, educational workshops and orientations, said Marlene Edden, a recent graduate from the REACH program.

A large electric bill combined with limited hours at a new job last year put Ms. Edden on a quest to find temporary help to cover her bill and she found the Economic Opportunities Council.

"They were able to help me with my light bill and they also told me that there was a program to help get out of poverty, so I said I would take it," Ms. Edden said.

"They helped me get my GED and helped me learn how to budget. I had a case worker that I reported to, which kept me accountable and we would talk about my monthly goals, how I was saving money and spending money," she said.

"It's an awesome program and goes step by step and they continuously work with you," Ms. Edden said.

Ms. Edden, who has seven children, educates some of them at home and works at night, said the classes have started a conversation in her household about the importance of education and its role in improving station in life.

"My daughter wants to be a surgeon, and this fall, she and I are going to college at Indian River State College together. And my son is doing extensive study so he can start college in January," Ms. Edden said.

Joe Storey also credits the Economic Opportunities Council of Indian River County for helping him out of unemployment and homelessness and into a new career and a new apartment.

"They are a big part of where I am today," said Mr. Storey, an operations supervisor for the local public transportation system, GoLine, and a licensed commercial driver.

The resources available to the needy in Indian River County are excellent, Mr. Story said.

A lot of his help was through the Economic Opportunities Council, the Samaritan Center of Vero Beach and CareerSource, but one of the most valuable tools he learned during his REACH program experience was budgeting and financial planning.

"I've been to a lot of courses through the years, but this one by the council was by far the greatest. They should offer it in schools for students to learn," said Mr. Storey, a single father.

Marlene Edden, a recent graduate of the REACH program, celebrates her accomplishment with her family. The REACH program is designed to provide financial assistance for education and tuition and counseling services for employment skills to low-income clients to reduce poverty and empower them toward self-sufficiency.

"I can't say enough about the EOC. They invested the money into me in order for me to achieve a goal. Without them, the long road to where I am now would have been very difficult. They are a valuable resource in our community," he said.

During the course of the one-year REACH program, the participants study poverty through the lens of economic class to better understand how society and the economy work.

Participants are required to take several workshops and receive training on employment skills, resume completion and are linked with other community services that could help them obtain their goals, Ms. Grow said.

The Economic Opportunities Council of Indian River County is located at 2455 St. Lucie Ave., Vero Beach. For more information, call (772) 569-1030 or visit www.eocofirc.net.

Veterans visit Vero Beach for reunion June 19-21

By Jessica Creagan
jcreagan@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — Vero Beach and the surrounding area will have some new faces this weekend as veterans from around the country congregate for a special reunion.

Frank Jencik, Vero Beach resident and Vietnam veteran, organized a 24th reunion celebration for more than 50 of his brothers-in-arms from Delta Company, Second Battalion, 16th Infantry Regiment, Ranger, First Infantry Division, to be held in Indian River County June 19-21.

"I'm very proud of where we live and I thought everyone else would enjoy what Vero Beach has to offer," Mr. Jencik said.

The U.S. Army veteran said the annual reunion renews the bonds that the soldiers once shared on the battlefield and provides a refreshing place for them to reminisce about their military experience.

"It's a bond that is still there after more than four decades. It's probably a little hard for people to understand, but it's there," he said.

Mr. Jencik served one year on the front lines of battle in Vietnam, searching out enemy encampments to be destroyed later during a fight.

"We didn't have barracks, we were living out in the jungle," Mr. Jencik said.

He remembers coming home from the war and having difficulty decompressing and getting used to civilian life.

"On June 12 I was in battle and on June 15 I was processed out and home. That was too quick for me," Mr. Jencik said.

It has been widely known that Vietnam veterans were not properly recognized for their service when they came home, but nowadays it is gratifying to hear the gratefulness when people thank him for his service to the country, he said.

During the reunion, veterans will have the opportunity to explore Vero Beach and the surrounding communities with trips planned to Waldo's Restaurant, the U.S. Navy Seal/UDT Museum, Bethel Creek House, and plenty of free time to explore other points of interest, Mr. Jencik said.

Mr. Jencik is excited about the entire reunion weekend, but is most looking forward to the special memorial service planned for June 21.

At previous reunions, participants have always raised a toast to the soldiers that never made their way back home, but Mr. Jencik wanted this year to be a little different.

