PHILIP 'BRAVE' DAVIS DECLARES SUPPORT FOR PERRY CHRISTIE

During this wrap-up on the budget, Mr Ingraham said Mr Davis had told some FNM supporters during a recent trip to Cat Island that Mr Christie was "not his leader" and he is "dicey."

However, Mr Davis hit back at the Prime Minister yesterday, calling his comments nothing more than "political mischief."

Govt to ease visa requirements for travellers from China

COURTESY CALL: Prime Minister Hubert Ingraham and Communist Party official Wang Lequan from the People's Republic of China during a meeting at Mr Ingraham's office yesterday.

THE Government plans to relax entry visa requirements for Chinese visitors and increase crawfish export to China, Prime Minister Hubert Ingraham revealed yesterday.

The proposed ease of travel restrictions would allow Chinese travellers with visas from the United States, Europe or Canada to enter the country without having to apply first to the Bahamas' embassy in Beijing.

Mr Ingraham said: "We are very appreciative of the substantial investment the Chinese are making in the Bahamas, the Baha Mar project as an example, and we look forward to many more Chinese tourists."

"We will have discussions with your embassy to see the extent to which we can arrange for Chinese visitors who have entry visas to the United States, to Canada, the European Union, to be able to come to the Bahamas and be issued a visa upon arrival as opposed to having to go to our embassy in Beijing."

The Prime Minister's comments came during a courtesy call from Communist Party official Wang Lequan at Cable Beach yesterday.

Mr Ingraham also said the country hopes to capitalise on the growing demand for seafood in China through crawfish exports.

"And we look forward to contributing to China's appetite for crawfish, exporting Bahamian crawfish to China."

Last year, the US, Canada and France were the major importers of Bahamian crawfish, with America being the largest market in terms of quantity consumed.

Mr Wang, who spoke through a translator, said the relaxation in travel restrictions will no doubt attract more Chinese tourists who have more disposable income than ever to spend overseas.

"Take tourism for example, in the past Chinese didn't have enough income to afford overseas trips but now with growing salaries and more economic welfare there are people going

AID STORE MANAGERS HOPE TO REOPEN AT NEW LOCATION

AFTER THE BLAZE: The smouldering remains of the AID store and warehouse on Wulff Road after Thursday's devastating fire.

DESPITE the total destruction of the AID store and warehouse on Wulff Road, managers hope to reopen at a new location in the same area early next week.

Regular clients who rely on the Automotive Industrial Distributions (AID) Ltd store to buy auto parts, paints and tools were redirected to the Baillou Hill Road store yesterday where some of the store's 70 staff who work in the sales department had been quickly relocated.

Jason Watson, operations manager, at the Wulff Road store, said the majority of remaining employees are expected to start work at a new location AID intends to rent in the Wulff Road and Mackey Street area next week.

A new warehouse and store will be built on the Wulff Road site within 12 to 18 months to replace the steel building which had stood near the junction of Marathon Road since the 1960s and had been expanded and renovated several times over the years.

The store supports more than 2,000 charge clients who rely on AID for autoparts, paints and housewares, and Mr Watson said although AID will be able to offer the full range of autoparts at the new location within two or three weeks, many of the housewares will take six to nine months to replace as they are either manufactured to order, or not always available.

He had hoped Thursday afternoon's fire could be contained to save some of their inventory, but the total destruction represents a loss of more than $10 million.

MAN KILLED BY POLICE AFTER 'ATTEMPTING TO RUN OVER OFFICERS IN STOLEN CAR'

By NATARIO MCKENZIE
 Tribune Staff Reporter
 nmckenzie@tribunemedia.net

A MAN was shot and killed by police after reportedly attempting to run over officers while in a stolen car.

Police have not yet released the man's identity and could not confirm last night whether he was known to them.

The incident took place in the area of Claridge Road, off Wulff Road, at about 11.30pm on Thursday.

Officers on mobile patrol observed a man driving a stolen champagne-coloured Nissan Sentra. A woman passenger was with him.

It is reported that the officers tried to stop the vehicle; however, the driver sped

FIFA CORRUPTION INVESTIGATOR COMING TO THE BAHAMAS

AN ex-FBI director hired to head FIFA's ongoing international corruption probe will be visiting the Bahamas next week, according to the international press.

Louis Freeh has been tasked with investigating claims of bribery in connection with the world soccer governing body's recent presidential election.

A series of interviews are scheduled to take place in the Bahamas beginning next week Tuesday, according to The Associated Press (AP).