"It bothered me that we never said their names or where they came from, so we are going to be reading that on Saturday at 10 a.m. at Veteran's Memorial Island Sanctuary," Mr. Jencik said.

Frank Jencik's squad in August 1968.

The memorial ceremony will include reading the names of 41 soldiers from Delta Company, Second Battalion, 16th Infantry Regiment, Ranger, First Infantry Division, who died in action during the Vietnam War.

Taps will played during the ceremony as a way to say goodbye and to honor their sacrifice, Mr. Jencik said.

The service is open to the public and based on comments he has received when he has shared the plans, there should be a nice sized crowd to participate.

Member of the Board of Indian River County Commissioners said they were honored to have the veterans come to this county to celebrate their reunion and issued a proclamation commemorating June 21 as a day to remember the unit.

A proposal

One proposal is for a cultural arts center at the old diesel plant. Another is for an exclusive "Gatsbyesque" restaurant with crystal chandeliers. How about something the common blue collar working person could enjoy and afford. Haven't we got enough things in this city that only the wealthy can partake of and enjoy? How about a nice family type moderately priced restaurant where someone could go on a weekend and not have to "save up" for?

No deaths, just life

I would like to know what is the difference between career criminals and terrorists. For your information, our judges hand out life sentences instead of death sentences.

Still texting and talking

Hey you drivers out there. Is texting while driving hazardous to your health? I still see texting or talking on the phone — mostly women.

Autos as dangerous as firearms

What's the difference between a firearm and an automobile? How about 5,000 pounds? Both can cause life long injuries.

The minimum wage

It's time to raise the minimum wage. Time? Excuse me. I'm just an uneducated country boy. Time for a minimum wage increase? Why didn't someone tell me? I thought an increase in wages came only after it was earned. What a dodo I am!

At 17 years of age, I left the farming community where I was born and raised. I couldn't see any future there for a tenth grade dropout—as a farm laborer—working for ninety cents an hour. If I had only known wage increases were determined by—time—.

To make a long story short, I traded my Model A Ford for two pigs, which I gave to my father, packed my tiny bundle and struck out to find a better way of life. A few weeks later after traveling half way across the nation and back, I found myself in Los Angeles with only two dollars and fifty cents in my pocket.

God was watching over me. I found a job. Starting at the very bottom of the wage scale, within a year I was running a work crew and my wages had increased as I increased in knowledge and ability. Not waiting on time I gave my best and continually tried to do better.

I was never so dumbfounded as a time when one of my crewmembers showed his discontentment because he had not received a raise. I discussed it with him and listened to his reasoning. Red faced and fists clenched he explained: "You're single and you make more than me and I have four kids to feed." The man was serious, dead serious, yet I had never heard such reasoning in my life. I came from a family of ten kids and my father worked twelve hours a day for twenty-five cents per hour the year I was born.

Okay—so the more kids you have determines your pay scale. Whew! That was a new one on me. Too bad my father wasn't informed of that when we were living in the tarpaper shacks. The ones we nailed tin can lids over the mouse holes in the floor, and stuffed rags in the wall cracks to keep out the winter cold.

Now I'm to believe it's based on time. I guess it's "time" I face it. I don't belong in this day and time.

Personal information: It's happened again!

Car salesmen, dealerships and special parking lot car sales must all do it.

Have you ever had them say they need your Social Security number or your driver's license before they can even give you the price on a car?

When car salesmen do that, it appears to me they only want to check your credit rating to know how much you can pay for the car.

Ever consider, if two different people looked at the same car, would they even be quoted the same price? It seems not, if the credit ratings are different.

Do not give them your personal information before you are in the final stages of buying the car, and that is when you are actually doing the paperwork to purchase. If they insist, leave them standing and go to a more honest dealer or salesman.

We can help put a stop to this type of scam by refusing to deal with anyone, who insists on personal information so early in the process.

just received three of them. The words are so small that you need a magnifying glass to read them.

It is impossible to read, so I am going to end up throwing them out because I can't read them. I am sorry about that.

Rules of the road

I think most of the drivers down here forgot the rules of the road.

That white line, you are supposed to stop before it, not all the way after it.

And yield signs? Forget about it. If you don't stop and let them in, they will hit you.

I mean, this is ridiculous. I had them pass me on a double line, just to get one car in front.

I don't what's going on with these guys.

I'm 81 years old. Thank God, I've never had an accident. I travel about five miles over the limit, and when I turned 80, I took a safety driving course, and I gave it to my insurance company.

And my insurance company gave me a letter back.

They said, "Happy birthday. Your insurance went up $200."

I think that they should get after these young guys, who don't obey the rules. They take off with jackrabbit starts, and then they jam on their breaks at the lights.

They didn't get any further than I did.

Thank you.

TV content is lousy

Florida has lousy TV. I would like to know how some Florida TV stations can continue to play those same, lousy un-American-made, cheap-production movies over and over and over again, sometimes twice in the same night, back-to-back.

Where do they get all these untalented never-before-released in the United States junk movies?

There should be some kind of a law, regulating how many times a movie is repeated monthly.

After all, this not only cheats the viewer from seeing something on TV, but also rips off the advertiser, because no one is going to watch the same movie 20 times.

It's the same on antenna or cable.

What a rip off!

Architect, community leader dies

By Jessica Creagan
jcreagan@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — John Howard Dean, a devoted believer in Christ, a talented architect and a willing community volunteer, has died.

The man whose name was well known around Vero Beach for his caring and giving heart died at his home in Vero Beach on June 8 after struggling with cancer. He was 67 years old.

Mr. Dean is survived by his wife, Carolyn; stepson, James Disinger of DeBary and his family; stepdaughter, Jessica Jackson of Pahrump, Nev., and her family, three brothers, a sister, two sisters-in-law, three brothers-in-law and a large extended family including four grandchildren, and many nieces, nephews grandnieces and grandnephews.

Mr. Dean was born in Somerville, N.J. raised in Chester, N.J., but had made Vero Beach his most recent home for more than 40 years and was invested in the community and in his church, St. Helen Catholic Church.

The Exchange Club of Vero Beach recently honored him as the 2014 recipient of their Book of Golden Deeds Award, given for selfless service to the community.

His firm, John H. Dean Architect and Associates, is associated with many projects that have sprung up in the community over the past 40 years and Mr. Dean took a vested interest in several, going above and beyond the normal call to service.

When the nonprofit organization The Source was looking to build a temporary tent camp for homeless people to live in legally, Mr. Dean helped develop the working plans. His dedication to the project was evidenced by him traveling across the state to visit and stay in a tent camp The Source wanted to use as a model.

In a 2012 interview, Mr. Dean said he was excited to be part of Camp Haven, a project that would shape people's lives, not just give them a safe place to sleep.

"It will breathe opportunity and life back into people who have been discouraged and without hope," Mr. Dean said.

Other notable projects of historic value that Mr. Dean championed include the preservation of the Heritage Center in Vero Beach and the historic Jungle Trail in Wabasso.

He also was heavily involved in the Gifford Youth Activity Center, serving 10 years as chairman of the board, and was the director of the Catholic Charismatic Renewal for the Catholic Diocese of Palm Beach.

Contributions in memory of Mr. Dean made be made to St. Helen's Men's Ministry or St. Helen Charismatic Prayer Group, care of Deacon Dave Hankle, 2085 Tallahassee Ave., Vero Beach, 32960.

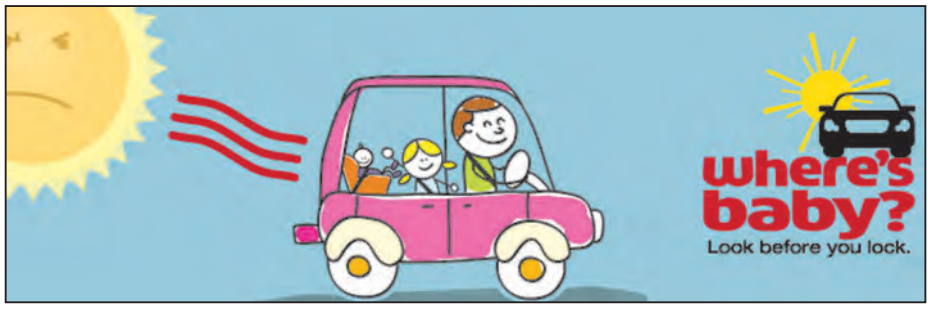
Sheriff cautions parents over increasing heat, car safety

Look twice before leaving the car

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com



TREASURE COAST — With the summer heat, parents or caregivers can easily forget how hot it can get in a car with a child in the back seat once the car isn't running, warns St. Lucie County Sheriff Ken J. Mascara.