This comes after two Bahamians blew the whistle on regional soccer officials who allegedly tried to offer a cash gift during an official meeting.

It is claimed in an affidavit that Fred Lunn, vice-president of the Bahamas Football Association, sent a text message to the association's president Anton Sealey immediately after he was urged to accept

Two in hospital after double shooting

POLICE are investigating a double shooting that left two men in hospital in serious condition.

According to reports, around 8.30pm on Thursday

police received a tip about gunshots being heard in East Street South, near Sapodilla Boulevard.

When officers arrived, they found the two injured men.

Witnesses said the men were approached by a silver

Nissan Altima occupied by two men, both of whom were armed with handguns.

Both men demanded cash, then fired at the men, hitting one in the chest and the other in the stomach.

Police are appealing to anyone with information regarding this or any other incident, to call 911, 919; the Central Detective Unit at 502-9991 or 502-9910; or Crime Stoppers at 328-TIPS.

POLICE have taken a 19-year-old Gambier Village man into custody in connection with the country's 58th murder.

Officers want to question him about the murder of Danaldo Johnson, 26.

The youth was arrested at the Western Police Station on West Bay Street just after 3pm on Thursday, when he was handed over to police by a family member and a local church pastor.

Johnson was killed around 10.12pm on Wednesday in Gambier Village.

Police said he was sitting under a tree when he was approached by a man and shot in the head.

Johnson was taken to hospital by ambulance and died a short time later.

• A stabbing incident at Doris Johnson Senior High School has left three male students in hospital.

According to police, shortly before 1pm on Thursday, they received reports of a stabbing at the school on Prince Charles Drive.

It was reported that a group of students got into an argument which resulted in three boys being stabbed.

One of the boys was stabbed in his chest, another in the head, and the third in the head and face.

They were taken to hospital by ambulance. There condition was not known up to press time.

Opening Soon At The South West Plaza, Carmichael Road.

More than 12,000 registered to vote on Grand Bahama

By DENISE MAYCOCK
Tribune Freeport
Reporter
dmaycock@tribunemedia.net

FREEPORT – Voter registration has reached more than 12,000 on Grand Bahama and parliamentary registration officials expect the numbers to significantly increase over the next few weeks. Denise Pinder, assistant parliamentary commissioner, said they will be resuming mobile registration at various businesses and companies here on the island. “We expect the number would increase significantly because we will not only be going out to companies during the day, but we will continue to go out in the evenings and on the weekends,” she said. The current register used in the 2007 general elections will come to an end on July 14 and the new register will take effect. In the general last election, some 24,168 persons registered to vote on Grand Bahama. According to Ms Pinder, some 12,498 persons have registered on the new register as of June 4.

So far, 2,344 persons have registered in the High Rock constituency; 2,265 in Marco City; 2,227 in Eight Mile Rock; 2,007 in Pineridge, and 1,421 in West End and Bimini for polling divisions one through seven in Grand Bahama. Ms Pinder said polling divisions eight through 11 are in Bimini and the information gathered there is sent directly to New Providence. She said the numbers for West and Bimini are expected to be higher than the other constituencies. The hours for registration at the Parliamentary Registration Department in the NIB complex are from 9.30am to 4pm and from 5pm to 8pm. Registration is held at the Local Government Office in Eight Mile Rock. First-time applicants for registration must provide proof of citizenship, preferably a valid Bahamian passport or a birth certificate along with an official ID. Persons previously registered may present the current voter’s card and passport. It is estimated that 160,000 to 170,000 Bahamians will register for the next general election.

CELEBRATING ‘THREE DECADES OF PROGRESS’ FOR WOMEN IN THE BAHAMAS

By CELESTE NIXON
Tribune Staff Reporter
cnixon@tribunemedia.net

THE Women’s Bureau is celebrating three decades of progress for women in the Bahamas. Under the theme “30 years of promoting the advancement of women” the Ministry of Labour and Social Development will host a celebration luncheon at the Hilton on June 23. Prime Minister Hubert Ingraham will be the keynote speaker as the bureau reflects on the important achievements by Bahamian women over the years. The mandate of the bureau is to

“to promote the improvement of the status of women in the Bahamas and to ensure the implementation of the government’s policy of the full integration of women as equal partners with men in all areas of national development,” said Minister of State for Social Development Loretta Butler-Turner. She said since its inception in 1981, the bureau has had many achievements, including most recently the signing of the CEDAW Convention which is committed to the elimination of violence against women. “We think this is very significant as when you look at the number of violent deaths taking place in the country today; over 40 per cent are attributed to domestic violence,” said Mrs Butler-Turner. She said it is important to acknowledge women’s progress, and to continue promoting the advancement of women in society. “You can see the propelling movement of women upward in our society with regards to substantive postings in government and the private sector, which we think is very important,” the minister said. The event is open to the public. Tickets are available at the Ministry of Labour and Social Development on the second floor of Frederick House on Frederick Street.