"It's tempting to want to leave a small child in a locked car while you run to a nearby store for a couple of items, but don't forget how hot it will get inside that car," Sheriff Mascara said. "The solution is never to leave a child alone in a car during the summer."

Sheriff Mascara said: "Even great parents can forget a child in the back seat, but caregivers who are unaccustomed to transporting children are especially prone to forgetting. Think about the last time your routine was interrupted. Maybe you forgot something, or were afraid you might forget something. Or maybe you decided to leave your child alone in the car, thinking 'I'll just run into the store for a minute.' In either case, it's important to know the risks and consequences associated with leaving kids in cars - especially hot cars."

Here are the risks:

- In 10 minutes, a car can heat up 20 degrees Fahrenheit.
- Cracking a window does little to keep the car cool.
- With temperatures in the 60s, your car can heat up to well above 110 degrees.
- A child's body temperature can rise up to five times faster than an adult's.
- Heatstroke can happen when the temperature is as low as 57 degrees outside.
- A child dies when his/her temperature reaches 107.

This could result in the heat-related death of a child, which can be a felony under Florida law.

Here are some prevention tips to avoid a tragic heat stroke:

- Never leave a child alone in a car.
- Don't let your kids play in an unattended vehicle. Teach them that a vehicle is not a play area.
- Never leave infants or children in a parked vehicle, even if the windows are partially open.
- Keep a large teddy bear or other stuffed animal in the car seat when it's empty. Move the teddy bear to the front seat when you place the child in the seat as a visual reminder.
- If you are dropping your children off at childcare, but normally your spouse or partner drops them off, have your spouse or partner call you to make sure they were not left in the car.
- Become vigilant about looking in the vehicle before locking the door. Always look front and back before walking away - always!

Entomology experts: Be proactive against mosquito breeding areas in your yard

By Jessica Creagan
jcreagan@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — Florida's rainy season has arrived, and with it comes a greater chance of innocuous backyard objects turning into a breeding habitat for disease-carrying mosquitos.

The Indian River County Mosquito Control District is equipped to manage the mosquito population on a large scale, but sometimes it's the small scale breeding areas in places like water-logged tarps, roof gutters and bromeliads that virus-carrying mosquitos chose to build their families.

Mosquito-borne disease professionals in Florida have been monitoring outbreaks of two particular viruses carried by mosquitos, Chikungunya and Dengue, in other countries for some time, said Professor Walter Tabachnick, director of the Florida Medical Entomology Laboratory, in a press release.

This year, Dengue has caused outbreaks in South and Central America and more than 40,000 cases of Chikungunya have been reported in the Caribbean. Because of proximity and vacationers, Florida is already seeing imported Chickungunya cases acquired in the Caribbean region, Professor Tabachnick said.

There are two mosquitos in particular that carrying these two viruses, the Yellow Fever mosquito, Aedes aegypti, and the Asian tiger mosquito, Aedes albopictus, both of which have a presence in Indian River County and in Florida, said Roxanne Connelly, medical entomology specialist with the Florida Medical Entomology Lab.

There have been zero cases of either virus reported in Florida as originating from Florida mosquitos, but it is just a matter of time before it happens, experts said.

The 'tail' of a kitten

When Vero Beach resident Errand Frazier heard meowing coming from his truck, he wasn't sure where to look. After checking under the truck's hood, searching underneath and double-checking the interior, Frazier realized the sound was emanating from just below the vehicle's bed. Taking matters into his own hands, Frazier cut back the metal on the right-hand side of the truck's bed to expose any unusual spots where the cat could be hiding. "When I pulled (the metal back), there he was looking at me," he recalled.

A few days later, Frazier and Megan were reunited at the shelter. "I'm so Happy to know that I helped her," he said while cradling Megan in his arms. Thanks to Frazier's incredible efforts, Megan was able to receive care at the Humane Society and was adopted within days of being rescued.

tend to prefer create larval habitats within or near human environments, often biting indoors or in sheltered areas near houses.