• WHY YOU VEX?

“I vex that hours after the fire started at AID on Wulff Road police still weren’t out on all the surrounding roads trying to regulate what had become a complete traffic mayhem. Jitneys were the worst, trying to get through traffic by making new lanes and driving up on the sidewalks, driving on the wrong side of the road and making the situation worse for everyone. Yet, no police in sight to fine them.”
- Fed up person I can tell that it is not that Bahamians do not want to work as wealthy people’s maids and gardeners, it is simply that many employers prefer to employ foreign workers. Also, many workers may be in an underpaid situation and endure it to repay their work permit fees and made to live in intolerable conditions, perhaps in shanty towns.

couple of months sentence or bail – hang them and get justice for the victims, their families. “Get real, jail and hang, it’s our lives you’re dealing with, one innocent life murdered is too much.”
- Man in da street

“I am vex and astonished that with the buying your licence and licence disc illegally, many of these criminally minded vehicle owners may be the clowns on the road and I am worried that as an insurance shareholder, the company may have been unknowingly dealing with these ‘stolen’ licenced vehicles.”
- Fer Real

“I am vex because I understand the (proposed) oil exploration in Bahamian waters typically uses 260 decibels and scientists have proven that any sounds over 180 decibels can cause marine animals to suffer hearing loss, brain haemorrhaging and even death to fish, coral reefs, etc. I can even remember a few years ago some whales were killed by sounds from the ocean.”
- Pete

“Some benefit by sending money to bring over the rest of their families to the Bahamas legal or not for a ‘better’ life and obtain free benefits as schooling and medical care for their children.”
- Win, win situation.

“I vex but I can only laff when I see a yet another set of alleged employee(s) from the Road Traffic Department ripping off da government licences; and says to myself, ‘what’s the point of showing all the hard work of my favourite people, the police, when I feels dese people will only get off.’”
- Pavlov in reverse

“I am happy that the budget has passed and hope that the merchants can act just as swiftly as our prime minister and get their prices changed in the food stores.”
- Cheaper food to survive.

“I am vex because even though I am not a very educated

“I am vex because the officials are blaming murders and high crime on drugs and weapons. For the umpteenth time, we the citizens never heard of a bale of marijuana by itself falling on somebody head an’ killing them, or a gun pulling the trigger by itself and shooting people. “We can tell you it is the criminals, duh. Carry out the law, punish them – no ‘wishy washy’

“I am vex to see that most of the churches have sealed their massive and even small doors shut for just about six days of the week and they is getting tax free concessions for opening it seems only on Sunday and then everyone blaming the politicians for the ‘lost sheep’ which it appears can only be found on a Sunday.”

Being bumped could leave fliers bummed

NEW YORK — Being bumped from a flight this summer may not be worth the travel voucher or cash refund you get in return.

Planes are booked full. So the next available flight could be hours or even days away. And if you're stuck overnight, the hotel is often on your own dime.

Bumping happens because most big airlines regularly oversell their flights to account for no-shows — usually about one in ten passengers.

It's often prevalent around the busy Christmas or Thanksgiving holidays. But more travellers could be denied boarding this summer than a year ago because traffic is up while the airlines are limiting the number of available seats.

The Fourth of July weekend could be especially bad because of the number of travellers taking to the skies, says Anne Banas, executive editor of smartertravel.com.

If you involuntarily lose your seat, the airline has to give you cash or a voucher for $400 or $800 depending on how long you're delayed from flying.

The amounts rise to $650 to $1,300 starting in August.

But even the new amounts may not be enough to make up for vacation days lost, especially if you've booked a cruise or a nonrefundable hotel room.

Here are some tips for staying on your original flight:

- No seat? No go.
- If the booking site doesn't let you select a seat on your chosen flight, don't book it. The flight is probably oversold.
- Check in early and beware the "seat request."

Gate agents often rank passengers based on their check-in times, so be sure to check in a full day ahead online. Those without a seat assignment will see the words "seat request." If this happens, check in with an agent at the gate once you get to the airport. Seeing your face before other passengers will help you avoid getting pushed off the flight.

- Know your airline.
- Airlines vary widely in how many passengers they bump. You have the best shot at staying on the plane with JetBlue, Hawaiian and Delta. JetBlue doesn't oversell its flights. It bumped just 26 of 6 million passengers in the first three months of the year. Regional carriers contracted by bigger airlines bump the most passengers. American Eagle, the regional carrier for American, was tops from January to March. It bumped about 3 per cent, or about 6,200 of 3.6 million passengers.

- Be an early bird and fly direct.
- Travel as early in the day as possible to avoid getting bumped by passengers who got bumped or cancelled earlier in the day. And select nonstop flights whenever possible. The more legs a flight has, the greater the chance you'll run into trouble.

- Listen up.
- Be ready to board immediately when your row or group is called. A gate agent could give your seat to a standby passenger while you're hanging back.

Another way to avoid bumping, if you can afford it, is to pay for an upgrade to premium economy, business or first class. Coach passengers get bumped first. Building up loyalty points by joining an airline's frequent flier programme will also help.

Summer travel also means more cancellations because of thunderstorms. That could also mean a long wait for another flight.

There are ways to prepare for a cancellation. Airlines are required to display on-time performance on their websites. That includes the percentage of cancellations, if a flight gets scrapped more than 5 per cent of the time.

Print out a copy of the airline's contract of carriage, available on its website. That spells out what you're entitled to if your flight is cancelled.

The airline's customer service number comes in handy as well. You can call it while also waiting in the customer service line, a double-teaming strategy that gets quicker results.

And jot down information for other flights leaving around the time you're scheduled to depart. That's ammunition for rescheduling your flight.

Even with that preparation, there's a chance you'll be stuck overnight — often without your checked bag. So, keep a change of clothes in your carryon. That's also the place to keep your toothbrush and any medications you need.

Immigration and the future of our country

EDITOR, The Tribune.

An Open Letter to All Parliamentarians on the Future of Our Country.

Do we need to look at our immigration laws?

Dear Parliamentarians, I am calling on you to take a serious look at our illegal immigrant crisis. I will start with an example of a Bible story that talks about when the children of Israel entered Egypt, they were numbered as 70 persons. By the time all that generation had died, their descendants was just over two million (Exodus-Numbers). They outnumbered the Egyptians in Egypt and the king of Egypt was very concerned if war had broken out, they would have been defeated. When they went into Egypt, they were the children of Israel, and when Moses led them out, they were still the children of Israel. So what are we doing about our situation?

If we don't have an administration that takes this illegal immigrants' crisis seriously, we will continue to be in crisis. For example, there are far too many shanty towns with each having over 100 illegal immigrants. When the question is asked as to what we are going to do about these shanty towns, the normal response given is that Bahamians are living in these towns. This is an unacceptable excuse as to why we allow them to continue to exist. I am not talking about the Bahamians because the Bahamas is for Bahamians, nor am I referring to those who are legal among us.

If we need a change in our country's immigration laws, then please, let us do what needs to be done. We can't continue like this. The problem is already out of control and if permitted to continue, the problem will become more and more pervasive. So far, it appears to me that the administrations over the years, former and present, have failed the Bahamian people as it relates to them not dealing with this issue. We need to fix this problem before it is too late! What we are doing now will not fix our immigration problem.

The amount it costs us per year to repatriate is always being pronounced but the question I have is how much of our yearly budget financially supports the cost we incur per year to take care of the immigrants who are here illegally — eg hospital, education, police resources, etc? Can anyone or any administration produce these numbers? It crushes me considering our public debt is well over three billion dollars. How much of this debt relating to illegal immigration is being absorbed by us, the Bahamians?

Some of the negative effects experienced by us are as follows:

1) For 2011 thus far, it has been reported that about $1,200 illegal immigrants have been sent back and I believe, out of that repatriated group some have already returned. This is not fair to the Bahamian people, their children and their grandchildren.

2) The school systems are overcrowded. It is alleged that the illegal children are entering the school systems by recycling birth certificates. I am demanding that this matter be looked into. How will our children have a quality education in this type of environment? It is not a surprise that our national grade is a "D" average with a system like this.

3) I believe a great number of the crimes in our country are being committed by unfamiliar illegal persons. This is continuously being displayed on our local news.