Earlier this month, mosquito-borne disease professionals, members of mosquito control districts, and Department of Health administrators gathered at the University of Florida Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences Indian River Research and Education Center in Fort Pierce to develop plans to control Florida's mosquitoes that can transmit dengue and Chikungunya and to educate the public on how to prepare and defend against the mosquitos, Professor Connelly said.

"Our health system has come to realize it's only a matter of time before the mosquitos transmit the disease over here and we need to know how to address it. We need to know what resources we have and what we can do to prepare," Professor Connelly said.

"One of the first questions we get asked is if Chickungunya affects chickens, but that is not the case," she said.

"Chickungunya" is both a virus and the resulting illness from the virus and it is transmitted to humans by mosquitos. The original language of the word is Makonde, and the disease was named after an outbreak in a Swahili village between Tanzania and Mozambique, Africa in the early 1950s, a report said.

The word translates to mean "illness of the bended walker" or "bent over walking" because the virus affects the joints similar to severe arthritis pain, Professor Connelly said.

Other symptoms of the virus include rash and fever. As the disease is a virus, no amount of antibiotics will help a patient and there is no specific "cure," so doctors will have to treat the symptoms instead of the cause until the virus runs its course, she said.

Dengue is similar, and the word itself is a Spanish attempt at the Swahili phrase "ki denga pepo" which describes a cramp-like seizure, a report said.

Adult mosquitos carrying Dengue, which comes in four variations, are primarily day-biters, but may bite early in the night.

The mosquitos, carrying either Chickungunya or Dengue, often lay their eggs in water-holding containers found in residential neighborhoods, but "containers" is a very broad term, Professor Connelly said.

"It can be a pet dish, saucers underneath your plant containers, cans, bottle caps, old tires, stopped up gutters, just about anything that holds water can have mosquitos in them," she said.

Wearing mosquito repellant is another good defense against the mosquitos, Professor Connelly said.

Last year, Martin County experienced several cases of Dengue but none have been reported yet this year, Ms. Connelly said.

The only reported cases of Chickungunya in Florida have been from people who have traveled to places in the Caribbean and brought it back with them. There is a potential danger that the infected Floridians could be bit by local mosquitos, thereby transmitting the disease back to mosquitos and causing a spread that way, so health officials are being extremely careful, Professor Connelly said.

"People need to be aware if they are traveling this summer," she said.

A document with suggestions and recommendations for health officials on the potential outbreak is being prepared and will be released later this summer.

The University of Florida has provided fact sheets on chikungunya in English http://edis.ifas.ufl.edu/in696 and Spanish http://edis.ifas.ufl.edu/in729, on dengue in English http://edis.ifas.ufl.edu/in699 and Spanish http://edis.ifas.ufl.edu/in719 and about the mosquitoes that transmit the pathogens that cause these debilitating diseases, Aedes albopictus http://edis.ifas.ufl.edu/in594 and Aedes aegypti http://edis.ifas.ufl.edu/in792.

COMPUTE THIS
SEAN MCCARTHY

One of the nice features that you may have noticed about your computer is its uncanny ability to remember where you've been and what you've typed before.

Log into the Internet and type a Web address in the address line of your browser and hit enter.

Then, after visiting other websites, go back and start typing that address again, and you may notice it remembers and the address appears in the address pull-down menu. Click on it, and off you go.

Or, how about any time you've filled out an online form? On Windows machines, you may get a message the first time you enter information online asking, "Would you like to turn on auto complete?" Click "yes," and now the computer will remember everything you type into online forms and present them, when appropriate, in a clickable pull-down menu form.

For instance, let's say you are on the Internet and you want to order something online. You get to the order form page and start entering your name shipping address, email address, etc., into the form and (since this your first time ordering anything online) you have to fill out each field manually. You finish filling out the form, place your order and everything's fine.

Now, as you surf the Internet, you come to another online form. Perhaps you are ordering flowers online or booking travel arrangements to Hawaii (Wouldn't that be nice?). Notice that this order form is asking most, if not all, of the same questions as before. As you begin to fill this form out and enter your first name in the first name box, you notice your name appears as soon as you start typing. Same thing happens when you fill in your last name.

You'll notice that all of the fields that you filled in before (as long as the fields are named the same as on the Web page where you first typed) automatically appear for you so you can just click and press tab to tab to the next field. It makes entering the same information a snap as long as it's turned on and you're aware that it's happening.