4) Our medical clinics and hospital are overly burdened by unfamiliar illegal persons. When Bahamians go to be serviced by our country's public medical officers, they are faced with the issue that beds are not available or they must wait hours to be served.

5) Too many shanty towns could cause an infestation of diseases and outbreaks because they don't have the proper infrastructure e.g. plumbing, water etc. Moreover, it is no wonder why our fire budget increased. The three towns that recently burned used some of our resources and created a cost for us. What else needs to happen in these shanty towns? How many more fires must take place? What needs to take place with these illegal immigrants before our Parliamentarians take this illegal situation seriously?

6) Illegal use of our electricity by them has also become an economic burden because the cost of fuel is placed on the backs of the Bahamian taxpayers.

7) It seems to me that in some facets of our society, we are already outnumbered.

We are almost to the place where in our country we don't know who is who. Why illegal immigrants should live in our country, enjoy all the benefits designed for Bahamians for free. All Bahamians must strive and pay their way. Why should they be able to dwell on the land, enjoy our infrastructure and other systems for free and Bahamians have to pay for the property they have and dwell on? In my opinion, this is deplorable.

In conclusion, administrations over the years have failed to deal with the matter at hand — a very important issue. Bahamians must obey the law of their land and so should the illegal immigrants. I am calling on all Bahamians to speak up on this immigration issue for the sake of your children and grandchildren.

Please put this issue top on your agenda. As Bahamian citizens, we can't afford to lose control of our country to illegal immigrants. I want to assure you that if we don't take this situation in hand, we will lose control of our country. But the question still remains, whose hands will the future of our country, the Bahamas, be in — children and grandchildren of Bahamians or children and grandchildren of these illegal immigrants? I am calling this situation a sleeping giant. Please let us get this together!

MSC CERTIFICATION WILL BE GOOD FOR THE BAHAMAS

EDITOR, The Tribune.

THE article in today's business section was interesting, from many angles, and certainly Marine Stewardship Council (MSC) certification will be good for the Bahamas.

The Bahamas Marine Exporters Association (BMEA) while endorsing this initiative should be encouraged to find a way of, perhaps within this framework, ensuring that those fish that are known in the Bahamas to tend toward ciguatera toxicity be banned from commercial fishing.

Ciguatera (fish) poisoning could have an enormously negative impact on the fishing economy if it were traced, or even suspected, of originating in this country. A recent case of a local fishing enthusiast being poisoned at an upscale hotel restaurant in Nassau, demonstrates how easy such can happen.

Everyone, of course, apologised to the victim and stated the difficulty of identifying the suspect fish once it had been filleted but, as most people involved suspect, an unscrupulous fisherman caught and skinned a "black fin" rockfish and sold it as Nassau grouper or yellow fin rockfish.

Had this happened to a tourist instead of a local person, or if Walmart or any other company that buys "grouper" from the Bahamas had a customer complaint of Ciguatera, the lawsuits would already be flying, the Internet and social media would be alive with the story and our fishing industry would take a significant tumble.

A simple legal mandate to leave the pectoral fins on the filet would at least reduce the possibility of human consumption of a potentially toxic fish and ultimately human poisoning therefrom.

Being able to backtrack to the fisherman who sold it would be a bonus and maybe that will come with the MSC mandate.

Fire investigators are still unsure about what sparked the blaze, and Superintendent of Fire Services Jeffrey Deleveaux said it could take weeks to reach a conclusion as around 65 employees working at the store at the time will need to be interviewed.

Staff at AID suggested the cause may have been electrical as they saw smoke and flames coming from the wall behind the bathrooms in the upstairs warehouse, on the eastern side of the building, when the fire alarm sounded.

They reacted quickly by fighting the flames with fire extinguishers, but dry goods nearby quickly caught light, and staff overwhelmed by smoke were forced to make a quick exit, leaving their personal belongings and everything else behind.

Supt Deleveaux said a sprinkler system would have controlled the fire immediately, however such systems are only required in new constructions.

"I can guarantee you, if the building had sprinklers, one sprinkler head would have been able to hold that with minimal damage in that particular area," he said.

But the fire spread and intensified, fueled by strong winds and flammable paints, chemicals, tyres and aerosols stored at the back of the building.

Supt Deleveaux said: "Every fire is a new experience, and this one was crazy."

"There were so many explosions and in some of the areas we were not able to get to.

"It was congested, the keys were in the building, trailers were blocking entrances.

"We learned a lot from it."

Fire services had 46 officers, six fire engines, and an additional 13 officers from the Airport Authority on site until the blaze was extinguished at around 9pm, without having spread to the adjacent Shell Service Station or other structures.

The fire crews had arrived within minutes of the fire being reported and exhausted the 1,000 gallons of water stored on each tank within around 45 minutes. Firefighters were unable to access water from directly underground and had to extend hoses to a water access point in Mackey Street to continue fighting the blaze.

It continued to smoulder throughout the day yesterday, and two fire crews remained on site.

Mr Watson said he was glad all staff got out alive, and just two were treated for smoke inhalation.

"The possibility of this happening never crossed my mind," Mr Watson said.

"We had thought about hurricanes, but we didn't really do fire drills.

"We had a professional electrician install the wiring and alarm, but the fire drill was just to get out. We had the side door, two warehouse doors and one in the retail area.

"I made sure all warehouse and service counter staff got out of there, it could have spread to the service centre and gas station.

"When we build the new building it will be up to all the new standards in terms of fire and hurricane safety."

Smith advances to NCAA finals

By BRENT STUBBS

DAY two of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Division One Outdoor Track and Field Championships on Thursday saw just one Bahamian advance in an individual event.

In the women's 200 metres semifinals, Auburn University teammates Nivea Smith and Sheniqua 'Q' Ferguson both competed, but only Smith got into the final, set for today in Des Moines, Iowa.

Result of day three yesterday, featuring Texas A&M senior Demetrius Pinder in the men's 400 final, was not available at presstime. Also in action was the University of Texas' senior Jamal Wilson in the men's high jump final.

Smith, the Grand Bahamian native in her junior year, finished third in her heat to post the third fastest qualifying time of 22.80 seconds. Louisiana State University (LSU) sophomore Kimberlyn Duncan won in 22.39 and Baylor's senior Tiffany Townsend was second in 22.77.

Ferguson, a senior who also missed out of advancing to the final of the 100, was third in heat three in 23.11. Her time was 12th overall as she failed to get a spot in the top eight.

Ivanique Kemp, a freshman at the University of Arkansas, was third in heat three of the women's 100 hurdles in 13.20, but it wasn't fast enough as she was 10th overall.

She missed a shot at the final by two spots.

In the only final that featured a Bahamian up to day two, University of Arkansas' freshman Raymond Higgs had to settle for eighth place in the men's long jump.

His best performance came in both the first and fourth rounds when he soared 7.86 metres or 25-feet, 9 1/2-inches. His other series of jumps were 7.75m or 25-9 1/2 in the second round; 7.83m or 25-5 1/4 in the third; 7.71m or 25-3 1/2 on the fifth and 7.79m or 25-6 3/4 on the sixth and final round.

Ngonidzashe Makusha, a junior at Florida State, clinched the title with his winning leap of 8.40m or 27-6 3/4 on his fourth attempt. In fact, Damar Forbes, a sophomore at LSU (8.23m or 27-0) and Will Claye, a junior at Florida (8.20m or 26-11) also got their best marks for second and third in the fourth round.

Nivea Smith

Also on Thursday, Cache Armbrister ran a split of 52.40 on the third leg to help Auburn to second place in heat three for the second fastest qualifying time of 3:30.62 in the qualifying round of the women's 4 x 400 relay.

But Demetrius Pinder didn't run for Texas A&M as their men's 4 x 400 relay team advanced by winning heat two in 3:03.48 with the second fastest qualifying time behind Mississippi State (3:03.39).

No doubt, Pinder is expected to be in the line-up today as the relay final will bring the curtain down on the championships and the Grand Bahama's collegiate career.

HUSKIE JUNIOR BALLERS SEEK TO UNITE YOUNG BALLERS

THE buzz of activity at Queens College Basketball courts started from early March 3 and is scheduled to continue until August 20th, 2011. Every Saturday morning from 8am to 12:00noon, you will find eight dedicated individuals sharing their individual skills with over 200 enthusiastic boys ranging from four to 18-years of age.

The Huskie Junior Ballers exist to enhance the level of basketball from the youth by uniting basketball clubs and schools through its youth basketball academy and league, while fostering the importance of education alongside sports development.

The coaching staff consists of national players, educators, counselors, high school coaches, sports enthusiasts and business professionals.

Johnson hopes for title shot, prepares for upcoming fights

By BRENT STUBBS
Senior Sports Reporter
bstubbs@tribunemedia.net

SINCE turning pro last March, life has not been what Taureano 'Reno' Johnson expected. He has only had four fights - all in the same year.