What about if you want to clear the history list (where your Web addresses are stored) or what if you've made a mistake on a form and now every time you go to type that same field the incorrect information comes up before the correct data? What do you do then?

Well, the controls for this remarkable form remembering feature can be found in the Internet options section of Internet Explorer. Let's take a look, shall we?

Launch Internet Explorer and then go to the "tools" menu. Then click "Internet options." The Internet options page opens with the "general" tab in front. It's on this page where you can set your start or "home" page, or even clear your cookies or temporary files. Be cautious here though. Deleting your cookies can cause some sites (such as banking or portal sites) to forget who you are and make you sign in all over again.

Next, let's click the "content" tab. Here you will find a section called "personal information." It is in this section where we can turn on or off the auto complete feature (in case you want to disable it or maybe you told it "no" when it asked and you now want to turn it on).

Click the "auto complete" button and you are presented with a number of options: You can use auto complete with Web addresses, forms, user names and passwords. You can even tell it to ask you if you want to save passwords instead of automatically saving them for you, useful if other people use your computer.

Made a mistake on a form field or two and want to clear them out so you can have it come up correctly? Click the "clear forms" button and all of the form fields that it has remembered for you will be forgotten.

Now, go back to that pesky field that was always coming up misspelled and enter it right. Of course, you'll have to enter all of your other form data, but that's easy enough, just enter it as you encounter it and the computer will remember.

Take a look around at some of the controls - you may be surprised at just how much control over your browser you actually have.

and enjoy the music and some covered seating is available, but people are encouraged to bring lawn chairs.

As food is being catered onsite by Big Rack's Catering, no food, drinks or coolers are allowed.

Food service begins at the outside music bar at 6 p.m. and continues through 9:30 p.m.

Menu items include burgers, chips, a veggie medley, loaded nachos and cheese and baked potatoes.

The food and beverages can all be taken inside the theater during Comedy Zone, Mr. Sales said.

The comedy shows are about one-and-a-half hours long and two comics perform each night. Some comics incorporate impressions, music, juggling and hypnosis into their acts, making each show unique and new, Mr. Sales said.

Shows are intended for adult audiences, he said.

"We are not censoring them or telling them what they can or cannot say. A lot of the comics are situational comics, and yes they often use adult language," he said.

A general admission ticket to Comedy Zone is $16, but ticket prices may vary depending on seating. Premium reserved seating may be available on select performance. Meal purchases are handled separately.

On June 27 and June 28, with 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. shows each night, comics Carl "Cee-Jay" Jones and Trish Keating will take the stage.

Mr. Jones is from North Carolina and travels the country sharing his perspective of the world through his shows. He recently performed on Carnival Cruise Line stages and has performed on various television shows, including Showtime's "At the Apollo" and BET's "Comic View."

His stage presence, quick wit, high energy and rapid fire deliver keeps his audiences laughing non-stop from the moment he hits the stage, a press release said.

Ms. Keating began her comedy career performing daily at Universal Studios, but says her performing chops really got their start much earlier while she was in Catholic school.

She graduated from Florida State University with a degree in theater and went on to specialize in comedy by training with Del Close at Second City, The Annoyance and the Improv Olympics, a press release said.

Her style of comedy is described as one part social satire, two parts personal pain and most parts attitude. Ms. Keating has appeared in various film and television productions, including two episodes of "E.R."

Performing for Live in the Loop on June 27 will be the rockabilly sounds of Sweet Chariots. On June 28, Kilt the Messenger, performing Celtic rock, will have their turn at entertaining through music.

Advance ticket purchase is encouraged as events occasionally sell out.

Scholarships, all that jazz

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

FORT PIERCE — The evening started off with some crazy, cool jazz, and it ended with 10 kids each taking home scholarships totaling $10,000, courtesy of the Fort Pierce Jazz and Blues Society and the community which supports jazz, blues, and cultural enrichment all year long.

For the 18th year, the Fort Pierce Jazz and Blues Society distributed scholarships to promising, young musicians from St. Lucie, Indian River, and Martin Counties, as part of its mission to support the arts and music education in our community.