But while he continues his training in his new environment in Atlanta, Georgia, Johnson is trying to make the best of his situation - one that he hopes will eventually land him a championship title this year.

His first fight for the year is scheduled for July 15, followed by another on July 30. After that, Johnson said he intends to come home and make an appearance in two local shows in August and September.

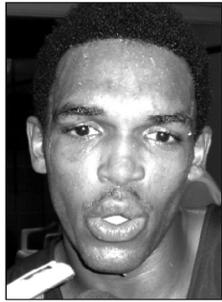

"I want to fight for the Bahamas title, the Caribbean title and the Commonwealth title," said Johnson, who got off to a great start with a perfect 4-0 win-loss record last year.

In preparation for his return to the ring, Johnson said he's already gotten down to the required middleweight weight limit and his new coach Greg Brown has gotten in super shape.

Still managed by Pound for Pound Management, headed by Shane Bailey, Johnson said he's experiencing his share of problems getting his career pushed forward.

"It has been one of the most difficult periods in my life," he insisted. "I've been pushed towards management and promotions because although I have my faults with them, I've

Major obtains new manager, confident of getting new exposure

WITH new manager Steve Nelson in his corner, Meacher 'Pain' Major is confident that he will get the kind of exposure that will propel him towards being one of the best lightweights in the world.

Having recently signed a four-year career with Nelson, Major said that should be sufficient time for him to make it big on the world stage, or he will come home and turn his attention to helping the youth of the nation.

"I want to be able to open some doors for the younger guys like Valentino Knowles and Carl Hield whenever they decide to turn pro," Major stressed.

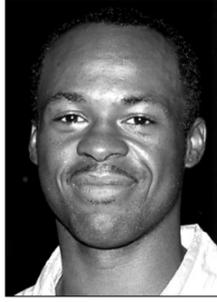

"I want to be a possible title holder in the next 3-4 years when I look towards retirement to open doors for those guys and give them the opportunity that I never really had when I was growing up."

Having gone through the ranks as an amateur boxer under the tutelage of Ray Minus Jr., Major turned pro in 2000 and has compiled an 18-4-1 win-loss-draw record.

But at the age of 29, Major said he felt that he should have already been in a position to contest for a title shot. Now in Buffalo, New York where he moved his training site last year, Major is looking forward to his big breakthrough with Nelson.

"First of all, I want to give the almighty God thanks for giving me this opportunity and then learned that you have to give and take in order to survive. "That's the case with me right now. It's been pretty uncomfortable. The difficulty I guess comes with the territory. That's how I can put it. But in the end, I know there are some positive results."

On the positive side, Johnson said he's looking forward to his Taureano Johnson Promotions teaming up with the Meacher Pain Promotions to put on the first local show for the year.

"We are even looking at getting Jermaine 'Choo Choo' Mackey and all of his partners to get on board, whether to fight me for the Bahamas middleweight title or just to get on the show to fight somebody else."

"But I'm expected to go up against one of the Caribbean's best and Meacher Major fighting one of the Caribbean's best. We are also talking with Sherman 'the Tank' Williams to assist us in any way he can, whether it's to fight or to use his administrative skills."

Johnson, 27, said he's just finding out how difficult it is to be a professional fighter, but with each passing day, he's learning more of what it takes to get to the top.

Sands: 'Countdown to the Showdown is on'

DURING a visit to Grand Bahama this week to ensure that the Grand Bahama Sports Complex is ready for the hosting of the BAAA's National Open Track and Field Championships, president Mike Sands said the "Countdown to the Showdown" is on.

"The Bahamas Association of Athletic Associations has decided to bring their top competition of the year, their Jr. & Sr. National Championships to the nation's second city," said Sands, referring to the last time the championships was held there six years ago.

This year's championships, sponsored by BTC to the tune of $50,000, will be held at the Grand Bahama Sports Complex from June 24-25 and will also include a Under-20 championship.

"Several athletes from Grand Bahama like former World Champion in the High Jump, Donald Thomas, quarter milers Demetrius Pinder and Michael Mathieu, sprinters Nivea Jumper and Tynia Gaither, and Long Jumper Raymond Higgs are now ranked on the world scene," Sands stressed.

"We felt Grand Bahamians were waiting too long to see their athletes compete head to head with the best athletes in the Bahamas at home."

Sands also announced that Haiti will be represented with one of their athletes, Samair Lane, competing against Olympic and World Championships medalist Leevan Sands, as they attempt to qualify for World Championships and Olympic Games.

As an added treat, Sands said on the final night, there will be a 4x400m relay with an All-Star team from Grand Bahama and one from the rest of the Bahamas.

The championships will serve as a trial for several teams, including the Pan American Jr. Championships, scheduled for Miramar, Florida in July;

the Senior Central America and Caribbean Track and Field Championships in Puerto Rico in July; the IAAF World Championships in Daegu, Korea in August and the Pan American Games in Guadalajara in October.

BTC, which has been a partner with the BAAA for many years, was the title partner of the Carifta trials and they also sponsored the Carifta team at the Games in Montego Bay, Jamaica.

As a part of their sponsorship, BTC will provide a CEO Most Outstanding Male and Female Jr. and Senior Athlete Award.

I want to thank my personal advisor Zac Pomilio, who got the hook up for me with Steve Nelson," he stressed.

"Zac was a part of my advisory team when I was with Nick Garone (his former manager, whom he just recently severed ties with), so he has put me in the right position to advise me on what fights I should take and should not take."

Major said he is currently talking to secure a deal with Charlie Major Jr to put on a show at the Nassau Stadium sometime in July. If that doesn't materialise, then Major Jr said Nelson said he will get him a fight in New York.

"We're just going to take it one step at a time," said Major, who is eager to return home to fight, considering that the Bahamian public haven't had a chance to witness a pro fight on a long time.

"I'm just trying to get the right fights, so hopefully sometime in the new year, I can get a chance to fight for the British Commonwealth title or even a world title. I'm just going to take my time and pick the right fights, rather than just taking a fight for a couple of dollars."

There's a possibility that Major will also hook up with Bahamian decent Edney

Cherry sometime this year in their bid to blend their talent in putting on a boxing show as well.

"He's been there, having fought for a world title before," Major noted. "So I'm looking forward to hooking up with him in a training camp and getting some experience and knowledge from him too to help me to get to the next level."

"I just have to be patient and rely on the Lord to pull me through. I haven't fought in nine months, but I've been offered deals, but I just didn't take them and eventually damage myself. I'm just being patient and looking forward to getting things worked out in my best interest."

With his management team in place, Major said all that is left is for him to get back in the ring and continue to do his thing. He's currently riding a two-win streak that he would like to improve upon.

PAN CARIBBEAN CUISINE AND ENTERTAINMENT AT WHIT MONDAY FAIR

THE Salvation Army is hosting its annual fair this Whit Monday in Grants Town.

The fair is sponsored by the organisation's Grant Town Corps, and will offer food and entertainment from six Caribbean countries.

Starting at noon, the event will feature cuisine from Barbados, Guyana, Haiti, Jamaica and Trinidad and Tobago, in addition to Bahamian staples.

Entertainment at the event will include a cultural show by participating countries, a performance by the Royal Bahamas Police Force Band and a kiddie corner with face painting, cotton candy and a bouncy castle.

The fair goes until 6pm and will be held on Meadow and West Streets; the area will be closed to vehicular traffic.

The Salvation Army is asking a $10-donation for tickets.

The Bahamas Division of the Salvation Army provides assistance through a wide array of social services that range from providing food for the hungry, relief for disaster victims, schooling and employment to the elderly and ill, clothing and shelter to the homeless and opportunities for underprivileged children.

According to a Bloomberg report by Tariq Panja, Mr Freeh, who left the FBI in 2001 and now heads his own investigation company, will lead a team to the Bahamas to investigate the claims.

The location was chosen because CFU refused to meet the investigators in Miami, asking in instead for a venue in the Caribbean.

The report said the CFU "also questioned FIFA's decision to hire a US firm to look into allegations that some regional officials were offered and accepted $40,000 cash bribes to vote for Mohamed Bin Hammam" who challenged president Sepp Blatter in the election.

The main focus of the investigation is a meeting last month in Trinidad that was part of Mr Bin Hammam's election campaign.

He and FIFA vice president Jack Warner are being investigated by the organisation. Both deny the bribery claims, but were suspended by the FIFA ethics committee on May 29 pending further inquiries.

Meanwhile, The AP reported yesterday that a Caribbean soccer official acknowledged getting $40,000 in cash at the Trinidad meeting.

Suriname federation president Louis Giskus said he received an envelope containing four piles of $100 bills at a conference staged by Mr bin Hammam.

Soccer officials in Puerto Rico also admitted accepting funds earlier this month.