While much of the scholarship money was raised through events, performances, and activities presented by the Society all year long, other scholarships were donated in honor of beloved family members and as memorials to dear friends. One scholarship in particular comes from an individual who works overtime all year long at his hourly-wage job, then donates the overtime pay to benefit a student who is heading off to pursue a career in music. Other scholarships have been made possible because of the kindness and generosity of donors who chose to remain anonymous in their gifts.

This year's scholarship winners included Kathryn Borruso and Alex Campbell, both students from Indian River Charter High School, who received Merit Scholarships sponsored by Don and Georgia Musante and Melody Gabriel respectively. Also representing Indian River Charter High School was winner Dasha Gilmore, who received the Lenora and Steve Satin Merit Scholarship.

Lincoln Park Academy twins Chris and Jennifer Ketcham both were awarded scholarships. Chris received the Tom and Kathy Dixon Merit Scholarship and twin sister Jennifer was given the Tom Omans Memorial Scholarship Award, sponsored by the SPM Foundation. Senior Donovan Kryak, also a Lincoln Park Academy student, was awarded the Honesto Villasurda Memorial Scholarship.

St. Lucie West Centennial senior Rosemond Fabien received the Louis Sanzaro Memorial Scholarship Award, sponsored by the Vanguard Charitable Trust.

Jensen Beach High School student Austin Newson was awarded the Martin Hulka Memorial Scholarship Award, sponsored by Beerworks Charitable Foundation and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Mellon and presented by Chris and Ellen Hulka. Patrick O'Brien from Vero Beach High School received the Fort Pierce Jazz and Blues Society Merit Scholarship sponsored by Richard and Rosemary Przbylski, while Kevin Paul of the Pine School took home the Marie 'B' Merit Scholarship.

Scholarships are provided thanks to the ambitious schedule of performances and activities presented by the Fort Pierce Jazz and Blues Society and by the proceeds from coordinating Fort Pierce's weekly Jazz Market, held every Saturday morning in conjunction with the Fort Pierce Farmer's Market. In addition to scholarships, the Society, which is comprised completely of volunteer members, also offers master classes,

Growing citrus at home is easier than you think

GARDEN NOOK
JOE ZELENAK

Almost everybody likes the fresh taste of citrus whether it be oranges, grapefruits or tangerines. Sometimes the sweetest, most delicious fruit can come from trees that you raised yourself in your own backyard. Today, I am going to talk about growing citrus in your backyard and indoors!

When most people pick out their favorite oranges or grapefruit at the grocery store, usually the first think they think about is Florida. This delicious fruit was in introduced to our wonderful state in 1565 by Spanish explorers. To top it off, the Orange Blossom is also our state flower. Most of the fruit that is produced in our state is not in South Florida but is in Central Florida in an area that we refer to as growing Zone 9. The reason for this is that in order for the fruit to get its sugar sweet taste, the fruit must be subject to a period of cool temperatures. While growers welcome cool weather, freezing temperatures for more than four hours can cause damage to the fruit.

There are many varieties of citrus available and it is mainly a selection of your own personal choice that should determine which flavor you should buy. Look for healthy trees that have dark green foliage and no signs of disease or insects. Once you make your purchase, it is time to take your prize home and have some fun.

Citrus like to be planted in areas that have good drainage and a full day of sun. If the area you have chosen for planting floods during heavy rain, build up the ground with some topsoil to keep the roots as much above the water as possible. When planting your tree use a good quality topsoil and be sure you do not plant in an area that will be affected by your sprinkler system. Citrus trees do not like excess water and this can also lead to dry fruit. Do not be tempted to water your tree too often and also remember to keep the area around the tree clear of any grass or mulch. Any of these circumstances can cause potentially lethal fungus diseases to destroy your tree. You should also keep weeds away from the base of your trees to be sure proper drainage is established.

Another critical ingredient for good citrus growth is fertilizer. Choose a good quality citrus food that has minor elements. You also should apply a minor element spray that contains such ingredients as iron, boron and manganese.

One mistake that many citrus trees owners do is try to prune their trees. The truth is that citrus trees should never be pruned. You should just let the trees shed their branches naturally. Thunderstorm winds and tropical systems will naturally prune the tree as it sheds its branches.

For those of you that have limited yard space or live in an apartment, you can purchase dwarf citrus trees that you can grow in a sunny window or on a balcony. You can purchase these trees in Turnpike gift shops, airport gift shops and at gift shops in many of our tourist areas. You can also buy them online. Once you bring your plant home, plant it immediately so it does not stay in the box for long. You should initially plant it in about an 8-inch diameter pot that has good drainage. Use a good quality potting soil such as Miracle Gro. Once your tree is well established in the pot, you can transplant your tree in a 5 to 25 gallon container. Remember, the larger the container you use, the bigger the plant will get.

Unlike citrus trees planted in the ground, container trees will need frequent watering and occasional pruning. When your tree is young, if you prune a couple of inches off the top, it will allow the tree to spread out some instead of growing tall and skinny. Do not allow the tree to sit in a saucer filled with water. Be sure to drain the water from your saucer if you use one.

If you have a balcony, you can put your tree outside to get much needed sunlight. If you keep it indoors, choose a location near a sunny window.

The fruit that is produced from these small trees will be small and usually is not as sweet as its larger counterparts but the fruit is great in jellies and also for adding flavor to drinks.

Another disappointing major is over, done with

GOLF
JAMES STAMMER

Well my least favorite major is over. The 2014 United States Open Championship is in the books and the good old United States Golf Association got pretty much just what it wanted.

My beef with the USGA is that they turn it into something that is difficult to watch and, more often than not, not very entertaining. Yes, this year's run-away winner didn't help matters as the drama was gone about the time the last pairing reached the seventh fairway.

What really gets to me is the way the USGA insists on setting up the golf course. They make the greens as receptive as my driveway, they put the pins on slopes and near edges and speed the greens up to speeds they were truly never designed for. This year they didn't have any rough, but there was plenty of "other" stuff for balls that trickled off the fairways to get into. Some of it was simply picked up and dropped there. Seriously, if you need to drop clumps of tall grassy things in sandy waste areas to protect "par" you really need to have your true intentions questioned.

I agree that any true championship should involve a stern test of mind, body and skill. It should require great ball-striking, a little luck, and mental toughness. The U.S. Open certainly provides all of these.

I'm all for challenging the best players in the world. But what is more entertaining? A Sunday filled with double bogeys, 5-foot putts that roll 20 feet past the hole on cement-hard greens, or the final round of the Masters or British Open?

To the stodgy, must-have-their-neck-tie-too-tight, men of the USGA, there is nothing quite like watching six guys lose the tournament and one guy barely hang on. Me? I prefer having three or five guys making great shots to win it.

Yes, the USGA rightfully wants to determine the best overall player in the field. The brass in Far Hills, New Jersey feels, as do many of us, that hitting the ball where you are supposed to should be rewarded. Accuracy should be just as important as length.

However when the USGA makes it so that about the only way anyone is going to have a chance at par, much less a birdie, is by hitting a 280-yard drive into the perfect five-yard square in the fairway, and then follow that up with a perfect approach that has to land in the perfect five-foot-square spot on the green, lest it roll off said green and 20 yards away from where it just landed, then count me as not interested.

After watching Martin Kaymer tear the place apart on Thursday and Friday, we all knew what was coming for the weekend. The USGA was going to shut off the faucet and stop watering the greens. Pins would be tucked in comical spots making three-putting the norm. In other words, more than a handful of under-par scores was not to be tolerated or allowed.

The USGA needs to come to grips with par not being relevant. It needs to learn to accept that birdies are part of golf, and that setting up the golf course to prevent them is asinine. It becomes silly when the best players in the world cannot chip a ball onto the green and have it stay there, cannot hold the green with a wedge from the fairway and are putting the ball off the green. Set up a stern, but fair, test of golf and let the elements and the players' skill determine what the winning score will be. Instead we have a group trying to have the same score win every year without regard to the talent or conditions.

The USGA plays with and changes the nuances of the course to make it play in a manner not fit to its design. Why would anyone do this? Wait, I know. Because you want to make the best golfers on the planet look silly.

Most of the greens on courses that host the U.S. Open were designed in a time when no one ever thought of cutting them to speeds approaching 12 or 14 on the stimpmeter. Putting the pins atop ridges, or on a slope, makes for some interesting putting adventures. On tour, averaging 30 putts per round ranks you just inside the top 200. At the U.S. Open it put you in the top 20.

I realize everyone played the same course. But that doesn't mean that it was a true and fair test of golf. Sadly, this is the USGA's way and it will likely never change. But then, neither will its spot on my list.
